DROWNED IN OHIO RIVER.Registration Card Leads to His Identification--Brother Takes Body Home.

Early last Monday morning a hunter who was passing along the Kentucky shore of the Ohio river at North Bend, this county, discovered a man wallowing in the water near the shore. The man was taken out but was in such a chilled and exhausted condition that he lived but a few minutes thereafter, never being able to give any account of himself. The body was turned over to Esq. E. J. Aylor, who held an inquest. Upon the body was found a registration card which led to the early identification of the man, he being John Eli Jenkins, 35, who registered at Marietta, Washington county, Ohio. The card was signed by Max Moore, clerk of the registration board. The card was delivered to County Judge Cason, who was soon in communication with the Chief of Police of Marietta, Ohio. The Ohio official knew the man and got in touch with his brother, who came down and took charge of the body Tuesday. Jenkins had been at work at Marietta, nearly opposite the point where he was found in the river, and how he happened to be on this side of the river will probably remain a mystery. He evidently had slipped in the river and the condition of the shore indicated that he had been in and out of the water several times before he was discovered. There were no evidences of foul play or that he had been robbed.

Writes From Camp Lee.

Bolivar Shinkle writes to his father from Camp Lee, Va., under date of December 25th, and describes a very fine hunt which he and several others had that day. They saw a deer early in the day but were not close enough to get a shot at it. By noon they had bagged seven Jack rabbits of which he shot three. After having enjoyed a most excellent dinner he and his companions renewed the hunt and he had the good fortune to bring down a deer. "I was more Jack rabbits bagged in the afternoon," he says. "We are going to try and have our picture taken in the morning with the big Jack rabbits. We are going out again if we are here any time. There are some good music and singing here at the Y. M. C. A. tonight. I hope to see you soon. I hope you all are well and had a big Christmas and enjoyed it as well as I did. Guess I will say good night to all at home and hope to see you soon."

PT. PLEASANT.

Bro. Simmons will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday. School will begin Monday and continue on until further notice. Mrs. Vickers is at home now in her new house near Pt. Pleasant church. We are anxiously waiting for the return of our soldier boys from this neighborhood for "real facts and experiences about the war." The Xmas dinner at Mr. Keene Southern's home was quite a success. All the relatives were present and all had a very happy day. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Borer and son had as their Christmas guests Mr. Borer's mother from Maryland. They all motored to Pendleton county for the week-end, visiting relatives. Mrs. Sallie Southern entertained her family with a splendid turkey dinner Christmas day. Her guests presented her with a comfortable easy chair. Many gifts were given and received and all reported a jolly good time. Miss Sarah Elizabeth Tanner, president of the Triangle, class of Point Pleasant Sunday school, received a letter of thanks from the Widows and Orphans Home, Louisville, for the beautiful barrels of canned fruit, vegetables and preserves sent by her class for the Christmas Feast. Brother Hilton, Secretary and Treasurer of the Home, thanked each member of the class, the teachers, Mrs. Howard Tanner and all others who were so kindly interested in sending this lovely gift.

A Happy New Year to the Recorder its readers and correspondents. H. L. Tanner & Co. have purchased a threshing outfit and will be ready to thresh grain next harvest. Charles Carpenter recently purchased a Mr. Heagy's farm in the village, Ohio, two very fine Holstein milk cows. Wm. Morris came home from camp the first of last week and spent a few days, including Xmas, after which he returned to camp. Richard Alonzo Smith, a little son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith, colored, departed this life December 19th, 1918. He was born June 25, 1915, and was aged 5 months and 24 days. He leaves mother, father, two grandmothers, 2 grandfathers, one great grandfather and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his death. Card of Thanks: I wish to extend our sincere thanks for the kindness and sympathy shown us by the many friends, relatives and neighbors in the sad bereavement and loss of our dear little son.

The Bereaved Family.To Keep Red Cross Donations

All discharged soldiers are to be allowed to retain any sweaters, wearing apparel or other supplies that have been donated to them by the American Red Cross, has been announced by W. C. Knowles, director of the Bureau of Camp Services, Lake Division, American Red Cross. An instruction to this effect was sent to the Lake Division from the Department of Military Relief at Red Cross Headquarters in Washington. The instruction is based upon an order issued by the War Department.

It is necessary to use two figures only in writing this year.

Speaking of a girl who "will cook and wash for some dub at the rest of her life rather than be called an old maid," it is not difficult to tell who is guilty. After they have been married a couple of years, if he goes along the street about three steps in front and never looks around except to growl, "Why 'nt ya 'em on it in a safe but she is 'cooking and washing for a dub. If they stop along briskly side by side there is equality in the household, and a hired girl if one can be had. If she marches along about three steps in front with her head in the air, while he trails behind carrying the baby--oh, boys ain't theirs a grand and glorious home?--Cynthiana Democrat.

A Wonderful Hen.

Died December 21st, a wonderful hen, a Silver Laced Wyandott, aged 17 years and seven months. She was ever ready to do more than her duty, would take a newly hatched brood of chickens any time I would give them to her and care for them in the same way as though she had hatched them. She was more than an average layer, laying her last egg last September, and I would get eggs from her while she was caring for the chickens. Altho blind for the last two years she never failed to do her duty as before. She was never sick at any time. Molting and old age caused her death. J. R. HALL.

Celebrated Their Sixtieth Wedding Anniversary.

The above is a picture of William Lancaster and wife, Mary A. Tanner Lancaster, of Mt. Washington, Ohio. They were both born and reared in this county, where they resided continuously until eight years ago when they moved to Mt. Washington. The present home, Mr. Lancaster is eighty-two years old and Mrs. Lancaster is seventy-six, and on the 4th of last November they celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding.

Mrs. Lancaster is a member of one of the oldest and largest families in this county and she and her husband have a host of friends who are glad to know that they are enjoying life as well as can be expected of persons of their age. They are tenderly looked after in their old days by a very dutiful daughter, Miss Edith Lancaster, who is cashier of the First National Bank at Mt. Washington, Ohio. Their many friends and relatives in this county join the Recorder in sending these grand old people greetings of the New Year, and wishing them many more years of a happy earthly sojourn.

The fur season is over.

The January weather chart is about 50-50 in its weather layout.

The snow gave the early gardens of Tim Sanford and Edward Rice a decided setback.

J. M. Botts, wife and son, Carl, were Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Blyth.

There have been an unusually large number of interments at Bellevue the past two months.

It snowed moderately all day Christmas, making it a white instead of a green Christmas.

Carl Cason, Burlington and Bellevue mail carrier is enjoying a constantly increasing passenger traffic.

The first slice of winter was not very severe, and the local merchants had handled very few this winter.

You can gather mustard greens yet. When was there a year in the past you could do this stunt at this time?

The dandelions that were in bloom got caught by the snow. That's what they got for crowding the season.

Snow sweepers made their appearance on the sidewalks last Saturday morning for the first time this winter.

The boys began enjoying their sleds last Friday, but the snow was not deep enough to make a success of the sport.

Farmers are very much encouraged as to the 1918 wheat crop because of the excellent condition of the crop just at this time.

Mrs. Albert Beemon, of Hopeful neighborhood, entertained a large number of friends and relatives with a big dinner Christmas day.

The arrival of winter weather interfered with road repair work and the construction of the bridge of the Burlington and Petersburg pike.

Rabbits are very scarce on the local market, and the local merchants have handled very few this winter compared to other seasons heretofore.

The local colored folks had a Christmas tree last Tuesday night but the crowd was not large enough to make it a success owing to the weather conditions.

W. F. McKim, of Cincinnati, has a conspicuous position on the Recorder's honor roll. He pays for three subscriptions the first of every year and always has a good word to say for the paper.

J. T. Hutsell, of Devon neighborhood, is the kind of patron that makes bright spots in the life of a country publisher. He comes across about the first of each year with two yearly subs.

The Aurora Loose Leaf Tobacco House will have as many as three sales every week, and the management expects to get over the floor about three million lbs. of tobacco by the 15th of February.

All the loose leaf tobacco markets in the land are in full swing now. These markets make it very easy for the growers to get their tobacco in the presence of a crop of buyers, and they ought to profit by having a number of buyers competing in the bidding.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Ryle, of the Locust Grove neighborhood, entertained on Xmas day with a dinner in honor of his father and mother. Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Ryle, three present were J. W. Sebe and wife, Ransom Ryle and family and Manly Ryle and family.

R. P. Nelson has on exhibition a freak potato which he found among a recent purchase of tuber beans the resemblance to a very fat hog. On one of the four feet there is a cloven hoof, but the others are not thus marked. Lawrenceburg Press.

Secretary Baker says the Government has no intention of keeping the soldiers now at camp on the military service indefinitely. At the rate in which the men are being discharged, he says, all should be put of the army and returned to their homes no later than February 1.

FROM OVERSEAS

Albert F. Stephens Tells of What He Has Seen and Done Across The Waters.

Under date of December 11 Albert F. Stephens writes from overseas: Dear Friends:—I have had a chance to hear from many of you, so I will just tell you a little of what I have seen, what I have done. I have been over here about five months. This country is very much better in nearly every way than I expected it. I like it over here very well, and if I could understand French I would like it better.

I was 17 days on the water coming over. It was a tiresome trip—nothing to do to pass off the time but to read and sleep. We landed at Liverpool, England, and crossed England to the English Channel and then crossed it. That was the roughest water we had on the trip. Since this the traveling we have done has been hilling and in box cars. At the first camp we went we stayed and on now doing ground and then came to where we are now. We have a lot of work of all kinds. There is a nice camp here, with about three miles from Paris. It is an aviation camp, and here are airplanes of all kinds in great numbers at times.

When we came to this camp the front was not far off, but now it is a long ways from here. There have been many air raids around and over this camp. I have seen three or four very large air raids over Paris, and some of them did considerable damage.

I have not seen very much of the front fighting like boys did at the front, but hope I will not have to see any more. It is not so pleasant to watch.

I have done many things in the working line since I have been over here from building roads to making airplanes, guns, and other things. I do not like to talk to men like they are dogs, when I could not if I was not under very strict orders.

I have had several aeroplane rides and like the experience very much, but as the war is over I may have a chance to get home again. Some of these days and see you all so hereafter I will take no more chances in the air, for often I have seen joy riders killed and the machine destroyed when something went wrong.

There is not near so much work here now—only straightening up. They drill us just as they did every day now to keep us in practice, as we have been having so much work to do there was no time to drill and we got out of practice. There are only about 2,000 in this camp but it is about the best camp in France. Here you can see something and when you have time off you can enjoy yourself. I wish, in Paris.

The weather over here is awful. It rains most of the time. It has not been very cold here yet, but I don't know what it may be yet. I suppose you have had a great deal of snow by this time, or some at least. We had just a little some time ago. I never thought things over here would be like they are. They keep things over here much better than they do in the States.

The boys over here are awfully friendly and nice. Soldiers of all kinds have passed here. They are preparing for Wilson day and large parades.

The sure was some time over here when the armistice was signed. People were wild, and I suppose it was the same way at home.

ALBERT F. STEPHENS, G. O. 4, R. 1, P. O. 702, A. A. F. No. 1, A. E. F.

Had a Good Time.

Miss Rosa McMullen entertained at her home Thursday evening, December 26, some of her school friends, as follows: Misses Isabelle Duncan, Virginia Clure, Alice Walton, and Messrs Robert Clure, Robert Ryle and Franklin Clure. After a few games were played the boys and girls matched postcards and a prize was awarded to the couple that made the longest sentence with every word beginning with "a" within ten minutes. Alice and Franklin Clure made the longest sentence which was, "Alice and Albert ate an apple and almond at Augusta. After an apple and almond was eaten, Alice asked Albert an argument at Annapolis au annus (year) after and also about an argument at Atlanta and Albert answered another argument at Atlanta and an apple and almond and Alice ate an apple and almond and all agreed."

There will be no difficulty in resolving to get on the water wagon this year. You only need wish he that you will probably find it crowded.

The federal department of agriculture reports an increase of 7,726,000 bushels of wheat over the year 1917. This is above the average sown in the fall of 1918.

There is talk of creating more courts with the Legislature next year. We have too many courts now; what we need is less killing of time in the courts we already have and a stricter enforcement of the laws without fear or favor.

Land values in Kentucky are advancing by leaps and bounds. Land in the Blue Grass section is now selling at from $20 to $30 per acre, and still soaring. Land in Boone county has almost doubled in value. There is a reason for land values advancing so rapidly in Kentucky than other states—it is a more desirable place to live.

PRIV. WM. R. HORTON

With The American Expeditionary Forces in France, Writes His Uncle.

Dec. 3d, 1918.

Mr. J. W. Ryle: Dear Uncle:—I will take pleasure in answering your very kind and welcome letter that I received a few days since. I was more than glad to hear from you. This leaves me well and doing fine and I truly hope that this letter finds you the same.

Well, how is Aunt Viola getting along? I hope she is well. Tell her for me that I said hello. Tell her I said there is no danger of me getting stuck on any of the French girls for I cannot understand much they say and there is none like the dear old American girls to me.

I was sure glad when the war was over, and I think everybody else. I think I will be home soon.

I am in Southern France. It is not very cold here. There have been two or three frosts, but I have had on my over coat but twice since I have been over here. The Camp where I am is named Camp de Souge.

It is about 18 miles from a large city. We were on the water 18 days but were sailing only 12 days. Some of the boys got awfully sick; but it never bothered me. Many of them had six meals a day—three down and three up. We had a very rough sea and for two days and nights the waves looked like mountains. I saw lots of strange sights on the water, and I spent lots of time watching the flying fish fly from one wave to another. We landed first in Liverpool, Eng., and I was sure glad to see land once more. We landed on the 21st of September.

I have not seen a four-wheel wagon since I have been here except what belongs to Uncle Sam. The French use carts.

I sure did see some pretty country in England. I went all the way across England. Most all the buildings in this country are made of stone and brick. It is not often you see a frame building.

Well, uncle, I guess I will close for this time. I will say good by with love to you and Aunt Viola. I am your loving nephew.

FROM OVER THERE

Acy Fisher Writes from Loharo, France—Fine Country But Not Like U. S.

Sergeant Acy L. Fisher, colored, who has "over there" writes the following letter to his sister, Mrs. Wm. Smith:

Loharo, France, Dec. 7, 1918.

Dear Sister:—While thinking of you all, thought I would drop you a few lines. I am getting along very well and hope this will find you all well. Tell Edgar hello! The war is over now and if nothing happens I will be home soon. Am having a fine time now, almost done much of anything but eat and sleep for two months. Am expecting to come across soon if all well.

The country is fine over here for the one who likes it, but for myself I would rather be in the old U. S. A. We are having some wet weather here now, but it isn't very cold. Tell the home folks you heard from me and not to worry for I am well and will be back soon if nothing happens. Have seen the old country and lots of other things that I have read about.

Will close for this time by wishing you all a merry Xmas and happy New Year.

From your brother, SERGEANT ACY L. FISHER, Co. A, 81 Pioneer Regt., A. E. F.

Mrs. Mary Ralston, of Erlanger, renewing her subscription, writes the Recorder thus: "Enclosed please find $1.50 for the Recorder. I have been taking your paper for many years, but am getting very feeble, almost helpless. This may be my last opportunity to renew my subscription as God may call me to my Heavenly Home before another year goes by. So here is your money. I wish you a happy and prosperous New Year."

The Recorder and its venerable and much appreciated subscriber may be spared yet many years with strength to make life a pleasure.

Was Not Absent Long.

On the first page in this issue is an item stating that Newton Sullivan, Jr., had gone to Washington, D. C., to accept an $1,800 year job, before the Recorder could break the news to its readers Mr. Sullivan was back in Burlington, the job not being to his liking, it requiring night service.

James E. McAtee Dead.

Dr. James E. McAtee, youngest son of James L. and Nannie E. McAtee, was born Sept. 15, 1885, in Grant, Boone county, Ky. He united with the Bellevue Baptist church on November, 1898, and was a faithful member, and at the time of his death was a member of Liberty, Mo., Baptist church and of the Tri Mo Bible Class.

He entered William Jewell College at the age of 18 years and was a graduate in 1907. From this college he received his Master's Degree, later taking his Doctor's Degree from the Chicago University.

He taught in William Jewell College for five years, and was instructor in mathematics since last February.

He and Miss Virginia McKay, of Oklahoma, were married in 1911. Two children blessed this union. Virginia and James aged 5 and 3 years respectively.

After a short illness of influenza-pneumonia he was called to the great beyond on December 1st, 1918. Consequently he was 33 years of age. Funeral services were held at his home, 709 Indian St., Urbana, Ill., Rev. C. C. Long officiating.

The body was brought to Grant, Ky., for burial and the last sad services were conducted by Rev. R. C. McNeely assisted by Revs. C. E. Baker and William Smith.

The wife, two children, mother and two brothers, Fred, near Aurora, Ind., and Rev. John McAtee, of St. Louis, Mo., two sisters, Mrs. Owen Blankenbaker, of Union, Ky., and E. McNeely, of Grant, survive to mourn the loss of this loved one.

Death and the parting from our loved ones is sad at any time, but especially when one so young and just entering a life of usefulness as this young man had, for he had labored diligently to fit himself for the work he was engaged in, but not our will that the Lord's will be done, and looking across we seem to hear "weep not dear ones, as those that have no hope, I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness. Blessed are they that die in the Lord." x. x. x.

CARD OF THANKS.

We hereby tender our thanks to all our friends and neighbors for their untiring kindness shown us during the last illness and at the time of the death of our son and brother, Cleveland Stephens, and also to we thank Rev. R. H. Carter for his consoling remarks at the grave, undertaker Scott Chambers for the efficient manner in which he managed the funeral and friends for the beautiful floral offerings.

BETTER GARDENS URGED FOR 1919

Food Situation of World Demands Increased Consumption of Fresh Vegetables.

MUCH LAND YIELDS NOTHING

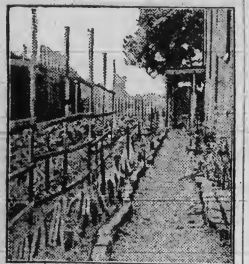

People in Cities, Towns and Villages Urged to Increase Their Efforts During Coming Year to Help Food Supply.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

No less than one-fifth of the total food elements consumed by the people of this country is obtained from commercial and home vegetable gardens. Under the present food situation of the world, the tendency and the need in this country is to increase the consumption of fresh vegetables.

Back Yard Gardens.
America's cities, towns and villages almost without exception are full of large back yards and vacant lots that have yielded little or nothing. We have taken pride, too, in our spacious home grounds, but have given little thought to turning them to account. Now, the food situation demands that every foot of ground suitably located be made to produce to its utmost capacity. City people have responded heartily in carrying out the government's program to use such back yards and vacant lots for gardens. Yet a survey made in a number of cities where such gardening was carried on last season showed that less than one-half of the available land has been utilized. As commercial gardeners cannot under present labor conditions raise enough vegetables to supply the demand in our cities, towns and villages, it is urged that people in cities, towns and villages increase their efforts during the coming year.

Better Horticulture.
The extension forces of the department of agriculture and of the state agricultural colleges are using all means at their command to bring about the raising of more and better home gardens in 1919. Hundreds of county agricultural agents and assistant agents, the farm bureaus, the home demonstration agents, the boys' and girls' club leaders, are urging the need of increased production, especially among those who in ordinary times are not producers of garden vegetables. Get the garden habit in 1919.

WINTER GARDEN FOR SOUTH

Furnishes Family With Supply of Needed Green Foods—Various Crops to Grow.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Something in the form of green vegetables may be had from the outdoor garden every day of the winter months throughout the greater part of the Southern states. Perhaps it will be nothing more than turnip greens or a dish of boiled kale, but it serves the purpose of giving the family much needed, green food and puts iron into the blood. There is perhaps no vegetable more delicate or appetizing than the universally grown collards of the Southern garden. Fall-planted spinach may be cut at any time during the winter, even when the ground may be slightly frozen, and it may be necessary to plunge the freshly cut spinach into cold water to remove the frost.

Certain of the more hardy varieties of lettuce, like Big Boston, can be grown during the winter with slight protection by means of straw or boards set at an angle on the north side of the row. Onion sets will give an abundance of early green onions for table use. There are a number of crops that will make a slow growth during the winter and furnish a constant supply of green food for the table. Get the garden habit and keep the Southern garden going every month in the year.

PURE WATER IS IMPORTANT

Required by All Farm Animals, Especially by Dairy Cows for Maximum Production.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

All animals require plenty of good, pure water. This is especially true of the milking cow, as water constitutes more than three-fourths of the volume of milk. Stale or impure water is distasteful to the cow and she will not drink enough of it for maximum milk production.

DADDY'S EVENING TALK

BY MARY GRAYHAM BONNER.

LADY AND ELEPHANTS.

"The lady has come back," said Jennie.

"What lady?" asked Lena.

"Yes, what lady?" inquired Julie.

"I know," said Roxie.

"Well," remarked Jennie haughtily, "I am glad there is one among us, besides myself, who has a memory and a sense of appreciation."

"We are supposed to be famous for our memories," said Roxie.

"Of course we are, and it's a great pity, which two of us go back on what we are supposed to be so famous for. It has taken years and years and years for that high opinion of us to be believed, and now two of us are trying to do away with it."

"We are not trying to do any such thing," said Julie.

"You are not fair to us," said Lena.

"Yes, pray explain, we don't understand," added Julie.

"We really don't know what we are talking about, and if you tell us, we are sure we will remember everything you want us to."

"I am not so sure," said Jennie.

"Beats me," said Julie.

Now these four creatures who were talking were the four elephants who performed twice every day in a great big show. Sometimes they marched in parades when folks wanted to have their help. For they would wear banners over their backs and people would look at them, and the banners would tell the people to help along some fine charities or something for the country. Thus the elephants always did their part.

But their regular work was to perform twice a day. The other performers sometimes changed, but not the elephants.

"You might explain," said Lena.

"Yes, please do," begged Julie.

"All right," said Jennie. "Well, the lady who used to give us apples has come back again."

"Well, now," interrupted Lena, "that is entirely different. You didn't tell us before that the lady who brought us apples was back."

"No," said Julie, "you simply said that the lady had come back."

"Well, did I ever," said Jennie, throwing her trunk around in disgust. "The very idea of you two elephants only caring for the lady because of the apples."

"Well, now, Jennie," said Julie, "you were really a little unfair to us to expect us to know what you meant when you had seen the lady. If we had seen her we would have remembered her. But there are lots and lots of ladies, and we can't remember every single one."

"That's so," agreed Roxie, "and I must be quite fair. I saw the lady in the distance, and so when you said in such a happy tone, waving your trunk about, that the lady had come back, I knew the lady you meant."

"Oh, you knew, did you?" inquired Jennie.

"Of course, so did you," said Roxie.

"I suppose that is so," said Jennie.

"Well, then, I can't blame the other elephants for poor memories. It would be a pity if, after all these years, we suddenly should lose our reputation for fine memories."

"We won't," said Roxie.

"But," began Jennie, "I don't think it was nice of you only to remember and like the lady because of the apples she gave us."

"Don't be so high and mighty," said Lena. "We like the lady because she is a nice lady. She is a very kind lady. We don't like her because she brings the apples along, though we do like the apples she gives us when she is here, acting in the same show house, but it shows a nice spirit about her."

"A lady who will think of giving elephants apples is a real lady. And I like a real lady," ended Lena.

"Yes, and what makes her kind is that she understands elephants and knows we like apples. She has a good memory, too," said Julie, "for here she comes."

The elephants waved their trunks and snorted their best how-do-you-dos as the lady came along with a bright red apple for each of the elephants.

They flapped their great ears and tried to say "Thank you," and the lady understood and was pleased, for she said:

"My elephant friends remember me."

What we eat and drink has its part in refining or debasing both the outer and the inner man.

SAVE THE SUGAR DESSERTS.

Among the light desserts which are easy for the inexperienced housewife to prepare are the fruit combinations.

Fruits are rich in mineral substances and acids, which are needed in the blood. The following desserts, while saving sugar, are giving us a new and delicious flavor.

Chocolate Pearls.—Steam unseasoned pears until tender, after peeling and coring carefully. To the juice of a lemon and half a cupful of water add corn or maple syrup until it is quite sweet; to each cupful of the juice add a heaping tablespoonful of chocolate and vanilla to flavor. Cook until smooth and pour over the pears.

Pineapple.—Bavarian Cream. Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in a half cupful of cold water. Heat together one grated pineapple or one can of preserved pineapple, a half-cupful of corn syrup, a tablespoonful of lemon juice; add to the gelatin and stir until the gelatin is thoroughly dissolved. Then chill the mixture in a pan of water, stirring constantly. When it begins to thicken fold in a cupful of cream, whipped. Place in a mold and set aside to chill.

Jellied Figs.—Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in half a cupful of water. Cook a pound of figs with two cupfuls of water slowly, until the skins are tender. Add the boiling water in which the figs were cooked to the thoroughly dissolved gelatin. Add a half-cupful of corn syrup and enough grape juice to make four cupfuls of liquid. Put the liquid and figs in layers in a mold, letting each layer of liquid partly set before adding the next. Serve when unmolded with cream.

Raisin Sandwiches.—Steep raisins in a little orange juice until plump. Put aside to chill. Spread graham crackers with the raisins and a little grated maple sugar mixed with cream. Put on another cracker and the sandwich is ready.

The movement for conservation is not only helping in saving food for our army and allies but it is educating us away from rich pasty and puddings, which we are finding most important in keeping our nation's health up to standard.

FOOD HINTS.

When you fry cornmeal mush roll each slice in cornmeal with a pinch of sugar; the slices will brown quickly and evenly with less fat.

Rabbit en Casserole.—A rabbit is one of our meats we are asked to use to save beef, some of us will need to get over fussiness about eating rabbit which is most wholesome and good flavored meat. Dress the rabbit and cut it up in serving sized pieces, brown in any sweet fat, then add two tablespoonfuls of corn flour and two cupfuls of hot water. Stir until smooth, pour over the rabbit, add a few slices of onion which have been browned in a little fat, a cupful of celery, a bit of bay leaf, salt and pepper and enough water to half cover. Cover and cook slowly for an hour and a half. If a thicker sauce or gravy is desired add more corn flour. Serve hot with a tart jelly.

Bombay Soup.—Put a tablespoonful of peanut butter into a saucepan, add one onion sliced and cook slowly without browning; then add one large sour apple sliced, but not peeled, a teaspoonful of thyme, juice of half a lemon, a teaspoonful of curry powder, a teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of rice, cooked. Cover and simmer gently for ten minutes with one quart of good soup stock.

Rice and Meat Loaf.—Butter a mold and line it three-quarters of an inch thick with hot, steamed rice. Prepare a mixture of two cupfuls of finely chopped meat, seasoned well with pepper, celery, salt, onion and lemon juice; add a quarter of a cupful of crumbs and enough rice water to make of the right consistency. Stock of any kind may be used if there is no rice water. Nearly fill the mold with this mixture then cover with a layer of the rice, put on the buttered lid and steam for forty-five minutes. Turn out on a hot platter and pour a rich tomato sauce around the loaf.

Rice with chicken, lamb, mutton or chopped tongue makes most tasty croquettes.

Cattle Buying for Swift & Company

Swift & Company buys more than 9000 head of cattle, on an average, every market day.

Each one of them is "sized up" by experts.

Both the packer's buyer and the commission salesman must judge what amount of meat each animal will yield, and how fine it will be, the grading of the hide, and the quantity and quality of the fat.

Both must know market conditions for live stock and meat throughout the country. The buyer must know where the different qualities, weights, and kinds of cattle can be best marketed as beef.

If the buyer pays more than the animal is worth, the packer loses money on it. If he underpays, another packer, or a shipper or feeder, gets it away from him.

If the seller accepts too little, the livestock raiser gets less than he is entitled to. If he holds out for more than it is worth, he fails to make a sale.

A variation of a few cents in the price per hundred pounds is a matter of vital importance to the packer, because it means the difference between profit and loss.

Prepared for the Future.

It was at the door of a store which had advertised exceptional bargains for that day, in the jam, that Mrs. Blank saw Mrs. Brown and rushed to shake hands with her, and say:

"Oh, Mrs. Brown, are you here?"

"Yes, I am here, but I did not expect to meet you."

"Why, you see, I am going to join the new league and I am getting ready for it."

"Is it the Woman's league where we pledge ourselves not to buy a hat or garment costing more than $10?"

"Yes, that is the one and I am going to join it too. I am getting ready for it."

And they entered the store together and each bought a dress marked down from $30 to $18, and $20 hats and coats that cost over $60 each. They went out feeling that they could stand by their pledge.

"Take One."

"Office Window" of the Daily Chronicle of London was once told a pleasing little anecdote of Dame Agnes Weston, the friend of sailors, concerning her friends. Some lady helper at a sailors' rest had been mistaken enough to hand the sailors' trunks while they were having a meal. Miss Weston advised that some better method should be adopted. The trunks were then placed in a pile on the buffet counter, with a card inscribed, "Please take one of these trunks and see if you can transfer the card to a dish of jam tarts, and, as the rush to the buffet began, the servers were amazed to see sailors after sailor lift a tart and walk away, while the trunks remained in an undisturbed pile.—Christian Science Monitor.

Spain Fighting Malaria.

Through reforesting marshes as a preventive measure and cultivating medicinal herbs for curative purposes, Spain is credited with a recent material reduction of malaria, in spite of quinine scarcity. The chief malarial area of the country is estimated at 741,200 acres, and the effort is being made to reclaim as much of this as possible. The 233,404 cases of malaria in 1913 caused a loss in work of 3,515,000 days with a money loss estimated at $26,000,000.

FARMERS CAN HELP TO RELIEVE DEMAND FOR COAL AND THE STRAIN ON RAILWAYS

Make Wood Take the Place of Coal to Heat the Homes This Winter

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farmers who own woodlands and people in cities, towns, and villages who can purchase wood from nearby farms can help in the coming winter—as last winter—to relieve the demand for coal and the strain on railway capacity by burning wood in place of coal.

It is not expected substitution of wood for coal will be complete or universal, as for many purposes coal is much more convenient. But for heating many kinds of buildings wood is the more convenient and cheaper fuel. This is particularly true in the case of churches, halls, summer cottages, and other buildings for which heat is required only occasionally but then is wanted in large volume at short notice.

Methods of Making Cordwood. The most common method of making cordwood is to cut the trees into 4-foot lengths with the ax and split the larger pieces. The pieces are then piled in a standard cord, which is 8 feet long, 4 feet high, and 4 feet wide. The contents are 128 cubic feet, of which about 70 per cent is wood and 30 per cent air. Wood cut 4 feet long can be sold to brickyards, limekilns, and other uses. In some industries, but is large for household use. This method is used chiefly where the tree growth is comparatively small, as in second growth, because such wood splits easily.

Another method, and one better adapted for old-growth hardwoods, which are difficult to split, is to saw the tree into logs of convenient lengths, say from 10 to 15 feet. These are "snaked" out to the edge of the woodland and there sawed and split into lengths proper for the stove or furnace. The sawing is usually done by machine, driven either by gasoline or by electricity. The wood is piled 4 feet high and 8 feet long, such a pile being called a "storewood" or "running" cord or "run." When the wood is sawed into 16-inch lengths, as is customary with stove material, three runs are theoretically equivalent to one cord. Actually they contain somewhat more wood, since small pieces can be packed more closely than larger ones.

Wood a Profitable Farm Crop. Firewood is expected to bring a better profit this year than ever before. It is a much less perishable crop than many which the farmer raises. When properly piled, the better kinds of wood will keep from two to three years, although wood steadily deteriorates after the first year.

To have the best heating value, as well as to reduce the cost of hauling wood should be thoroughly seasoned, which means air-drying it from six to eight months. However, when piled so as to get a good circulation of air, 50 per cent of the moisture may be removed in three months. Wood cut in October and November, therefore, may be burned the latter part of the winter.

The prices which cordwood likely will bring this year offer the farmer no opportunity to improve his woodland by weeding out the inferior trees. In the past this has seldom been practicable, for the inferior wood was not marketable. With the prices indicated for the coming winter, thinning becomes practicable over a wide range of country in the vicinity of good markets. The woodland owner may secure specific information from his state forester, his county agent, his state agricultural college, or from the United States Forest Service, Washington, D. C.

VICTORY FARMS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Iowa farms which put in their quota of the Liberty wheat crop are to be designated as "Victory Farms," according to announcement by the county farm bureau of the state. Posters with the legend "Victory Farm" will be given to the farmers by the school district co-operators late this fall. Those who sow spring wheat will be given their posters next spring. The wheat quota is one bushel for every eight acres. Allowances will be made on farms having an unusually large amount of unutilized land.

PHOSPHATE ROCK IS USED AS FERTILIZER

If Finely Ground and Well Distributed Gives Good Results.

This Source of Phosphorus Being More Extensively Used Than Formerly on Account of Shortage of Sulphuric Acid.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Add phosphate, which is used extensively as a commercial fertilizer, has doubled in price during the last few years. Farmers of this country are now facing a serious shortage of this material because the munitions industry is consuming more sulphuric acid which would ordinarily be used in the manufacture of acid phosphate.

The situation has led users of fertilizers to give greater consideration to the use of ground raw rock phosphate. That this source of phosphorus is being used in increasing numbers is shown by the fact that during 1916-17 at least six large companies entered the raw ground phosphate business and the annual consumption of this material has increased during the last decade to over 91,000 tons, involving an expenditure to the farmer of at least $750,000.

Ground raw rock phosphate is far less soluble than acid phosphate. Its effectiveness appears to be due largely to its thorough distribution in the soil. This is brought about by liberal applications of very finely ground rock together with good tillage. When all these conditions are not fulfilled, it may take several years to obtain the distribution giving the maximum effect. The beneficial effects of a comparatively heavy application of finely ground rock phosphate extend over several years, as a portion of the phosphate becomes soluble each year. These increases in yields are greater, as a rule, in subsequent years.

To be most effective ground phosphate rock should be applied to soil that is well supplied with organic matter. Such soils are always richer in carbonic acid than those of low organic content, and this acid is important in effecting the solubility and availability of the phosphate rock. Bacterial activity, which is more noticeable in soils high in organic matter, is also valuable in aiding the solubility of rock phosphate.

QUALITY BUTTER IS WINNER

Prosperous Creameries Make High-Grade Article and in Quantities to Meet Demand.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Marked success of the creameries of Wisconsin and Minnesota—the two best butter-producing states in the Union—is due principally to the fact that they produce butter of good quality and in a large quantity to meet market demands.

Where it is possible creameries should co-operate in producing a uniform high grade of butter and make shipments to market in larger quantities than is possible when they operate separately.

Most of the creameries in Wisconsin and Minnesota buy separated cream rather than whole milk on a butterfat basis. This plan reduces the cost of collecting and hauling the cream to the creamery and on his farm. Where whole milk is sold to the creameries, usually the skim milk is returned to the patrons. Buttermilk also is sold to patrons to be used as feed.

A number of creameries recognizing the relation of poor cream to poor butter, which on the whole is at low times, have sought to encourage more frequent deliveries by establishing grades of cream and by paying a premium of from 2 to 3 cents a pound of butterfat for the better grades of cream. This plan has met with the approval of many dairymen, who now deliver their cream daily during the summer and every other day during the winter. A number of creameries which churn the first and second grade cream separately, showed an average increase in price of 3.5 cents a pound for the butter churned from the first-grade cream. Shipment of butter to market usually was made in ice refrigerator freight cars.

TRAINING IN BOYS' CLUBS IS FAVORED

Makes Most Desirable Kind of Military Service.

West Virginia Member Now in Navy Lays Stress on Fundamental Principles Upon Which Agricultural Clubs Are Based.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The training boys get in the agricultural clubs conducted by the department of agriculture and the state agricultural colleges makes them the most desirable kind of men for military service, in the opinion of a former West Virginia club member now in the navy.

Writing to the states relations service, the former club member lays stress upon the fundamental principles upon which agricultural clubs are based. The boys' agricultural clubs have as a part of their badge the four-leaf clover with four H's, one on each leaf, indicating the equal training of the head, hand, heart and health. The West Virginia sailor says this is just the kind of training which makes a good soldier or sailor. He says:

"Let us recall the training we were receiving from the agricultural clubs along four great paths: First, the head, which must of necessity be well filled with gray matter that will cause a ferocious but obedient and respectful soldier; second, the hands, which are governed by the mind and do so much in military conflict; third, the heart, which must be clean and strong to make a soldier determined and unflinching; and, fourth, the health, which plays a very important part in making men efficient."

All of these are qualities which go to make up a good military man. Also, the writer pays tribute to the club members in his state who have been so busy helping in the great job of food production at a time when the farms of the country are short of labor.

"They have met the situation squarely," he writes, "and victory is ours, with them as a dominant factor in helping to secure it."

GREEN MANURE CROPS

The New Jersey experiment station calculates that two crops of green manure contain as much phosphoric acid and potash and nearly as much nitrogen as 20 tons of stable manure. Rye, soy beans and clovers are crops most often used. In the gardening section of the state rye is planted as a cover crop as soon as potatoes and early vegetables are out of the way. This is plowed under and taken the place of some of the barnyard manure that was formerly hauled.

CLEANING UP SWAMP LANDS

Undesirable Growth Should Be Burned When Ground Is Wet to Preserve Plant Food.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Growth which is to be cleaned up on swamp land or any soil containing a large amount of organic matter should be burned when the ground is wet, to prevent the destruction of valuable plant food. When soils do not contain a large amount of organic matter and it is the intention to seed in the ashes immediately after the burning, the place of some of the barnyard manure that was formerly hauled.

TO ARRANGE FARROWING PEN

It Should Be Dry, Well Ventilated and Free From Drafts—Guard Rail Saves Pigs.

The farrowing pen should be dry, well ventilated and free from drafts. It is a good plan to provide the pen with a guard-rail made of two by eight inch planks, fastened with their edges against the sides of the pen a little above the bed. These prevent the sow from laying against the partition and less on the danger of injury to the little pigs, which often find the space under the guard a very convenient refuge.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MISSING HOUR.

"Well," said the clock, "it makes me mad." A watch overheard the remark. "You should never get mad," said the watch. "They were having this talk in the watchmaker's shop, or rather the watch mender's shop." "And why may I not get mad if I want to?" asked the clock. "For a perfectly good reason," said the watch. "I don't know it, and I will never know it."

"You tell me," said the clock. "Now that made the watch very proud; to think that the clock had said it would never know something unless the watch told it. 'I will tell you,' said the watch. 'Do, I beg of you,' said the clock. 'Do I beg of you,' said the watch. 'I will tell you without begging. I'm a kindly watch that way. I don't have to be begged and urged to do things. I keep time without being coaxed into doing so—the way it is with some watches I know. Why, I've known of any number of watches which had to be mended, cleaned, regulated and all sorts of other things, all the time. I try to do all these things without being urged.'"

"Why are you here?" asked the clock.

"Because I was dropped and my glass face protector was smashed. Then one of my hands became hurt by that fall. It was an accident, and not my fault."

"See," said the clock, "but you haven't told me why I can't get mad if I want to."

"Because," said the watch, "you mustn't get ruffled up and excited. You must stay the same, steady, regular even old clock through life. You mustn't jump ahead excitedly because you are mad, or you mustn't lag behind because you are worn out from having been mad. You must have an even disposition for you are a clock, and must go steadily, regularly, all the time."

"Tick-tock, tick-tock."

"That's so," said the clock. "Tick-tock, that's it." "But just the same," the watch continued, "I would like to hear what makes you mad. You mustn't get mad, but you must tell me what would make you mad, if you allowed yourself that treat."

"I never knew it was a treat to get mad," said the clock.

"Don't suppose it is," said the watch, "but I didn't bother to pick out a nice word for it. I was too anxious to hear what you had to say. What would make you mad if you let your self be mad? Pray tell me. I am anxious to hear."

"Is this?" asked the clock.

"What?" asked the watch.

"It's this," repeated the clock. "They have turned me on an hour, and I don't know what has happened to that poor hour. I feel dreadfully about it."

"When did this happen?" asked the watch.

"A few months or so ago. I didn't speak of it before because I thought that the hour might come back again any day—but they haven't sent me back—or anything."

"Oh," said the watch, "you have been here in the window of this shop, and you haven't heard the news in the outside world. They decided, all over the country, to turn the clocks and watches on an hour one day in the spring; then in the fall they will turn them back. They wanted to use the bright light of the sun, and so, by using an hour early in the morning they could do so."

"Why, people, animals, trains, ships, and the gardens have known this for a long, long time. I think it's wonderful to me," said the clock. "It just made me too mad for anything, to think of that poor hour losing its way in the world—somewhere—I didn't know where."

"But if they're merely saving it, and will use it in the fall, and if folks are getting up earlier and earlier, using the light of good old Mr. Sun, and making fine gardens—we'll, then, I am glad I spoke to you about it, for now I understand. And I think it's wonderful, don't you? Saving daylight, eh? Well, well, well, they played a joke on this old clock. I thought they'd stolen an hour away—but to think what they're really doing! Yes, they say old heads are wiser than young ones, but I say that people are wiser than clocks, even if we do keep the time!"

Marigolds on Top.

Wallace Rice, one of Boone county's selectees who went to Camp Taylor last June and was later transferred to Camp McClelland, near Annapolis, Md., arrived home last Sunday on a 10-day furlough. Like all the other boys who have been discharged or come home on a furlough he looks exceedingly well. It is the first time he has been away from camp since he entered. Several of the boys who were inducted when he was overseas and took part in the big show but recently concluded, and he would have been with them had he not been assigned to office work at Camp Taylor. His command had everything packed ready to start for France when the influenza appeared in this country and their trip was called off.

Clem Kendall, Alonzo Beemon and Harvey Tanner have purchased the latest improvement in the use of a threshing machine for use next season. It is a self-feeder, has a wind stacker, an automatic weigher and the power to operate it will be furnished by a coal oil tractor. They expect to begin threshing grain as soon as possible next fall and will assist the natives by the rapidity with which they can dispatch work. Last year many of the farmers had a hard time getting their wheat threshed and it is hoped they will not have the same experience again this year.

Sir Robert Ball, the famous astronomer was dining with some friends at Stratford one day, and on the bill being presented he said to the landlady: "Madame, I am going to give you a lesson in astronomy. In 25,000,000 years all things must return to their original condition. We shall all be here again eating a dinner precisely identical. Will you give us credit until we come back?"

"Well," replied the landlady, "you were here 25,000,000 years ago and you left without paying the bill," said the astronomer, "and I will trust you for what you have had today."

United States revenue officers in Kentucky are destroying moonshine stills at the rate of about ten a week, according to Deputy Marshal James C. Drewry, follow up raid in Larnie county. The officers have been unusually busy for several months owing to an increase in the making of illicit whiskey, it is said. The fact that moonshiners appear to be more active now than for many years, while due in part to the extension of "dry" territory, also is attributed in a measure to the recent epidemic of influenza in the mountain counties.

Observes the London Telegraph: There are few incidents which rival the President's visit to our capital, London and England greet him as the head of a vast nation and himself the foremost citizen of the world. What is it we heard there? Was it some American declaiming about what they think in Europe? Or was it the American President? Or was it simply a groan from the sage of Oyster Bay? We hope Mr. Roosevelt does not see this. He may insist upon declaring war against England.—Louisville Post.

A large number of persons have called at the county clerk's office the past week to take out licenses for their dogs. In many instances the owner does not consider the dog worth the price of the license but being attached to the animal he is prompted to invest the necessary dollar to carry it through another year. There will be quite a number of delinquent dogs in this county but the amount of dog tax collected will be considerably in excess of that of former years.

Bernard Gilroy, a young Lexington soldier, killed in action in France, was noted through Kentucky twenty-five years ago as the "prize baby" of the "Blue Grass." He won prizes at every baby show in the State where he was exhibited. He wore long golden hair, tied with a blue ribbon, and was a model for a sculptor. He was the son of James Gilroy, veteran fireman of this city, and was killed at Mehlis in the closing days of the war.

Lloyd Weaver, from over on Gunpowder creek, who in Burlington early last Monday morning exhibited a large coon which he had captured. Some intimate that the animal was taken the day before but Lloyd does not leave home on Sundays except to go to church, consequently the intimate does him an injustice.

Efforts to secure larger salaries for Kentucky teachers will be inaugurated by V. O. Gilbert, State Commissioner of Schools. The plan is that each school should have a minimum of one month.

Books as Barometers.

If the mobilization of an army is difficult its demobilization is dangerous, and everybody is a little nervous about what the millions of returning soldiers are going to do with themselves and with us when they return from their camps at home and abroad. The thought of those hordes of penniless and hungry soldiers rolling like a flood across European countries, devouring the substance of the people as grasshoppers do, committing deeds of violence and threatening the destruction of existing institutions, is not a pleasant one.

While nobody dreads a tragedy so dark and desperate here in America, there are possible and even probable evils of which we have reasonable fear. We are told, for example, that soldiers discharged in Baltimore were seen in very considerable numbers, after having recently spent their pay and their railroad fare as well, begging upon the streets both there and in Washington City. It takes but a little "easy money" to turn self-respecting men into paupers, and nothing could be more frightful than to think of such a fate being common among our soldier boys.

In addition to such perils we must consider those of the demoralization of the wounded through pensions and the lack of labor for those who are sound, but jobless.

These thoughts are very disturbing, but they have their offsets, and here comes one which looms up large and bright as a full moon.

Camp librarians from all over the country assure us that almost upon the instant when news of the signing of the armistice arrived in camp the reading habits of the soldiers changed. They were no longer pondering treaties and pondering science, they were down upon the counter and began calling for those select books of the arts and sciences of peace, they fairly turned over each other, they were told to get possession of manuals and text books upon such subjects as automobile and aircraft construction, business administration, advertising and salesmanship. Most hopeful sign of all, they clamored for books on agriculture, showing that their outlook had turned their thoughts to farming at the calling likeliest to satisfy their newly acquired love for nature.

And, besides, the shelves of the library were suddenly swept clean of books embodying the world's best literature—poetry, essays, histories and novels.

Here, then, is something to allay our fears. It is evident, first, that these glorious young men have not been bitten by the military bug.

It is evidence, second, of the adaptability of their mind to the swiftly changing conditions of the life of man in this modern world. It is evidence, third, that they are not waiting for the Government to play the part of nurse to them, but propose to find their places in the world by the exercise of their own unaided powers.—Enquirer.

Big Wheat Increase.

Kentucky farmers this fall increased their acreage of wheat more than one hundred thousand acres over the year 1917, and it has gone into the winter in remarkably excellent condition, 85 per cent compared to a ten year average condition of 88 per cent. The total sown in the state is estimated at 1,056,720 acres in this fall compared to 932,000 acres in the fall of 1917.

The unusually mild fall weather was especially favorable for sowing and for good growth and many farmers increased their acreage over the year 1917. The campaign for increased acreage of wheat and the Government's guaranteed prices were also strong factors in increasing the acreage.

In counties where little or no wheat is usually raised the increase was huge. In many instances seven hundred per cent while in the heavy wheat producing sections of Western Kentucky and the Blue Grass counties the increase ranged from 8 to 15 per cent, making an average state increase of about 11 per cent over the acreage sown in 1917.

The United States winter wheat acreage this fall is 49,027,000, compared to 42,301,000 acres sown last year, an increase of nearly 16 per cent, while the condition in the country as a whole is 88.5 per cent compared to a ten year average condition of 88.2 per cent. The acreage in Kentucky this fall is approximately the same as that sown in the fall of 1917, excellent, while its condition is 87 per cent, excellent. Most of the north central counties and those bordering the Ohio river from Louisville to Mayville, Mo., are over the average.

Acreage of rye in the United States this fall is 6,820,000 compared to 6,708,000 acres sown in 1917, and the condition is 89 per cent compared to a ten year average condition of 91.4 per cent. H. F. BRYANT, Field Agent.

SLIPPING BACK.

With nothing settled between Germany and the U. S. with the preliminaries barely under way, a German Lutheran church at Evansville has decided to resume holding services in German. There has been no German emigration to America since the war began. Consequently one may assume that the congregation of the Evansville church is composed of people who do not think in that language. No one would deny any person the right to worship in his chosen manner, but it is a great pity that those Germans in America did not either go back to their fatherland or become Americans.

Investigation made by the Secret Service operatives showed that here and there German ministers were used to spread German propaganda in this country. Most German ministers were taken from the ranks of those who had not forgotten the fatherland. There is no place for them in America, and there is no place here for any other person who cannot become Americanized.—Indianapolis News.

Where Axles Are Badly Worn on Under

Put Machines Under Cover to Protect From Weather.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The high cost of farm machinery undoubtedly has resulted in the carrying over of a large amount of old equipment for use next spring. With the fall work out of the way, attention should be given to the repair of all this equipment.

Inspect Iron Boxes.

Special attention should be given to the iron boxes in the hubs in the wheels of plows, planters, cultivators, hay rakes and similar tools. These boxes are replaceable and can easily be removed by unscrewing the large nut on the outside of the wheel that holds these boxes in place. When this nut is removed a few taps of the hammer will usually drive the box out of the hub and a new one can easily be inserted. These boxes are numbered so that it is not a difficult matter to obtain duplicates from the local implement dealer. However, it may be necessary to order these from supply houses in distant cities, and it is advisable to attend to this matter at once, so that the new boxes can be put in the wheel before the tools are needed for next spring's work.

Repairing Axles.

If the axles are badly worn on the under side, sometimes they can be reversed and turned upside down, or they can be replaced with new axles. Where this is impossible, they can sometimes be repaired by using Babbitt metal.

After the implement has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired, it should be given a good coat of paint. If the old paint is gone or badly worn, it is advisable to apply a coat of linseed oil with a small amount of paint as the first coat over the woodwork. After this is thoroughly dried, a second coat can be applied over the entire machine. Mold boards and shares of

Johnson Clore, of Crawfordsville, Ind., is a native of the late Cave Clore, who resided on the road between Burlington and Bullsboro, Ind. He followed his father from his son, Ensign Lex Clore, will be of interest to many of his relatives in this county:

At Sen, November 14, Dear Mamma:—As I haven't anything to do for a while I will write you a letter or a letter or so that when I get to France I can mail it. However it will be a month before you will get the letter.

From the news we got the last couple of days it looks as if the war was just about over. The French cruiser who had been with us semaphored over to us the day before yesterday that they had received a wireless message from the Eiffel Tower stating that Germany had signed the armistice and then our daily newspaper told us that the Kaiser had abdicated. All ships of the navy have a wireless message paper on board every morning as long as they are within wireless communication. It isn't a real newspaper, but every night the news of the day before is sent out by wireless and is typewritten out into sort of a news-sheet which is ready for us at breakfast.

I am enjoying the trip and the work very much. The first four days out from land we had a northwest gale all the time and the weather was very rough and stormy. A lot of the sailors got sea sick, but it did not bother me. I am hard at work every day. Up until today I have been acting as junior officer of the deck, assisting the regular officer of the deck. Today was made a senior watch officer and am now standing my regular watch as officer of the deck. I am on duty eight hours a day from 12 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and from midnight until 4 o'clock in the morning. During these times I stand my watch on the navigating bridge of the ship and have full charge and control of the navigating of the ship. It is one of the most responsible positions on board ship. During the time that I am on watch I am responsible for the maneuvering and the control of the ship, for the different courses steered, for the distance run, the speed of the ship, all signals sent and received and in fact for everything that goes on that has to do with the navigating of the ship.

I like the work very much and am well pleased with it. I will write you again before we reach France. Good-bye.

ENSIGN LEX E. CLORE.

His Compliments.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Food Administrator Hoover, in Europe at ranging relief for the people of the war-devastated territories, has refused in emphatic terms to discuss German food conditions with Baron von der Lücken and Dr. Rieth, who sought a meeting with the Food Administrator.

At a meeting in Paris today said these two German officials who were prominent in the German administration of Belgium, wired from Berlin to Walter Dymally Brown, Director of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, at Rotterdam, that they had been appointed to negotiate with Mr. Hoover for food supplies, and that they desired Mr. Hoover to advise them when and where he would meet them. In answer to the request for a conference, Mr. Hoover sent this message: "You can describe two and a half years of arrogance toward ourselves and cruelty to the Belgians in any language you may select, and tell the pair personally to get them to heel with my compliments. If I do have to deal with Germans it will not be with that pair."

To Stock Needles.

Washington, Dec. 28.—America's army of women knitters who did not cease work with the signing of the armistice, today were ordered by the Red Cross to "stock needles," their task accomplished. An inventory of articles in reserve shows sufficient on hand to meet the needs of a year of knitting in this country and abroad and of Red Cross relief commissions. Knitted articles now in the making will be finished and turned in to the 834 Red Cross chapters, which will issue no more yarn.

More than 10,000,000 sweaters, socks, mufflers, helmets and wrist bands are being made out in fifteen months preceding the overthrow of the Central Powers. Virtually every man in the army was given a sweater, and thousands of women who choose that method of aiding to win the war.

A Very Busy Man.

County Farm Agent Sutton is a very busy man, in fact he is always busy, but just now he is working to obtain a perfect line on the result of labor of the past year in behalf of Boone county farmers. Every farmer in the county has not been a direct beneficiary of his labors, but there are a very large number who are ready to submit testimonials to the excellent services he has rendered them. Sutton wants to make good every line of his work, and is a conscientious worker along that line.

Mrs. W. L. Goodridge and daughter, Elizabeth Dell, spent last Thursday with Mrs. Ed. Sidnor. Glad to report William Boyer able to be out on crutches after a fall from a tree two weeks ago.

Mrs. Brad Sayre has returned to her home after several days visit here with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bradford had as their Sunday guests A. M. Yealey and family and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Rouse.

A memorial service will be held on the Christian church January 5th, in honor of Miss Bettie Hoggins, deceased.

Catherine Cook, of Erlanger, spent Monday and Tuesday with grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Whitson. G. F. Schram and wife had as their guests last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Schram and Miss Regina Nickley, of Cincinnati.

All the members of the Baptist church are requested to be present at a business meeting the second Saturday night in January.

Chas. Carpenter found a box of cigars on the Lexington pike which the owner can have by calling on him and proving property.

Dr. and Mrs. T. B. Castleman entertained with a dinner last Sunday. Covers were laid for Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Sayre, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Osborn and Mr. and Mrs. Hal Highhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Metzger spent Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Rouse, and left Thursday for a week's visit with Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Cole, of Columbus, Ohio. The body of Louis Mollinkopf, 48, single, employed by Samuel Swan Covington cafe proprietor, of latter's farm near Florence, was found Friday morning hanging from a rope attached to a rafter in a barn. He was alone in the barn. He had been complaining of ill health for some time. When he failed to appear on the farm Friday morning neighbors investigated and found him dead. He apparently had been dead several hours. A telephone message was sent to Mr. Swan, who stated that he had known Mollinkopf for some time. He has lived in Boone county for some time. Coroner Murat was notified.

FRANCESVILLE.

W. H. Eggleston's family has about recovered from influenza. The W. M. U. met at Mrs. J. S. Eggleston's, Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Chas. Muntz was a guest at Mrs. Muntz's, one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kilgore were Sunday guests at Emmet Kilgore's.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Eggleston and children spent Xmas day with Wm. House, of Ludlow.

Miss Laura Katherine Evans entertained her friend Miss Rhoda Eggleston one day last week. Mrs. J. S. Eggleston and daughter, Miss Rhoda, were the Sunday guests at B. F. Eggleston's, near Hebron.

Elmer Bates, of near Cloves, O., spent his Christmas holidays with his cousins, Arthur and George Eggleston.

R. S. Wilson and family, of near Hebron, and Mrs. W. L. Brown and children, spent last Thursday at Jerry Bates'.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ogden had as guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Ayler and little daughter, Thelma; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Muntz and children and R. L. Day.

GUNPOWDER.

On Saturday we broke bread at P. A. Allen's.

Christmas passed off very quiet on our ridge. Mr. and Mrs. George Davis are proud parents of a little daughter.

On Sunday H. F. Utz and family and P. J. Allen and wife were present guests of this writer.

As has been their custom for several years, J. W. Rouse and wife entertained all of their children on Christmas day.

On Friday B. E. Tanner and wife entertained at dinner Miss Ruth Griffin, of Erlanger; N. A. Zimmerman and family and this scribe and wife.

Fred Morris, who lives out on the East Bend road, was in town Tuesday the first time for several weeks. He shows plainly that he has been a great sufferer from his crippled foot. He has to use crutches to enable him to get about.

Damage Done by Naval Guns.

New York, Dec. 21.—The story of the success of America's land battery of 14-inch naval guns, as told by members of the gun crews themselves, was given to the public here today when copies of "The Big U," a newspaper printed on board the battleship Utah, were distributed on shore.

It was the Utah's gun crew, the paper says, that was sent ashore to "get" the German supergun which was shelling Paris. The gun was removed. It was said, before the batteries could get into action, but the navy men had the satisfaction of smashing away at the German line for several months before the armistice was signed.

The shells fired by the naval guns, according to "The Big U," were almost twice the size of those fired by the German supergun, and were so powerful that on one occasion an exploding shell hurled two loaded freight cars from a track to the top of a railway station.

Another shell landed in a hut where the crew were watching a motion picture show, and when America's front line reached the spot no identification tags were left that could be found to tell the fate of the party.

The naval guns habitually fired at a range of from 20 to 21 miles, the article said, and more than 800 rounds had been fired when the armistice was signed. It would have been necessary to have removed the guns for reloading with in a short time had not the armistice put an end to their work. Describing the activities of the battery, the article said:

"From the forest of Compeigne we fired on Ham, from Pontency and Sisson on Laon and its railway connections, from Jussy (11 kilometers east of Ham) on Montiers, north of Laon; from Charney and other points north of Verdun we destroyed the Metz-Sedan Railway, a line of Montmedy and other places and finally guns Nos. 1 and 2 were preparing emplacements in forests near Nancy and Lunéville when the armistice was declared.

"A number of holes made by our projectiles have since been visited. One was 20 feet in diameter and 15 feet deep, another 33 feet in diameter and 12 feet deep, and so on depending on the character of the ground.

"The entire battery of 500 men, only three were lost. Two succumbed to disease and the other died of wounds from fragments of a German shell."

Approval of Wilson's Trip.

New York, Dec. 29.—Approval of President Wilson's trip to Europe and of his plan for a league of nations was expressed by William Howard Taft in an address today under the auspices of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. A WORLD JUBILEE.

The suggestion of a world jubilee to be held in the United States on July 4, 1919, to celebrate the allied victory—a suggestion that has been put into the concrete form of a resolution and introduced in congress—will doubtless meet with an enthusiastic response throughout the country and in other countries. Whether it will be practicable to hold such a celebration next year depends largely upon the manner in which events shape themselves during the next few months. If the revolutionary movements now in progress throughout the central empires are quelled soon and the peace conference succeeds in promptly and amicably adjusting all the various issues that will come before it, next American Independence day may properly be observed as independence day for the whole world, says Washington Post. Otherwise it may be necessary to postpone it until a later date. The celebration should be at the proper time, when the stage is properly set. It would contribute largely to the new era of friendship that is ushered in by the end of the war, and would help to cement in strong ties the nations of the world. If it is hoped, is now a thing of the past, and in its place is to come a new understanding among the powers, through which their disputes will be adjusted without recourse to the sword. A celebration of the sort proposed will promote good feeling and confidence, and it should be held at the earliest appropriate time.

It is fitting that the historic room which saw the birth of Bismarck's Germany, the autocratic, militaristic, brutal, lawless, aggressive Germany, should also see its death. It is well that the nation, whose rulers stood triumphant over the fallen foe, in the throne room of their ancient kings, should send their delegates today to this very room, there to atone for the injustice of the last, says New York Times. It is a satisfaction due to France. It is a humiliation which should symbolize for German militarists the end of their dreams of world power, the discredit of the false ideals upon which their empire was founded, the passing away of the old Germany, the beginning of the new.

German "efficiency" was an abject failure in Alsace and Lorraine as in Schleswig-Holstein, and in Poland, and in Africa. It consisted merely in rigidity of rule, in a refusal to recognize the native rights of subject people. And yet these were the people, these Germans, who set out to accomplish world dominion, says Washington Star. The tears that are now being shed by the people of Alsace and Lorraine, tears of joy for their liberation from German rule, are the surest proof of the righteousness of the present victory over the most evil power the world has ever known.

Under the agreement of the United States food administration with the food controllers of the allied nations, our breadstuffs export program for the coming year will aggregate 400,000 bushels, which is equivalent to more than 60 bushels for every farm in the United States. The program calls principally for wheat, but from 100,000,000 to 105,000,000 bushels may be of other cereals, including rye, barley, and corn.

It is said the poor in Austria gather at the doors of the hotels in the cities and fight for the scraps of food. That is the end of the dream of world domination by the Kaiser and his militarist advisers have brought such disaster upon his allies, who, in their blind folly, allowed him to lead them to their ruin as sacrifices to his ambition.

Price quotations of 50 years ago show "frying size" chickens selling at from $1.50 to $2.50 a dozen, bacon 6 to 17 cents a pound and sugar 10 1/2 cents a pound. Thus we see of all the ages and forebode in the files of time perceive that the onward march of civilization has brought us the blessing of cheaper sugar!

It will be just like posterity to be come cynical and ungrateful enough to remark that the Americans of our generation were patriotic, altruistic and abundantly blessed with vision, but none too heavily endowed with common sense.

It is good to know that Kitchak has been made dictator at Omsk. After that the arrest of Arkentoff and Zenzoff comes with the logic of a proposition in mathematics. But Volodogodsky and the rest of the alphabet still remain to be dealt with as they deserve.

One reason why the boys who return from the military can't look as well as they used to is that on substitutes like the people at home.

ROOSEVELT DEAD

Life of Former President Ended Suddenly Following Attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism.

New York, January 6.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt died at his home in Oyster Bay at 4 o'clock this morning.

An attack of rheumatism settled mainly in Co. Roosevelt's right hand, and Mrs. Roosevelt sent at once for a nurse in the village of Oyster Bay. His condition did not at first seem to be alarming and the turn for the worse, as believed, did not come until last night.

It is understood that only Mrs. Roosevelt and the nurse were with him at the time of his death. The other members of the family are in other parts of the country or abroad.

Roosevelt's last illness may be said to date from last February. On February 5th it was announced that he had been removed from his home in Oyster Bay to the Roosevelt hospital in this city, following an operation on one of his ears. Soon after his removal to the hospital, he underwent two more operations for the removal of diseased tissue in his infected ear and it was seriously ill. He remained at the hospital until March 3.

During May and June the Colonel made a number of addresses, speaking at Springfield, Mass., and in New York. In June he made a tour of the West, during which he suffered an attack of erysipelas in one of his legs, but refused to give up his engagements. Early in November the Colonel was taken to Roosevelt hospital in this city for the treatment of rheumatism and sciatica. While in the hospital reports became current that the Colonel would die seriously ill.

Colonel Roosevelt returned to his home in Oyster Bay on Christmas Day, remarking as he stepped to the porch that he was "feeling bully."

The passing of former President Theodore Roosevelt ends a career which was filled with many remarkable experiences and with dangers met eagerly met—and overcome; a career unique in American history. A boy-Roosevelt, a hunter, a sportsman, a weakling, which alarmed his parents; he decided he would be strong and he became strong; he defied the wild beasts of the jungle; he defied his political adversaries and for years he conquered them; he laughed at the assassin's bullet and recovered from his wounds; he faced unflinchingly the guns of the country's enemy in the Spanish war and he came home the hero of the "Rough Riders."

FROM FRANCE

Private Lee Abdon Writes From Camp DeSouge, France.

Private Lee Abdon writes from over the sea to his niece, Laura Belle Abdon, under date of December 7th.

Camp DeSouge, France.

Dear Laura—How are you all by now? I am well and hope you all are the same. I got your letter the other day and was glad to hear from you. I thought maybe you had forgotten me as I had not heard from you for so long. I am getting along all right, stripping his tobacco! I would like to be there to help him. Tell Wilbur and Minnie I was a good boy and give them the biggest wrestle they ever had.

I am away down in Southern France, next to Spain. I am about 4,000 miles from home, but I hope to be home real soon, but I don't know what kind of luck I will have.

Some people think France is a fine place, but I have got enough of it now to do me. They call this sunny France, but the sun shines every three days and the remainder of the time it is foggy.

The French people jabber like a lot of geese, and I can't understand what they are saying. I sure had some trip coming over. I came thru Scotland, England and crossed the English Channel. I was a good boy and gave them the biggest wrestle they ever had. I am away down in Southern France, next to Spain. I am about 4,000 miles from home, but I hope to be home real soon, but I don't know what kind of luck I will have.

Address—Private Lee Abdon, Battery R, 32d P. A., A. P. O. 905, A. E. France.

Snyder-Witham.

Miss Mary Snyder and Mr. R. K. Witham were married on the 2nd inst. at the home of the bride, Rev. E. C. Riley officiating. The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mrs. P. Snyder, and the groom is a prominent and successful farmer of Petersburg, Va. The parties have a host of friends who join in wishing them a pleasant and prosperous married life.

"I Was Stuck on a Rock."

December 15, 1918.

Mr. and Mrs. Surfer.

Dear Old Friends—I take pleasure in this way of congratulating you on your son's act of honor at the front. Although it has been many years since Luther and I were together I can readily see that act of heroism is a small part of what a true bred Kentuckian like him is capable of.

I take great pleasure in recalling him as a fine playmate, always ready to help the smallest fellow in our games, always ready to oblige older folks—in fact I can see now that his honest manner towards everyone he was fitted to be a worthy soldier in the finest army in the world. That is covering quite a bit of country, but nevertheless men like your son Luther are as I knew him, just plain Old Boots, would make any army the best ever.

I will always regret that I was unable to go over there with the boys I have soldiered with for over four years. To use a saying of ours "I was stuck on a rock" marking time while the big show was going on in France. Yet I have this one thing to look on even tho I did not go over there with the boys. I have on my many boyhood friends who gave the Hun a hard time in many places to their own credit, but the greater glory of the best State in the Union, Old Kentucky.

I will close, hoping Boots will be with you all for the holidays, wishing you folks merry Xmas and a happy New Year, I am as ever,

W. H. TILLY,

BROUGHT THE TOP

Boone County Tobacco Sold for Fancy Prices at the Kenton Loose Leaf House.

Ed Burris and Artless Fleek, who raised about 20,000 pounds of tobacco on Charles Youtell's land in Limestone neighborhood, had 8,000 pounds on sale at the Covington loose leaf house on the 2nd inst. Fleek got an average of 29 cents a pound for his crop and Burris, 45 for his. One basket of 110 pounds of the crop brought 50 cents a pound, the highest price realized during the day. Besides getting the highest price of the day the above crops made the best average of the sale, an incident which is very pleasing to Mr. Youtell and his two tenants. The remaining 14,000 pounds of the crop on hand Mr. Youtell thinks is as good as that sold on the 2nd inst. and he expects the tobacco to be sold and topping the sale is a feather in the caps of Messrs. Fleek and Burris, who are said to be about the best tobacco raisers in this county. They have the habit of watching their tobacco interests from the time they prepare to plant until they have converted the weed into money, hence their well deserved reputations as growers.

To Four-Minute Men.

Gentlemen:

There is in over and over work as disseminators of the government's propaganda is finished, I feel that it has been a great privilege to have participated in this unique work and have no doubt that in the years to come, when Boone County's share in the war shall be written into history, that the part the Four-Minute Men took will be one of the bright spots in the glorious record.

Some of us, myself included, could have done better but for the most part the work was well done and faithfully performed.

In behalf of the United States Government and also for myself I wish to extend to every member of the Four-Minute Men Minute Men gratitude and appreciation for loyal and intelligent co-operation in "holding the inner lines secure."

CHAS. S. BOLES.

Evading the Law.

Mr. Fedup was tired of his married life, his wife annoyed him, his home life bored him, so when he was out on Sunday he was one of the numbers on his dull program, they came across a dead dog in the middle of the road, he took it to the unsuspecting Mrs. Fedup.

"You stay on this side of the road, darling, and I will go on the other side."

When the desired positions were occupied he shouted across: "I promised the parson when I was out that nothing but death would part us and I am off now!"—Detroit Free Press.

Why Antos Frighten Horses.

This bit of brightness is said to have cropped out in a conversation between two young men, not old enough to go to school, according to a western paper.

"What makes a horse act nervous when he sees a tractor?"

"It is this way: Horses are used to seeing other horses pull wagons, and they don't know what to do when they see a tractor pull a horse. They see a pair of pants walking down the street without a man in 'em and they are scared, too."

PAID IN FULL

Are Overseas Soldiers—War Department Denies Wen Wait For Funds.

Washington, Jan. 4 (by A. P.).—Despite serious difficulties due to lost records and insufficient data, payments are being made to troops as they arrive from overseas and "no casual or other enlisted man from overseas who has a legitimate claim for pay in all cases will be refused," said a statement today by the Finance Division of the Quartermaster Corps. It has been charged in Congress and elsewhere that soldiers were being returned to this country and discharged without having been given their pay.

"Finance officers are available," said the statement, "at every point of embarkation, at every cantonment, camp and headquarters and at every hospital, and instructions are explicit that no soldier is to be given a partial payment on his own statement, and final payment on his affidavit. In all cases where the record shows all discharged men are given their travel allowances which, with reduction in railroad fares as cured by the War Department, insure comfortable travel to their homes, while in most cases discharged men receive every penny which they claim is due them."

The division announced that to date a total of $1,891,114,680 has been paid to officers, soldiers and soldiers' dependents since the declaration of war. The division estimated that it will require $1,267,941,000 to pay officers and soldiers for the remainder of the current fiscal year, and should the Dent bill providing an extra month's pay for discharged officers and men become a law, it is estimated that $150,000,000 additional will be needed.

The Quartermaster Corps has experienced difficulty in paying the men in France, the statement said. "As the troops are sent back to their homes, the cases were hurried to training camps near the front, while their baggage, containing enlistment records, followed their transportation was available. As the units were rapidly shifted about, some times the baggage failed to catch up with them. To meet this condition, pay cards were issued in July and pay books in November, but it has been found the statement said, that few of the casuals, wounded or otherwise, returned from overseas have either cards or books.

Orders were issued overseas, the statement said, that no wounded or sick soldier be permitted to go aboard for transportation home unless provided with all his papers so that he might be paid. "The statement said, however, that the men were anxious to get home and as military policy dictated that they should be paid as soon as possible, the order was revoked.

MILLERS ARE ALARMED

Confronted With A Serious Shortage of Wheat.

The millers of the country are confronted with a serious wheat shortage, according to the representations made at the meeting of the Central Kentucky Milling Association, held at Lexington, and which was attended by about 40 of the leading millers of the Bluegrass. Wheat home and abroad, and how to obtain an adequate supply of grain to meet the demand of their business, are some of the questions which confronted the association, it was stated. It was brought out in the discussions that the Grain Corporation, the only controlled by the Federal Food Administration, now has approximately 280,000,000 bushels of wheat stored in Eastern seacoast ports, ready for export to Europe to relieve the starving millions there, and that the available supply for domestic use is growing shorter and shorter. Many of the Kentucky millers, it was stated, were unable to stock up with wheat at the government's prohibitive price last year, and now they cannot buy it except from speculators, at 29 cents a bushel premium over the price fixed for the government.

Under these conditions, they assert that they cannot go back to preparing grades and packages as much as they would like to put themselves again on a commercial basis. It was the consensus of the millers present at the association that the only control at all encouraging for the milling industry, which is still subject to the license regulation and the wheelbarrow price fixing of the government for grain in the hands of the farmers.

A New Firm.

Ed Rice and Timothy Sanford have decided to invest some of their money in a new truck, which they will use only for hauling in the other trucks about town and in the neighborhood where they are engaged in business. They figure that their profits will exceed those of the present truck owners hereabout.

PROFANE LANGUAGE.

New Orleans Item.

While the general order of Secretary Daniels to the navy requesting the officers and chaplains to initiate a crusade against profanity and unbecoming language has been treated humorously by many of the newspapers, the majority of citizens would like to see it extended to take in men of all classes and occupations. Vile language is an offense to the majority of men themselves and to all women. It adds no agreeable emphasis to ordinary conversation and its use is more the result of unthinking habit than deliberate intention.

Under great excitement or emotion, when the mind struggles for expression, an occasional expletive may be condoned. No one feels particularly shocked at a man's language at a moment of stress, but the German officer who demanded the surrender of his force, his phrase, one may say, was expressive of re-enforced earnestness. But if the Major had been in the habit of saying the same thing, whenever he stepped on a curb, or lost a button, or lost his savor and significance.

The trouble about profanity is that to the people who are addicted to it, it sprinkles their conversation with it so constantly that it loses its significance and emphasis. If there were less of it, it would be used by exceptional persons and looked if not justified. But in daily use it is merely offensive without being emphatic. For the other kind of language covered by the Secretary's order, there is never any excuse whatever.

AT THE AGE OF 73

Another One of the County's Estimable Citizens Passes To His Reward.

F. A. Utz died at his home in Erlanger last Sunday in the 73rd year. He had been in ill health for the last two or three years and a few months ago sold his farm near Erlanger and moved to Erlanger. He was a prominent citizen of this county, being interested in many of the public enterprises of the county. For a time he took an active part in local politics, making the race once for the Democratic nomination for assessor. For many years he was engaged actively in the livestock business and handled a very large proportion of the cattle, sheep and hogs sent from the county to the Cincinnati market. He had long been a leading member of the Odd-Fellows lodge at Erlanger and since his health broke down he had been at the meetings was greatly missed and his brethren deplore his demise. His wife, who was Miss Maria Utz, died several years ago. The burial took place at Erlanger Tuesday afternoon.

LAVATHIAN'S JOURNEY.

Washington Post.

"An American soldier, sailor or civilian who had the good fortune to make the trip from Europe on the Leviathan on her voyage bearing some 5,000 returnees, will always remember it as one of the milestones of his life's journey," remarked Horace Williamson, a New York newspaper man, at the Washington, "The Leviathan" flag after the ship's arrival at Liverpool at 2 o'clock on Sunday after having been docked for two days with all souls on board. She proceeded to Brest and remained there five days coaling. During all that time the passengers were not allowed to go ashore, and they were not permitted to disembark. When finally the big German-built steamer weighed anchor and began to move on its homeward voyage to America the scene was indescribable. It takes but two days to coal a big vessel in New York, but the coaling at Brest had to be done by baskets and the delay, of course, was monstrous.

"The irony of fate never had a better exemplification than in the case of the Leviathan during the war. The former Vindicator, largest ship afloat, made many trips back and forth carrying soldiers. Her first voyage under the United States flag after she had been repaired for service was to Cuba and Porto Rico. After that she went back and forth between New York and Brest. "No person who was not on board the Leviathan when she returned to New York for a short time could appreciate the feeling of delight and intense patriotism that swept over the passengers on the giant vessel. From the highest to the lowest it was a feeling of great triumph and victory of work done. I talked with scores of the boys returning from the front and the old men who had been in the war, and I found that every one of them would have missed the experience."

THE YEAR 1918

Summary of the Year's Events Collected and Collated for Busy Readers.

(With Apologies to Youth's Column.)

The year 1918 was the most wonderful in the history of the world. We have witnessed the climax of a great war; the defeat of an attempt to establish an universal empire; the fall of thrones after thrones and the crumbling to dust of the old political and social order of Europe. A dozen great events a single one of which would have made the year memorable have been crowded into the past twelve months.

First the Bulgarian leaders asked for an armistice and agreed to the terms which the Allied commander imposed. Almost at the same time Turkey saw that her fate was sealed and her leaders fled from Constantinople, Austria Hungary, torn by internal dissensions, after a single battle begged for peace, accepted the severe terms imposed by the Allies and fell into helpless hands. Deserted by her allies, met at every point by the British, French and American forces, the German morale completely broken, the chiefs came to Genoa, humbly seeking an armistice the terms of which are well-known. As a result we have witnessed the gratifying spectacle of the Allied troops again occupying the villages and cities taken by the Prussians from France a half century ago; we have seen the Allied armies marching unopposed across German soil and occupying the strong holds along the Rhine; and more striking than either have been the German war fleet steam idly between the marshaled lines of the Allied fleet and giving itself up in tamely to the victors. Wonderful events unexpected a 12-month ago.

At home we have raised, trained and equipped an army of approximately two million troops; we have built four million tons of shipping; we have raised ten billions of dollars and through the various agencies coordinated and directed the wonderful energies and resources of the country in a way that has been a matter of astonishment to our friends and our enemies. All this and much more has been accomplished during the year 1-9-18.

KENTUCKY HIGH SCHOOLS

Show Increase in Attendance Over Previous Year.

During the year that has just closed there were 390 white high schools conducted in this state, which is an increase of twenty over the preceding year. The enrollment of students in these schools totaled 21,707, an increase of 1,129 students over the 1917 record. The number of graduates were 2,468 an increase of 260 over the preceding year and the number of graduates who entered college were 784, an increase of 20 over the preceding year.

On the whole the year just closed was by far the most successful in high schools in this state and these increases were made despite the war conditions. The total cost of the high schools building and ground is fixed at $4,874,342.25 and the equipment is valued at $250,000.

Thirty Years Ago.

Thirty years ago women wore bustles, milk was five cents a quart, appendicitis was being treated for locked bowels, milk-shakes was the national rural beverage, bacon was six cents a pound, grape fruit had been discovered, Falmouth had wooden and brick sidewalks, men wore muffers, women had corsets on their dresses, corn sold for 16 cents a bushel, eggs 13 cents per dozen, good whisky sold at ten cents a drink and you were not a gentleman if you refused to load up, voted on the first day of August and sowed your turnips the same day, there weren't but six miles of turnpikes in the county and now there are 314 miles, men wore kip-top boots the year round and never got too hot, Doc Clifford, of Wyatt, died and was buried the same set of whiskers, tobacco was selling at two cents per pound and the trash thrown in, the electric riding precursors, saved horseback with a Bible in one end of his saddle-pockets and a jug in the other, women wore corsets high in the top and low at the bottom, girls entertained their sweethearts in the family circle, and courted to the tune of "Swing low, sweet chime of bells," Falmouth Outlook.

Rex Berkshire, from out on the Bellevue pike, was in town the day and every day, and he met, asked, "what is the matter with you now?" Rex is a single man, and of course, his explanation was accepted when he said he was splitting stove wood and a stick laid up and peddled the end of his nose. He evidently got a kick that was an excuse for his remarks. He remarks that he looks well in paint.

WALTON.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Westover of Williamson, visited friends here Tuesday enroute to Cincinnati to visit friends.

Walton Odd-Fellows Lodge will have a special meeting Saturday, January 18th, at 7:30 o'clock when officers will be elected and a hot lunch will be spread. All of the members are requested to attend. There will probably be an initiation.

Walton Lodge, No. 719, F and A M., at the regular meeting Dec. 27th, St. John's Day, elected officers as follows: Worshipful Master, Samuel H. McCall; Senior Warden, Geo. J. Grubbs; Junior Warden, A. Records Johnson; Secretary, Edwin M. Johnson; Treasurer, D. B. Wallace. The committee of five officers will be named at the next meeting when the installation will take place. The evening was enjoyable spent together and a nice lunch was served.

Walton Chapter Easter Star at a special meeting last Thursday conferred the degrees on Mrs. Lulu Lacy and at the conclusion of the ceremonies she was presented with a beautiful Eastern Star gold pin as a remembrance from the Junior Class of the Christian Sunday school, her husband, Rev. E. C. Lacy being the pastor of the Walton Christian church, which position he recently resigned to take the pastorate of the Christian church at Versailles, Woodford county, Ky., for which place Rev. Lacy and family took their departure Friday morning. At the Eastern Star meeting Mrs. Julia A. Rouse was presented with a solid silver spoon as a token of the membership of her husband's services as the worthy Matron from which office she is retiring. Refreshments were served and a delightful evening was spent together.

The Walton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Co., has been having splendid sales at the warehouse, about one hundred thousand lbs. of tobacco being on the market at every sale. The sixth sale was held Saturday and 112,000 pounds were sold at an average of $28.10, and the market is constantly growing stronger since Jan. 1st when five or six of the big buyers entered the market. Buyers representing other loose leaf markets bought on the Walton market of the best grades putting on the other market the purchases of fine tobacco to make the average prices paid on that market to appear higher than other markets, but even when the Walton market averages were better than the other markets. At the last Saturday one basket sold at 94 cents. The Walton market is the market for the country people and if you do not believe it visit the other markets and then this one.

FOOD PROFITEERS SCORED

By Judge Moss. He Delivers Schorching Charge to The Grand Jury.

Bowling Green, Jan. 7.—In convening the Warren circuit court in two weeks' criminal term, Judge McKenzie Moss delivered a powerful charge to the grand jury with reference to any violation of the law as to any conspiracy to control or regulate prices. In his charge Judge Moss stated that there was much complaint as to high prices among the people. Following the reading of the law with reference to a combination in restraint of trade he said: "The great world war, just closed, has brought about a condition of unusually high prices. Never before in the lives of people living has the cost of living been so great. Prices for the plainest necessities of life have reached a point which entails the severest hardship upon the families of the poor, and even upon those of moderate means, who in ordinary times live easily and comfortably. "It is the firm belief of many people that a considerable percentage of the cost of many articles that enter into the daily consumption of the families of this community is not justified by even the abnormal economic condition that exists and has existed for some two years or more. It is known, for example, that prices for many articles that could be named are higher in Bowling Green than they are in any other like community. There would appear to be no explanation for this condition of affairs except that prices here are too high, for it is not reasonable to presume that dealers in other places are selling their wares at a loss.

What Constitutes Illiteracy.

The Census Bureau states that inability to write in any language is what constitutes illiteracy. One may be able to read ever so well, but if unable to write, the census taker will mark him as illiterate. There are thousands of people in Kentucky who can read a little and thousands more who can read a good deal, and yet have never been taught to write. These illiterates would be the easiest of all to teach. They have only missed the simple art of writing and it is no more difficult than learning to quilt, to use the sewing machine, to cook, or to read. There are many of the other things that these people have learned to do with their hands. Some neighbors could spend ten or twelve evenings with such persons and teach them to write. Their sons or daughters, grand sons or daughters could do it for a less time. It would influence them to read and to get light school and quickly get rid of illiteracy. Were it not for the fact that the census taker would as form the letters and the words these people could even learn without a teacher.

In the death of Theodore Roosevelt the United States loses one of its most distinguished citizens, one who had been honored by the bestowal of public trusts from the lowest to the highest. He had drawn about him a very large circle of friends who would have followed him to the last ditch, and at the same time a very large element in this country while admiring the man for his utter fearlessness, were not in accord with him on his stand in regard to numerous public measures, but honored and respected him. The entire country deplors his death. He was the only Teddy Roosevelt this country ever had.

The Clover Leaf Creamery Co. has leased its plant to the Fox River Butter Company, of Cincinnati, and the latter has been retained to operate it for them. The Fox River Butter Co. claims to be one of the strongest butter companies in the country, and will endeavor to make it to the interest of the milk producers in this part of the county to patronize the local institution. Read the company's advertisement in this issue.

There was so much tobacco at the Covington loose leaf house the first of the week that several loads were taken from there to Walton, the growers thinking they would be delayed too long in getting their tobacco unloaded. Covington never witnessed such a rush of tobacco before.

The local board has received orders from headquarters to open up the several hundred questionnaires in its possession and rearrange them according to instructions from Washington, D. C. This will require considerable work and time.

Snow commenced falling last Tuesday evening and a depth of about an inch was reached when it ceased Tuesday night. This is the most snow that has been on the ground here any time this winter.

NOTHING LEFT TO CHANCE

Advance of American Divisions at San Mihel Had Been Planned With Elaborate Care.

In modern warfare a man's head is his chief asset. Write Duke Bolivar in Boys' Life. You all know that the St. Mihel salient, encompassing 152 square miles of territory and 73 villages, was taken by the Americans. Did you know it was done by hand work? Elaborate plans were made in advance and given to thousands of the troops. One hundred thousand maps, covering minute details of the country, including natural defenses, and how it was manned by the enemy, were distributed, plus 30,000 photographs, scattered among officers of the artillery and infantry. Five thousand miles of telephone wire and 6,000 instruments were employed, and this elaborate system kept up with the advance of the army. By this service flanking troops could telephone their position back to the artillery. The telephone business of a city of 100,000 could have been handled by this equipment in twelve operations. 10,000 men were engaged. Thousands of carrier pigeons plied the signal corps. Extensive hospital facilities, 4,800 trucks, miles of railroad, were provided for this big military operation, and 10,000 men were used. So all the soldiers had to do was to fight.

PRIVATE WM. DELPH

Writes From Chataillon, France, Says Weather Is Cold and Rains Every Day.

Private Wm. Delph writes from Chataillon, France, Dec. 19, that he has been on the move and has not had time to write. "We don't see many sunshiny days here. It rains almost every day and it is pretty cold. All of the houses are made of stone, and the people burn brush for spare wood. Have you all heard from Dick any more? I can't get in touch with him over here. He is here some where I suppose. We sure had some dinner Thanksgiving. Turkey and mashed potatoes, brown gravy, candy and nuts. The turkey was sure fine. Did you all have a turkey dinner Thanksgiving? I am sure you did. How is little Dottie getting along? I sure would like to see her. Kiss her for me. What is George doing this far? I'll bet he is doing a lot of hunting, isn't he? I suppose Edna Pearl and Alice are going to school here. How is Necon and his folks? Tell them hello for me. I guess I have written about all I can so I will close for this time, hoping to hear from you all in the near future. I remain your loving son. Love to all, answer soon and tell me how everybody is." Pvt. WILLIAM H. DELPH.

December Weather.

W. E. Popham, of Erlanger, R. D. No. 1, furnishes the Recorder with the average temperature and the number of inches of snow fall for the month of December for the last twenty-five years:

Winter 1917-18 there were 48.25 inches snow; Christmas morning 1898 the temperature was sixty; Christmas morning 1908 the temperature was 4.

The winter of 1903-4 was the coldest from start to finish of which Mr. Popham has any record.

He says this winter started in for mud. The temperature New Year morning was 60 in 1894, and New Year morning 1915 it was 0.

Mr. Popham says if any of the readers of the Recorder desire information in regard to the weather for the last 25 years he will gladly furnish it.

Magical Power of Hand.

Everyone can recognize the magical power of hand, the search for insight the intense humanity, sympathy, tenderness, sometimes mingled with drollery, with which Rembrandt interprets the character and daily existence of the individual types who sat to him. Of the mingled crowds of rich and poor in the Dutch streets, whether treated in terms of the Bible story or taken simply as they are. But in painting Rembrandt has two special means of enhancing and commending to the spectator the personal interpretation of life; namely, that magic of mysteries, enveloping shade and struggling, straying, shimmering gold and amber light which was his invention, and in his Biblical and historical pictures the lesser and partly theatrical enhancement of rich and fanciful costumes chosen from among the properties of his studio. In his studies and sketches these aids to pictorial magic are lacking, or, more of them can only be suggested. In them he is in the most direct possible contact with life, and interprets the essential points of what he sees or imagines in a swift shorthand which recks not of elegance, but is the most exact and poignant expressive ever employed by man. With rapid, rude-seeming, yet tensely vital strokes of pen or brush-point, or anything that comes handy—sometimes the butt of his brush, the strong end of his pen, or even if it appears the half-dry edge of a cake of paint—he cannot only fix every momentary gesture and action, face of worship, or of fear, of anger or of mirth, of misery, lust, or cunning sense of weight carried, fatigue or crippling on the durance of the comfort or the wear and tear in rich or in beggarly apparel, in any of his grouped or single figures, he can imply the whole character, thought and daily habit of their previous life and surroundings.—Century.

Expects to See Berlin.

Private Richard Delph writes his parents from Camp Bassee, France, Dec. 12, that he never knew what father and mother meant until he got away from home. But that he has learned a lesson that can't soon be forgotten. He has not met anyone in France that he knew outside of his company. He gets plenty to eat and a good bunk to sleep on. He expects to see Berlin before he gets home.

The moon changes today.

The moving season is at hand. Prof. Caywood visited Cincinnati last Monday.

The weather the past week has been hard on the wheat.

Hon. W. W. Dickerson, of Cincinnati, attended county court here last Monday.

Have any of the new leaves you turned the first of the year been turned back?

Henry Snyder, of Cincinnati, was one of the small court day crowd in Burlington, last Monday.

Paul Bethel, of Covington, who bought the Barton and Sullivan farms, was a caller at this office last Friday.

Do you want to buy a farm of 72a, 4 miles from Lawrenceburg, Ind., for $6,000? Call or address C. J. Lang, Lawrenceburg, Ind.

You want to fill that ice house the first opportunity that offers, therefore you should have it ready to receive the ice.

It matters not how great the man is the country goes on just the same in his absence. Mr. Wilson, for example.

"I see Simpkins at the club more often since the baby came to his house. I thought he was anchored by the fireside."

"He was, but at the first squall he began to drag his anchor."

There is a nest of snipers in Congress whose sole purpose is to embarrass the President. They can, but they ignore them and their efforts so thoroughly that they are rendered ridiculous.

W. B. Vest and several prospective land buyers were in Burlington one evening last week. Mr. Vest has worked up a big real-estate business over in Ohio, where he made several big sales last week.

It looks like there will be an hundred per cent sheep fund and then some, in this county this year. Many a dog on which tax has not been paid heretofore has been furnished with a tag as provided by the new law.

William Hughes started out on his mail route last Thursday morning unaware that water had been substituted for antifreeze in the radiator of his machine, and he was given a great deal of trouble while his radiator was damaged some.

A trio of revenue agents were in Burlington a few days last week and had several of the citizens of the county before them to ascertain whether or not they were liable for income tax. Some they held and some were found not liable.

Asa McMullen brought to this office a few days ago a parsnip that measured 18 inches in length and tapered gradually to the end of the root. It was three inches in diameter at the top of the ground. It was a beautiful specimen of its variety of vegetable.

Quite a number of the tobacco growers in this part of the county attended the opening sale of the Kanton Loose Leaf house in Covington last Thursday, and considerable Boone county tobacco was on the floor. They saw tobacco sell as high as 50 cents a pound.

It looks like the sheriff is going to have a big job on his hands killing dogs as soon as the list of condemned animals is certified to him from Frankfort. Wonder if there will be any market for the pelts that the owners may get something for their animals.

Johnnie Burk and his brother-in-law, Harry Pearson, were in Burlington last Monday, looking after a farm to rent. Mr. Burk is a native of Burlington, but has been a citizen of Aurora, Indiana, several years, and he has concluded he wants to return to Kentucky, again and engage in tickling her fertile soil again.

Henry Clore, of Bellevue, was in Burlington a few days since and made arrangements to advertise a big sale of personal property a little later on, he having sold his farm down on the East Bend road, and by the way, it is said to be the cheapest farm sold in this county for some time. It always had the reputation of being a splendid producing farm.

A British officer, just returned from the newly liberated portions of France and Belgium, tells a curious tale regarding the flags with which the people celebrated their redemption. There were flags everywhere, thousands of them—Union Jacks, Stars and Stripes, Japanese, Belgian, French and Italian. The officer, struck by the variety and number of the emblems, remarked to a native that the people seemed to have been well prepared for the victorious return of the allies and their own soldiers, and asked where the flags had been hidden. "Hidden?" replied the Frenchman, "they were not hidden. We bought them from the Germans!" Here, indeed, was a curious manifestation of German psychology, or perhaps trading instinct. Did the Germans anticipate their own retreat, and come prepared to equip the French and Belgians with the means of celebration? It would appear they did so, and were willing to utilize the occasion for earning an honest penny the only honest money they had earned for many a day—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Virgil Gaines, waiter Brown and Howard Acra spent about an hour and a half in the middle of the creek in their automobile at Limaburg one night last week. The water was so deep in the creek that it killed their engine and they did not want to get out in the water until it became absolutely necessary. Fortunately the creek did not rise any after the machine was killed, and finally Thomas Walton came along in his machine, backed into the creek, attached a rope to the dead auto and pulled it out and dragged it about a mile before the engine took hold. The rescue was rather a hard one, but Walton is almost entitled to a Carnegie hero medal.

The Indian War Office announces that 49,000 Italian soldiers lost their lives during the war, while the number of the wounded goes over 1,000,000 mark. Among the Italian dead are, of course, counted those who succumbed to disease, but the total of fatalities is well above the number of Italian soldiers who gave their lives during our Civil War. The campaigns between Italy and Austria were bitterly contested, and it may be said that the Austrians fought with far greater tenacity and courage during most of the struggle than they are generally given credit for.

Candidates for nomination for State offices are beginning to bob up in every direction over the State. The "dyed in the wool" Democrat and the "life long Republican" are seeking favors at the hands of his party, but the time has come when the people are very much from Missouri in the matter of choosing their State officers and a candidate must show something in addition to faultless political pedigree.

L. C. Scothorn, the Idlewild merchant, was over in Burlington one afternoon last week. Mr. Scothorn is who introduced the truck in this county as a medium of transportation for freight, and according to him, it requires a combination of good management and good luck to make the operation of a truck profitable.

The very cold weather last week caused work on the bridges out on the Petersburg pike to suspend. As soon as the riveting is completed on these bridges they will be ready for traffic as they will have wooden instead of concrete floors, and these floors will be in place by the time other work on the structures is completed.

Alva Drunkenberg, of Florence precinct, came over last Saturday morning on the hunt for hogs that were for sale, and while in town came in and moved over into the Recorder's 20 column.

In this issue Henry Dixon, of Richmond, advertises a sale of high grade livestock. He has been chosen assistant cashier of Erlanger Deposit Bank, and it became necessary for him to dispose of his livestock.

The fuel question is not so annoying to the people along the river this winter as it was nor anywhere else as to that matter except in the large cities where gas pressure has failed.

The Boone county boys who are in the camps in the south are missing some very exhilarating weather that this country enjoys occasionally at this season of the year.

If you want to hear how a machine gun sounds when in action visit the bridge out on the Petersburg pike when the riveting machine operated by compressed air is at work.

So far only one citizen of Burlington has had the flu, and he had to go as far from the town as Aurora before he could develop the disease.

John M. Hunt, many years ago a citizen of Burlington, was buried at Swanton, Owen county, the night he had been in ill health for a long time.

Fred Morris was in Burlington last Saturday afternoon and his friends were glad to see he had recovered sufficiently to discard his crutches.

There will be no difficulty in resolving to get on the "win" side of the year. Your only trouble will be that you will probably find it crowded.

Pearl Acra McCarlie.

Pearl Acra McCarlie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie L. Acra, was born June 4th, 1899, in Boone county, Ky., died Dec. 22, 1918. She was united in marriage to Jesse McCarlie, of Indiana, August 1912. This happy couple was blessed with four children, one of whom preceded her to its heavenly home Dec. 19th, 1918. The other three, Sarah Louise, Robert Owen and Edgar Allen survive her. Besides her husband and children, she leaves a father, mother and six brothers, Shelby, who is stationed at Camp Meade, Md., in United States service, Edgar, Howard, Owen, Wallace and Crandle. In addition there are many relatives and a host of friends to whom she has greatly endeared herself. Her kind, sweet and generous character—the embodiment of all good and pure—was sufficient to cause all those with whom she came in contact to love and admire her. While living she was a dutiful daughter, a gentle companionable wife, a tender, sweet, self-sacrificing mother, which traits alone should be an everlasting comfort to those who remain. She has left behind her a peaceful and happy after having successfully nursed her family during their recent illness. Her place in her home has been made vacant to be filled by no one, but her generous family have the blessed assurance of her heavenly rest, her reward for the beautiful life she has lived.

MAT COHEN MAKES GO!

It is a singular fact that in the development of States as well as of nations there comes forth at the critical moment a man of courage and unusual resourcefulness to guide the ship over the turbulent waters. When Mat S. Cohen was inducted into office as Commissioner of Agriculture of Kentucky there were those who doubted that he would make an efficient officer because of his limited farm experience. Many people felt that he was essentially a horseman, and that the interest of the farmer would be overlooked during his administration. When he announced the then unheard of saddle horse stake for the 1917 fair, there were those who thought it a splendid evidence that all of his interest was centered in the horse to the exclusion of the other important matters that were under his charge. But that Commissioner Cohen had an object in view has been evidenced by subsequent developments. At that time practically the whole world was at each other's throats, and Mat Cohen was wise enough to realize that under conditions that existed at that time something spectacular must be pulled off in order to keep the interest in matters pertaining to his department from dying of inanition. That a man of less nerve and initiative would have made a dismal failure during those times when all interest seemed to be centered on the world war, goes without saying.

As is generally known, Mr. Cohen went a step farther and again broke new ground when he announced the $10,000 stake for fatted and feeding cattle at the 1918 fair. Again there was criticism and doubt was expressed as to his ability to give such large stakes and make a financial success of the fair. But the recent supplementary statement submitted by Secretary Krenner shows results that not only reflect great credit upon Commissioner Cohen and those associated with him in the management of the fair, but they also bear out the fact that Commissioner Cohen was the man of the hour for the unusual work that was necessary to be done at such an unusual time.

When Commissioner Cohen became by virtue of his office as Commissioner of Agriculture, the head of the Kentucky State Fair there was a deficit of $19,000. At that time the prize list amounted to $28,000. Notwithstanding the fact that the premium list was increased to $75,000 for the 1918 fair, the report of the secretary shows that all the indebtedness has been paid and that there remains in the bank to the credit of the State Fair $8,800. But that is not all. Mr. Cohen, in a statement in this issue of the Farmers' Home Journal, announces that the premium list for the 1919 State Fair will reach the spectacular sum of $110,000.

We present these facts to our readers because we believe that Mr. Cohen is entitled to the approbation of every farmer and stock breeder in Kentucky for the untiring efforts he has put forth in their behalf.—Farmers' Home Journal.

Tobacco Sales.

Following is some of the sales of tobacco made by the loose leaf houses last Monday:

At Lexington one basket sold as high as $30 a hundred.

Paris had the largest sale in its history, the average being $34.10.

Mr. Sterling sold about 200,000 pounds at an average of $34.10.

At Clay City prices ranged from $30 to $32.

At Frankfort 300,000 lbs. brought an average of $31, the highest being $34.

At Carlisle the offerings were heavy and prices ranged from $30 to $32.

At Bowling Green 200,000 pounds of dark tobacco brought from $30 to $32.

WALTON.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Westover of Williamstown, visited friends here Tuesday enroute to Cincinnati to visit friends.

Walton Odd-Fellows Lodge will have a special meeting Saturday, January 18th, at 7:30 o'clock when officers will be elected and a lunch will be spread. All of the members are requested to attend. There will probably be an initiation.

Walton Lodge, No. 719, F and A M., at the regular meeting Dec. 27th, St. John's Day, elected officers as follows: Worshipful Master, Samuel H. McCarty; Senior Warden, Geo. J. Grubbs; Junior Warden, A. Records Johnson; Secretary, Edwin M. Johnson; Treasurer, D. B. Wallace. The appointive officers will be named at the next meeting when the installation will take place. The evening was enjoyably spent together and a nice lunch was served.

Walton Chapter Easter Star at a special meeting last Thursday conferred the degrees on Mrs. Lulu Lacy and at the conclusion of the ceremonies she was presented with a beautiful Rose Star gold pin as a remembrance from the Doreas Class of the Christian Sunday school, her husband, Rev. E. C. Lacy being the pastor of the Walton Christian church, which position he recently resigned to take the pastorate of the Christian church at Versailles, Woodford county, Ky., for which place Rev. Lacy and family took their departure Friday morning. At the Eastern Star meeting Mrs. Julia A. Rouse was presented with a solid silver spoon as a token of the membership of her husbandly services as the Worthy Matron from which office she is retiring. Refreshments were served and a delightful evening was spent together.

The Walton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Co., has been having splendid sales at the warehouse, about one hundred thousand lbs. of tobacco being on the market at every sale. The sixth sale was held Saturday and 12,000 pounds were sold at an average of $23.10, and the market is constantly growing stronger since Jan. 1st when five or six of the big buyers entered the market. Buyers representing other loose leaf tobacco bought on the Walton market of the best grades putting on the other market the purchases of fine tobacco to make the average prices paid on that market to appear higher than other markets, but even then the Walton market averages were better than the other markets. At the sale last Saturday one basket sold at 94 cents. The Walton market is the market for the country people and if you do not know the prices at the other markets and then this one.

By Judge Moss. He Delivers Schorching Charge to The Grand Jury.

Bowling Green, Jan. 7.—In convening the Warren circuit court in a two weeks' criminal term, Judge McKenzie Moss delivered a powerful charge to the grand jury with reference to any violation of the law as to any conspiracy to control or regulate prices. In his charge Judge Moss stated that there was much complaint as to high prices among the people. Following the reading of the law with reference to a combination in restraint of trade he said: "The great world war, just closed, has brought about conditions of unusually high prices. Never before in the lives of people living, has the cost of living been so great. Prices for the plainest necessities of life have reached a point which entails the severest hardship upon the families of the poor, and even upon those of moderate means, who in ordinary times live easily and comfortably. "It is the firm belief of many people that a considerable percentage of the cost of many articles that enter into the daily consumption of the families of this community is not justified by even the abnormal economic condition that exists and has existed for some two years or more. It is known, for example, that prices for many articles that could be named are higher in Bowling Green than they are in any other like community. There would appear to be no explanation for this condition of affairs except that prices here are too high, for it is not reasonable to presume that dealers in other places are selling their wares at a loss.

What Constitutes Illiteracy.

The Census Bureau states that inability to write in any language is what constitutes illiteracy. One may be able to read even so well, but if unable to write, the census taker will brand him as illiterate. There are thousands of people in Kentucky who can read a little and thousands more who can read quite well and yet have never been taught to write. These illiterates would be the easiest of all to teach. They have only to master the simple art of writing and it is no more difficult than learning to quilt, to use the sewing machine, to drive a team or trap many of the other things that these people have learned to do with their hands. Some neighbors could spend time in teaching and with such persons and teach them to write. Their sons or daughters grand sons or daughters could do so, or at least somebody could influence them to enter the night school and quickly get rid of illiteracy. While it is not for learning to write as well as to form the letters and words as these people could even learn without a teacher.

In the death of Theodore Roosevelt the United States loses one of its most distinguished citizens, one who had been honored by the highest public trusts from the lowest to the highest. He had drawn about him a very large circle of friends who would have followed him to the last ditch, and the same time a very large element in this country while admiring the man for his utter fearlessness, were not in accord with him on his stand in regard to numerous public measures, but honored and respected him. The entire country deplores his death. He was the only Teddy Roosevelt this country ever had.

The Clover Leaf Creamery Co. has leased its plant to the Fox River Butter Company, of Cincinnati, and Joe Huey has been retained to operate it for them. The Fox River Butter Co. claims to be one of the strongest butter companies in the country, and will endeavor to make it to the interest of the milk producers in this part of the county to patronize the local institution. Read the company's advertisement in this issue.

There was so much tobacco at the Covington loose leaf house the first of the week that several loads were taken from there to Walton, the growers thinking they would be delayed too long in getting their tobacco unloaded. Covington never witnessed such a rush of tobacco before.

Advance of American Divisions at San Mihel Had Been Planned With Elaborate Care.

In modern warfare a man's head is his chief asset, writes Duke Bollivar in Boys' Life. You all know that the St. Mihel salient, encompassing 152 square miles of territory and 73 villages, was taken by the Americans. Did you know it was done by hand work? Elaborate plans were made in advance and given out wholesale to the troops. One hundred thousand maps, covering minute details of the country, including natural defenses, and how it was manned by the enemy, were distributed, more 300 photographs, scattered among officers of the artillery and infantry. Five thousand miles of telephone wire and 6,000 instruments were employed, and this elaborate system kept up with the advance of the army. By this service flanking the enemy, the telephone position back to the artillery. The telephone business of a city of 100,000 could have been handled by this equipment in whose operation 10,000 men were engaged. Thousands of carrier pigeons aided the signal corps. Extensive hospital facilities, 4,800 trucks, miles of railroad, were provided for this big military operation, and 10,000 feet of movie film were exposed, so all the soldiers had to do was to fight.

PRIVATE WM. DELPH

Writes From Chataillon, France, Says Weather Is Cold and Rains Every Day.

Private Wm. Delph writes from Chataillon, France, Dec. 12, that he has been on the move and has not had time to write. "We don't see many sunny days here. It rains almost every day and it is pretty cold. All of the houses are made of stone, and the people burn brush for spare wood. Have you all heard from Dick any more? I can't get in touch with him over here. He is here some where I suppose. We have had some dinner Thanksgiving. Turkey and mashed potatoes, brown gravy, candy and nuts. The turkey was sure fine. Did you all have a turkey dinner Thanksgiving? I am sure you did. How is little Dottie getting along? I sure would like to see her. Kiss her for me. What is George doing this fall? I'll bet he is doing a lot of hunting, isn't he? I suppose Edna and Pearl and Alice are going to school about here. How is Nocom and his folks? Tell them hello for me. I guess I have written about all I can so I will close for this time, hoping to hear from you all in the near future. I remain your loving son. Love to all, answer soon and tell me how everybody is."

Winter 1917-18 there were 48.33 inches snow; Christmas morning 1893 there was 60.1 inches; Christmas morning 1908 the temperature was 4.

The winter of 1903-4 was the coldest from start to finish of which Mr. Popham has any record.

He says this winter started in November. The temperature New Years morning was 60.1 and New Years morning 1918 it was 37.

Mr. Popham says if any of the readers of the Recorder desire information in regard to the weather for the last 25 years he will gladly furnish it.

Magical Power of Hand.

Every person can recognize the magical power of hand, the searchlight insight the intense humanity, sympathy, tenderness, sometimes mingled with drollery, with which Rembrandt interpreted the character and daily existence of the individual types who sat to him of the mingled crowds of rich and poor in the Dutch streets, whether treated in terms of the Bible story or taken simply as they are. But in painting Rembrandt has two special means of enhancing and commending to the spectator his personal interpretation of life; namely, that magic of mysteries, enveloping shade and struggling, straying, glimmering gold and amber light which was his invention, and in his Biblical and historical pictures the lesser and partly theatrical enhancement of rich and fanciful costumes chosen from among the properties of his studio. In his studies and sketches these aids to pictorial magic are lacking, or most of them can only be suggested. In them he is in the most direct possible contact with life, and interprets the essential points of what he sees or imagines in a swift shorthand which recks not of elegance, but is the most exact and poignant expressive ever employed by man. With rapid, rude-seeming, yet tensely vital strokes of pen or pencil—putting on or taking that comes handy—sometimes the butt of his brush, the wrong end of his pen, or even, it appears, paint—he cannot only fix every momentary gesture and action, face of worship, or of fear of anger or of mirth, of misery, lust or cunning, sense of weight, carried, fatigue or crippling, endured, the comfort or the wear and tear in rich or in beggarly apparel, in any of his grouped or single figures, he can trace the whole antecedent thought and daily habit of their previous life and surroundings.—Century.

Expects to See Berlin.

Private Richard Delph writes his parents from Camp Base, France, Dec. 12, that he never knew what father and mother meant until he got away from home, but since he has learned a lesson that can't soon be forgotten. He has met anyone in France that he knows outside of his company. He gets plenty to eat and a good bunk to sleep on. He expects to see Berlin before he gets home.

Local Happenings.

The moon changes today.

Prof. Caywood visited Cincinnati last Saturday.

The weather the past week has been hard on the wheat.

Hon. W. W. Dickerson, of Cincinnati, attended county court here last Monday.

Have any of the new leaves you turned the first of the year been turned back?

Henry Snyder, of Cincinnati, was one of the small court day crowd in Burlington, last Monday.

Paul Bethel, of Covington, who bought the Baston and Sullivan farms, was a caller at this office last Friday.

Do you want to buy a farm of 728, 4 miles from Lawrenceburg, Ind., for $5,000? Call or address C. J. Lang, Lawrenceburg, Ind.

You want to fill that ice house the first opportunity that offers, therefore you should have it ready to receive the ice.

It matters not how great the man is the country goes on just the same in his absence. Mr. Wilson, for example.

"See Simpkins at the club more often since the baby came to his house. I thought he was anchored by the fireside." "He was, but at the first squall he began to drag his anchor."

There is a nest of snipers in Congress whose sole purpose is to snub the people. They are there to annoy them, but they can, but they ignore them and their efforts so thoroughly that they are rendered ridiculous.

W. E. Vest and several prospective land buyers were in Burlington one evening last week. Mr. Vest has worked up a big real-estate business over in Ohio, where he made several big sales last week.

It looks like there will be an hundred per cent sheep and then some, in this county this year. Many a dog on which tax has not been paid heretofore has been furnished with a tag as provided by the new law.

William Hughes started out on his mail route last Thursday morning unaware that water had been substituted for antifreeze in the radiator of his machine, and he was given a great deal of trouble while his radiator was damaged some.

A trio of revenue agents were in Burlington a few days last week and had several of the citizens of the county before them to ascertain whether or not they were liable for income tax. Some they held and some were found not liable.

Asa McMullen brought to this office a few days ago a parsnip that measured 18 inches in length and tapered gradually to the end of the root. It was three inches in diameter at the top of the ground. It was a beautiful specimen of its variety of vegetable.

Quite a number of the tobacco growers in this part of the county attended the opening sale of the Boone County tobacco in Covington last Thursday, and considerable Boone county tobacco was on the floor. They saw tobacco sell as high as 50 cents a pound.

It looks like the sheriff is going to have a big job on his hands killing dogs as soon as the list of condemned animals is certified to him from Frankfort. Wonder if there will be any market for the pelts that the owners may get something for their animals.

Johnnie Burk and his brother-in-law, Harry Parsons, were in Burlington last Monday, looking after a farm to rent. Mr. Burk is a native of Burlington, but has been a citizen of Indiana several years, and he has concluded he wants to return to Kentucky again and engage in tickling her fertile soil again.

Henry Clore, of Bellevue, was in Lawrenceburg a few days since and made arrangements to advertise a big sale of personal property a little later on, he having sold his farm down on the East Bend road, and by the way, it is said to be the cheapest farm sold in this county for some time. It always had the reputation of being a splendid producing farm.

Pearl Acra McCarrie.

Pearl Acra McCarrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Acra, was born June 8th, 1892, in Boone county, Ky., died Dec. 27, 1913. She was united in marriage to Jesse McCarrie, of Indiana, August 1912. This happy couple was blessed with four children, one of whom preceded her to its heavenly home Dec. 18th, 1913. The other three, Sarah Louise, Robert Owen and Edgar Allen survive her. Besides her husband and children she leaves a father, mother and six brothers, Shelby, who is stationed at Camp Meade, Md., in United States service, Edgar, Howard, Owen, Wallace and Crandle. In addition there are many relatives and a host of friends to whom she has greatly endeared herself. Her life was a noble and generous character—the embodiment of all good and pure—was sufficient to cause all those with whom she came in contact to love and admire her. While living she was a dutiful daughter, a gentle companionable wife, a tender, ever sacrificing mother, which traits alone should be an everlasting comfort to those beloved ones she has left behind. She departed from this earthly life peacefully and happily after having successfully nursed her family during their recent illness. Her place in her home has been made vacant to be filled by no one, but her bereaved family have the blessed assurance of her heavenly rest, her rest in the beautiful life she has lived.

MAT COHEN MAKES GOL

It is a singular fact that in the development of States as well as of nations there comes forth at the critical moment a man of courage and unusual resourcefulness to guide the ship over the turbulent waters. When Mat S. Cohen was inducted into office as Commissioner of Agriculture of Kentucky there were those who doubted that he would make an efficient officer because of his limited farm experience. Many people felt that he was essentially a horseman, and that the interest of the farmer would be overlooked during his administration. When he announced the then unheard of saddle horse stake for the 1917 fair, there were those who thought it sufficient evidence that all of his interest was centered in the horse to the exclusion of the other important matters that were under his charge. But that Commissioner Cohen had an object in view has been evidenced by subsequent developments. At that time practically the whole world was at each other's throats, and Mat Cohen was wise enough to realize that under conditions that existed at that time something spectacular must be pulled off in order to keep the interest in matters pertaining to his department from dying of inanition. The man of less nerve and initiative would have made a dismal failure during those times when all interest seemed to be centered on the world war, goes without saying.

As is generally known, Mr. Cohen made a step farther and again broke all records when he announced the $10,000 stake for fatted and feeding cattle at the 1918 fair. Again there was criticism and doubt was expressed as to his ability to give such large stakes and make a financial success of the fair. But the recent supplementary statement submitted by Secretary Kremer shows results that not only reflect great credit upon Commissioner Cohen and those associated with him in the management of the fair, but they also bear out the fact that Commissioner Cohen was the man of the hour for the unusual work that was necessary to be done at such an unusual time.

When Commissioner Cohen became by virtue of his office as Commissioner of Agriculture, the head of the Kentucky State Fair there was a deficit of $19,000. At that time the prize list amounted to $28,000. Notwithstanding the fact that the premium list was increased to $78,000 for the 1918 fair, the report of the secretary shows that all the indebtedness has been paid and that there remains in the bank to the credit of the State Fair $8,500. But that is not all. Mr. Cohen in a statement in this issue of the Farmers' Home Journal, announces that the premium list for the 1919 State Fair will reach the spectacular sum of $110,000.

We present these facts to our readers because we believe that Mr. Cohen is entitled to the approbation of every farmer and stock breeder in Kentucky for the untiring efforts he has put forth in their behalf.—Farmers' Home Journal.

Tobacco Sales.

Following is some of the sales of tobacco made by the loose leaf houses last Monday:

At Lexington one basket sold as high as $20 a hundred.
Paris had the largest sale in its history, the average being $34.10.
Mt. Sterling sold about 200,000 pounds at an average of $31.10.
At Glasgow, Burley brought from $20 to $30. Dark tobacco averaged about $15.
At Carrollton about 350,000 lbs. brought an average of $24.10.
At Dry Ridge prices ranged from $10 to $12.
At Frankfort 200,000 lbs. brought an average of $31, the highest being $34.
At Carlisle the offerings were heavy and prices ranged from $10 to $16.
At Bowling Green 300,000 pounds of dark tobacco brought from $10 to $20.

GLAD WAR IS OVER

Priv. Charles J. Hagdorn Writes From "Somewhere in France"

Priv. Charles J. Hagdorn, of Crescent Springs, Kenton county, writes his cousin, Mrs. Harmin Jones, from "Somewhere in France," under date of December 14th:

Dear Cousin Jennie:—Received your most welcome letter today and am sure glad to hear from you, but am surprised just as you thought I'd be. I thought it was from Beatrice until I had about half finished reading it. It sure was a fine letter. You write one of the dearest and longest letters that I have received. What's the matter with Beatrice that she never writes to me over here? I use to hear from her every once in a while when I was at Camp Taylor.

Isn't it great the war is over and no more of us getting killed? I have quite a few souvenirs from the war, but none that I can send by mail. You spoke about me sending you some flowers or soil from "No Man's Land." I did have some flowers, but I don't know what I did with them, but I can get some more. I will send them. I am enclosing a silk handkerchief for you as a souvenir.

I got a letter from my dear brother, John, yesterday, saying they are all well at home, and that Dad and him were coming up to your place for a hunt November 25. Go how I wish I could have been there to come, for you know I dearly love to hunt, and eat your swell chicken dinner.

Ever since I landed in France I have been working to help care for our wounded soldiers here in a hospital, the same line of work I was trained for in the States. We have thousands of wounded to care for yet before any of us hospital men will be sent home, so you see I have a lot to do when I will get home, but I hope I will be at home by spring.

As to my trip across the ocean, I had a great time; didn't get seasick as I thought I would and so many of the boys did. It took 12 days to cross on the steamer Scandiviani Glasgow. We landed in Scotland and came through England, so you see I saw Scotland, England, France and Ireland.

I haven't got a scratch from the war, but I guess I can say it was luck as I never could tell when I was going to get hurt or killed. I wish I could have been with you in the U. S. to celebrate the victory November 11th.

This is Sunday, Dec. 15th, and I am on duty though just a day. Every day is alike here. I work every day 12 hours. Think of it—only 10 more days until Christmas. Well we hardly think anything of Christmas over here because we are so far from our loved ones that we do not care to make it a holiday for ourselves. Mother is sending me an Xmas box according to John's letter. We've had fine weather. So far it hasn't gotten cold or snowed. I just got over the flu two days ago, but I am feeling good again. War is hell—so is the flu.

You spoke about seeing my photos. I sure would send you one but I have no more of them. I may get some more taken before I get out of the service, then I will send you one. Well, Jennie, it is super time, so I will close, hoping this will reach you all well and happy. With love and best wishes to you and all the children and all your folks, as ever your cousin, Charles J. Hagdorn, Enn. Squad No. 79, 84 Division, A. E. F., A. P. O. 768, France.

HAVING A GOOD TIME.

Mrs. Kate McWeathy, of Petersburg, is in receipt of the following letter from her nephew, Robert C. Weindel, who is in the navy:

Dear Aunt Kate:—I have a few lines to let you know I am well, enjoying the best of health, been having a good time in Edinburgh, Scotland and England and Newcastle, England, on a ten day cruise (turloigh). Was on my turloigh when the armistice was signed and all the people went wild. Everything was wide open, dancing in the streets, shouting, whistles blowing, bells ringing—so exciting I thought the world was coming to an end, but suppose everybody in the world was celebrating the same way. I took an active part in the parade, and went out to escort the American ship into port. After a few days in France we were sent to New York and will be about the 25th December.

Your nephew,
ROBERT C. WEINDEL,
in the Navy.

Charles had a light stroke last Monday morning. He was about 60 years old. His condition was such distressing that he had to be sent to a hospital. He was in the hospital for several days.

LETTER FROM FRANCE.

Luther Surface writes from France under date of Dec. 8th and says:
Dear Friends.—As I have a few lines to let you know that old Surface and Hamilton are still on top and are enjoying life fine. The war is over and it seems loneliness here not to hear the guns firing nor be dodging the Hun's shells nor wearing the gas mask. It is a great relief, believe me. I have been six months at the front on the line. It will be eight months the 22nd of this month since I landed in France, and I am glad I have seen what I have. I think Tom is fixing to get married when he gets back, so boys get ready for him, but old Surface is not like Tom. As I can not think of much to write I will close, wishing one and all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. From your true soldier friend,
Pvt. LUTHER SURFACE.

Until last week stock had received very little attention in the matter of being fed, the pastures having furnished about all the provender needed, but when the cold blast swept across the country the latter part of the week livestock became badly chilled and had to have an extra amount of feed to make them hold their own.

Parisian shopkeepers are said to be charging American soldiers exorbitant prices. For the love of Mike, don't they know the difference between a tourist and a liberator? — Birmingham Age-Herald

School Notes.

There is almost rejoicing among the people to know that the "H" has abated so that schools may resume their usual program. Of course the pupils are delighted also.

We have been assigned the duty of the opening address at the County Superintendent's Meeting which is to be held in Louisville, beginning January 15th and continuing three days consecutively. We shall be out of the office excepting Monday and Tuesday.

The foremost problem at this meeting is to try to adjust conditions to the great loss that the schools have sustained by reason of the influenza.

The opinion seems to prevail among school authorities that closing the schools proved a great mistake, but persons who never make mistakes never do anything else and the only thing to do is to try to correct the errors and profit thereby.
J. C. GORDON,
Superintendent.

The retail prices of women's and children's clothing will recede greatly pretty soon, according to the Chicago garment makers. If they don't we can say that there will ultimately be the most extensive human hide exposition the world has ever seen since the misadventures introduced bandanas and parasols in the tropics.—Hous-ton Post.

Among other things we have learned at our house is that threat being to spank a child is not nearly as effective as promising him or her an ice cream cone.—Liberty Center Press.

Mrs. Mary A. Carpenter, aged 86, years one month and one day died Jan. 2, 1919. She had been confined to her chair and bed for several months. She never complained, but waited patiently for Lord to say, "Come home."

Aunt Mary, as she was known, was a lovely Christian, everyone's friend, a charitable and always ready to help those who were in need; loved by all who knew her and will be remembered many years for her kindness. She was a devoted member of the Christian church and was never happier than when at her church and Sunday school. We feel that our loss was her gain as in death many have lost a good, kind friend.

Aunt Mary, as she was known, was a lovely Christian, everyone's friend, a charitable and always ready to help those who were in need; loved by all who knew her and will be remembered many years for her kindness. She was a devoted member of the Christian church and was never happier than when at her church and Sunday school. We feel that our loss was her gain as in death many have lost a good, kind friend.

Mrs. Mary A. Carpenter, aged 86, years one month and one day died Jan. 2, 1919. She had been confined to her chair and bed for several months. She never complained, but waited patiently for Lord to say, "Come home."

FISCAL COURT.

The Fiscal Court held its regular January term last Tuesday, County Judge Cason, at the Justice of the Peace except Esq. H. Tanner, County Atty. R. E. Clift, County Clerk Rogers, Sheriff Conner and Jailer Fowler, being in attendance.

Among the important business transacted was the reappointment of F. H. Rouse superintendent of the county infirmary, and the reappointment of W. C. Goodridge as county road engineer.

The Sheriff's delinquent list was gone over and very few delinquents claimed by him were allowed by the court.

The delinquent tax list was ordered to be advertised for sale, sealed bids to be received for same by the February term of the court, the right to reject any or all bids being reserved.

The court took under review several matters that will be disposed of finally at some future term.

FRANK CLARKSON

With The A. E. F. in France
Writes to His Sister.

Frank Clarkson, better known by his Boone county friends as "Moose Clarkson," writes to his sister, Virgie Clarkson, from Chambray, France, under date of Dec. 26th, 1918.

Dear Sister:

Since the war is over I am allowed to write most anything I want to and there is much that I can tell you I hardly know what to write first.

First of all, I am now on a seven day furlough and am staying in one of the finest hotels in Chambray, France. There are about ten of us fellows here from Co. E. and about as many from other Companies out of the 32nd Division, the division I am in. Altogether I suppose there is about 1,000 soldiers here. Nearly every hotel here is full of American soldiers.

We started last Monday and arrived here about 11 o'clock. We rode about 200 miles. I am supposed to be a little tired, but I am not. "Hull Marne," about the central part of Eastern France. We were there about three weeks drilling and resting up.

Chambray is a city of about 5,000 population and is situated in the southeastern part of France, about 100 miles or so from Paris. This is a historical city and has many points of interest. There are buildings here that were built many hundreds of years ago, one of them in 1830. There is also an old chateau near here. I don't know exactly where it is, but I am going to see it if I have the chance. It was built 200 years before Christ.

There is so many things here to see I don't know whether I will get to see everything in seven days or not. Also there is a fine American Y. M. C. A. here and every night there is moving pictures and music by a French string band. The other night we had ice cream. It was the first time I had tasted it since I left America. For you can't buy it in France. The people don't know hardly what it is over here. Uncle Sam is sure treating us fine because it certainly costs a lot to keep us here but we deserve it for what we had to go through.

I will tell you about the battles I was in. That is I will tell where they were and when, that's about all for if I told you the details I would have to write a book. You remember shortly before I came over here I was transferred from the 331st Infantry, 88th Division into the 328th Infantry, 82nd Division. Well, soon after that we were sent to the front in Alsace, Lorain, near Mt. Spe and close by the Moselle river. We held the lines until Sept. 11th, and then we were sent back about five miles. That drive was called the "St. Mihiel" and I suppose you read about it. That's what we were fighting for. We were fighting off and on until November 1, when we were relieved and sent to a rest camp. Soon after that the armistice was signed and we were all happy for we had had enough of war.

Along in October you know the Hunns were being driven back into the Argonne forest. That was one of the most vital sectors of the great battle front, and we sure met some stubborn resistance. Every tree had a Dutchman behind it and every hill a dozen machine guns. Those were the awful days that I shall never forget.

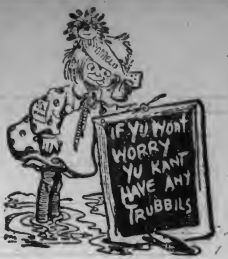

I suppose you read all about these battles in the papers but of course, you didn't know that I was in them.

The division I am in, the 82nd, sure did get some fine press. I'll tell you about war until I come home, for I want to forget it for a while. When I am coming home I don't have any idea, but I hope it will be soon. I don't think the boys think we are in the States by Xmas and still some say we will have to go guard duty in Germany for about six months. I don't know what to think about it, but we are going to be home by Xmas and we will have to be starting soon.

I hope by the time my furlough is out and when I go back to my company I will find them very happy to see me. I had my pictures taken the day and if they are any good I will send you one. I hope I will be for I don't suppose I ever have the chance to see you. I was taken again while I was in France.

I will close for this time, but I will be home soon and with a merry Christmas and New Year.

Your Brother,
FRANK CLARKSON.

The Live Issues in Kentucky.

Elizabethtown News.

The nomination and election of State officers next year will revolve around live State issues. The time is past when the people can be demagogued or taken in with platitudes. They are going to be able to discriminate between the real and the bogus. They will support the candidate for Governor who stands forth by his clear and unmistakable declarations for what the State needs, and also stands for such things by his live work.

Our common school system is in a deplorable condition. The children in the rural sections are not getting any better education than they did ten years ago, and consequently our young men and women from the country are not prepared to compete on equal terms with the better educated from other States. Kentucky must have consolidated school districts and vocational training.

Our road system must be put on a better basis. The good roads which have been built under state aid have been allowed to go to pieces from a failure to establish the patrol system.

The system of appointing County Road Engineers is a most expensive luxury from which the State receives no adequate return. Through this section of the law, it is costing twice as much to administer the State Road Department as it should cost.

We have the most abused pardon power in Kentucky which has made human life cheap by encouraging crime rather than punishing it, according to the findings of the jury.

The expenses of our State administration have nearly doubled in the last eight years. It is chiefly due to the enormous increase in State employees. Unless there is a halt on State extravagance there will necessarily have to be an increase in the tax rate.

These are few of the practical questions that the people demand that State candidates shall discuss. There are many others which will also call for consideration.

TOUCHED MEN IN RIGHT SPOT

Y. M. C. A. Camp Secretary Knew the Feeling of Soldiers Gathered to Subdue Bloodthirsty Hun.

War's changes are being shown in greater degree in the Y. M. C. A. activity, remarks the New York Sun. The palm-swinging official has passed. In his place is the athletic director and entertainer, of red blood. No better example of the metamorphosis could have been had than in an incident not long ago at Camp Mills, the great Long Island concentration camp where the men were equipped just before sailing.

One of the old-style officials was holding a meeting and was expatiating at length on the care the men should take of their souls. His audience, already partly homesick after months of training, was restless and grew glummer and glummer.

The camp secretary watched with dismay the effect the speaker was having on the soldiers about to sail. The climax came when the speaker, after a final appeal to the men to face death bravely, said:

"We will now sing 'Amid the Bells of Heaven'."

That was too much for the local camp man and he jumped to his feet, holding up his hand to the man at the piano to stop. Then he shouted:

"Boys, before we sing this 'Ring the Bells of Heaven' let us forget that first we must 'Ring the Kaiser's damned neck'."

The shout that went up broke up the abashed parson's meeting and "Ring the Bells of Heaven" was indefinitely postponed.

MODEL ON AMERICAN CLUBS

France Considering Adoption of Our Methods of Teaching Farming to Boys and Girls.

France is considering the adoption of Uncle Sam's methods of teaching better farming and home making to boys and girls. Representatives from the French high commission, lately in this country, made a point of studying carefully the methods of the federal department of agriculture and the state agricultural colleges in conducting boys' and girls' clubs. Much of the information thus collected has been widely reprinted by the French press, accompanied by editorial comment expressing the view that the man or woman power of France having been depleted or disorganized by war service, France for some time to come will be dependent in large part on its younger population for its support and suggesting the formation in France of a nation-wide system of boys' and girls' clubs patterned on those in America. It is expected that these clubs will grow staple products—garden produce, wool, farm grain and forage crops, poultry and farm animals on farms not devastated, the very first step of first of all be put in condition. They will stimulate production by the young people of France through organized contests not only in farming but in home enterprises such as bread making, garment making, cooking and home management.

Ventilation.

The mayor of Terre Haute the other day appointed a number of the city schoolmen to do special police duty, such as to seeing to the ventilating of stores, etc., says the Indianapolis News. Miss Margaret Kilroy, a high school teacher, being one of those appointed, visited a number of stores in one the manager became indignant as she explained the necessity of his doing more ventilation. "Why, it's a warm here," she complained, unbuttoning her coat and revealing a georgette crepe waist.

"Ventilation doesn't have anything to do with it," protested the man to do with it. "Why, 90 per cent of the cases of flu in this country have been caused by the wearing of georgette crepe waists."

"He was actually ready to smile when back came Miss Kilroy's cool rejoinder: suppose that explains the great number of cases in the United States army, then."

Record Telephone Service.

The largest private telephone branch in the world is the one which serves the expanding needs of the war department. On July 1 this branch served 3,785 extensions; on August 1, 3,628. It requires 120 trunk lines for incoming and outgoing calls, local and submarine toll; 17 private toll lines to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Cleveland, Hoboken and Newport News, and 105 tie lines to other government stations in Washington.

Acclimatizing Salmon.

The bureau of fisheries reports that 20,000,000 sockeye and 1,365,000 humpback salmon eggs have been obtained at the station at Tappan, Alaska, from August 20, when the season began, to September 30. If the collections are sufficiently large 1,000,000 humpback eggs will be sent to the Maine stations for the continuation of the acclimatization experiments undertaken several years ago. Later in the year it is hoped to send a second contingent.

Idea for Liberty Monument.

A Washington man proposes that as the United States was in the war 864 days, a Liberty monument to the members of our heroes be erected at the capital, on foot in height for each day, making it 864 feet high, with the names of all who gave their lives engraved on bronze tablets, to be placed in the interior of the monument.

RAG APPLE KORNDYKE PONTIAC IS NOW
WORLD'S CHAMPION SENIOR 3-YEAR-OLD

RAG APPLE KORNDYKE PONTIAC.

Another forty pounder has risen in the ranks of purebred Holstein cows. Rag Apple Korndyke Pontiac is the twenty-seventh cow of the breed to yield more than forty pounds of butter in a week. Her record for the seven days is 65.15 pounds of milk yielding 14.04 pounds of butter. Inasmuch as she was three years, nine months and 27 days old at the time of her freshening she is now world's champion senior three-year-old. She just beat the previous world's record in this division by a fraction of a pound. The previous record was 41.81 pounds of butter made by Lady Pontiac Johanna.

Rag Apple Korndyke Pontiac is a daughter of Rag Apple Korndyke VIII. Her dam is Fairview Pontiac Darkness II.

She is owned by Oliver Cabann, Jr., Elma Center, New York.

DEFINITE PLAN FOR PRUNING IN SEASON

Work Must Necessarily Be Done in Systematic Manner.

Where Problem Involves Management of Extensive Commercial Plantations Not Easy to Operate—Miscellaneous Way.

"Prune when you have a sharp," used to be the advice of earlier horticulturists. This is a comparatively safe method to follow with most plants, but where the problem involves the management of extensive commercial plantations it is not so easy to prune in this miscellaneous fashion. The work must necessarily be done at some particular season and carried on in a systematic manner after some definite plan. With most orchardists and gardeners pruning can be best done during the winter or early spring months, and while the object is the removal of small branches this season is undoubtedly quite as satisfactory as any other. In fact, pruning during late spring about the time or just previous to beginning of growth, is particularly advantageous with the peach, because at that season, as a rule, all injury to the annual growth from winter-killing will be apparent and the proper care take advantage of this to remove all dead or injured branches and at the same time modify his plan so as to leave a maximum quantity of wood in order to secure a profitable crop of fruit, which might not be possible were the practice of removing one-half the annual growth followed in such season. With the apple and pear, which are far less from winter killing, the annual pruning can as well be done in February or March, in the North, as at any other season. With the grape, however, which is likely to produce a heavy crop of sap if the pruning is delayed until late in the season, it is undoubtedly best to do the pruning during the late fall and early winter months.

There are several questions in connection with this operation which are not yet definitely settled for the different fruits. Some growers hold that late spring pruning tends to increase the fruit supply and that fall or early winter pruning increases the development of wood, particularly with the grape. But, as the records are so conflicting, the matter must necessarily be guided largely by convenience or, as in the case of the peach, climatic conditions. As a rule, it is undoubtedly best to delay pruning as late as possible where there is danger of winter killing. In other cases, where this injury is not likely to occur, it may be advantageous and equally satisfactory to prune in the late fall or early winter.

Convenience and climatic conditions must be taken into consideration in determining the period of pruning. In the removal of large branches, however, the work should be done at a season when growth is at its height, in order that the healing process may be at once and continue as long as possible during the season in which the cut is made. For this reason it is a common practice among orchardists to remove large branches of the apple and pear about the time they come into bloom, which is also about the period of the beginning of active growth.

The same rule will hold with ornamental deciduous trees, except that the period of blooming cannot be taken as the basis. The gardener must observe the time when annual growth begins and regulate his pruning accordingly.

Guinea as Watch Fowl.

The guinea is a good watch bird. While its cry is somewhat objectionable yet this bird is the first to give warning when danger threatens the poultry flock.

SPRAY FOR ASPARAGUS BUGS

One or Two Applications of Lead Arsenate or Bordeaux Mixture Will Kill Beetles.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If beetles and larvae are at work on the foliage of asparagus plants, one or two applications of lead arsenate will kill them. Two pounds of dry lead arsenate or 4 pounds of lead arsenate paste to 50 gallons of water or bordeaux mixture will make a spray of sufficient strength. This treatment, made after the cutting season, should lessen the number of beetles next year and also enable the plants to make a healthy growth. The common asparagus beetle is distributed over a wide territory extending from Toronto, Canada, through New York and New England, except Maine, to southern North Carolina and westward to the border line between Illinois and Iowa. It has also been reported from one locality in Colorado and three in California. The other species, the 12-spotted asparagus beetle, also known to growers as the "red" species, is not so common and somewhat less injurious. The early broods of these insects feed on the young and tender asparagus shoots and render them worthless for market. Later broods of the common species devour the foliage and frequently kill the plants, and those of the 12-spotted beetle feed on the berries.

MAKING USE OF COVER CROPS

Sometimes Limited in Particular Seasons by Lack of Moisture—Find Soil Troubles.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The use of cover crops is sometimes limited in particular seasons by lack of moisture. If there is a protracted drought at the time the seed should be put in and the trees are suffering therefrom, it might do more harm than good to make a further attempt upon the moisture in the soil by sowing a cover crop, even though the soil may be known to lack humus.

In maintaining soils in a highly productive condition it is important to learn what factors are limiting the performance of the orchard. The limiting factor may be an inadequate supply of some kind of plant food, improper physical condition of the soil due to a lack of humus or poor drainage, or it may be something else. The real problem is to determine what the trouble is and then apply the proper remedy, if it is known.

BERRIES FOR HOME GARDENS

Everbearing Varieties Are Favored in Northern States Because of Their Hardiness.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Strawberries may be produced throughout the summer and autumn months in the Northern United States. Plants of the everbearing sorts may be set in the spring and a crop secured in the summer and autumn of the same year. The plants are very hardy, their foliage is very resistant to disease, and under favorable conditions they continue to produce berries until hard frosts occur. These characteristics make them especially suitable for the home garden.

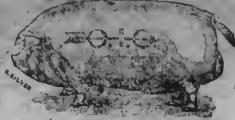

DO SOMETHING FOR COUNTRY

Help Food Supply by Keeping a Few Hens in Back Yard—Start Wisely—on Small Scale.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Do you want to "do something" for the food supply—meat and eggs—even if only in a small way? Keep some hens. Not a new idea, of course, but until now it never was quite so necessary or so easy to keep a few hens for the food supply. Try it in the back yard, beginning wisely on a small scale—say two hens.

W. N. H. HOME PAPER

BIRTH AND IMMIGRATION.

The current report of the census bureau on the birth statistics for the year 1916 indicates that the country is growing in population about as fast as could be expected, considering that immigration has been reduced approximately 80 per cent from the figures registered in the two years just before the war. We are reminded that the increase for many years under normal conditions has been about equally due to immigration and the excess of births over deaths—roundly a million each, annually, says Providence Journal. In the period immediately preceding the war, the tide from Europe to these shores, chiefly from Russia, Italy and Austria-Hungary, was rising very high, with every prospect that it would not soon be checked. In the fiscal year 1912-13 it reached 1,197,892, and, in 1913-14, 1,218,840—the fiscal years ending June 30. In 1915 it fell to 926,700; in 1916, the year of the birth statistics now published, to 298,826, and last year it was 265,403. The birth rate for the whole country can only be estimated, because the area that furnishes dependable statistics—comprising the New England states, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota and the District of Columbia—contains fewer than one-third of the population. In this "registration area" the rate was 24.8 per one thousand of population, apparently a normal rate.

A tightwad is a being unto himself. No two tightwads are alike and few tightwads reach their estate from the same reason. No man is a tightwad because he wants to be. He can't help it. The dictionary says a tightwad is "a penurious person," but as the term is employed in this day this is not a good definition. A tightwad of the present is a normally conservative person grown more cautious by close application to the principle of "safety first." The disease is highly contagious. A person with no inclination to tightness, after associating with a company of tightwads for a time, will soon become tight. It is not a condition easily shaken off, and it works practically all the time.

America is making friendships that will live long and prosper. Already it is held in greater respect among the nations than ever before—a respect built in part upon recognition of America's strength, but in greater part upon her interestlessness, her willingness to help the cause of international justice even at vast expense and without profit to herself. Not only France, but even more pointedly the smaller peoples within the entente group, look to the United States with a thankfulness certain to increase with the fuller understanding that will come with years.

The presence in the West, simultaneously, of a party of distinguished French churchmen and a mission composed of the representatives of the principal universities and colleges of Great Britain reminds us once again that war may be constructive as well as destructive; that it may make as well as break ties, says Rocky Mountain News. The sword, drawn in a just cause, serves not only liberty but religion and learning as well, and thus brings us a step nearer our ideal of a universal brotherhood of man.

There are no logical, business or social reasons why farmers and business people of the cities and towns should not be neighbors and friends. Americans are honored the world over. Farmers produce food, business men buy and distribute, and supply farmers what they cannot raise. Neither can prosper without the other. The country needs both. Why not closer cooperation?

Countess Maria Loschi of Rome, who is here to study American womanhood, is a well equipped suffragette who can make speeches in English or French or Italian in consecutive order, backward or forward. Such a revolving turret device makes a monitor a terror to hunkers.

If the secret Berlin archives of the late imperial government are given publicity as proposed, there is no doubt that they will make mighty interesting reading. They may reveal that European imagination has fallen short of probing the real depths of Hun duplicity and criminal cunning.

Albert of Belgium entering his capital, with his people huff and with joy to welcome him back, is an illustration that the king business can be done in a entirely respectable one despite some damaging evidence to the contrary.

FRANK N. JONES

Dies At the Home of His Parents During The Christmas Holidays.

A happy and joyous Christmas home-coming for Frank Norris Jones and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Jones, of 535 Third street, ended in death for the son and deep grief and sorrow for the parents, for the son died at the home of his parents at 12:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Funeral services conducted by Rev. Z. T. Sweeney, assisted by Rev. W. H. Book, will be held from the chapel in Garland Brook cemetery, funeral cortege leaving the home at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The body will be laid to rest in Garland Brook cemetery.

Mr. Jones, who is president of a college of music in Washington, D. C., came from that city to spend Christmas with his parents, arriving Christmas eve. He was not wholly well on leaving Washington and he is believed to have contracted a severe cold on the trip, which developed pneumonia, causing death.

Mr. Jones, who was 36 years old, was born at Versailles, but in his boyhood he moved with his parents to Washington, D. C. In his early youth, Mr. Jones showed remarkable talent for music, which gave promise, with proper development, of great achievements his parents decided to go as far as possible in the development of his talents along that line. He was given the best of training in music in this country and his studies of music were finished abroad, with the result that he became a brilliant and widely known musician. Also Mr. Jones studied languages abroad and the time of his death was capable of speaking fluently a number of languages other than his own. Apart from a natural talent for music the mind of Mr. Jones was a keen and brilliant one and he was a finished gentleman in every particular well informed on vital public topics, not alone of his own country but of foreign ones as well. He was a deep thinker, a sound reasoner, courteous, refined and imbued with the highest ideals, a keen sense of humor, a high regard for Christianity, morality, and the clean manly life.

The stricken man was conscious almost to the end and his last thoughts and words were of his Redeemer and those nearest and dearest to him. He faced death bravely and stoically, and he had lived his life, notwithstanding the call—while he was yet in the vigor of his manhood, he held himself mentally and at a time when his career, though already a brilliant one, was by no means finished. For the end came suddenly, and he left behind him a family of relatives and friends and so far as possible provided for their future happiness and thus he died a happy and contented man. Mr. Jones was a nephew of Mrs. B. H. Berkshire, of Petersburg.

PREFERS THE U. S. GIRLS.

Miss Anna Pettit is in receipt of the following letter from her brother, James:

Camp De Souge,
Dec. 18, 1918.

Dear Sister: I will answer your letters. I am answering them all. I got them altogether; one was of Nov. 7th. I am well and have been ever since I have been over here, and though it is a little damp here, it is raining tonight and has rained some every day for three weeks or more. The water is standing around in great puddles although it is sandy. About a foot or something like that under the sand there is hard sand or rather rock so the water can't soak down.

Well, you are a little mistaken about the mail not being censored any more. There are some censors in Germany and they are allowed to tell a lot more than we were. I think I told you about all the places we had been in, that is all I could write.

You wanted me to write a whole lot. Well, it is some job to write when you don't see any one and there is no one around this camp is sand and pine trees. It is hard to get passes to go to Bordeaux and hard to get there. If a fellow can't get enough to get a truck he has to walk about six or seven miles to the car line. I don't care much about going to the little burgs closer to camp. There were about twenty-five out of each battery at Bordeaux Monday night. We were taken down in a motor car and a concert was given for the benefit of the French war orphans. Our band was there. It goes down there pretty often.

If I had the best land that has been in this camp. It is some land, too, believe me. We all had a pretty nice time. We got back around in a motor car. It was the first time I had been up later than nine o'clock since leaving the states.

Well, you asked me to tell you something about the girls. Well, some of them are pretty and ever saw, and some as ugly as I ever saw, so there you are. It is all mixed up. I had best believe me I think a lot more of the U. S. girls than these over here. I can't talk to them much. Well, all right, you worry about me falling in love with any of them, and staying over here, I would not stay over here for the whole country from what I have seen of it. I would not give one acre in Kentucky for the whole thing, but I am certain this is about the worst part that a person could be in. All they raise is grapes. Oh, yes; by the way, a fellow can get all the wine he wants to drink and more than he wants if he don't be careful, but I don't like it very well. It is sour. It is about like good apple cider.

Well I am glad to hear that Dad is doing gathering corn—seems to get along about as well by himself as when I was there. Guess I will stay away (will roll so much mischief) ha, ha, ha. I sure would give a lot to roll up in a good bed. Well as it is about time for lights out I guess I will try to close. Hoping everybody is well. With love to all, Your Brother, JAMES.

SOLDIERS MAIL

Is Undelivered-- Post Officials Attempts to Shift Blame on War Department.

Washington, January 10.—From eight to ten carloads of mail for American soldiers are undelivered in France, Second Assistant Postmaster Praeger told the Senate Postoffice Committee today, and "thousands and probably millions" of letters addressed to the men overseas will arrive in New York and be sent to the dead, unless the War Department will be made to return them to the writers.

Blame for the failure to deliver the mail was placed on the War Department by Mr. Praeger, who again explained that the army authorities handle all soldier mail in France, the Postoffice Department delivering outgoing mail at Hoboken and receiving returning mail at the French ports.

Mr. Praeger said one way to improve conditions overseas would be to send a force of experienced clerks to France to deliver the mail to the soldiers.

Mr. Praeger told the committee that one reason for the confusion in the delivery of mail to soldiers was the failure of the War Department to keep up its index system. This same cause, he declared, also was responsible for the departments delay in sending out allotments to soldiers and in reporting casualties.

Another source in delay in delivering mail promptly was the transferring of units of troops from one port to another, but he said this should cause only a few days' delay, as mail could readily be forwarded to the moving troops.

Asked what facilities the War Department is providing for handling mail, Mr. Praeger said about fifty experienced mail clerks were sent by that department overseas while the remainder of the necessary force for this campaign, nearly 100,000, was made up of inexperienced men.

Paris, France.—The American soldiers are sending more letters now that the war is over.

Also the military postoffice is getting more kicks than ever, this despite the fact that its force is working six and a half days a week.

Most of these kicks are inspired by impatience of the folk back home and most of them are unjustified.

A Chicago newspaper advised all those whose sons or brothers were in this neighborhood who were day last week and bought several high grade milk cows. Mr. Kinney knows a good cow when he sees one, and is always willing to pay a good price for it. He had one of the best and largest herd of cows in Boone county.

Sold at Good Prices.

J. L. Sullivan, of the Waterloo neighborhood, sold at the Kentucky Horse Leaf Tobacco Warehouse, Covington, one day last week, a crop of 2,000 pounds of tobacco for $350 a hundred pounds for which he had been offered $25 a hundred by local buyers. While the crop of Florence neighborhood, sold at the same house, a crop of 150 pounds for $450 a hundred, and a crop of 100 pounds for $500 a hundred by a local dealer.

DIES SUDDENLY

W. H. Scott, Vice-President of Florence Bank While Attending a Directors' Meeting at the Bank.

W. H. Scott, of DeOn, Kenton county, died last Wednesday of heart disease in the directors room of the Florence Deposit Bank. Mr. Scott was Vice-President of the bank and was attending a meeting of the directors when he was stricken. Mr. Scott was 65 years old and his wife, who survives him, was a daughter of the late Andy Collins, of this county and a sister of Prof. A. C. Collins, of Covington. He is survived by several children. Mr. Scott was a prosperous farmer and a very popular individual in his neighborhood and he will be missed by all his neighbors and in business circles.

Rouse Has Made Good.

P. H. Rouse, who is now serving his ninth year as superintendent of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, forms the Recorder that for the year 1918 the average number of imates was 2125 which were mainly from the state of Kentucky. During the year there were six deaths. At the present time there are 20 imates. It cost about $250 more per imate last year than it did this year, but this is accounted for as the result of the very large crop of fruit produced by the infirmity.

In the year 1917 fruit constituting a considerable part of the diet of the imates in 1917. Mr. and Mrs. Rouse have made excellent guardians of the county's indigents who have come under their care. They have guarded the county's interest and at the same time been kind to the inmates and seeing that they were made comfortable and looked after in their illness.

Select Benjamin Cook Dies in Camp.

Benj. Cook, of Bellevue, this county, who was county clerk, died in a hospital in the service last fall died in Camp Sheridan, Alabama, the first of last week. The body was shipped to Walton to be buried in the cemetery of Chambers, who conveyed it to Bellevue, last Friday, where it was interred. Only a few weeks ago Cook was in the service as a volunteer in the field.

It was during that time that he was injured in the breast by a horse—he was handling, and it is said the injury developed pneumonia in the chest, which resulted in his death. He was a son of Tony Cook, of Bellevue, and brother of Andy Cook, who died in the service. He was married to Miss Leila Aiken, a daughter of David Aiken, of Limburg, and she and two small children survive. The deceased was expecting to return home in the near future, and was anxiously looking forward to the time when he could return home to remain.

FARMERS WARNED

By Houston to Beware of Demagogues and Selfish Partisans.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 8.—Peace finds American agriculture on a substantially sound and sound basis, and developing in the right direction, Secretary Houston said today in an address to the Association of American Agriculturists. Much more must be done in the field, however, he said, because this part of the nation's industrial life will not stand still.

"I do not have your troubles," the Secretary said. "We shall be concerned with numerous proposals from the enthusiasts with limited knowledge and less sense of direction."

"We shall be pestered by the narrow, selfish partisan and by the demagogues—the farmers of the farm who pretend to be constituted friends. These are already in evidence and are revealing from ends of their own a willingness to attempt by misrepresentation and cheap appeals to prejudice, to injure great constructive agencies, such as the state agricultural colleges and the farm bureau."

"The farmers of the farm will not make much headway. The American farmer are not easily fooled and we trust them to assess their own needs and their motives at their real worth."

Every possible assistance, said Mr. Houston, will be given to returning soldiers who are beginning life anew in the difficult business of farming.

Turning to the subject of peace, the Secretary said that the peace movement in necessary degree to the interchange of commodities and the free trade of the world, and to the development of the proper attitude and practice of the world.

Changed the Appearance.

The weather this month has changed the appearance of the lawn in the court house. Brown is taking the place of the beautiful green that remained so far into winter.

Wants the Tax Commissioner Let Out.

If a thousand farm owners visited the Tax Commissioner's office this probably would mean four thousand dollars worth of time lost for the farmers which would be found thousand dollars loss to the farmers besides the wear and tear of the horse and vehicle and what he would have to spend for something to eat.

The Tax Commissioner I believe could visit 1,000 homes and take the list of the property in one half of the time he uses to do under Democratic principles, and lose nothing but be well paid for his work.

Now Mr. Potter, let us watch to see if our rights and privileges are taken from us and a special privilege given to the Governor to appoint district assessors without a voice from the people. Then in the political campaign hear them preach equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

Rouse's Reminiscences.

Bert Rouse is thinking about writing a book the chapters of which are to be short and crisp, warranted to drive away the mosquitoes and the flies, the blues. The volume will contain a complete account of his experiences when he was having fun enough for half a dozen men.

RIOT AT WALTON

Tobacco Sticks and Pistols Make Things Lively.

--Sheriff Called to the Scene.

Shortly after four o'clock last Saturday afternoon Sheriff Conner was called to Walton to take charge of James and John Roberts who had been scrapping with J. M. Arnold, farm manager of the loose leaf warehouse. Upon his arrival the sheriff found Arnold with a broken finger and James Roberts with a couple of ugly gashes on his head and face, the result of liks from a tobacco stick.

It seems that James and John Roberts had had trouble with Arnold the day before at the warehouse, and not being satisfied with the results of his scarp returned to the tobacco house about 4 p. m. Saturday to have a more satisfactory adjustment of their troubles.

James Roberts had no escape had not made any special arrangements for a second session with the boys, he evidently got the best of them, owing to the favorable conditions of his surroundings and being an expert handler of tobacco sticks. For a time things were exceedingly lively in the tobacco house and the proceedings several shots were fired but no one is able to tell who attempted to use the pistol.

When the sheriff reached Walton he arrested James Roberts, whom he found pretty well soured, and brought him to Burlington and lodged him in jail, but John Roberts made his escape. James Roberts is in Uncle Sam's service and was at home on a furlough, stayed a day or two over time and got in bad.

Mrs. Charles A. Finn Dead.

Mrs. Charles A. Finn died at her home in Plattburg neighborhood last Saturday evening after an illness of several days of gall stone. Burial in Petersburg cemetery Tuesday.

Mrs. Finn was a daughter of the late Henry Smith, and is survived by her husband and four sons, Russell, Aubrey, William and John. The first named being very ill of pneumonia following influenza with which he was attacked shortly after his return from a military camp in Texas. The husband, Finn, has been an invalid for some time, and his children have the sympathy of all in their sad affliction.

Fatal Accident.

A twelve year old son of Edward Michels, who lives near the Five Mile House on the Dixie Highway, fell off of a wagon last Saturday and was run over and killed. The other members of the family had gone to attend a funeral and the boy remained at home and was engaged hauling manure when the accident occurred.

Sugar and Molasses

Season Near.

The season for making maple molasses is near at hand. There are very few sugar bushes in this county, while half a century ago there were several hundred sugar trees on nearly every farm in the county, and the sugar and molasses season was one of the busiest of the year, it generally lasting about six weeks.

Improving Slowly.

Newton Sullivan, who resides out on the Petersburg pike, who was a sick soldier, is making a slow recovery, but that is said to be the nature of the disease, which is a very mean one.

The freeze caught the dirt roads in a condition to make them very rough.

YANK TROOPS

First to Break Line That Was Established by Hindenburg, Says London Paper.

London, January 10.—American troops were the first to break the Hindenburg line, according to the Daily News, in its comment today on the report of Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig on the operations from the end of April last to the close of hostilities.

The news points out that at least the first mention of a break through contained in the Field Marshal's report was in the course of his description of the day's work on September 29 in which he wrote:

"North of Bellelisie the Thirtieth American Division, Major General E. M. Lewis, having broken through the deep defenses of the Hindenburg line, stormed Bellicourt and seized Noury. On their left the 27th American Division, Major General O'Hara, met with very heavy enflading gun fire, but pressed on with great gallantry as far as Jouy, where a bitter struggle took place for possession of the village. The fighting on the whole front of the Second American Corps was severe, and in Bellicourt a number of other points, amid the intricate defenses of the Hindenburg line, strong bolies of the enemy held out with great obstinacy for many hours."

"These points of resistance were gradually overcome, either by the supply troops of the American divisions or by the Fifth and Third Australian Divisions."

NEGRO SOLDIERS

Were Real Fun Makers of the Army.

Birmingham Age-Herald.

The humor of the American army is largely supplied by the negro troops. Up at the American frontiers, where they are told about them by the old newspaper men in the service.

There was the story of the negro troops coming across the Atlantic in a transport submarine was sighted. The six sharp blasts from the whistle shrilled out and the order was given to the colored troops to fall in on the deck. The negroes stood in line at attention, waiting, silent and scared, while the pasters of the ship's crew looked on. Then the silence was broken by one big black man in the rear rank, who, in a small, quavering voice, asked, "Does any nigger here want to buy a gold watch and chain?"

Then there was the story of the crap shooting negro in the artillerist's regiment, whose job was to feed the shells to the big gun. Each time he drove the shell in to the breach and the gun boomed, he jumped high in the air and with a characteristic crap shooting crack of the fingers, shouted, "Count your men, Mr. Kaiser, count your men." Then he would say, "They ain't no more and the gun fired, another jump, another shout of "Count 'em again, Mr. Kaiser, count 'em again."

There also was the story of the Mississippi draft of cotton plantation negroes, brought up from camp by rail to Newport News, and loaded on board the transport after dark. Next morning, when the troops woke up, the ship was well out to sea, and there was not a sign of land to be seen. One negro soldier, who had never seen or heard of the ocean, leaned against the rail and looked awesomely at the vast stretch of water. "Where de hell de levee am bust?"

A few days out, when the boat began to toss and the waves became mountainous and menacing, a sick negro soldier looked up to the sky from where he lay on the wet deck, miserable and terrified, and groined: "Oh, Lawd, make make dat ocean come to plenshun."

A captain said to a company of negroes, "Now, I want you fellows to learn this game, 'shorty.' Suppose our company is holding the line here and the Boche makes a direct charge at us across this field, what would you boys do?"

"Well, captain," came from one member of the company, "we sho' would spread the news over France."

One transport going over, one negro trooper said to another, a very sea-sick boy, "Look out dere and see dat sailboat, 'cause den you sho' not get no sailboat, nigger," came from the sick fellow lying with his head on his arms, "don't you call me at all unless you see a tree."

Was a Small Scrap.

The war with Spain was a very small scrap, but the mobility with which Uncle Sam mobilized his army for it did not compare with the speed and progress he showed when he saw it was impossible to keep out of the war with Germany. Nothing like his rapid preparation was ever dreamed of at the time of the Spanish war, and equipping an immense army was the result. The war demonstrated the immensity of this country as well as the ability of its officials to handle it under the most strenuous circumstances.

Considerable tobacco has been got from this neighborhood, to the Covington loan left house the past week.

The flu is very bad in this county again and in some neighborhoods it is worse than it has ever been and people should use all the precautions they know of to avoid contracting it. It is believed to be a cold weather disease and it is expected to remain several weeks yet.

FRIDAY COURIER-JOURNAL

CHERRY INDORSED BY HIS HOME PEOPLE

Great Assembly Cheer the Noted Educator and Adopt Stirring Resolutions Endorsing His Candidacy for Governor.

A great mass meeting was held at Bowling Green on Saturday, December 28th, to endorse the candidacy of Dr. H. H. Cherry for the Democratic nomination for Governor. It was an enthusiastic meeting, and one which showed that the people of his native county, among whom he has lived and worked all his life, appreciate his qualities of life and leadership.

Dr. H. H. Cherry, Bowling Green.

and are back of his candidacy. Mr. Morgan Hughes, a fellow-townman of Dr. Cherry, and a noted western Kentucky farmer, reported as chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, the following resolutions, which were unanimously and enthusiastically adopted:

"The Democrats of Warren county, hailing from every precinct within her borders, in mass meeting assembled do hereby confidently and enthusiastically commend to the Democracy of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, the candidacy of H. H. Cherry, who seeks his party's nomination as its candidate for Governor, at the primary election to be held on August 2, 1919. Dr. Cherry was born and reared in Warren county, springing from a Christian family of hardy pioneers. Here he has spent his life. Here he has risen by his unaided efforts, from an humble farmer to become the head of a great educational institution, in which the people everywhere feel a justified pride; and from here his influence for good has radiated throughout the entire State. Every forward-looking movement for the credit of the State and the welfare of the people has always had in him an earnest and effective champion. Every moral issue which has arisen has always found him on the right side. Every progressive measure which has been proposed, whether for governmental efficiency, educational expansion, agricultural betterment, or purity in politics, has always received his unflinching support. He is an earnest and life-long Democrat, who has hitherto been content to be a worker in the ranks. His excellent ability, tried through years of experience, and tested by many difficulties, is of the highest order. Personally honest, politically incorruptible, trained in the difficult work of intelligent and effective leadership, he is eminently qualified to fill the office of Governor, with credit alike to himself and to the Commonwealth. We, his fellow-county men, earnestly endorse his candidacy, and confidently bespeak for him the generous support of every Democrat everywhere throughout the entire State.

Dr. Cherry has issued a progressive program. In his announcement he states that he submits his desires to the people, and under no circumstances will he be a candidate of any political faction. He stands for perfecting the tax and road laws; for organizing the finances of the State upon a sound, equitable and just basis; for economy and efficiency in all departments of State government; for the elimination of every useless job and all forms of waste; for local, State and National prohibition; for the right of suffrage for the women of the State equally with the men; for safeguarding and promoting the rights of the laboring man; for better rural schools; for better health conditions; for a non-partisan judiciary; and, for the non-partisan management of charitable and penal institutions, free from all political influences. He also endorses reforms along other vital lines. He believes that capital should be encouraged to come within our borders; that labor should be secured and receive fair treatment and just compensation; that education should drive illiteracy from the State, and agriculture, which is the basis of our wealth, should be fostered and raised to the highest degree of efficiency. He declares that Kentucky needs more fields of alfalfa, more agricultural implements, and other things, and less political brioche. If you endorse this character of a man and the principles he advocates, Dr. Cherry would value your support, and you feel like writing him, he would greatly appreciate hearing from you.

PRESS CLIPPINGS.

One of the most notable instances of optimism we have ever heard of is that of Governor Jim Cox, who is hoping to get some financial reform legislation through a Republican legislature. If we were Governor Jim we'd have the Ohio treasury nailed up before we'd get a chance to poke a finger in.—Houston Post.

Don't Rush the Boys to Work.

Now is a very nice time for the boys to reach home from service in the army. They would have enjoyed this which to get settled and ready to make an effective drive in this spring's preparation for the year's crops. It can hardly be expected that they will be ready to start the kinks immediately upon arrival home and settle down to hard labor. They will need some time to get in tune for farm labor.

LAST ROLL CALL

Answered by Priv. Ben Cook, Who Died at Camp Sheridan, Alabama.

Burlington, Ky., Jan. 10, 1919.
Theodore (Donny) and Mary E. Sturgeon Cook were born August 31, 1891 in this county. In April, 1916, he was married to Margaret Lelia Mae Akin. To this union two children were born.

Under the selective draft act he was called to the colors August 7th, 1918, and was in training at Camp Sheridan, Montgomery, Alabama.

He was home Christmas on a short furlough apparently in the best of health and spirits, but was stricken with pneumonia a few days after his return to camp and was called to the great beyond Jan. 7th, 1919, after being in Uncle Sam's service just five months.

His sojourn here was 27 years, four months and seven days. While in camp his tent mates were S. Marshall Hall and Edward Crest, Boone county boys. Two of his comrades, Edward Crest and Harvey Mitchell, accompanied the body to Walton, where C. S. Chambers took charge. The remains were brought to his home town and after a brief funeral discourse by Rev. C. E. Baker, were interred in Bellevue cemetery.

He leaves to mourn his going a father, mother with two children, two brothers, Andrew and Raymond, and three sisters, Mrs. Ernest J. Ryle, Mrs. D. C. Pope and Mrs. Charles White, beside a host of other relatives and friends.

He was with Co. A, 68th Infantry, and his comrades testify that he possessed the quiet and steady nerves of a brave, genuine soldier, and that while there did his duty without faltering and ever stepped in the right way, which endeared him to his comrades and he will be missed in their midst as they had drilled together.

The floral pieces presented by his company and the Bellevue Red Cross unit are testimonies of esteem from his comrades and friends.

He will be missed in the community where he spent the greater part of his life, for he was an industrious, upright young fellow. In the home circle he will be missed always, and while the home circle is broken and at camp a face is missing, and that voice will respond no more to the roll call, he has gone up higher and one more is added to the roll call "over there."

What a happy reuniting for the boys in khaki on the other side that can respond "here."

Card of Thanks.—We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors that shared our sorrow in the death of our loved one, and for the floral offerings; also Rev. C. E. Baker for his consoling remarks; C. S. Chambers for the efficient funeral in which he conducted the funeral and each and every one that helped in any manner to lighten our burden of grief.

T. W. Cook and Family.

Camp Sheridan, Alabama, January 8, 1919.

To the Relatives of Private Benjamin C. Cook:

With deep sorrow and regret we have learned of the death of our comrade, and make this small offering of flowers as a token. A better soldier and friend was not in the service of our country, and we take this means of sending our sympathy to his relatives in their bereavement.

Members of Co. "A," 68th Infantry.

Bought a Baby Farm.

B. E. Aylor bought of A. T. Barnes last Thursday the 25.77 acre baby farm, one of the parcels of land sold at the town lot sale here last summer. It is said the price Mr. Aylor paid is around $70 per acre.

Build Tobacco Plant Beds.

Preparation of tobacco plant beds is now in order, and judging from the prices the weed is bringing there will be equally as large a crop picked this year as that of last year. The farmers want to grow the crop that will produce the most dollars, and tobacco has taken that position.

FROM PRIV. JOHN BAKER

Private John Baker writes from Camp De Souza, France, Dec. 11th, to his brother Edward R. Baker, of Lebanon, at which time he was near Bordeaux, France.

My Dear Brother and Family— I am kind a like you in writing. I hardly know whether to write or not as you say you don't get all my letters. I get your mail all right and it looks like you ought to get mine.

How are you all and the folks at home getting along? I hope you are all well. I am well and feeling fine.

I received two letters from Beasie this week, one dated Nov. 18, the other the 25th. In the one written on the 25th she told me about a Christmas box you had started on the long journey for me. I haven't got it yet but hope I will some time soon. I thank you many times for it and your trouble. I certainly have enjoyed the nice boxes and the letters. The home folks and my kind folks have sent me since I left home. I received a box of nice candy a few days ago from a friend of mine in the States and I sure like to hear from one home county Ky.

I enjoyed the trip coming over—never got sea sick and so far like this country very well. We had one week that we leave here the next and when that time comes it's some other time, so we can't tell when or how soon we will leave or what we are going to do. We might get orders to pack up and move at any time and I do hope it will be soon, for I want to get back across that way. But I am some ride believe me. When we were coming over and about half way across, we ran into a large bunch of fish about 1 o'clock one night. They looked like hogs coming over a hill on one of the waves. There were many more interesting things I would like to write about my trip and the wonderful sights I saw on my way over, but will wait until I come home to tell the rest.

Tell Alibera to look for me any time after Christmas and I will try and get her a souvenir. I am in what they call sunny France, but the sun don't shine much here. It is very sandy but we don't mind it, we drill just the same. I think our drilling days will soon be over. Tell the folks at home not to worry about me, for I am well and feeling fine and will take care of myself. Will come home soon as I can. I will close for this time with love and kisses to all.

Luther Surface Writes a Friend.

Luther Surface writes to his friend Lewis Hedges from France where he has now been about nine months. He says he never felt better in his life. That he will be back soon; has been on the front and firing line for six months and in three drives; has been cited for bravery; that the front is sure a wild place; he was at the front when the last shot was fired; he thought several times that time had come but he came through without a scratch; he has seen many handsome French girls but is partial to the Kentucky girls yet; he is figuring on getting back home, thinking to raise a crop this year; he has not seen any of the Boone county boys since he has been in France but expects to find some of them soon; he expects to be back in the States by February.

CARD OF THANKS.—

We desire to thank our neighbors and friends for the kindness shown us at the time of the death of our son Arthur Smith, Bro. Carter for his consoling words, and undertaker C. Scott Chambers for the way he handled the funeral.

THE FAMILY.

Do you want to buy a farm of 160 acres, 1 mile from Lawrenceburg, Ind., for $100 per acre? Call or address C. J. Lang, Lawrenceburg, Ind.

James M. Barlow, a pioneer citizen of Pleasant Valley, was in Burlington, Tuesday. He says so many people are calling him unwise that he really begins to feel old and he wishes they would give him a rest. He was accompanied by Edward G. Creel, from Camp Sheridan, Ala., who accompanied the remains of Benjamin Cook home. Mr. Creel is one of the Boone county soldiers and was living with Mr. Barlow at the time he was called to the colors.

IRRIGATION OF AN ORCHARD

Basin and Check Methods Are Described—When Soil Is Hard Disk Plow Will Help.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Orchards sometimes are irrigated by first forming ridges midway between the rows in two directions at right angles to each other. This divides up the tract into a large number of squares with a tree in the center of each. In rarer cases a basin or check incloses four or more trees.

When the ground is hard or covered with weeds, a disk plow is run between the rows and then the loosened earth is formed into a ridge by a ridger. If the soil is light, sandy and free from weeds, the disk is not necessary. Ridgers are made in various ways of both wood and steel or some combination of both. One consists of two deep runners 15 to 18 inches high, two inches thick, and six to eight feet long. These runners are shot with steel which extends part way up the inner side. They are four to five feet apart at the front end and tapered to 16 or 24 inches at the rear. The runners are held in position by cross-pieces on top, a floor, and straps of steel in the manner shown.

The height of the ridges varies with the depth of water applied, which is from four to nine inches. The ridges should be several inches above the surface of the water when a basin is flooded.

Several methods of flooding basins are practiced. In one a ditch is run from the supply ditch at the head through each alternate row space and the basins on each side are flooded in pairs, beginning with the lowest. In the other method water is allowed to flow through openings into each basin of a tier in a zigzag course from the top to the bottom of the orchard. In this plan the upper basins receive the most water. Under gravity canals, where water is abundant, the water is turned into the upper basin until it is full, when it overflows into the next, and so on down the tier. The irrigator then begins at the lower end and repairs the breaks, leaving each basin full of water.

Interest in basin irrigation has been renewed of late in California, owing to the fact that by this method of preparing land and applying water it has been found possible to mulch each basin throughout the dry season with cured alfalfa, bean straw or other leguminous products. The soluble ingredients of such a mulch are carried by the irrigation water into the soil and in this way both food and moisture are furnished to the tree. This is a revival of a very old practice. Ibn el Owan, or Abu Zairia as he is called otherwise, who wrote in the twelfth century, speaks many times of mulches of straw, preferably from stalks, in his book on agriculture. The same author in another part of his work gives the following advice:

"You next take bean stalks with the beans stripped off, coming from the crop of the previous year and quite large. They are thrashed so as to reduce them to the state of very fine straw. This straw is spread in abundance on the soil after plowing and you irrigate on top of it."

Gallicchio says that it is excellent orchard practice after cotton manure has been spread in early in the spring and the basins (cuettes) have been formed for receiving irrigation to fill the latter with straw manure or, if this is not to be had, with dry grass.

Where the check method is practiced it frequently happens that land on which alfalfa has been grown is planted to fruit trees. In plowing down the alfalfa and setting out the trees, the leaves undergo little change and the checks can be flooded if it is considered best. A better plan is to turn over the floor of each check. The water is admitted through the check lines which is used for the alfalfa and conducted into a short head ditch, from which it is distributed to the furrows. The chief objection to this method is that the checks are too small for orchard tracts in furrow irrigation.

SEE GOD'S HAND IN RESCUE

Natives of Rimatara Ascribe Their Escape From Death to Miraculous Interposition.

"Saved by the hand of God," is the way the nine natives composing the crew of the 80-ton schooner Oromann characterize their escape from death, after having drifted helplessly 50 days on one of the loneliest bits of ocean in the seven seas.

When the wreck of the Oromann was towed into Papeete harbor, Tahiti, one of the most remarkable voyages known in these waters was completed. The vessel, a two-masted schooner, owned by natives of Rimatara, an island about 300 miles southwest of Tahiti, left her home port, without cargo, bound for the island of Rurutu, in the same group, where she was to undergo repairs and take cargo of copra for Tahiti.

Two days out, she was struck by a storm, which carried away both her masts and later her rudder, leaving her a helpless derelict.

With never a glimpse of land or sail to give a ray of hope, the Oromann drifted for 50 days. After 15 days the supply of food was gone. The natives managed to catch a shark with hook and line. This lasted them five days. The rest of the time they had no food. An occasional shower prevented death from thirst.

Then the "miracle" happened. The mountains of Tahiti rose slowly over the horizon. The shifting sea current brought them nearer and nearer until they were finally sighted from shore and a powerboat sent to tow them in. They were too weak to rise to their feet, but, after a few days ashore all appeared to be rapidly recovering from their experience.

The natives say the hand of God guided their craft, for the prevailing winds in these latitudes are from the northwest, a direction which would never have brought them to Tahiti.

SHE KNEW THE GREAT STORY

Girl Loved Gift of Narrative, but Was Able to Tell All About Chateau Thierry.

As we crawled up a railroad track in the vicinity of Chateau Thierry (this was in October)—a railroad track which seemed the only new and complete object in sight—the Y. M. C. A. girl, who had been sitting in the corner of the compartment resisting all advances at conversation, volunteered a remark.

"Our division took it," she said. "I turned out this side and came in with her cannon just behind the division, during that fight wherein America made good. She lacked the narrative talent, that girl, but she came out at intervals with flashes like this:

"When our boys came up the stragglers said to them: 'You can't stay in there.' And our boys said: 'We'll not only stay there, but we're going forward.' When the stragglers saw that, they formed, too, and went back with them."

Or this, as we drew into sight of a road bordered by blackened ruins: "There's where our divisions came into sight, singing. The Yanks are coming."—Will Irwin in the Saturday Evening Post.

Pretty Polly.

"Polly, want a cracker?" "Why, yes," answered Polly as she plumed her plumage and neatly brushed out her curls with her portside wing. "Now that the war is won and the necessity for food conservation has been passed to a certain degree, I feel that I may indulge in my favorite diet without serious damage to my conscience."

And the wretched millionaires worker who overheard the remark bought her on the spot for $1,000 cash, saying that she should be surrounded with luxuries for the rest of her days, yet though she lived to be as old as the mother-in-law joke.

Note—Gentle readers who look for a moral to this particular piece of patriotic persiflage will please try to hear up under the disappointment. There ain't none.—Indianapolis Star.

Matter of Patches.

Seven-year-old James and his mother were visiting the latter's spinster aunts. As they were their custom these maiden ladies showed their visitors their vast supply of home-pieced quilts. "This is the first four-patch Jane ever made," announced one proudly, displaying a quilt whose blocks were made up of four square pieces.

"And this is Mary's nine-patch," explained Jane. "She made it when she was only seven years old."

The third quilt was an embroidered silk one, made of myriads of tiny irregular pieces—the gifts of friends and the remnants from ancient wedding and reception cloths. James stared at it a few minutes and then he turned to his mother. "Is this one an all-patch?" he asked.

Round Trip.

Aunt Mary Wells is one of the few "heirloom" dealers left in a little Kentucky town. Recently she was discussing with her employer the merry-go-round that was running up on the corner.

"Nawwah, Mr. Mulcaim," she said, "nawwah, I don't ride on none o' dem things. Why, Mr. Mulcaim, I've seen some o' them big big biggers get on that thing and ride as under a dollar's worth, and it off at the very same place they gets on at, an' I see 'em 'nawwah, how you spent y' money, niggar, what y' been y'—Saturday Evening Post.

CONTAINER OF PROPER KIND

Those With Handles Are Much Less Likely to Be Damaged in Transit in the Mails.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One important requirement for parcel post shipping and marketing is a proper and satisfactory container. Sometimes the consumer can secure containers more readily and economically than the producer. Those with handles are much less likely to be damaged in transit in the mails than those which are not thus supplied and which are likely to be tossed or thrown or handled by the string or twine used in tying them. A bamboo basket serves the purpose very well and may be used a long time. Ordinary splint baskets made of strips of veneer may also be used, and if they can be secured at a price sufficiently cheap a new one for each shipment is more economical than having them returned, unless they are sent back in lots of ten or more under one cover. This, of course, necessitates using them without a wooden handle, in which case a heavy twine should be used for a handle. This twine can be untied and the baskets used, or placed in one another, for return shipment. If a basket with a wooden handle is used, care should be taken to see it is securely nailed, not only at the rim of the basket but farther down toward the bottom, so as to prevent undue leverage which may break loose the nailing.

Corrugated pasteboard cartons frequently may be used and desirable for this service. They are made in a great variety of sizes, dimensions, and patterns, and when empty are shipped knocked down flat.

Few persons know how to prepare and pack fruit and produce for market. Proper packing for parcel post marketing is of primary importance and needs to be emphasized so that both the contents and the container may carry properly, arrive in good condition, and present a satisfactory appearance. The pack should be regular, of as nearly uniform produce as possible, and of full measure according to the quantity ordered. A little practice will enable almost anyone to pack a basket or container of any kind in a satisfactory manner.

FLAXSEED VS. WHOLE MILK

Outline of Results Secured by Experts at North Dakota Station in Feeding Calves.

Any successful method that will cut down the period of feeding whole milk to calves is usually welcomed by dairymen. At the North Dakota station the experiment station have used flaxseed and skim milk with good results in the following manner:

Whole milk was fed for the first three weeks. Then during the age from three weeks to six months skim milk was fed with enough flaxseed to take the place of the fat in whole milk. Each calf was given two gallons of skim milk a day.

Calves fed in this manner did not do quite so well the first three months as a similar group of calves fed whole milk, but at the end of the six months there was practically no difference in condition except that the calves fed whole milk averaged about four pounds less in weight. But considering that $19 worth of whole milk per calf had been saved in the six months' period, the use of flaxseed was considered the better practice.

KEEP CREAM CANS COVERED

Direct Rays of Sun Counteract Whatever Care Has Previously Been Made to Keep Cool.

(By R. MCANN, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.)

A great part of the value of keeping cream cool on the farm and at the station or creamery is lost in the cream being exposed to the direct rays of the sun while being hauled from the farm to the point of sale. Far too few people stop to realize the importance of covering their cream cans when bringing them in to town. Expensive jacketed cans are not a necessity to keep the cream cool; in summer weather just an ordinary piece of clean wet burlap or blanket thrown over the cans will keep the temperature of the cream as much as 20 degrees below what it would rise to if left uncovered while being transported over the average hauling distance.

Why Meat Prices Vary in Different Stores

|-------------------------------|-----------------|
| Prime steers..... | $15.00-$20.00 |
| Good to choice steers..... | 17.00-18.25 |
| Common to medium steers..... | 10.75-16.75 |
| Yearlings, fair to fancy..... | 16.00-19.25 |
| Canning cows and heifers..... | 7.25-9.25 |
| Bulls, plain to best..... | 6.00-12.50 |
| Poor to fancy calves..... | 6.75-10.75 |
| Western range steers..... | 12.00-15.00 |

These newspaper quotations represent live cattle prices in Chicago on December 30th, 1918.

The list shows price ranges on nine general classified groups with a spread of $13.85 per cwt.—the lowest at $6.50 and the highest at $20.35.

Why this variation in price?

Because the meat from different animals varies greatly in quality and weight.

Although the quotations shown are in nine divisions, Swift & Company grades cattle into 34 general classes, and each class into a variety of weights and qualities.

As a result of these differences in cattle prices, (due to differences in weights and meat qualities), there is a range of 15 cents in Swift & Company's selling prices of beef carcasses.

These facts explain:

- 1—Why retail prices vary in different stores.
- 2—Why it would be difficult to regulate prices of cattle or beef.
- 3—Why it requires experts to judge cattle and to sell meat, so as to yield the profit of only a fraction of a cent a pound—a profit too small to affect prices.

GREAT ARMY THAT DIED.

Those were noble words Premier Clemenceau uttered in the French chamber of deputies as the cheering subsided after the reading of the terms of the armistice: "Let us honor the great army that died!" In that moving phrase he spoke the inmost feelings not only of millions of French men and women, but of the peoples of all the allied nations that shared in winning the war, says New York World. It is a time for universal rejoicing that the shedding of blood on the battlefields of Europe has ceased. It is also a time for reverent tribute to the men who gave their lives that the right should prevail. They have made the supreme sacrifice. To them has been denied the reward of joining in the final triumph and exultation over victory. They have passed beyond the reach of the clamor of shouting multitudes, of pealing peace bells, of the voices of loving friends and kindred and the touch of hands they held dear. But they, too, wear the victor's crown, though they failed to see the glory and the honors. In the men who return from the wars we shall show our pride, but, with Premier Clemenceau, may we never forget to honor "the great army that died."

Whatever the details of the final settlement may be, and whatever we may decide to do with reference to our domestic affairs, no one can, one would think, doubt that the future peace and safety of the world and the rights of man must be safeguarded by the great nations that have fought side by side in the war. Between them there must be the closest unity that is compatible with the independence of each. The United States, Great Britain, France and Italy are the guardians of the future, says Indianapolis News. Whether there is a formal league of peace or not, there must be an informal and implied one, including these powers, and of course the great free commonwealths of Canada and Australia.

Cattle Clatter, in the San Antonio Express, says that in one cold wave which had been forecast by the weather bureau last winter many thousands of dollars worth of cattle died of exposure when they could have been saved had the owners read the weather bureau forecasts, says Houston Post. The old foggy still does not trust the government's "new fangled" weather prophecies; but the successful farmer takes advantage of all the facts the government can give them regarding their business. And the weather bureau dispenses facts these days.

The last 10 months have brought us out of our slush, jolted us out of our selfish habits, taught us to think of others as never before, warmed the cockles of our hearts toward our fellow men whom we had formerly designated as strangers. It knit the nation together as never before. It gave us a supreme common purpose. Business, pleasure, self-interest, comfort, convenience, ambition were all subordinated to the welfare of the nation.

One of the submarine officers at the surrender defended the murder of crews of torpedoed ships as a military necessity, as otherwise they would be left to fight. On the same principle we might refuse the aid to Germany she is asking for as a military necessity, as otherwise she would be strong enough some day to begin another war. It is a poor rule which will not work both ways.

Victims of the war not given enough consideration in the sympathy of the public are the war babies who are being burdened with all kinds of names of generals, prominent men, places and events, their parents forgetting that the enthusiasm of the moment will have results for a lifetime. One such unfortunate infant has just been christened Peace of Europe.

Now that the war is over, and the election is over and the influenza epidemic is over, it may not appear important to ask a minor question: Why does central always call us at midnight to ask our pardon for ringing the phone when nobody wants to talk to us?

It may be just as well now as any other time to remind the correspondent who killed the crown prince 30 hours that the American reporter who worked on Villa is still 27 deaths ahead of him.

According to the churl the weather the remainder of this month is pretty equally divided between the good and the bad.

BOONE COUNTY MEN

Who Were Called Into Service With Uncle Sam In The Great World War.

During the war there were registered in this county 1,900 men for military service, of which number 217 were inducted into service as shown by the following list. This list will be published again next week, and the parents or friends of any of the boys named below, are requested to forward to the RECORDER the following information: If wounded where and when; if killed in battle where and when; if died in camp where and when; if gone overseas where did they go and where are they and if in battles which? This information must be in this office by Saturday morning next.

Getting Ready to Collect.

Bureau of Internal Revenue, Covington, Ky.

To the Editor: Collector Charlton E. Thompson, Covington, is in receipt of the following letter from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue: "Forms for reporting income taxes of less than $5,000 are expected to be in the hands of collectors for distribution among taxpayers not later than February 1. 'It may be definitely stated,' said the Commissioner 'that taxes for the calendar year 1918 will be collected under the provisions of the pending bill as finally enacted, and not under the provisions of the Act of October 3, 1917.' 'Commissioner Roper said that the conferees on the revenue bill have made sufficient progress to warrant the Bureau in proceeding at once to print and distribute forms for the collection of the income tax of 1918. In order to facilitate the work of the Bureau along with several other persons rapidly as possible of those provisions of the bill directly affecting the form for reporting income of less than $5,000. Preparation of the other forms is proceeding concurrently with the work of the conferees, and it will be possible, it is stated, to have them ready shortly after the enactment of the law.'"

Smallpox Scare in Bellevue Neighborhood.

Considerable excitement was caused in the upper end of Bellevue precinct one day last week when it was discovered that Ole Bills, who lives on the river near what is known as the Moody government light, had smallpox. He was engaged stripping tobacco along with several other persons when he broke out and they are naturally more or less alarmed over a chance to have the disease. It is thought that the virus contracted the disease either in Aurora or Lawrenceburg as these are the only places he had visited for some time. All precautions possible have been taken to prevent the spread of the disease, and those who were exposed to it have been vaccinated.

Some Tobacco Crop This.

Cynthiana.—The heretofore unheard-of crop of 524 cents per pound for a whole crop of tobacco, totaling 15,000 pounds raised on six acres and sold Saturday by Harry Berry, of this city, for the crop raised in Grith's woods, five miles from Cynthiana, belonging to McMillin & Sharard. The land on which this record crop was produced is sugar tree land; it is reported to be a beautiful crop, splendidly cared for, according to the number of cigarette tobacco, Mr. McMillin, who raised it, estimates that it will weigh fully 15,000 lbs., which will bring a good price. The price paid for it on the farm of $5,000 an acre. Mr. Berry will sell the crop one day this week at the Burlington Warehouse Company. Issuing Tags Yet.

The county clerk is collecting dog tax and issuing licenses yet for a while longer. The number of dogs returned by the Tax Commissioner about every dog in the county has been provided with a tag, but from observation report by some persons there are localities in the county where dogs are numerous but few of them are carrying tags. From this it appears that many of the dogs in the county were not listed with the Tax Commissioner as required by law, and the sheriff will let out a number to be killed during the next few months. In some instances dogs that were not listed have been provided with tags which, on the other hand many that were listed have been neglected in the matter of securing tags for them.

Increased Crop This Year.

The prices which tobacco is bringing will surely stimulate the pitching of a very large crop again this year. About every acre of land that can be secured and will grow a crop will be planted and house room may be at a premium this fall. The only thing that will prevent the pitching of a large crop this year will be the failure of rain, which is not apt to occur. When any crop makes big money for both the landlord and the tenant that is the crop that will be the favorite, and this is what tobacco has done for several years and will continue to do for several more. Tobacco seems to be king of crops in this part of the country.

Wants a Small Farm.

Ex-Jailer Samuel Adams, of Petersburg neighborhood, was in this neighborhood last week trying to locate a small farm with a good running stream, and the farm on which he resides below Petersburg to Lewis Sullivan some time since and the date at which possession is to be given is drawing nigh.

INFLUENZA TOLL

Out of Twenty Million Taken Ill Four Million Die, Government Statistics Show.

Approximately 100,000 deaths have occurred in the U. S. in the last four months from Spanish influenza and its complications, according to estimates of the U. S. Bureau of Health Service which places the indicated mortality rate from "flu" at about four per thousand of population.

The total number of cases of the disease, as estimated from studies made in different areas, possibly exceeded 20,000,000, the percentage indicating 241 cases per thousand of population.

This percentage if maintained throughout our 100,000,000 population would indicate some 24,000,000 cases, so the 20,000,000 figure is believed conservative.

No official estimates are available as to the present number of cases, but the disease still is prevalent in epidemic form in many sections, and officers of the health service say "so far as morbidity, prevalence and incidence of the disease are concerned the outlook is anything but encouraging."

"In practically no locality," says Edgar Sydnor-trickler, public health statistician, "can it be assumed that complete reports were made. A true prevalence rate cannot, therefore, be reported."

"It may be stated however, that the disease reached an epidemic stage in some localities in eastern Massachusetts and the Atlantic coast prior to September 14th."

"By October 5th it had appeared in points all over the country except in the most isolated rural sections and certain large areas in the central and mountain states."

"Much interest has been attached to the belief that army camps acted as foci for the epidemic. It is true a comparison of reports from army camps and from the adjacent zones shows that in most cases the disease was reported in the camps first."

"This, however, by no means proves the camps were infected earlier than the zones. There probably was a greater prominence in the reports from the camps than from the surrounding zones. Comparison of the rates with those in the cities shows there is no well-defined relation between mortality and the size of the city."

The Alfalfa Show Will Be Held.

Unfortunately a rumor recently became current, that the alfalfa show which is to be held at the University of Kentucky during the week of January 28th to 31st, had been called off. This confusion probably arose from the fact that the Kentucky Corn Growers' Association decided not to hold a competitive show this year in connection with their annual convention which is held at the University as a part of the Farmers' Week exercises. The alfalfa growers, however, will not only hold their usual annual convention but will also have a show of alfalfa, hay and bales of alfalfa. Besides a very attractive premium list has been provided.

A unique alfalfa dinner will be served free with the food prepared from alfalfa products. It will be worth a trip to Lexington to learn how palatable alfalfa can be made and in how many ways it can be prepared for use as human food.

Can You Tell a Good Steer?

The man who feeds or buys cattle must of necessity learn to be a good judge of cattle. He is always striving to pick the winners, those animals which feed

Do you know a real good steer when you see him? Can you pick the winners? If you can't, just pack some durst in your grip and go to Lexington during Farmers' Week and learn exactly how the trick is turned. Mr. T. G. Patterson, the manager of Horeford Farms, near Versailles, is going to conduct a judging contest of beef cattle on Friday, Jan. 31. Besides this feature, there will be a number of talks by men who know the breeding and feeding business.

Big Prices for Tobacco.

At Rogers, of Bellevue, sold on Aurora loose leaf material, last Thursday a crop of 4,485 pounds of large tobacco at an average of 53 cents a pound. The crop was raised on Mr. Rogers' land by Robert Bradford, who only a few days before sold his interest in the crop to J. M. Thompson for 35 cents a pound.

Sent Overseas.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Some idea of what has been done in furnishing horses and mules for overseas service may be gained from a report made by the Remount Division. This shows that up to January 11 there had been shipped overseas from this country a total of 87,918 animals, which included 4,000 cavalry horses, 33,386 draft horses, 7,000 draft mules, 975 pack mules.

Mrs. Laura Isabelle Finn.

Laura Isabelle, daughter of Henry and Nancy Smith, was born Nov. 3, 1842, died Jan. 11, 1919, aged 76 years, two months and eight days.

She was united in marriage with Charles A. Finn Dec. 15, 1861, by Rev. James A. Kirtley. To this union were born four sons—George Russell, Charles Aubrey, William Guedel and John Smith. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, four sons, a daughter-in-law, three brothers—Lena and John of this place, and William, of Cleves, Ohio, and a host of friends.

She suffered intensely a day or two before her death but her last thoughts were of her loved ones left behind, requesting that her afflicted husband be tenderly cared for, asking that her daughter-in-law minister to the needs of the sons she had to leave. She prayed for all the friends who waited on her during her illness.

All that medical skill and loving hands could do was done for her, but her journey on earth was ended and the Lord said, "Come." When quite young she gave herself to Christ and united with the Baptist church in the old school house on Woolper above the present home, taking her membership to Bullittsburg and has since remained a faithful member.

She was a charter member of Woolper W. M. U. and was the first member to pass to the "great Beyond." Always faithful in all duties assigned her; no sacrifice too great for her to make; no night too stormy or dark to minister to the needs of the sick. The world is better for her having lived in it.

A FRIEND.

Resolutions of Respect.

The Angel of Death has again visited our community and seen fit to call from our midst one of our beloved friends and workers in the Woolper Womens Union, Mrs. Laura Finn, who was called to her heavenly home Jan. 11, 1919. Resolved.

First, That in her death the W. M. U. has lost one of its most worthy and efficient workers.

Second, That this community in which she lived has lost one who always gave her influence for good and righteousness of our vicinity.

Third, That in her death her neighbors have lost a sympathetic and helpful friend; therefore, we the ladies of the W. M. U. feeling very sensibly our loss bow in submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

We extend to the family our deepest sympathy in this hour of sorrow and point them for comfort to that loving Christ, Who said whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die.

Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased one to the Boone County Recorder and one to be placed in the minutes of our society.

Rouse After Cannons.

Congressman A. B. Rouse has introduced the following bill, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and ordered to be printed.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to donate to the town of Burlington, Kentucky, two cannons or fieldpieces captured by the American Army from the forces of the Imperial German Government during the present war.

Mr. F. A. Hall received a letter from the widow of his uncle Samuel Westbay, who has been dead many years. She resides in Arkansas, and was seeking the whereabouts of several persons who were in the Confederate army with her husband, desiring to secure their testimony to assist her in her effort to secure a widow's pension from her State. Each party about whom she asked is dead. May be some of the surviving Confederates in this county can furnish Mrs. Westbay the proof she desires. Her address is Mrs. Lillie Westbay, Brinkley, Arkansas.

Dr. G. F. McKim has returned to Cincinnati and resumed his practice at his old office in the Union Central Building, 14th and Vine streets. He has dropped his military title, "captain."

The bridge at Limaburg is receiving the finishing touches and will be thrown open to traffic inside of a week.

Mrs. Susan O'Neal, of Dry Ridge, has been the guest of Misses Sallie and Lizzie Rogers for several days.

William Krue, of the northeast of the county, made the Recorder a brief call Wednesday morning.

HOWARD J. AYLOR

Writes an Interesting Letter to Friends in Kentucky From Hyeres, France.

Hyerres, France,
Dec. 23, 1918.
Boone County Recorder,
Burlington, Ky.
To My Kentucky Friends:
The last time I wrote to you through the Recorder was on October 6th, I believe, just two days before I went over the top.
Since that time I have had quite a bit of experience and excitement but came out very lucky, with only a flesh wound when it would seem a fellow could hardly come out alive. I am getting along fine and will soon be O. K. again, but the kind of wounds we get over here do not heal in a few days like the nail scratches and knife cuts at home.

I was in a hospital in East Central France for six weeks, but three weeks ago was sent to a train load sent here and it is the object of my letter to tell you of the beauty and wonderful climate of this place, for it is by far the nicest part of France I have been in yet. It is the oldest winter resort on the Mediterreanean coast of France, and before the war, was patronized by English aristocrats. It is also called the winter garden of France, and spring vegetables and tropical fruits are now being put on the market. I had the pleasure the other day, for the first time, of buying oranges that had just been pulled from the tree, but I saw many trees around laden with ripe fruit that looks very inviting to me to come give them a shake if I only had the privilege.

The town of Hyeres is a clean and beautiful little town of about 20,000 population. Parts of it has been a zigzag of a wide street like most all French villages, but the nicest part has wide streets with a row of large palm trees on either side, while here and there are nice little parks, which, with their palms, flowers and beautiful trees make it seem perfect.

On a high bluff overlooking the town stand the ruins of an old castle which has quite a bit of history and stood several assaults but was leveled to the ground in 1820. The town itself has had many noted visitors in the past such as Kings, Queens, etc.
There are several large hotels in and around the town and last month the U. S. Government lesased six of them to use as convalescent hospitals, and I am now in one of the largest and finest, which is six stories high and accommodates 500. I am told it was built and owned by German till the war broke out, and they had to give him credit for building a nice one. It has loft lounge, smoking, writing and other reception rooms opening the one into the other by wide arches, besides a magnificent concert hall, billiard rooms, etc. Surrounding the hotel is a beautiful park and extensive grounds containing shady avenues, underwood paths, terraces and gardens, laid out in flowers, palms and other tropical trees and plants. There are croquet lawns, tennis courts, and a golf course with a clubhouse, house, and it seems most everything else a person could want included in the hotel grounds.

Just stop for a minute and try to imagine a bunch of dough-boys living in this kind of a place.
I have been used to Hun dugouts, muddy trenches, French hills that included everything on back attics down to a cow stable and blamed glad to find one of these some times. Well, it was pretty hard to believe when we first saw where we were headed for, but you know there are some queer things happen in the army but very seldom like this.

The thermometer stands at about 65 here day and night and we go around in our shirt-sleeves most of the time. I expect it is quite different from that back in Boone now.

Tomorrow in Christmas eve but I can't realize it in this climate and no signs of anyone getting their pockets filled with dough-boys. Good things to eat and talking of how and where they will spend Christmas, but it will be a joyous time to me in the thought of a little trip we will take home the foam in a few months.

From the hotel here we have a beautiful view of the Mediterrean which is about three miles away, and of the ships as they go back and forth, and a few days ago some of my pals and I went to the seashore to pick up a few stones and to wander around the fishing village there.

I have had no mail since I came here and I believe it was in August when I sent the last letter, but you know how I would like to have a copy this week.

Well, I must close for this time, for I have already taken up too much space I expect.
With best wishes to all I am a Kentucky Yank.

DOGS IN BATTLE.

It is now possible to learn some thing of the work done by those four-footed soldiers of the allied armies, the true dogs of war.
A corps of messenger dogs was created by Colonel Richardson, of the British army. They were trained at a school where shepherds gamekeepers, hunt servants and others who had a knowledge of dogs acted as instructors. The first recruits came from homes for lost dogs, many a stray animal having been saved from execution to perform services on the battlefield, which on more than one occasion brought aid to hard-pressed troops in the nick of time.

It is interesting to know that the best breeds for war purposes were found to be collies, sheep-dogs, Irveters, Welsh and Irish setters, Airedales and mixtures of these strains. It was possible for messenger dogs to carry dispatch under fire, which the others could not have been delivered at all by human agencies. Also frequently wounded they would keep going until they reached their destination. One notable feat performed by a Highland sheep dog was that of running about two and a half miles in ten minutes during the German drive in the month of March, bringing a dispatch of French colonials to reinforce some British soldiers isolated in a barn.

Not only as army dispatch bearers did these intelligent brutes show splendid courage and devotion, but they were of great assistance to the Red Cross in locating wounded men. All lovers of dogs, and they are legion, are proud of the achievement of man's faithful friend who played no small part in saving the world for democracy.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

STATE NEWS.

Jack Holbert raised on two acres of land 3,500 pounds of tobacco. He shipped it to Louisville last week and sold it at an average of $14. The crop netted him $4,500 and goes to show that it is profitable to raise tobacco in Hardin county, when the right man gets hold of it.—Elizabethtown News.

Dogs raided the flock of sheep belonging to J. M. Coyle, just over the line in Washington county, Friday night, killing 12 ewes, valued at $25 each, and crippled eight others so badly they are worthless.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Garland Page, during the last cold spell lost eight seventy-five pound shoats that got wedged in a hollow log and smothered to death. The hogs, seeking a warm place, pushed on top of the log, the rear one feeling cold, crowding the hog just ahead until they became so tightly wedged that they died.—Speedway Resultant.

Walter Hodges, living near White Mills, says he sold his tobacco and the tobacco worms from one acre for $400. Selling tobacco worms is a new industry in Hardin county, but Mr. Hodges says he picked them off the tobacco and sold them to the fishermen at the White Mills Hotel at ten cents a dozen for fish bait.—Elizabethtown News.

No Occasion for Lying.

So far Burlington has escaped the flu unless the recent illness of Miss Alberta Kelly was the result of that disease which she contracted at Petersburg, and which was very mild, and seems that there are a great many people in the county who are losing sleep from fear Burlington will not have a few cases of flu and charge that there have been several cases here all of which have been kept a secret and denied.
Now, friends, do not be unnecessarily distressed about Burling-ton's health conditions, and when the flu does strike Burlington, which it doubtless will, the RE-CORDER will surely let you know.
That Burlington has escaped the flu so far is very satisfactory to the citizens and at the same time is a great mystery, but there is no cause for citizens in other parts of the county showing their ill feeling towards the town by charging her citizens are not truthful and will lie about a matter involving the health of the town.

Improving His Flock.

John P. Duncan, local poultry-man, received last Monday morning three handsome English Leghorn cocks, from the Whitney
Poultry Farm, Marlborough, N. Y.
One of their ancestors is a hen that has won 100 eggs in three years. Mr. Duncan is starting neither money nor labor to make his flock the best in this county, and now has a head start it among the townsmen.

The Best Market, Says James

Renewing his subscription, Jas.
M. Thompson, of Aurora, writes:
"Our house last week is the best in the country, tobacco sold yesterday for 12 cents a pound, per pound." Although Mr. Thompson and family have become citizens of Aurora they will never lose interest in the people on this side of the river, and a Kentuckian always a Kentuckian.

The tobacco this month have been very decided effect on the growing wheat, but some think it had such a fine frost that the damage will be small.

FOR BOONE CO. FARMERS

Conservative and Dependable Suggestions for the Farmers to Consider.

These suggestions are based on close observation during 12 months I have been working with you. They will jump from one farm project to another, but at the same time are important.

Unfortunately Boone county farmers, almost to a man, use the Hoosier Boy potato for their late crop. Although a good yielder, it is a potato of poor quality as we all know. I am recommending a better one. I don't believe any other variety will do as well as the Bull Moose. This is a very smooth, oblong potato, mealy from digging time on. It never gets strong and is a heavy yielder. One farmer in the county this year grew 97 bushels on one-fourth of an acre, while another made 360 bushels on 2 acres. A goodly amount of seed are for sale in the county.

Too little attention was given to our orchards last year, largely due to shortage of labor and demands for increased crop production. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred the man who argues that fruit does not pay, is one who believes in sitting under an orchard and then letting it grow up like a wilderness. If we expect to consistently make a profit out of fruit, we must prune and spray our trees. For your own prosperity's sake don't let leaving time catch you without both being done.

The sky-rocket prices of bran and other wheat feeds, since the Food Administration has released the control of prices, are making the farmer look about for substitutes. Cotton Seed Meal is the one feed that the Food Administration has not released as yet. It is selling at about $10 per ton, cheaper than great assurance when their feeding value is considered. Today cotton seed meal containing 36 per cent. protein can be bought at prices ranging from $59 to $100 per ton. The price varies with different dealers. Where you have a quantity of hay, corn, fodder and short corn you should unquestionably balance these feeds with Cotton Seed Meal. Since the solids in milk are largely protein, it stands as in hand to feed some feeds carrying a high percentage of protein if we expect a paying flow of milk.

Too much care cannot be exercised this year in the proper classing of tobacco. Quality counts a great deal more this year than last. Best quality of tobacco is selling at $15 to $25 higher while inferior quality is several dollars cheaper. Brightness of color and length are the most important selling points. Use care and do not place true bright tobacco in the same class with apparently bright leaf which has a greenish glaze on back of leaf.

"Hens show their true colors" and it is just as easy for a trained poultry-man to cull out the nonlayers from the everyday flock of hens as it is for an experienced dairyman to go through a herd of milk cows and cull out the "bonobers" from those giving a heavy flow of milk.

With the present high price of poultry feeds, and eggs selling for a nickle a piece, this culling should be done in every farm flock. "Cull the Slacker Hen."

- Slacker (The hen to sell.)
1. Pale shireled comb.
 2. Yellow in ear lobe.
 - (In white ear lobe breeds only)
 3. Deep yellow feet and shanks.
 4. Early molter.
 5. Exceptionally long toe nails.
 6. Lazy and listless.
 7. Pelvic bones close together.
 - (1 to 14 fingers width)
 8. Vent yellow and puckered.
 9. Skin of abdomen coarse and tough.
- Workers (Hens to keep.)
1. Large red comb.
 2. Bleached white ear lobe.
 3. Pale yellow to white shank.
 4. Late molters.
 5. Short toe nails.
 6. Active and always working.
 7. Pelvic bones wide open.
 - (2 to 4 fingers width.)
 8. Vent pale and pliable.
 9. Skin of abdomen dilated and soft.

A large delegation of Boone county farmers should attend Farmers
Week at the Agricultural College,
Lexington, Ky., January 28-29-30-31.
The most progressive and practical farmers from all over the State will be there. Write or phone me and I will tell you who of your neighbors are going, and making prices in at least fifty farmers from Boone in attendance this year.

There will be different kinds of tractors and lime crushers, and also limestone spreaders at work on the farm. There will be pruning and spraying demonstrations in the orchards. Col. E. H.
Taylor will have a number of his best Herefords there for farmers to examine and use in stock-judging contests. There will be meetings on different subjects of great interest in full swing all four days. It will be an easy matter to catch a morning train down to Lexington, and be there for the day's program.
The same easy connection can be made in the afternoon when the day's program is concluded.

One can stay two or three or all four days. If you can not stay more than two days, I would suggest January 29th and 30th as being the best.
Much interest during this Farmers' week will be in making prices in the farmers may use in coping with conditions during the period of Reconstruction our country is just starting.
Yours sincerely,
W. D. SUTTON,
Agricultural Agent.

Got the Bee in Their Hats.

The fine weather has put the bee in the farmers' hats and they want to begin turning the ground for their 1919 crops, therefore those of them who have tobacco on hands are rushing it to market to get it out of the way of other work which they desire beginning. The crops were increased last year while there was a falling off in labor, and this year with many the boys back at the old home ready to go on the job again there will naturally result an increase over last year. The tobacco cultivated in this county this year. The largest increase will be in the tobacco crop.

METHODS OF GRAPE PRUNING

No Other Tree or Vine May Be Handled So Systematically—Essential Points Given.

(By L. M. BENNINGTON)
So much has been written on this subject, and so many complicated methods set forth, that the essential points have been lost sight of, and those who cannot follow these methods to the letter just let the vineyard go without care.

Proper pruning is the most important item in grape culture, and there is no tree or vine which may be handled so systematically as the grape. With fruit trees a great deal has to be left to the judgment of the operator and the condition of the trees; not so with the grape, for there are certain rules which must be adhered to, leaving nothing to guess.

It is not enough to cut away half or two-thirds of the growth, for unless you have a proper knowledge of the fruit-bearing canes you may cut away the very ones you ought to let alone.

In the first place let us understand that some of the canes will produce fruit buds next year, while others will only make more wood.

It is not at all difficult to determine between the two. The fruit canes have the buds close together and these buds are short and plump. Such canes usually come from wood of the previous season's growth, while the long-jointed and unfruitful canes come from the older wood.

Let us remember, however, that these long-jointed canes in their turn produce fruit-bearing canes next year, and one or two bud spurs should be left on them, for the vineyardist must look a year ahead. The time for pruning grapevines is any time from the falling of the leaves in the fall till the sap rises in the spring, and no matter what kind of trellis you use, canopy, wire or even a slant post for each vine, the essentials are the same; and these are, that two fruitful canes be left on each vine, three or four feet long, or containing ten or fifteen buds each.

These buds will produce fruitful vines for next year's pruning, as it is a well-established fact that canes growing out of these spurs are more apt to be vigorous and fruitful than those from canes that bore fruit this year.

If this has been looked after this year, all you will have to do next year is to pick out the canes from these two spurs, cut them to the desired length, removing all other wood except two spurs of the long-jointed wood for the forthcoming year.

GIVE BLACKBERRY GOOD CARE

Provide Winter Protection Before Ground Is Frozen—Canes Should Be Bent Over.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Before the ground is frozen solid, but after all danger of warm weather

Bush Fruit Growing Between Rows of Trees in Newly Set Orchard.

In past, winter protection for the blackberries should be provided where it is necessary to bring them through the cold season.

The hardy varieties of blackberries will withstand temperatures of minus 30 degrees F., provided water does not stand in the soil about the roots and there is no danger from severe drying winds. Many varieties are hardy enough to survive minus 40 degrees F., without injury. In localities where there is real danger from cold, drying winds, as in the central Western states, or from too severe winter temperatures, the canes are bent over in the fall and a layer of earth, hay, straw or coarse manure is thrown over them. This should be done before the ground is frozen, yet after all danger of warm weather is past. Few canes will break if they are bent over while the sap still circulates. Sometimes the soil is drawn away from one side by means of a hoe or plow and the plants inclined to that side before being covered. The canes will lie in a more nearly horizontal position with less danger of being broken when this is done, although the roots may be somewhat injured when the earth is removed. The plants are uncovered in the spring after all danger of severe weather is past.

SALAD SUGGESTIONS.

The summer time is the season for a variety of salads, yet any season and time and any occasion to my class or condition of men, a salad is an appropriate dish.

A left-over may be used in a salad without any question as to its right of second appearance. All kinds of cooked vegetables with an appropriate salad dressing make most satisfying salad.

Olive Salad.—Line a salad bowl with a crisp head of lettuce, cut one boiled beet and one boiled potato into dice, chop one small cucumber and two hard-cooked eggs very fine; stone and chop 24 queen olives. Pound to a paste two anchovies, or use a teaspoonful of anchovy paste; dust all with a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of paprika and a saltspoonful of white pepper; sprinkle lightly with four tablespoonfuls of orange juice, then pour over a French dressing and serve at once. To make the French dressing, use four tablespoonfuls of oil to one of strong vinegar, a little onion juice, if liked, and salt and cayenne pepper to taste. The addition of a pinch of mustard and a teaspoonful of powdered sugar improves the flavor for some palates.

Cauliflower Salad.—Soak in cold salt water a firm head of cauliflower for a half hour, to remove any insects; put to boil whole and when tender set aside to cool. Put in a salad bowl and garnish with four plumets cut in dice, with ten stuffed olives finely chopped. Serve very cold with French dressing.

Combination Salad.—Make a French dressing and serve with a cupful each of celery, cucumber, tomato, apple and a few spoonfuls each of green peppers, radish and young onion, all sliced thin. Serve on a bed of watercress or shredded lettuce.

Tomato Salad.—Scald, peel and chill six firm, ripe tomatoes, cut in halves. To one cupful of whipped cream add two tablespoonfuls each of lemon juice and prepared horseradish, also seasoning of salt, paprika and mustard. Place tomatoes on lettuce leaves, heap the dressing on each lightly, sprinkle with chopped pimiento and serve.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The secret of thrift is knowledge; knowledge of domestic economy saves income; knowledge of sanitary laws saves health and life.

CORNEAL DISHES.

The cornmeal made by the old mill process, in which the germ was left in, will not keep well as the fine corn meal. The home grinding of cornmeal saves the germ and other nutrients that are destroyed or lost by the new process. When possible to buy this product in small quantities, or still better, grind it at home in a small mill, it will be found very superior in flavor. More liquid and more fat should be used in the fine cornmeal made by the new mill process than with the coarser ground meal.

For cornmeal mush, take one cupful of cornmeal, a teaspoonful of salt and add three and a half to five cupfuls of boiling water or scalded milk. Mix the meal with enough cold water to pour, then add to the boiling, salted water, stir constantly until smooth. Cook for four hours in a double boiler or in a fireless cooker over night. If cooked over the direct heat less time will be needed for cooking; but it will need to be carefully watched.

Poured into a small breadpan, well greased, the mush will mold to be sliced for breakfast and fried in a little hot fat. Serve with sirup or bits of butter.

Cornmeal and Oat Cookies.—Take one cupful each of cornmeal, rolled oats, molasses, buckwheat flour, a teaspoonful of salt, a cupful of sour milk, a half-cupful of fat, a half-teaspoonful of soda, a half-teaspoonful of nutmeg and one-quarter-teaspoonful of ginger. Heat the cornmeal, the molasses, salt and milk with the rolled oats, stirring constantly until it becomes a thick paste. Remove it from the fire, add fat, soda, flour and spices. Roll into balls and bake in a moderate oven.

Indian Pudding.—Heat two and one-half cupfuls of milk, add six tablespoonfuls of cornmeal, mixed with one cupful of cold water or milk. Add a half-cupful of molasses, a half-teaspoonful each of salt, ginger and cinnamon. Stir in a half-cupful of chopped suet, which has been lightly stirred with corn meal, a half-cupful of raisins and corn, stirring often for the first half-hour. Serve hot with hard sauce.

PRINCE ALBERT

the national joy smoke

SAY, you'll have a streak of smokeluck that'll put pep-in-your-smokemotor, all right, if you'll ring-in with a jimmy pipe or cigarette papers and nail some Prince Albert for packing!

Just between ourselves, you never will wise-up to high-spot-smoke-joy until you can call a pipe by its first name, then, to hit the peak-of-pleasure you land square on that two-fisted-man-tobacco, Prince Albert!

Well, sir, you'll be so all-fired happy you'll want to get a photograph of yourself breezing up the pike with your smokethrottle wide open! Talk about smoke-sport! Quality makes Prince Albert so appealing all along the smoke line. Men who never before could smoke, a pipe and men who've smoked pipes for years all testify to the delight it hands out! P. A. can't bite or parch! Both are cut out by our exclusive patented process!

Right now while the going's good you get out your old jimmy pipe or the papers and land on some P. A. for what ails your particular smokeappetite!

You buy Prince Albert everywhere tobacco is sold. Toppay red bags, 10¢; red tin, 15¢; handsome pound and half tin, 25¢; and that classic, practical pound crystal glass humidor with sponge moistener top that keeps the tobacco in such perfect condition.

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady.
Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Price, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child, I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time. I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. about my talking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble,' so he got me 5 bottles. After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved, before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this pain of numbness disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my housework and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, thinking of the good Cardui has done them, it should help you, too. Try it.

TAKE THE HOME PAPER

GRASSHOPPER AN IDIOT.

Now take the grasshopper for example. No insect on earth more sorely needs to ask daily to be excused for living. The bee has a business. The wasp has a business end. The ant has an investment and the grub worm has a grudge. But the grasshopper has only an existence—an aimless existence. When we say aimless we speak advisedly, for the scientist tell us that when a grasshopper catapults his corporate self into space by the propulsive power of his hinged hopping poles, he has no idea where he is going to light. It may be in the lake or the brush fire or the kerosene can or the pansy bed; it is all the same to him. Examine his countenance. He looks the perfect fool. At the top of the head two bulging eyes as expressive as the eye of a dead carp; and below this a nose like a wooden plowshare. This is all. There is no forehead, no brain and no room for one. The grasshopper, we find, is an insect idiot, says Milwaukee Journal. The best he ever did was to keep out from under foot of his betters.

There may be well-intentioned people who say that virtue always leads to success and vice to misery. But it is an obvious and monstrous falsehood in a world where we profit by the good deeds of our parents and where millions are suffering unutterable tortures because of the deeds of foreign potentates. That those who suffer must have been wicked, and that those who triumph must have been virtuous, is one of the most inhuman beliefs in history, says New Republic. As to the doctrine that the reward of virtue is to be found in a clear conscience or high satisfaction—that is an even more violent falsehood. The people who suffer most from their conscience are obviously the sensitive and highminded, while self-approbation comes most easily to the complacent and fortune-favored Jack Horner. The doctrine that the reward of moral life is a feeling of satisfaction or happiness is not only contrary to moral experience, but is intellectually sterile.

An American correspondent gives a most deplorable view of Germany, prostrate, on the verge of famine and the people almost apathetic in their misery. But the authors of all this ruin brought upon outsiders and their own alike, the criminal rulers of the Teuton nations and their officials and advisers, have fled the country to live in comfort, according to their calculations, while the people they have misused and betrayed are left to suffer. No wonder the demand is growing for their punishment, and that indignant protests are rising against their continued enjoyment of immunity.

About 8 per cent of the men called to the colors unable to read! Think of it. Three hundred thousand American soldiers unable to read! Conditions like that are what is putting steam into the demand for federal control of public education. Some of the statements tell you this isn't a nation, but a federation, says Houston Post. But it is a nation, and states can shrink their duty this way and get by with it.

The sanctity of royalty is now an exploited idea, and there is no reason why a man because he is a king, should be immune from the consequences of actual criminal acts. The ex-king should be treated as any other criminal trying to escape justice, and he certainly should be put under a restraint which will effectively prevent him from scheming again to assail the peace of Europe.

It has been suggested that a day be set apart to be known as Fathers' Day, on which fathers at home and sons abroad will exchange letters, as was done on Mothers' Day. The mothers have always been exalted, and justly so, but fathers have been rather left out in the cold. But now father is to have his day at last.

A Washington man proposes that as the United States was in the war 584 days, a Liberty monument to the memory of our heroes be erected at the capital, one foot in height for each day, making it 584 feet high, with the names of all who gave their lives engraved on bronze tablets to be placed in the interior of the monument.

If you think that New York attained the summit of self-expression on Victory day, just wait until Pershing's veterans come marching up Fifth avenue after their victorious attempt to secure the right for self-expression to the world!

Robert Bradford and not Hogan Wingate was the purchaser of the Cana White farm near Cornsboro. The correspondent who reported Mr. Wingate as the purchaser last week was misinformed.

WRITES FROM GERMANY.

Extract of letter from George Walton, dated Dec. 21st. He is in Germany.

Dear Mother:
As we are indefinitely settled after our long hike, I will try to resume communication with you. As you know it was very hard, or rather unhandy to write while at the front, and on our short stops in Belgium and Germany, consequently I neglected to write for some time. Hope you have not worried for it was unnecessary as I am O. K.

Mother, I have been through so much, and have so much to tell, that it is useless to begin till I see you. Will try and touch on the main points however. I believe I was in the replacement camp when you heard from me. I left there October 1 in a replacement for the 3rd Infantry Division, as he knows how to handle his men at the front so as to protect them from danger and at the same time have them in the most effective place at the most opportune time. Several days after I joined them we went up in the Champagne sector as reserve troops for the French army, but were not needed as the French successfully took all objectives. Coming back we were again called, and several mornings later found us speeding along the road in columns toward the now famous battle field of the Meuse River and Argonne Forest. After leaving to reserve a few days to allow plans to mature and our reserves to come up, on Nov. 1 we went over the top. Here I had my most bitter touch of war, and I hope my last one. Shell fire was bad and machine guns were thick, but all was O. K. all objectives taken just the bright part of it. Then we started on the hike and have until now followed up the evacuation of the German army. No resistance has been met and the people are as friendly as we can expect a conquered enemy to be. The Rhine and scenery is very beautiful but I would a little rather see the "Old Ohio." I am not home sick though. Weather is warm here even yet. I would not know Christmas is near if I had not dated this letter. Love to all.

Mrs. J. D. Gaines Dead.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary J. Gaines, wife of J. D. Gaines, who died at the family residence, 1315 Walnut street, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, will take place from the home this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Edwin Beatty, pastor of St. James' Episcopal church and Rev. F. W. Galbraith, pastor of First Presbyterian church, Texas, will conduct the services. Interment will be in State Land cemetery.

Pall bearers will be S. M. Ragland, T. E. Weiler, J. W. Stanfield, R. C. Cowan, B. Christopher, J. D. Prator, J. S. Ragland and S. H. Smelser—Texas Ex.

Mrs. Mary J. Gaines, wife of J. D. Gaines, formerly of Boone county, died in Texarkana, Texas, Jan. 10, 1919, aged 72 years, 1 month and 10 days.

Mrs. Gaines was a daughter of Lewis Collins, of Kenton county, Ky., and was born August 1, 1846. She was a niece of the late Wm. Collins and Mrs. Harriet Bradley of Burlington, Ky., and went to school in her childhood to Miss Mary Thompson in her girlhood. She was married to J. D. Gaines, of Boone county, on Dec. 9, 1868, and they celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Dec. 9th, 1918. They made their home in Boone county near Union until February 1884, when they removed to Texarkana, Texas, where they have since resided. Mrs. Gaines is survived by her husband, two children—Collins Gaines and Mrs. M. D. Wilson, one grandson, Collins Gaines, Jr., and two brothers, Ben Collins and Olmstead Collins, all of Texarkana.

Albert Underhill, of Independence Station, Kenton county, was a business visitor to Burlington, Tuesday.

C. L. Griffith, of Walnut, was a business visitor to Burlington, Tuesday, and made the Recorder a brief call.

Miss Pauline Kelly, who had the flu in Petersburg, has returned home. Her mother was with her during her illness.

Newell Sullivan, Sr., was in Burlington last Saturday, the first time for several weeks, he having been suffering from an attack of shingles.

John Barnes and W. L. Kirkpatrick attended the inner leaf tobacco sale at Walton, Wednesday. They having a crop to be sold this day.

RESOLUTIONS

Submitted by Committee on Resolutions at County Superintendents Meeting.

We, your Committee on Resolutions do respectfully submit the following for your consideration: Realizing that education has reached and faces a crisis and believing that certain definite changes should be made in our school system to eliminate the weak points and to make the system more perfect and successful in its operation, we County Superintendents assembled here resolve:

That we recommend the enactment of a Compulsory Attendance Law that fixes a point in the Course of Study rather than the age at which the child may withdraw from school; that requires the child to attend school every day of every term until this point shall have been reached; that provides each County with a permanent Trust Officer to be appointed by the County Superintendent, and who shall have the right of veto to the County's Attendance Problems and to the supervision of Rural Schools and whose salary shall be fixed by the County Board of Education.

That we recommend not less than an eight months term for rural schools and that they open in August and continue in session five months and then suspend for a period of two months to reopen in March for the completion of the term. This is in order to secure this we recommend an increase in the tax levy in every county in the State and also local support sufficient to bear the expense for at least one month of the term.

That in order to secure and keep more efficient and competent teachers and in order to make the office of County Superintendent attractive to men and women capable of discharging the duties of this office, we bring all possible pressure to bear upon the next legislature to enact a law that will materially increase the salary of both teachers and County Superintendents.

Be it further resolved, That with a view toward furthering the advancement of education in our county and to overcome the conditions arising from the War and the "Flu" Epidemic, that we have and hold in each county in the State during the month of June a general educational campaign and that we secure for this campaign the services of able speakers and workers and that certain persons to be designated by a Committee of five to be appointed by the State Superintendent, of which he will be chairman, and speaking in every rural and graded district in the Commonwealth. It shall also be the duty of the above named committee to formulate plans for this campaign and to report thereon in their power to insure its success.

That we are opposed to the general closing of our schools by the Board of Health without representation. That for the protection of the interests of our schools we recommend that the schools be represented on the State Board of Health and on each County Board of Health—the latter representation to be secured by the appointment of a City Superintendent of the County Board of Health, that we are opposed to the exploitation of every agency through our schools and that a Committee be appointed to pass upon the character of work that the one-room teacher will be asked to do.

Be it resolved, That since we are anxious to secure the passage of the Smith Senate Bill No. 442, that we recommend that Supervisors and County Superintendents in the Rhodes go to Washington in the interest of the passage of this bill, and that school people throughout the State use all possible means to insure its passage.

Whereas the present school system of Ky., fails to achieve the desired results and since this patching of said system ever and anon does not seem to better the situation, Be it resolved, That we petition the next legislature to appropriate a sufficient sum of money to have the Carnegie Foundation to survey the schools of Kentucky and recommend a system of schools.

Realizing that illiteracy has been over shadowed the fair name of Kentucky and that this is the year to strike a powerful blow to remove this blight, therefore be it resolved, That the Superintendents here in their annual meeting, do hereby pledge themselves to lead their earnest aid and co-operation in the crusade to stamp illiteracy out of the State before 1920.

Further, that for the further advancement of the needy, indigent adults and other adults of limited education, we favor a short term evening school with pay for the making of some.

Be it resolved, That after 1919 the officers of the County Superintendents Department be elected at the close of their Mid-Winter term, or at the close of the annual meeting of the K. E. C.

Be it resolved, That we as County Superintendents believe we should have a County Congress, and therefore, regret that this body composed of Educational Leaders of the 120 counties of Kentucky, has not a representative from its number on the legislative Committee of the K. E. C. A. In view of this fact, we earnestly petition the Legislative Committee of this body to leave no stone unturned to bring the above claims before the Legislative Committee.

Be it further resolved, That we as County Superintendents believe it is necessary for a better system of schools.

Whereas, Education is fundamental in a democracy; education logically involves the School as its chief agent; the most important factor in the School is the teacher. A teacher to be efficient must have character, scholarship and training. It is a waste of child life and money to employ a teacher to try to maintain efficient schools without efficient teachers. Efficient teachers must be trained teachers. Therefore we pledge ourselves to our influence to encourage the teachers and prospective teachers of the State to attend the Normal Schools of the State and secure such training. We recommend that all County and City Superintendents, discover young people of promising type for teaching and to encourage them to take up the work of teaching; to educate themselves for the work to attend training schools for the same to the end that the State may have efficient teachers, efficient schools and an educated patriotic democracy.

Committee on Resolutions.
R. W. Kincaid, Chairman.
O. L. Adams,
L. D. Stucker.

The Resolutions as submitted by the Committee were adopted by unanimous vote.

Took the Examination.

There were the unlucky thirteen, President Wilson says "the lucky thirteen," who presented themselves for the examination for Common School diplomas on the 21st inst. A number of lady-like group can not be found. They may not all succeed in securing a diploma but every indication is they will succeed in taking the honor of being either a gentleman or lady, should their conduct continue as it was during the examination. The following are the names of the students:

Leah Tanner,
Gertrude Mitalfe,
Georgia Hays,
Alice Graves,
Wilford Rouse,
Charlie Maxwell,
Eddie Hotel,
Franklin Hays,
Ivan Clements,
James Beall, Jr.,
Joseph Bullock,
Julius and Justin Aylor.

We have quite a number of cases of influenza in the county but not so violent as formerly and while some schools are closed the others are taking advantage of the beautiful weather and the attendance is overflowing. Some schools are asking for more desks, and we hope desks in the county may be claimed by some pupils during the rest of the term.

CONSTANCE

There is coal at the yard here, Mr. and Mrs. Haberle have moved to Bromley.

Mr. Hood, who was sick, does not improve very fast.

Harry Klesner came home from camp, being mustered out. Miss Freda Zimmer is able to be up after having been sick about two weeks.

Mrs. C. C. Adams and family were guests of her father, A. E. Milner, last week.

Mrs. A. E. Milner has returned from Georgetown, where she went with her son, Aubrey Pyrank, to visit relatives.

Frank Dolwick and Luther Hood, two of the Constance boys in the service, arrived home from Camp Meade, Md., Friday evening, having been discharged.

Frank Dolwick, son of Mrs. Kate Dolwick, of Constance, arrived home Jan. 24th, after having been stationed at Camp Meade for six months. He was already for over a year in the service, having signed, having received all of his overseas equipment. Had not the armistice been signed he would have gone over with a will, but he is very glad to return to his home town and friends. He is looking fine and says army life is certainly superior to any other he has known, healthy and strong. He is eager for spring to come so he can resume to his favored occupation, farming.

Miss Gladys Jergens, of Constance, sent the following with her parents Mr. and Mrs. H. Jergens, after attending Ludlow High school the past week.

Paying any debt with a check is much safer than with money. Every farmer in this county should have a bank account, no matter how small. It is the only correct method of keeping books. By having a checking account at our bank we keep your books for you in a faultless manner and free of expense. Your checks show you every transaction, besides being a receipt for every cent you pay out. If you could get as good a thing as we offer, free, in other lines, how quick you would jump at the chance. Who Will Furnish the R p?

At the coming November election Kentucky will elect members of the Legislature. The last Legislature redistricted the state as to the Legislative districts, making one district of Boone and Grant counties, consequently these two counties will hereafter furnish a member jointly, and now the question arises which county will have the honor of furnishing the first joint representative? This matter should be settled by the two counties agreeing that the office shall rotate, an agreement that can be made by the proper party authorities of the two counties. To make a canvass of Boone and Grant counties for the office of county representative will entail too much labor for the honor and pay that the office will provide. Let together, boys, and arrange for supplying the office of county representative by giving each county one or two terms before the other will be expected to present a candidate, and as the time for candidates to announce themselves is drawing nigh the matter of having an understanding should be looked to once

GRANT R. D.

W. E. Kyle is confined to his room, with a nervous trouble. E. R. Scott will soon move to Kirby Conner's place near Beech Grove.

Miss Katie Craig is nursing her niece, Mrs. Roy Kyle, who has influenza.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Craig and family spent Saturday at Mrs. R. M. Wilson's.

Noch West and family have moved from Moses Scott's place to Northcutt's place on Middle creek. S. N. Riggs has sold his house and blacksmith shop to Charles Bodie, Sr., and will move to Rising Sun, Ind. Mr. Bodie will soon be a resident of Rabbit Hash.

A Week's News

This is the year in which Kentucky will elect members of the Legislature which will meet next January. This is a lawmaking body that comes closer home to the individual taxpayer than any other, and each citizen has a right to know how the legislature in which they have an overwhelming majority if they will see to sending to the Legislature one of their number from each legislative district in which they are in the majority. Farmers charge that the lawmakers when they assemble at Frankfort, a trouble for which the remedy is in their own hands if they see proper to enforce it. Let the farmers in each legislative district select their strongest man to represent them and they will then be in a position to remedy the defective legislation of the past and enact for themselves laws which they consider just and proper. The remedy is in their own hands and if it is not applied they alone will be to blame.

Health in Burlington has been extremely good this winter up to the close of last week when the flu made its appearance in the town, and the prospects are that there will be numerous cases of the disease here before it is through with us. As there has been a great many persons exposed to some of those who have the disease, people are not or have not been careful about not trying to keep from spreading the disease. A little care might prevent several deaths in the community.

Two arrests were made here the past week of persons for bringing whiskey into dry territory, and one was fined $60 and costs for having four quarts in his possession. Another who had 16 quarts, is yet to be tried. The opinion generally prevails that neither party had intended the liquor for sale, but had only done a favor for friends. The county judge and prosecuting attorneys have been holding courts of inquiry nearly all the week. Carrollton News.

W. C. Weaver, who was taken to a specialist last week returned home very much relieved in mind, especially he being informed that his trouble proceeded from diseased tonsils, the removal of which is expected to give him permanent relief. Mr. Weaver has many friends who are glad to hear that he is to have speedy relief and hope he will soon be out among them again.

General Pershing has issued an order requiring every American soldier in France to write a post card home to their parents or friends. This is done because of the complaint that so many of the boys are not being heard from, and the General thinks that in many instances the boys' neglected writing as they should have done.

All types of tobacco were in demand at the sales held Friday at the Kenton Loose Leaf warehouse. A total of 110,710 pounds were sold at an average of $31.50 per 100 pounds. High price for the day was 75 cents per pound. F. L. McIllasson of Boone county was the big seller of the day, disposing of 4780 pounds for an average of $51.81.

County Farm Agent Sutton received a telegram from Lexington last Sunday announcing the calling off of the big agricultural meeting that was to be held in Lexington this week, because of the bad health conditions in the State, the result of the prevalence of the flu in most every county in Kentucky.

C. C. Roberts was in last Saturday and arranged for advertising a sale of personal property belonging to him and his son-in-law Monte Marz. Having sold the farm makes it necessary to dispose of the articles which they have advertised. See their advertisement in this issue.

Clifton Roberts has been having a bad time with a felon on one of his thumbs. He had the felon lance. The last Monday, a week, which time he has been getting along much better.

There have not been enough hard frosts this winter to make a good sugar season.

FRANCES J. SAYRE

Writes to His Friends in Boone County From France.

Pineport, France,

Dec. 29, 1918.

To all my Boone County Friends: While I have not actually lived in Boone county for a number of years, still I am always glad to acknowledge it as my home, consequently I gave Florence as my residence when I registered, so that I could go to camp with some of my old friends. I am very sorry to learn that two of the boys with whom I went to Camp Taylor on the 28th of last June, Joseph Smith and Herbert Rusch, have passed into the great beyond. During my 18 days at "Camp Zack" we had become fast friends, and I am confident both of them were true soldiers to the end. After leaving there I went to Ft. Benjamine Harrison, Ind., where our present company was formed. While there I received a couple of letters from one of my "Camp Zack" pals, Wallace Rice, but at the time I was confined in the hospital with an attack of blood poisoning, and by the time I recovered I learned he had been transferred to another camp, where one I never knew.

We left "Fort Ben" August 30th and went to Camp Merritt, New Jersey, where we stayed five days and received our overseas equipment. We landed in England, September 8th, and went for Hoboken on the old Japanese steamer, Manchuria, with four other transports, and we arrived in England, September 10th. One thing I shall always remember about the trip is that I spent my 25th birthday, Sept. 11, just half way across the Atlantic.

After entering the Bay of Biscay, we encountered four submarines, the last one of which we were positive never did any further damage. We landed in France, September 21, and, after spending a week in "rest camp," made a three days' journey by rail, to Maauges where we did construction work for a couple of weeks. Our next move was to Menin-la-Tour, about eight miles from Toul, where we spent the following six weeks operating a narrow gauge railway. While there our work took us near enough to the front for shells to pass over our heads, from our own artillery as well as "Jerry's."

One day I saw some very entertaining air battles in which our boys brought three of "Fritz's" planes down to the ground. I was quite close to the front when the armistice took effect.

Three weeks ago today we came to this place which is about seven miles from the point where France joins both Belgium and Luxembourg. We are quartered in an old German hospital, which makes an excellent camp.

I am certain with a fine crowd of boys from 28 different States, all the way from Maine to Oregon, I have no Boone county boys who are nearest being Will Finn and Jimmie Wilson, of Covington, and a fellow Dearwater, whom I formerly knew in St. Bernard, Ohio.

I have been sick for the past eleven days, and am sitting up in bed while writing this. The rest of the company are drilling this morning, the only one left with me being the black dog, Clifford, Bryant, from Detroit. He is a native Kentuckian, tho, as he was born at Bowling Green.

Well, as this must be getting tiresome to you, I will bring it to a close.

With best regards to everyone in old Boone, I remain Sincerely,
FRANCES J. SAYRE.

Co. L, 4th Bn. Engineers, Am. Ex. France, via N. Y.

P. S.—I was very glad to see in the Recorder that the Hon. A. B. Rouse, who reflected so brightly on me, was elected to Congress. I can well remember when I was a youngster, playing ball with Hebron, how he used to take off his collar and tie, unbutton the top of his shirt and bat flies to us. I am only sorry that I have never had the opportunity of voting for him. F. J. S.

Hard to Satisfy.

At the Superintendent's meeting in Louisville last week a resolution was passed asking that a bill be, put through the next legislature to raise the limit of county school tax from 20 cents on the hundred dollars to 30 cents. We believe that the laborer is always worthy of his hire, but the school folks certainly overlooked the fact the new tax law raises the state assessment to double the former amount and this doubles the school tax and to be raised by the 20 cents levy which we will think give them ample money for all purposes. This contrary to the law, the property near the actual cash value and this will largely increase the school money without an increase in the tax levied. The law should satisfy all and more especially the teachers. Owen County Democrat.

Invented a Washing Machine.

Addison Riddell, of Ois. Co., has invented a washing machine for which he has applied for a patent. It is said to be the first anything from the greatest overalls to the finest of lace curtains easily and quickly and without damage to the fabric.

Nearly every mild day in winter some melancholy mallow will say, "Well, pay up for this kind of weather." The spring comes and what has become of the old-fashioned man who always bought half a dozen bottles of cod liver oil at the beginning of winter?—Lawrenceburg Press.

STATE NEWS.

Hartford.—The Fiscal Court will meet here this week to decide on a plan for the working of the roads of Ohio county, which are in a very bad condition.

Henderson.—An automobile load of whisky was found in an abandoned cabin on the Ohio River bank, whence it was to have been smuggled to the Indiana shore.

Lexington.—The Board of Commerce decided to circulate a petition for a road election providing for county roads to be reconstructed.

Owenton.—T. A. Perry, Sr., member of the law firm of Perry & Cammack, died at his home here following a brief illness with pneumonia and influenza. He is survived by his widow and son.

Mt. Sterling.—A record price was obtained for land when W. Hoffman Wood, agent for Judge G. S. Starnes, sold the Starnes farm of about 55 acres to Allie Foley, of this county for $350 per acre.

Munfordsville.—The flu ban was lifted in this county on January 11 for here that time since October 1, but in less than a week flu has broken out for the third time in the county, and the situation grows worse daily, as many new cases are reported.

Maysville.—County Health Officer Locke by direction of the State Board of Health, ordered all stores outside of Maysville to close at 6 o'clock each evening until further notice in hope of minimizing the influenza epidemic. The disease is spreading rapidly and every precaution is being taken.

Whitesburg.—Reports from sections of Rockhouse and Carr's Fork, west of here, along the Knott-Letcher border, is "to the effect" that there are hundreds of cases of influenza raging there—the second outbreak of the epidemic—and that several deaths have occurred. It is said here it is further ordered and adjudged by the court that the share of the infant defendants, Ruby Stephens and Alberta Stephens, in the proceeds of the sale of said land shall not be paid by the purchaser, but shall remain a lien on the land here in order to said, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent per annum until said infants become of legal age, or until the guardian of said infant defendants shall execute bond as required by Section 493 of the Civil Code of Practice.

Harrodsburg.—Garrett Dean, of this place, has proved a young man of heroic unselfishness. While driving home with his wife and baby in their machine, it became unmanageable and Mr. Dean ditched the car rather than collide with an approaching buggy. He was badly cut about the hands and both he and his wife were up about the face, but the baby escaped unhurt. An examination proved that a screw driver had been left on some part of the engine which he dismounted at the garage a few moments before, and this had jolted off and caused the trouble.

Glasgow.—This town and county is undergoing its second scourge of flu. There is believed to be between 200 and 300 cases in Glasgow at this time, although there is no definite way of telling just the number of cases. The present crisis promises to be worse than the one suffered in October. The number of cases in Barren county including Glasgow, will probably exceed 1,000, and the disease seems to be on the increase. It is claimed that this second epidemic is in a milder form than the first, but the death rate for the past few days does not bear out that statement.

105,433 Yanks in Hospitals.

An official report from General Pershing, made public tonight by the War Department, shows that on January 8th there were 105,433 men of the American army in hospitals in France and England, who were suffering from various diseases and 33,111 of wounds or other injuries.

The report said that the number of hospital cases is steadily decreasing, there having been a reduction of more than 15,000 since the previous week preceding that covered by the report numbered 561, of whom 280 died of disease and 281 of wounds received before the armistice was signed.

A completely and carefully checked list of men still in the hospitals in France and England who were wounded before hostilities ceased is now on its way by courier to the United States. It will furnish definite information as to the nature of the injuries suffered by each man.

The department also announced that cable advices from General Pershing indicated that the long and tedious check of battle casualty reports has at last been completed by the central records office in France.

"Individual additions resulting from the identification of missing men" said the statement "or from the triple check of all organization and hospital records, justified by the direction of the Secretary of War, may be expected, of course, and will be promptly reported—as will deaths from illness or accident, in general, however, the list of those who died in action, or received serious injuries, as reported to the families of officers and soldiers and to the press, stands complete."

"In the meantime the War Department is engaged upon a check of the original records sent for the purpose from France, in order that the list to the families and to the public as a matter of record and appreciation, the men who have received (and recovered) from relatively slight injuries on the field of battle."

Keep your eye on the sheep pasture that your lamb—that need assistance may receive the same lamb is worth more money to be neglected and allowed to die when a few minutes attention at the proper time will save them.

TRADE AT HOME

WALTON.

John Lane of Covington, spent Sunday here with friends and on his farm near town.

Mrs. Katie B. Riev. of Georgetown, visited friends here this week and is much improved in health.

Eugene Hendricks of Bardolph, Illinois, spent part of last week here the guest of John C. Miller and family.

Arthur Bethel bought a cottage on High Street from D. B. Wallace for $1,200 and moved to it from Burlington.

John W. Conrad bought from Henry C. Diers nine lots in the subdivision of Walton adjoining the Conrad property for $600.

Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Atwood of Albuquerque, New Mexico, spent part of last week here with her mother Mrs. D. M. Bagby.

A. W. Smith who has been quite ill is much improved and will soon be able to return to his duties at the Jones drug store.

Mrs. Minnie Stephenson left Friday for Washington, D. C., on a visit to her daughter Mrs. Pearl Conrad who has a position in one of the Government departments.

Jno. L. Vest spent Monday at Owenon arranging in the court for the Equitable Bank & Trust Company to become the guardian of some infant children at their request.

Mrs. Maleta Cram sold her farm last week to John Noel for $12,000. The farm is located near Walton and contains nearly 100 acres. Mr. Noel will move to the place in March.

J. Fletcher Johnson received a letter from his son Frank Johnson who is in the army that he had arrived safe in Berlin, Germany, and hopes to be able to return home before long.

W. Lee Gaines, who is handling considerable tobacco on the loose leaf markets, attended the sales at Sanders and Glencoe the past two weeks and bought some nice tobacco at profitable prices.

The Walton High School that has been closed on account of the prevalence of influenza will probably open next week as the disease is abating and no further trouble is anticipated from that source.

Judge J. G. Tomlin arrived at home last week from Battle Creek, Michigan, where he has been undergoing special treatment for his health, and he is greatly improved. He expects to go back next week to spend another month when he is assured he will be permanently restored to health.

Thos. J. Morris has sold his farm of 37 acres near Walton to Elisha Hudson for $4,000 and is arranging to move back to Warsaw.

Mr. Hudson bought the Dr. Harvey Roberts land in the same locality and this Morris property having buildings and giving a better outlet, made it very desirable for Mr. Hudson.

E. Sleet West resigned his position in a Cincinnati bank to take the office of the Walton loose leaf tobacco company, and is giving splendid satisfaction as is also Raymond M. Renaker who has charge of the books and has recently recovered from his illness.

B. E. McElroy, the cashier, is still confined to his home and is very sick.

John E. Williams sold his fine farm of 355 acres near Walton last week to W. T. Phillips of Pike County, Kentucky, for $45,000, possession to be given next fall.

Mr. Phillips owned a lot of mountain land and it proved to be oil producing and he sold for big money, and concluded to buy a farm in a good locality and decided on Mr. Williams' farm in preference to many others in the Blue Grass section.

Mr. Williams had refused $45,000 for his place from two other parties but afterwards concluded to accept this offer as he would not be obliged to give possession until next fall.

Mr. Williams expects to buy a farm near Lexington and also another farm in Boone county.

The Walton Loose Leaf Tobacco market last Saturday had the best sale of the season, selling 122,000 pounds at an average of $33.12, the prices ranging from 12 cents to $1.00 per pound. One crop of over 2,000 pounds averaged $6.25; several crops averaged 60 cts. and one crop of 8,000 pounds averaged $14.32. The grade of tobacco was exceptionally good, but the prices on all of the tobacco was much better than heretofore. There will be heavy sales Wednesday and Saturday, the regular sales days, and there is a disposition to favor this market by people who as a rule, believe that everything away from home is better. There is no question but this market is better than Covington or Lexington if the reports of those who have tried all the markets are to be depended upon.

PT. PLEASANT

Miss Harriet E. Darby entertained Clyde Arnold and sister, last Sunday evening.

Gordon Southern stepped on a rusty nail last week and has been unable to walk.

Mrs. Loula Tanner and Miss Sarah Elizabeth spent Sunday at Mrs. Sallie Southern's.

Mrs. Fannie Clutterbuck has returned to her home after visiting relatives in Pt. Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Morehead and little son, of Taylorsport, spent Sunday at Keene Southern's.

Eugene Porter, of Covington, was visiting his cousins, the Arnold boys and girls during the past week.

Private Sterling Rouse tells many interesting things about "Camp Life." He was honorably discharged a few weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Darby are holding over a letter from their son Allen, stating he was in Luxembourg, Germany, and in fine health.

Cere-alia EGG MASH

SO MANY feeds do not produce eggs because they furnish only nutriment enough to meet the hen's bodily requirements. Cere-alia Egg Mash gives the additional nourishment needed over and above bodily requirements. All of it is egg-making material, exactly balanced as to protein, fat and fibre. You will get the biggest egg yield you ever had this year by feeding this celebrated feed.

Cere-alia Egg Mash is made by The Early & Daniel Co., makers of the famous Tuxedo Chop, Tuxedo Scratch and other feeds.

In a speech to the conference President Wilson declared that the League should be the eye of nations and an "eye that never slumbers."

Burlington Has the Flu.
There are seven or eight cases of flu in Burlington, sheriff L. A. Connelley being one of the patients. There are numerous cases in several of the town. Each of the local doctors is attending 25 or 30 flu patients. The white and colored schools have both closed indefinitely and several of the pupils of the former are ill of the flu. The board of health has issued the following order: "Notice—No loafing allowed. Transact your business and move on. This means you."

GASBURG.
The flu still lingers with us. Bill Jones will move to a farm near Aurora in the spring. Edgar Riley has bought both of Chas. Snellings' farms here.

Jesse Kelly has erected a barn on his school house farm. The outlook for a big crop of small grain is very flattering. Frank Rue will cultivate the W. T. Scott farm here in a several of Chas. Snellings' farms here.

Ralph Taylor, wife and son, of Cincinnati, were week-end guests at H. R. Heame's. Walter Robinson is the latest victim of the flu.

Jack Stephens has bought the J. L. Gibbs place on Frogtown creek. Little Martha Emily Cason was very ill last Saturday and Sunday.

Everett Dixon is trying out a new doctor in Covington. Mrs. Ed Wright spent several days last week with her daughter here.

You Can Always Depend on The Tri-State Butter Co.

Every Tri-State patron has his price guaranteed for a week. Every Tri-State patron received 64 cts. and FREIGHT for every pound of butter-fat shipped to us last week, January 20th to 27th, inclusive.

We know of instances where patrons sold to station buyers and commission agents last week and were quoted a lower price each day, and in many cases were paid 10 cents and 15 cents per pound less than the Tri-State price.

NOW, WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THAT!

Don't you believe the Tri-State principles are worthy of your support?

The Tri-State has one price to all. Our price is always HIGH enough to meet any and all competition everywhere. We do not pay a man in one neighborhood one price and a few miles away pay another price. The Tri-State price is to Producers ONLY. We deal DIRECT with Producers. Whenever the market changes, the Tri-State patron is mailed a price card quoting a price good for a week.

No Tri-State patron ever had the price cut on his butter-fat during the middle of the week. No Tri-State patron ever had cause to question the honesty and sincerity of the Tri-State. No Tri-State patron has a toll exacted from his cream to support stations and agents. Every Tri-State patron deals DIRECT with his Company. Every Tri-State patron is absolutely SAFE in shipping, as we guarantee the cream and cans against loss.

If you believe in Tri-State principles, send us your cream. Every pound of butter-fat sold to station buyers and agents lessens your influence for better prices.

CANDIDATES MUST "DOLL UP"

Will Have to Look Their Prettiest If They Expect to Find Favor With Woman Voters.

It is not necessary to go away from home to find either the latest or best, regardless of what is wanted. Consider eyebrow arching, for instance. A local beauty salon announces to the public that it does eyebrow arching, and explains that this operation "gives the eyes a deep, soulful expression with everlasting charm." Eyebrow arching advice for woman electors is more or less superfluous. It is to the men, and more especially to the men who aspire to public office, that this beauty hint is directed.

Throughout the country women are getting the ballot on equal terms with men. Women cannot vote in Indiana, but they are going to have that privilege before long. So many women have been enfranchised that they now hold the balance of power in this nation. So the woman vote will be more and more a real political problem to the candidate.

For the personal appearance of candidates, but most of them prefer a man of character, one who at least is presentable. Candidates in the future will have to bear this in mind. It will be well, in order to match rival candidates, for each to have a good tailor and an advisory committee on the proper shade of cravats. Immaculate linen will have to be in every candidate's platform. The high arched eyebrow will be even more essential to candidates than to the average woman. Doubtless those who have political aspirations will begin early, because eyebrow training takes time.—Indianapolis News.

SAID ICE CREAM "BURNED"

Think of It, French Kiddies Had to Be Coaxed to Partake of Strange Delicacy!

Striking proof of the well-known fact that extreme heat and extreme cold have the same physical properties was recently furnished by "Jugger" Crane, the scientist-philosopher of Company B,—the engineers, when he fed some American ice cream to a group of French children, says the Spiker.

The inhabitants of the French farmhouses near the camp had never seen any ice cream until "Jugger" took them over a mess kit full of the great American delicacy.

The children gathered around expectantly. The first one took a spoonful and at once began to weep and declare that the strange food was hot.

The others who had watched rather horror stricken the fate of the first became convinced that it was some sort of white fire and would have nothing to do with the cream.

The mother had to eat virtually all the cream in order to induce them to believe it was cold rather than hot, and that when not taken too fast, was good to eat. Eventually, the children ate the last of the dish.

But they partook of it gingerly, evidently greatly mystified that anything which first seemed hot, then cold, could be good to eat.

Learns of the War.

A woman was discovered in this city yesterday who has lived all through the great war and did not know that it was going on. She is an aged woman of German birth. Her age kept her son from telling her about the horrors of the invasion of Belgium and of the sinking of the Lusitania. He didn't wish her to worry and fret. But the day of the peace demonstration made it impossible to keep silent. The old lady heard the whistles blowing and the crowds cheering and she demanded to know what it was all about. When they told her she raised her hands in a gesture of imprecation and said: "Oh, if only I could get these two hands on the Kaiser!" The interesting part of her story is that her husband was a German soldier. The gray uniform was so detested by him that he made his wife, before his death, promise that she would come to America so that none of their sons ever would be compelled to wear the livery of the Kaiser.—New York Sun.

Victim of Popular Song.

Lawrence Kellie tells of an amusing experience he had over the song, "Douglas Gordon." He was introduced one evening to a gentleman whose name he did not catch. "I have no desire to meet you, Mr. Kellie," said the stranger. Kellie naturally looked a little astonished, but said nothing. "In fact," the other went on, "I hate the very sound of your name." For months past my mother has been worried by the receipt of telegrams and letters of condolence on my behalf, and the thing is beginning to get monotonous. "I'm sorry," said Kellie, "but what's that got to do with me?" "Well, I'll tell you," said the other. "My name's Douglas Gordon, and everybody imagines that your comfort song refers to me." And with that he turned on his heel and went.

Send for a Bomb, Sir.

The excited voice of the mother of George B. Elliott of the firm of Breed, Elliott & Harrison, announced that an old house owned by Mr. Elliott was burning. "Is it still burning?" inquired Mr. Elliott, with some anxiety in his voice. When informed in the affirmative, he replied, with much relief, "Well, there is nothing that I can do," and told his mother to notify him if the fire was in danger of going out.—Indianapolis News.

Spray Fruit Trees This Winter.

Probably 90 per cent of all the fruit trees in the South are infested with the San Jose scale. This pest destroys annually many thousands of trees, both old and young, and very greatly reduces the yield of first-class fruit from thousands of others. Yet the scale can be almost absolutely controlled by proper spraying.

It is hardly worth while for one to question whether or not his fruit trees are infested with this pest, but take it for granted that they are, and go ahead and spray them. Even though they should happen to be free from the pest, the spraying will kill enough rot and other spores to make it a paying proposition. No spray material that is strong enough to kill San Jose scale can be put on the trees except when they are dormant during the winter. Such a mixture applied when the tree is in foliage would kill it, or at least destroy the foliage.

The standard mixture for the San Jose Scale is the boiled lime-sulphur solution. It can be made at home or purchased in concentrated form, so that all that is necessary is to put it in shape for use. It is diluted with water according to directions, stirred thoroughly and applied. Unless one is especially prepared for making the lime-sulphur solution at home, and has had considerable experience in its use, it is usually best to use the prepared solutions.

The spraying can be done any time between falling of the leaves and when the buds begin to swell in early spring. Never apply it any other time. If the trees are heavily infested with it, twice—once in the late fall and again in late winter, just before the buds begin to swell.

The work must be done very thoroughly if the pest is to be destroyed. Unless the spray material comes in actual contact with the scale, it will not do any good whatever. See that every twig, branch, and every bit of the bark on all parts of the tree are thoroughly wetted. It is only by careful work of this kind that this serious enemy of the fruit grower can be controlled.

Even those with only a few trees in a small home orchard need to give this spraying, because this pest is just as liable to be destructive in a small as a large orchard. Nothing smaller than a barrel spray pump is satisfactory for spraying even a very few fruit trees. The bucket and knapsack spray pumps simply are not intended for spraying anything as large as fruit trees. It is a waste of time and money to try to use them in fruit tree spraying.

A barrel spray pump outfit can be purchased for around $40 to $45. Any one with as many as 100 fruit trees can well afford to own one of these for his individual use. Those having only a very few trees should co-operate with the neighbors and purchase one.

It is a waste of time and money to set out fruit trees unless one is going to spray them. This may just as well be put down as an absolute fact.—Southern Agriculturalist.

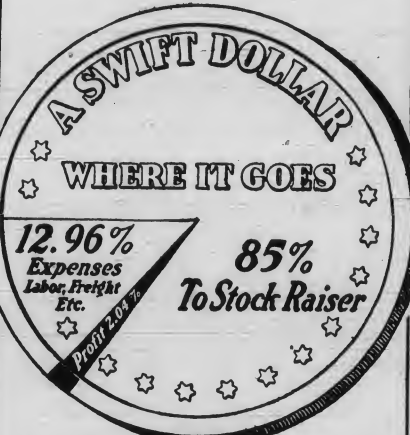

Hickman.—There are several cases of the flu in this section again, with a few cases of pneumonia, but it does not seem to be in as serious a form as heretofore.

Barbourville.—Construction forces are now at work on the Dixie Highway extension thru Knox county from Corbin to Pineville and grading, according to the terms of contract must be completed by the first of April.

Carlsile.—The influenza situation has become much worse in Nicholas county, and most of the schools of the county are again closed. The schools of Carlsile are also closed for the second time. A number of deaths in the county have occurred.

The motor wagon is seen quite often on the road now.

Many farmers have young lambs to be looking after. Some are not having very good luck so far, losing a big per cent of the youngsters.

Your county taxes this year will be 95 cents on each $100. The tax for the school fund was increased five cents on the $100.

A. W. Gaines will move to Erlanger in a few days, being another addition to the Boone county colony in that city.

The price of tobacco continues to boom and the grower is justified in asking any old price his conscience will permit.

Letters from several soldiers were received this week too late to be used, hence their absence from these columns.

So far February has been equal to the month of January in the matter of weather.

Walter Huey has gone to the city to accept a job.

Farmers are breaking their sod land.
The usual small crowd attended country court last Monday.

There is said to be a scarcity of wild ducks on the river this season.

A. L. Nichols shipped his crop of tobacco to Walton loose leaf market last Saturday.

It looks like there is an epidemic of public sales following the epidemic of influenza.

Jas. W. Huey, of Union neighborhood, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Saturday.

People are actually beginning to feel that there will be very little bad weather this winter.

Martins in large numbers have put in their appearance, but they have to wade in snow some times.

Mrs. Louisa White called in last Monday and advertised a public sale of a lot of personal property.

The weather the past two weeks has given the wheat a sickly look. It may come out alright in the spring.

Andy Cook is arranging to move to his new home on the river below Aurora ferry and has advertised a sale of personal property.

Mrs. Lora Lailo, of Florence neighborhood, Burlington, died last Friday on business pertaining to the settlement of her husband's estate.

Henry Clore and Pepper Smith, of Bellevue, attended the loose leaf tobacco market in Covington last Friday, and saw tobacco sell in the pictures.

A twelve months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Tison, of Bullittsville neighborhood, died one day the past week of flu. The remains were taken by undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, to Georgetown for interment.

W. L. Kirkpatrick sold to E. H. Blankenbaker, of Florence neighborhood, last week, an up-to-date manure spreader. He is one of the county's best farmers and uses nothing but the best of machinery.

Judge Gaines went to Williams-town last Monday morning to begin a three weeks term of the Grant county circuit court. On account of bad health conditions in Grant county he has not been able to hold a full term of court here for two or three terms.

Wallace Rice writes his parents he has been sent to Camp Grant, 35 miles west of Chicago, where he will be discharged from the service. Camp Taylor is under quarantine on account of flu, which necessitates sending the boys to Camp Grant, who, otherwise, would have been sent to Camp Taylor.

If the Ground Hog snoozes as late Sunday mornings as some people the probability is he failed to gaze upon his shadow last Sunday. But in the event he saw his shadow, it was of a very thin character, consequently the six weeks of winter to follow his observation will be of the briefest. The work hetsmen have cost around $100.00, and with a truck and three men, instead of seventy-five and teams, as heretofore, the work can be done for $100.00.

Reports this year indicate that "pickpockets" have been reaping a harvest on local tobacco markets. Tobacco speculators have made money for the past several years, and the funny part of it is that pretty nearly the same people sold to the speculator every year. This is probably due to the fact that the same fellow who sold his tobacco to a speculator last year will sell it again this year, hoping to get even, and the same thing is repeated year after year. —Grant County News.

Born to Robt. Lansing and wife, of St. Petersburg, Fla., a daughter.

Johnnie Burk and Harry Passons have moved to G. T. Gaines' where they will farm extensively this year.

Sheriff Conner and Charles Birkle, two of the flu patients are able to be at their places of business again.

William Bryan, who has been away from Burlington for the last four years, has returned, looking stout and hearty.

The price of coal was misquoted in Hensley & Berkshire's coal advertisement last week. Lump coal should have been quoted at twenty-six cents a bushel instead of twenty-five cents.

It appears from the Tax Commissioner's book that the sheep in this county are worth a little over $10 a head, while hogs are worth a little over $11 a head. But the result obtained at public sales do not corroborate these figures.

A post card from W. A. Gaines says "O. K. in Florida on the 27th. Weather fine, Thermometer 54 to 72. Am located for the winter with Dr. Barnes and wife. See the Judge every day. I hear of no flu. I wish the Recorder—send it down the line."

Wendell Phillips, who has been the Post and Times-Star carrier in Burlington for some time, has sold out the route to Alexander Yelton, who is now delivering these papers. The former carrier and agent expects to move to Indiana in the next few weeks.

Dolphin Sebree, who has been carrying the mail on Burlington R. D. No. 2 for a little over four years has been transferred to the Petersburg rural route of which he will take charge in the next few days. He will be succeeded on route 2 by Lillard Scott, of Bellevue, who will serve the patrons until the appointment of a regular carrier. Mr. Sebree was transferred to the Petersburg route to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of James Mahan, who had carried the mail on this route from the time it was put in operation, and had done his work in a most satisfactory manner. Mr. Sebree has made an excellent carrier and the people who have boxes on Burlington No. 2 are sorry to lose him, while the people of Burlington hate to see such good people as he and his wife move away from the town.

The tobacco market at the Aurora Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse has showed marked improvement during the past week on all grades of tobacco. They sold a crop of tobacco of 1830 pounds from Dillsboro, Ind., that averaged $59.77 per one hundred pounds, which is very high for tobacco in this vicinity. The floor average on Thursday's sale was $31.69 and Saturday's sale, $30.11. Offerings were medium. Tobacco of color and quality is selling from $60 to $75 per 100 pounds, while low grade tobacco seems to have advanced from $3 to $5 per 100 pounds.

Card of Thanks—

The husband and daughters wish to express their many thanks to their friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy to us in our great sorrow of the death of dear mother, Mrs. Rosie Ellen Lunsford, who died Jan. 30, 1919. She was born Oct. 15th, 1878, was married to Mr. Wm. Lunsford, June 22, 1897. She leaves to mourn her death seven daughters, husband, a son-in-law and a grandson.

We thank Rev. Spears for the reading of the word of the Lord; we also wish to thank Dr. Ryke and the undertakers for their kind services.

An Epidemic of Wolves.

There is an "epidemic" of wolves in this state and hunting parties are being organized in several counties. It is reported that some kind of a wild and vicious animal is running at large in the hill country of Ohio county, and that one dog which had the nerve to pick up a fight with the animal was found with the top of its head bitten off and its throat cut.—Rising Sun Recorder.

W. L. Kirkpatrick has bought a portion of the lot belonging to the Farmers Fire Insurance Company, and on which is located its office, the office and a portion of the lot being retained by the Co.

Services will be held as usual, if conditions permit, at Richmond, Union and Crescent Springs churches. The pastor has returned after a most enjoyable vacation spent in Tennessee.

A Covington tobacco buyer made a swing around through Campbell and Johnson last Saturday and bought a very large lot of tobacco, paying forty cents a pound on an average.

Lester Guley is at his store again after a tussel with the flu.

Paris.—Mrs. Nellie Woods Cain, 60 years old, wife of John P. Cain, died following a short illness of heart trouble. The direct cause of her death was a broken heart. For almost four months she anxiously awaited news from her son, James E. Cain, who was with the American Expeditionary Forces in France. A few weeks ago, Mrs. Cain received a telegram from the War Department telling of his death in battle July 26, and the shock proved too much for her.

CENTENARY VISION CHALLENGES CHURCH

Enormous Power Now Released Must Be Used.

DECLARES BISHOP M'DOWELL

Methodists Possess Resources to Meet Centenary Calls—Fifty Thousand Men to Aid—Peril of Mohammedanism Discussed.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—"We are face to face with the providence of an altogether sufficient challenge to the church to do big things and do them now," declared Bishop William F. McDowell of Washington, D. C., addressing the Methodist Centenary (Cincinnati) area convention.

"We have just had an extraordinary providential demonstration of the power and interest of the church and the nation when a great cause is at stake," said the bishop. "Now we are face to face with a providential release of enormous power which must not be permitted to get back to the small things or to mere conventionalities again."

"The church must remake the world's mind," declared Bishop McDowell. "The mind of the world must be made according to the mind of Christ."

"Second, we must remake the

ERNEST H. CHERINGTON.
Chairman, Cincinnati Area, Methodist Centenary.

world's ideals. Commerce can not rule the world.

"Third, we must remake the world's faith. An unbelieving world or a wrong-believing world can not help coming to grief. The faith of the world in the God of Jesus Christ must be made by the church of Jesus Christ. And this is the task of the century."

Financial Resources Large.

"In the very audacity of the century's appeal lies the power of its appeal," declared Edgar Blake, associate executive secretary of the centenary movement. "If the centenary is asking for a staggering sum it is because the church is up against a staggering task," he declared, stating that when the opportunity, obligation and possibility now before the church is realized, one marvels not at the size of the centenary, but at the modesty of its askings.

"Our present giving is not the measure of our ability, but the measure of our interest. To think otherwise would put Methodism to confusion and shame," declared Dr. Blake. "The amount asked for by the centenary, staggering as it may seem in the aggregate, simply means that where a Methodist individual is now giving a nickel, we must ask him to give 54 cents for the whole task of Methodism," he said.

"Methodism has the ability to put the centenary over the top. It only lacks the will to do it, and that is rapidly coming."

50,000 Minute Men.

Dr. Christian F. Reiser of New York city outlined the plans by which the church expects to have 50,000 minute men, similar to those used in behalf of various governmental affairs during the war, presenting the interests of the centenary.

"John R. Mott, 25 years ago, urged the Christian nations to 'evangelize this in this generation,'" said Dr. Reiser. "If they had done so there would have been no world war. If we do not now evangelize the world, our grandchildren will see another world war."

"Imagine what the condition of the world will be if Mohammedanism takes Africa, India, Malaysia, then if Japan, with her efficiency and her new organization, heads the group. They will crush out civilization from the world and establish the worst anarchy the universe has ever known."

"The centenary would bring to these countries, troubled and hungry, a heart devoted to service. At home and abroad, it insists that we meet the staggering needs of this eventful hour."

Animal Diseases.

How the spread of live stock disease in the U. S. is largely controlled and sources of infection are stamped out is explained by the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture. Approximately 199 employees of the bureau, engaged in the work, are stationed at the principal live stock markets of the country.

All receipts of cattle, sheep, and swine unloaded in daylight are inspected at the time of unloading, while those unloaded at night are inspected early in the morning before any trading takes place. Outgoing shipments are re-inspected before loading, and hold overs are re-inspected in the yards each day until disposed of.

The principal diseases for which inspections are made are foot and mouth disease, anthrax, scabies of cattle and sheep, cattle fever, and hog cholera. If any symptoms of these or other communicable diseases are detected, all affected or exposed animals are segregated and treated, or otherwise handled in accordance with department regulations.

Officials of the state in which the shipment originated are immediately notified, as well as department field forces in that territory, and every effort is made to trace the origin of the infection. In this way centers of infection are located in most cases, and the spread of the disease to other premises and herds is quickly prevented by the prompt application of appropriate sanitary measures.

During the last fiscal year ended June 30, 1918, inspectors of the bureau of animal industry made 38,708,384 inspections for contagious or communicable diseases, and supervised 79,431 loadings of cattle and sheep at market centers. The vaccination of 231,731 hogs against hog cholera and the dipping of these hogs were also supervised, in order that they might be shipped to country points for feeding without danger of spreading the disease. In addition, great numbers of horses were inspected for influenza. In the effort to control that disease and reduce losses from it.

GARDENS.

Indianapolis, News.

Last year many people felt that they must offer some excuse for putting on old clothes and working in their gardens. They spoke of their war gardens and repeated the well-worn reason that they were doing their bit. Now that there has been a slight lessening in the demand for food, those who favor gardens have been suggesting that the efforts of 1918 be directed toward victory gardens. There is no reason to apologize for working in the garden and the garden needs no other name than the one that it always has had.

Garden catalogues have begun to appear and the magazines are advertising the seed houses. Those who have had gardens know the attractions of the soil. They are not hunting for excuses. All they want is an early spring and fair weather.

Statistics were prepared last fall to show how much money was realized from the sale of surplus products, how much food was saved and so on. Statistics might also have been submitted to show how much happiness came from working out of doors, how many good nights of sleep came as a result of the fresh air, and exercises, how many bad tempers were improved, and how many jaded appetites were tempted by something fresh from one's own plot. Most people who had gardens last spring and summer will be repeaters this year. Those who do appear and this happy experience do not know what they have missed, but doubtless they have heard from their neighbors.

To have been fortunate to begin planning. Seeds may be bought, plots may be plumed on paper, and still more important, the ground may be secured. Choice garden plots are something like the best theatrical seats—they go early. Those who have no ground at home, can easily get some elsewhere. It need not be an acre and it need not be a whole city lot. A little ground is sufficient to furnish the exercise and the healthful and profitable results.

Army Red Tape.

Leslie's Weekly.

Red Tape! I look back at a moment to enlist a man in the army of red tape to get him out. If General Pershing needs to keep a million and a quarter troops in Europe for the next year, he will have to keep three quarters of a million men sent home as quickly as possible. No one expects them to be sent home as rapidly as they were shipped across, but nothing except a shortage of ships should be permitted to delay the process. In Governmental circles there are entirely too much men left over the "great labor crisis" that is to be precipitated by the return of soldiers from France and from training camps in this country. There may be some working days lost in the industrial change from a war basis to a peace footing, but we believe the country faces a labor shortage rather than surplusage. Before the war there was a labor shortage, and for over four years the streams of immigration have been cut off. A shortage of 3,000,000 men is estimated in agriculture alone, and agriculture will need to be pushed with greatest vigor in order to feed a starving world and replenish its exhausted reserves. In all lines of peaceful trade stocks are low, and the cry is for more materials and more workers. Hundreds of thousands of places are open for the men who gave up their positions at the call of country. Employers are anxious to get their men back. College students whose education was interrupted by the war, particularly poor boys working their way through college, should be permitted to return at once and take up their educational training. The way to demobilize is to demobilize. Employment bureaus, such as have been provided by the Department of Labor, with the cooperation of the Council of National Defense, may be necessary in every city and community. To bring the worker and employer together, but there will be work aplenty for all who are able and willing to work.

CAMPAIGN OF ROBBERY

Three Young Men Landed in The County Jail on the Charge of House Breaking.

Last Wednesday afternoon Richard Knudsen, 29, of Canada; Harry Downey, 25, of Montana; and Charlie Feldknecht, 27, of Chicago, appeared in the town of Verona, and entered upon a campaign of robbery and house breaking through the residence of two of the citizens, Messrs. O'Malley and Callan, when the citizens organized a home guard equipped with shot guns and such other implements of war as they deemed necessary, and in a short time they had the trio of robbers rounded up and ready to deliver to the sheriff. Sheriff Conner being ill of the flu deputy sheriff B. B. Hume, tried and hauled to Verona and took the three men into custody. Having made the prisoners secure by a liberal use of strong rope the deputy sheriff locked them into his runabout and lost no time in landing them in Burlington where they were delivered into the custody of Jailer Fowler, and they will languish in jail until the grand jury investigates them in April. He said the three men made resistance in the sealing of a few razors, a gun or two and several small articles.

Each of the men had his registration card. Knudsen having registered June 5, 1917, and the other two, August 25, 1918.

Rev. R. H. Carter, of Petersburg did not have the flu when he went to the sanitarium at Ellettsville, Indiana, as reported. He was afflicted with the sciatica and bronchitis. After a nine days treatment he was relieved of the sciatica, but he is still annoyed with the bronchitis. His numerous friends sympathize with him in this ill health and hope that he will soon be restored to his usual good health.

Card of Thanks—
We desire to publicly thank each and every one of our friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness during the illness and death of our beloved baby and also during the illness and death of our sister, Mrs. John Hays. Surgical Wonders.

Scribner's Magazine.

Modern surgery, then, really begins with the invention and use of the means of destroying certain bacteria and preventing inflammation in what is known as "aseptic surgical technique," and by helping the white corpuscles of the blood, which are known as phagocytes, to destroy bacteria. Such efforts being often seconded by the administration of special vaccines or sera.

With this advanced knowledge of the requirements of his work, the surgeon who entered the recent war got altogether different results than his father or grandfather, who were called upon professionally to care for the wound men of the Civil War, whose injuries were altogether different in a large proportion of cases. Surgical knowledge then, measured by present standards, was most primitive, and tens of thousands of men were lost who might have been saved by the advanced methods of today. No effective and tens of thousands of men were lost who might have been saved by the advanced methods of today. No effective and tens of thousands of men were lost who might have been saved by the advanced methods of today.

GERMANY MUST PAY.

Scribner's Magazine.

The kind of destruction, spoliation and malicious plundering in which her armies engaged during the invasion and occupation of Belgium is too well known to need description. But discussion of an indemnity brings up the principle again, that when a Government has guaranteed a neighbor state against invasion proceeds to invade it, when its General's burn whole sections of that nation's towns and cities, seize the tangible resources of the country, impose on nonresisting towns a compulsory and unpaid tribute exceeding $500,000,000, remove to Germany the gold reserve of that country's banks and the machinery of that country's manufacturing establishments, and do all this while their soldiers and officers are plundering private houses of furs, pictures, food, wines, wearing apparel—the there is no more possibility of disputing the moral, legal and practical necessity of money restitution than there would be of requiring a notorious robber on the highways to surrender booty captured on his person.

What is true regarding Germany's responsibilities for Belgium is equally true regarding her conduct in Northern France. The claim of France is in some ways even more urgent; for, whereas after the first day of devastation, German commanders in Belgium, for their own purposes and with the motive of preventing utter ruin of a state which they meant eventually to annex to Germany, had stopped the hand of the destroyers, in France they continued on to the end of the war a deliberate campaign to achieve complete industrial and commercial ruin. Nothing like that part of their conduct has been witnessed in modern history. Even the Goths, the Vandals and the earlier Huns respected sanctuaries and monuments of religious art, and the action of the Germans regarding the forests and orchards of France was the first clear commentary in 25 centuries on the meaning of Isaiah's famous prophecy against the King of Babylon: "The fir trees rejoice at thee and the cedars of Lebanon say, 'How is the cedar of Lebanon laid down, no cedar is come up against us!'"

What Germany has done on the sea, in outright contravention of the laws of war and of common humanity, nobody needs to be told. That she would have to pay for this her own statesmen had in principle admitted during their communications with the United States over the years in their later negotiations with Spain.

Enjoying the Climate.

Riverview, Fla., January 31, 1919.
W. L. Ridgell:—Inclosed you will find a check for $1.50 to renew my subscription to the Boone Co. Recorder. I am 31 years old. I have had your paper coming to our home without missing a year in that time.

I am surely enjoying this climate. It just suits me; there are very few cloudy days, and a person can work every day, or sit in the shade which ever he prefers.

Some of the neighbors have not had a fire to sit by this winter, not because they did not have any wood to burn but because it has not been cold enough, when it is cool they sit in the sun. We have had but one frost to kill anything this winter.

We have our Irish potatoes planted and they will soon be coming up, and will plant our water-melons next week.

What has become of L. S. Beeman? I thought sure he would come down this winter.

We have not had the "flu" yet but it is bad in nearly towns. May God bless you and all my friends is my prayer.

Yours Truly,
W. T. DAVIS.

STATE NEWS.

Owensboro. — The Owensboro Products Company, a new concern capitalized at $50,000, became owner of the plant of Rock Springs Distilling Co. together with twenty-nine acres of ground. The purchase price was $100,000. The company will convert the distillery into a canning factory and will also turn out stock feed.

Columbia. — Spanish influenza has broken out anew in Columbia and Adair county. It made its appearance first in the new Wilson Training School, where 19 cases developed in two days. The school was immediately closed, and the teachers have gone to their homes. The graded school also closed on account of the flu, and the ban is on again in this place.

Mt. Sterling. — Bruce Turner, well known young man of this city, who was badly injured on the front line in France and has been in the hospital for several weeks since his arrival from overseas, has been transferred to Camp Taylor, Mr. Turner was shot in the head, just back of the left ear, during his hearing in that ear, and on the side of his face is paralyzed. He is under skillful care and his recovery to health is hoped for.

Quite a number of Boone county selectees are expected to arrive home from camps in the next week having been honorably discharged. The boys will round in home in time to take part in the farming business this year very much to the liking of the parents of many of them.

BEAVER LICK.

Mrs. G. O. Cleek has been ill with a severe cold.

Dan Dudley, of Walton, spent Thursday on his farm near here.

Misses Annie Cleek and Jane Hance spent Thursday at G. W. Osman's.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Miller, of Big Bone, spent Sunday at J. O. Griffith's.

Dr. Ryle reports all his flu patients getting along fine, and no new cases.

The Beaver school commenced again Feb. 3rd, having been closed some time on account of the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Osman spent Saturday with Mrs. Sallie Adams near Big Bone Springs.

Will Howard sold his fine crop of about 6,000 pounds of tobacco to Laves, of Walton, at 30 cents a pound.

Those who arrived on the scene of the accident and assisted in getting the horse and buggy out of the creek were William Wilson and Allie and Raymond Roter.

The unfortunate man was 45 or 50 years of age and survived by a daughter and two brothers.

The burial took place at Richwood church cemetery last Tuesday.

The horse that was attached to the buggy at the time of the accident died Saturday night from the effects of the exposure that resulted from being in the water so long.

A fatal and sad accident occurred last Saturday night where the Beaver and Big Bone pike crosses Big Bone creek at J. A. Loomis'.

William Fullilove and Thos. Walton were on their way from Big Bone in Mr. Walton's buggy, and when attempting to cross the creek at the point above mentioned the night was so dark they missed the ford and drove into the water where it is about eight feet deep just above the ford.

The buggy was turned over, throwing Mr. Walton out into the deep water. Mr. Walton succeeded in getting out and Mr. Loomis responded to his calls for help and got him to his house in a badly exhausted condition. Mr. Loomis returned to the creek with a light and in this manner saved several neighbors who had been summoned by telephone had arrived. The horse which was still struggling in the water was gotten out after the harness was cut off, and the men turned their attention to the buggy and were shocked when they discovered the lifeless body of Wm. Fullilove there-in. Mr. Walton's condition being such when taken to the house that he could not talk, that Fullilove was riding with him. Mr. Fullilove's which had stopped at 7:35 p. m. and he had been in the water just 35 minutes when he was taken out. Undertaker C. Scott Chambers was called and took charge of the remains.

Permanent Pastures.

The permanent pasture can be managed so that it will save labor in winter as well as in summer. Blue grass, orchard grass, tall meadow oat grass and white clover are cool weather plants very much as are crimson clover and rye. These permanent plants begin their growth of the year as soon as the weather becomes temperate in the late winter or spring and keep it up vigorously until the hot weather of summer sets in. Then they do little more than stand still if the summer is hot and at least moderately dry. The farmer who has plenty of grass for the hot weather is the one who allows it to get a start in the spring and early summer. The stock work on the reserves through the hot weather. Then in the fall, with cooler weather and September and October rains, permanent pastures again grow vigorously, and if not overstocked, they get another reserve that makes some pasture all winter while the weather is too cold for much growth.

Some farmers have carried this idea a little further and keep their stock on pasture all year except when snow is on the ground. They have a summer and a winter pasture. Their cattle gain all winter on pasture. This is a tried more or less than the rest of the central South, but has been most thoroughly tried in North Carolina. Southern Agriculturist.

The farmers are in clover now—everything they have for sale is high. They deserve it, for years they hardly received living prices for their products. Milton News

Tobacco is "It."

Tobacco remains high in price, and many lands are being placed on the market. Wagons loaded with the weed pass through Bedford at all times of the night. The results of these high prices and the prices received last year are even as evidence of prosperity everywhere. The tenant on the tobacco farm no longer rides around in a rattling buggy drawn by a poor horse with rope harness as in the days of old. No, indeed. The automobile is his means of conveyance, and when his machine is cranked and started everybody in front had better give the right of way. If the landlord isn't careful the tenant will own his farm, for by the sweat of his brow the tenant has raised his crop and the price realized therefrom is sufficient in some cases to buy the land. And it is well that it is so. When the farmer is prosperous everybody is prosperous. He has the best paying business of any and is doing it all that he can. It is the honey-hoofed tiller of the soil now that makes everybody else up and take notice. The wealth that will make the world free for democracy and a fit place to live in. If it were not for the farmer we would have no prosperity in this country, no tobacco to chew or smoke, and no county newspaper to read. Milton News.

The Post-Office Appropriations Bill as revised by the Senate Post office Committee proposes appropriations of 200,000,000 during the next three years for the construction and maintenance of roads.

Prevent Losses of Livestock.

Losses of live stock from diseases, accident and other causes, probably three-fourths of which are preventable by proper preventive measures and modern veterinary practice, amount to enormous sums each year—in 1915 they were estimated as reaching $212,000,000. This sum, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture, can be supplied the entire American expeditionary force of 2,000,000 men with meat for nearly a year. To these losses may be added others which, though indirect, are nevertheless as important. The discouragement of stock raising is one indirect loss, and this in turn retards the development of diversified agriculture.

Although much is being accomplished in the control and eradication of destructive animal diseases, the best results can be fully realized only through closer co-operation between the live stock owner and those who are in position to give him assistance. The stockmen who fail to realize the necessity of fighting the unseen enemies of live stock by sanitary and respiratory tract preventive methods that science has provided must be made to see the importance and profit which will come as a result of changing their conditions. A better understanding of feeds and feeding practices will prevent many of the common disorders of the digestive and respiratory tracts which are common among all classes of live stock. Losses from such accidents as horn wounds, cuts, wounds, burns, sore, and broken legs, in most instances, are properly chargeable to neglect or carelessness.

The selection of breeds adapted to the climate and local conditions under which they must exist, as well as the selection for the foundation stock, is important in maintaining health. Heavy beef and dairy types are better suited to withstand the trying conditions of cold climates, while the lighter fleshy breeds thrive better in warmer localities. Mountain types are better adapted for hilly grazing lands, close-wooled sheep for cold regions, and the open-fleeced breeds for warmer climates.

In purchasing stock it is advisable to find out what attention the seller gives to the health of his animals. Consult some of his customers, if he is openly opposed to the tuberculin test, for example, or objects to the physical examination of horses for soundness by a qualified veterinarian, it may be for purely selfish motives.

As soon as animals are suspected of being affected with disease, especially if it is thought to be a communicable disease, they should be separated from healthy animals and be held in quarantine until this condition has been determined.

The proper handling of animals has an important bearing upon maintaining their health and resistance to diseases. Good equipment and high-grade stock are not enough. The animals should be handled by an attendant who has certain natural qualifications for his work.

Every state agricultural college maintains a corps of specialists who are willing and well qualified to help stockmen promote the health of their live stock. The United States department of agriculture is constantly giving out important information in the form of bulletins, and in every state has representatives employed in combating animal diseases or some other important activity connected with agriculture or stock raising. The state veterinarian is also ready to give advice and assistance in the diagnosis and control of outbreaks of disease, and in nearly every community there is a veterinarian who should be called on when needed. All these agencies exist for the purpose of rendering assistance to the live stock owner, and his losses could be minimized, if he would utilize them to a greater extent.

Timely Discovery

Saved the Store.

As William Satchwell, of Locust Grove neighborhood, drove into town on a load of tobacco, last Thursday, he discovered the building in which is Guley & Pettit's grocery was on fire. He gave the alarm and the flame, which was already on the roof, was soon extinguished. It is supposed the fire was caused by a spark from the chimney falling on the roof. The timely discovery was all that saved the building and probably other buildings in the town.

Five Bottles of Cardui

Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Price, of this place, says: "After the birth run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time.

I knew I must have some relief or

I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr.

about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble, so he got me 5 bottles. After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved. Before taking my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this 1st or 2nd bottle disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bot-

School Notes.

This week, by the kindness of the BOONE COUNTY RECORDER, I am publishing some information and rulings of the State Department with respect to the examination of Elementary Agriculture for the qualification of teachers for next session. Should any teacher not receive Bulletin No. 54, within this week I will let me know I will see one is mailed to you.

February 8th, 1919.

Dear Superintendent:—
Bulletins 54-56 will be sent to you from the Agricultural Department of State University. There will also be some sixty questions on these bulletins. You, in turn, will be expected to send these bulletins and questions to your teachers as well as your prospective teachers.

The examination in agriculture will consist of some ten questions, or in other words will be treated like any other subject in the curriculum. The questions will be sent to you with the May, June and September examination and will be graded by your County Examining Board.

When a teacher takes the full examination he will be expected to pay only the usual $1.00 fee, but, if his certificate has not expired and he is taking the examination in agriculture he will be expected to pay a 25-cent fee, this 25 cents to go to your County Board of Examiners. When a teacher is examined in the one subject, AGRICULTURE, the County Superintendent will enter this grade on his Record Book, and upon request of the teacher the Superintendent will write the same on the said teacher's County Certificate. Thus, the grade in agriculture will expire at the same time as the certificate.

Teachers, rural, grade and high, teaching outside of cities of the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th class will be expected to take this examination.

Very Truly,

A. J. JOLLY,

Asst. State Superintendent.
Our schools, I believe, are all running again unless it be that two or three schools are dismissed temporarily from fear or sickness. It is to be hoped our schools will not be troubled any more this season and be suspended from any cause.

J. C. GORDON,

Superintendent.

Red Cross Notes.

The following information regarding disposal of surgical dressings and surgical dressing material has been received:

Finished dressings should be offered by chapters as a gift to all reputable agencies that can use them, such as Day nurseries, Physicians in industrial organizations, First Aid Stations at factories, etc. Then after every possible need for surgical dressings has been canvassed the remainder should be offered to local hospitals.

CUT MATERIAL for such dressings should be generally made up as was ordered, but if this is not possible, cut material should be offered to the local hospital.

NEW MATERIAL should be disposed of to local hospitals by gift or if they prefer to sell it locally, they may do so, provided the amount of gauze does not equal 5,000 yards in which case chapters should hold it and await further instructions.

Chapters are unwilling to give away material or if it is impossible to sell it to an advantage, they should inform the division office and await further instructions.

In making this local distribution of dressings emphasis should be placed upon the fact that the needs of our soldiers and those of our reserves are amply provided for by our reserve stocks and by French Commission.

While these dressings made at a great sacrifice were intended first for use of our soldiers and those of our allies, when we have these two needs supplied each chapter should see to it that local needs in this line are completely met.

Then again all money raised by Red Cross must be used for Red Cross purposes. But we are warranted in urging our chapter that every available dollar can be used as needs abroad are going to be very heavy.

Owing to the prevalence of influenza in various parts of the county our secretary has been unable to complete her Christmas membership report until now.

Tuesday's Tobacco Sales.

Following are some of the tobacco sales reported for Tuesday:

Mt. Sterling—Tobacco market is higher than ever today, with quality lowest of the season, average of $12.12, with $5c for high basket.

DR. J. A. NORTHCOTE.

Fruit Specialist to Assist

Boone County Fruit

Growers This Week.

In every walk of life there are a few persons that are head and shoulders above the average. We find this true among statesmen, preachers, lawyers, doctors or farmers. In this instance I want to assure you that Mr. N. R. Elliott is the master of the fruit industry in Kentucky, and every farmer, whether he has a commercial orchard or just a home orchard, will greatly profit from working with Mr. Elliott.

This work will be conducted in the manner of pruning and spraying demonstrations and practical talks on orchard management, desirable varieties, and where to secure them, pruning and spraying equipment, spraying materials and arranging for securing same.

These meetings will be held out in the orchards at the various points in the county, and there should be 30 or 40 persons at each of these meetings. Remember that one of the best posted men in Kentucky does not come to your door every day and make it a point to visit one of the following meetings:

Dubert Connor's, Hebron, Thursday, February 13th, 10 a. m.

Chas. L. Kelly's, Waterloo section, Thursday, Feb. 13th, 1 p. m.

C. S. Bokes, Hebron, Friday, February, 14th, 7:30 a. m.

Clyde Berkshire's on Bellevue pike, Friday, February 14, 10 a. m.

Frank Rouse's, County Infirmary, Friday, February 14, 1 p. m.

The time of year is at hand to care for your orchard if you expect profitable returns. Come and get a few practical pointers.

Blaming It On The Government.

The New York Tribune has the honor to publish a long and pointed article in its issue of March 1st, in which it charges the government with having caused the war.

"They know at Washington," says the Tribune, "that the war is a mistake, and that it is a mistake which will be corrected."

"That is the only way in which the war can be ended," says the Tribune, "and that is the only way in which the peace can be secured."

"The government," says the Tribune, "is the only one that is responsible for the war, and it is the only one that is responsible for the peace."

MAY WIN OR LOSE MILLIONS FOR CHRIST

Striking "Call to Arms" in Bishop Warne's Message.

THE OPPORTUNITY IS NOW

Centenary Call is For Vision, Declare Speakers at Great Convention in Columbus—Marvelous Awakening in India Described.

Columbus, O. (Special).—"Now is the time to win for Christ the fifty millions of India's depressed classes.
They are moving toward Him. We may have them or lose them—as we will."

This was the striking "call to arms" brought to the Methodist Centenary (Cincinnati area) convention at Memorial hall by Bishop F. W. Warne of India. A stirring address brought home to his hearers the bishop's conviction that in Christianity is to be the faith of India's millions. America's people must move quickly to take its message. In this regard, Bishop Warne, but reflected the views of many other leaders who have studied the world situation as it now presents itself.

"India's loyalty during the war has been second to none. In no other country, in proportion to the population have the forces of sedition been so small, and have all classes, willing

DR. F. I. JOHNSON,
Executive Secretary, Cincinnati Area, Methodist Centenary.

to make the life sacrifice, joined the ranks of the allies," said Bishop Warne, who described heroic acts of the armies from India.

Turning to conditions in India,
Bishop Warne discussed the great spiritual awakening towards Christ-ianity—an awakening which has been the marvel of Christian leaders.
Bishop Warne said:

"This movement has swept on, gradually increasing in force and expansion until in the Methodist church alone—to say nothing of others—we are baptizing about 40,000 converts a year, and holding back about 200,000 on our waiting list. There has never been anywhere else such a situation in church history. These great multitudes are being held back for lack of missionaries and money to train and support Indian workers, and this unprecedented situation furnishes one of the strongest reasons for the centenary call for the consecration of the young life of our churches in Christian America and a call to the whole church for sufficient funds to meet this great emergency."

Bishop Warne and other speakers of the convention presented a vivid picture of the similar situation in other parts of the world, and at home.
Resources of men and money to meet the call must be provided now, or the opportunity passes, they declared.

Must Register in Rural Life.

"The sad commentary on traditional church activity is that it has failed to register in the life of the rural community," said Professor Paul L.
Vogt, head of the rural work department of the board of home missions of the M. E. church.

Dr. Vogt called attention to the constant drain upon the leadership resources of the country because of the marked disparity in standards of living between the rural and urban communities. In one of the best districts of Methodism, he said, 50 per cent of the Methodist leaders were college graduates in the urban communities, while but 8 per cent of those in the rural churches were college graduates. Yet in one of these rural churches recently 22 college graduates were in attendance at a religious service. "The development of rural work through the Centenary is standing for the broad program of church activities in communities where Methodism has the sole responsibility, which will make the church and the pastor a leader in bringing rural civilization up to the standards of the best in America," said Professor Vogt. "Already marked results have been achieved in many rural sections throughout the United States."

POULTRY

GET RETURNS FROM POULTRY

On Many Farms Products From Poultry
Can Be Counted on as Practically Clear Profit.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The farmer who raises the ordinary grains and keeps some live stock has perhaps the greatest opportunity that has ever come to him for making profit from poultry. The possibilities for profit are perhaps not so large as they used to be for the special poultry farmer, and that fact may have led some general farmers to believe that the situation applies in some way to them, but there exists just here an unusual paradox. The very conditions that may make poultry and egg production a losing enterprise on the specialized poultry farm tend to make it an increasingly profitable one for the general farmer. Where nearly all of his feed has to be bought at high prices, the margin between cost of production and proceeds from sale becomes extremely narrow, but where practically all of the poultry feed is made up of waste materials that would otherwise not be utilized in any manner, the percentage of profit becomes very much larger when prices are high than it ever could have been when prices were low. Poultry on the farm obtain a very great part of their feed by foraging, by glomming the waste from stable yards and feeding lots, by consuming the scraps from the kitchen door, by preying upon insect posts in pasture and field, and in only a relatively small degree from grain or other commodities that would be marketable. A farmer whose poultry is fed in this way may count all of the money received for eggs and surplus poultry as practically clear profit. When, therefore, eggs and poultry are selling at higher prices than have usually been obtainable, the farmer's margin of profit without expenditure is very greatly increased.

It is, therefore, to the farmers of the country that the nation must look for the greater part of the immense increase of poultry products which will make it possible to supply our own army and navy with red meats and at the same time furnish the allies with the animal foods they need.

13 Dollars-- 13 Cents

When Swift & Company paid, say,—13 dollars per hun-dredweight for live beef cattle last year, the profit was only 13 cents! In other words, if we had paid $13.13, we would have made no profit.

Or, if we had received a quarter of a cent per pound less for dressed beef we would have made no profit.

It is doubtful whether any other business is run on so close a margin of profit.

This is bringing the producer and the consumer pretty close together—which should be the object of any industry turning raw material into a useful form.

This remarkable showing is due to enormous volume, perfected facilities (packing plants strategically located, branch houses, refrigerator cars, etc.), and an army of men and women chosen and trained to do their special work.

This, and many other points of interest, are found in the Swift & Company Year Book for 1919, just published which is brought out for the public as well as for the 25,000 Swift & Company shareholders.

The Year Book also represents the packer's side of the Federal Trade Commission investigation, upon which Congress is asked to base action against the industry.

Many who have never heard the packer's side are sending for the Year Book.

Would you like one? Merely mail your name and address to the Chicago office and the book will come to you.

A GREAT HOLSTEIN COW.

All records for a long distance dairy production have been broken by the California Holst in Tilly Alvarita 12345. On January 6, this great champion completed her 6th consecutive year in semi-official test with her biggest and best record yet. The figures of her last year are as follows:

33,121.39 pounds of milk
1,528.39 pounds of butter fat.
This record exceeds by over two thousand pounds the work of any other Holstein cow for a single year, topping the best Jersey record by over three thousand pounds of milk. Her daily average was approximately 91 pounds and her highest single day was 119.5 pounds. Her year's production was actually sold at whole sale for an average of $2.75 per 100 pounds, giving $29 for her year's earnings from this source alone. Had it been retailed at 15 cents per quart her milk would have brought over $2,500. One of the most remarkable features, in connection with this record of Tilly is the economy of production.
A conservative estimate based on a very close and accurate amount of the feed she consumed placed her feed bill at between $975 and $1,000 for the year. It is worthy of note that Tilly consumed over 100 pounds less concentrate during this test than did the succession of the Jerseys. Supplies

A good whitewash can be made by slaking about 10 pounds of quicklime in a pail with 2 gallons of water, covering the pail with cloth to keep the lime from setting, and allowing it to stand for one hour. Water is then added to bring the whitewash to a consistency which may be applied readily. A waterproof whitewash for exterior surfaces may be made as follows: (1) Slake 1 hushel of quicklime in 12 gallons of hot water, (2) dissolve 2 pounds of common salt and 1 pound of sulphate of zinc in 2 gallons of boiling water; pour (2) into (1), and add 2 gallons of skim milk and mix thoroughly. Whitewash is spread lightly over the surface with a broad brush.

Stop These Horrors!

They need food so badly—these tragic, stricken peoples of the Near East—that they fight for the foul meat of the stencor carcasses and look upon leathsome garbage as delicacies. That's HUNGER for you. That's hunger—sucking a dry, filthy crust for fear there will be none left if it is eaten. And they need clothes and fuel and bedding and furniture and medicine just as much. They look to America for aid—and only America can aid.

Our American men and women relief workers have given their all—their lives even—to rehabilitate this unfortunate but deserving remnant of tried humanity.

17 cents a day—$5 a month—$60 a year, will care for one of these unfortunates. Won't you save at least one life?

Jesse Edwin Kelly.

Jesse Edwin Kelly, son of the late J. E. and Elizabeth Kelly, was born September 28, 1882; united in marriage with Louetta Louden, February 2, 1904. To this marriage five children were born—Paris C., Lucien E., Benah Mae, Aline and Madeline.

Died January 19, 1919, at the age of 36 years, 3 months and 22 days. He had been in bad health about five years. He resigned as postmaster at Grant, this county, in the fall of 1915, and went to Texas, hoping to regain his health, but the benefit was only temporary, and he returned to his family, but as his suffering increased he was taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital, Covington, where he was given the attention of medical skill and good nursing, but his case was incurable, and when he realized he could not recover, he waited patiently for the Angel of Death to relieve him.

Two months before his death he made a confession of his faith in the Savior, and was made a member of the Catholic church.

He was a member of Alline Lodge No. 14, I. O. O. F., of this place, and for a number of years was the lodge secretary, and as long as he was able to do so he was always found in the lodge room at its weekly meetings.

He was a loving and devoted husband, a kind and affectionate father, a faithful and loyal member of his lodge, a useful citizen and a good neighbor, always ready to administer in times of sickness and distress wherever he was needed in the community.

Besides the wife and five children, who survive, he leaves one brother, Carl, who resides in Alabama, besides a host of other relatives and friends who mourn the loss of this loved one. But their loss is his gain; he has fought the good fight; he has finished his course, before death there is laid up for a crown of righteousness.

After a brief funeral discourse by Rev. C. E. Baker, the Odd-Fellows took charge of the remains, the interment being in Belleview cemetery.

Card of Thanks—We wish to extend our heart-felt thanks to our friends and neighbors for the kindness shown us during the illness and death of our loved one; also Rev. C. E. Baker for his comforting remarks; the Odd-Fellows for the interest they have manifested, and undertaker C. S. Chambers for the efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral.

We Couldn't Make the Maxwell any Better; So We Made it Better Looking.

When the task was done it looked like a different Maxwell.

It was a five year drive to reach this peak of Maxwell efficiency. But the engineers, and the manufacturing men knew that building a chassis without fundamental change in design year after year would ultimately tell in results. For everyone knows that doing one thing results in doing it well.

So in five years 300,000 Maxwells have come forth, all built on the original chassis plan, each new one better than the last.

There is no self-starting automobile in the world that has such a manufacturing record.

Think what it means to a man who owns one.

He has not paid for a false overhead.
He has not paid for manufacturing mistakes.
He has not paid for experimental work.
He has not paid for the changes of mind of another man.

Today you get a better Maxwell than any of the 300,000, and a better looking Maxwell. It is a finished work, a completed task, a thing well done.

You run no risk. This year the Maxwell sells for $895.00 F. O. B. Detroit, Michigan.

When you cast your eyes on this car you are tempted to feel that the price might easily be $200.00 more. A year's free service at EDDINS BROS., to each Maxwell owner, to be given at their garage.

Chalmers.

If you are thinking of buying a six cylinder car be sure to see the CHALMERS first, and hear that wonderful silent motor run. Take a ride in this car and convince yourself that there is nothing on the market that equals its running. This car is called the HOT SPOT and easily gets more miles to a gallon of gasoline than any car of its class. Be sure to see the CHALMERS before placing your order. Let me call your attention once more to the OLD RELIABLE, that is the INTERNATIONAL truck, this is one that is always ready to go and come. First, it is built right for our country work, second, it is built by manufacturers that stand behind every piece of it, third, from experience I know this to be true.

W. L. KIRKPATRICK,

Burlington, Ky.

W. L. Kirkpatrick has been in the automobile business two years and claims that he had sold more cars in the month of January than he has sold in any month during his two years experience.

All the schools in the county, except Hebron and probable two others are in progress again. The schools have labored under a very great disadvantage the past several months on account of the influenza.

Gardner L. Palmer was killed last Sunday at Princeton, Indiana, when his automobile which he was driving was struck by a traction car. The remains were brought to his home in Newport, and last Tuesday they were taken to Lawrenceburg, Indiana, for interment. The unfortunate man was a son of John Palmer, who in the 80's, conducted a blacksmith shop in Burlington. He is survived by a widow and three children.

Bentler's Economy Drug Store

ERLANGER, KY.

"When You Buy-Think Economy"

When we enrolled our store in the Cincinnati Wholesale Economy Drug Co. we had just one purpose in view—to give merchandise at the lowest possible price. The Cincinnati Wholesale Economy Drug Co. is such a big organization that in buying such large quantities to supply its hundreds of Retail Stores it naturally gets a special price on all articles from the manufacturers. They in turn give their Retail Economy Stores the benefit of this extraordinary price and we are thereby enabled to offer it to you at a price which cannot even be equalled. On at least 75 per cent of our merchandise a price prevails that isn't duplicated anywhere—a price that means dollars in every pocket. Remember this—all our prices are Economy Prices and Economy Prices mean just what the word economy does—a saving! Whether its Drugs, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Paints, or what-not you'll get it at an Economy Price at this store.

More Than a DRUG STORE

In addition to regular drug store merchandise we carry complete lines of Paints, Oils,

Wall Paper,
Wall Paper Cleaner

and numerous other articles.

Always remember, regardless of what you buy, you get it at an Economy Price.

Prevent Influenza WITH VICK'S Salve

It's the most successful preventive known to date. Used by thousands during the epidemics with marked success. No—it doesn't take the place of a doctor but it may keep the doctor away.

We are one of the few Drug Stores that still have a supply of this salve on hand. But—its going fast, buy now at our Economy Price—

Special Notice

To My Customers and Friends:

It has come to my notice in the last few weeks that work that had been sent to me to do had never reached me, but was taken some place else, where the parties bringing and delivering the work get paid at both ends, going and coming; and how this was found out, was that work that had been done by other parties, and I had done a credit with doing it, was brought to me to do over, and of course, not having done the work I refused to do it over with me being paid. Can you see this? Can anyone blame me when I had not done the faulty work? But, of course they were my customers and thought I had done the work until I informed them I had not.

Some of this work was rubber tire work, and those troublesome way times we all had our troubles. My trouble with rubber tires was I could not get wires that would not stretch and the tires would open where joined together, and of course that caused me a great deal of trouble and expense. The tire would also turn in the channel—could not draw wire tight enough as it would stretch. It was no fault of mine, I could not get the proper wire to do the work with, but the war being over, perhaps I will be able to get the proper material this year. Every time I have to change a rubber tire it costs me 65 cents, so you can realize that I am going to do the work right if possible. If it is not I will make it so. I always have and always will. I have been here 26 years and expect to stay, so come and see me; get prices; write or phone me—phone No. 91-x Erlanger. I surely will treat you right.

N. B.—I will use two grades of rubber tire this year—Killy-Springfield and Cooper Perfect. And my prices on anything in the carriage line. Rubber tires applied while you wait and look on.

The Old Reliable Carriage Man,

Sale to begin at 12 o'clock.

J. M. EDDINS, Auctioneer.

Home and Farm.

Spray the hen house, dip the fowls, increase the feed and make new nests.

Raise a few spring fryers and early pullets.

February and March are the months to increase the feed and attention to the stock and use shelled oats and condition powders.

Sow orchard grass with your sweet clover, this grass is a winter feed and the clover a summer feed. So your ground will not be bare in winter and the winter grazing is very important.

The tenant who does not make his land lord money will make none for himself. Hence he need expect to move at the end of a one year's lease.

Every farmer should sow a few oats for early feed and sorghum for late feed.

Some early mustard and lettuce in a good warm rich piece of land now will soon become "chow" for the family. Potatoes should be put out soon and a few hills of early potatoes.

Tenants should select a land lord who tries to keep his farm well improved. These men usually are the most successful.

The time has often been when the East Bend and Burlington road could scarcely be traveled on horseback in the month of February, but last Saturday several autos came into Burlington over that road, among the machines being one driven by County Road Engineer Goodridge. The good condition of the dirt roads is due to the very mild winter so far.

Household Hints.

Water in which rice has been boiled is a capital thing to use for mixing cake.

Always keep your gas stove perfectly clean. Gas cannot give out full heat through dirty burners. To bake potatoes quickly, let them stand in boiling water for a few minutes before putting them in the oven.

Egg stains in linen should be soaked in cold water—never in hot, which would make them almost impossible to remove.

Equal quantities of paraffin and kerosene make a good and cheap furniture polish; be sure to shake the bottle before using.

When dishes used for cooking have become discolored rub them with damp salt until all stain is removed.

A marble boiled in milk, porridge, custards etc., will automatically do the stirring as the liquid cooks, and so prevent burning.

Scatter salt on a carpet when sweeping, and you will not only find it has a cleansing effect, but that it also keeps away moths.

Liquid ammonia is invaluable for washing silver, softening bath water and producing a good lather when washing woodens.

The Ohio county, Indiana commissioners, have decided to purchase a steam roller and reclaimer to be used on the roads in that county. They also want 2500 perch of stone with which to put the Rising Sun and Aurora pike in condition, considerable complaint having been made because of the road being out of repair so badly.

A CONTRAST.

Louisville Post.
Senator Sherman, of Illinois, has said that he will retire from public life. He wishes no longer to be identified with Congress, which he says is held in contempt by the whole American people.

Sad as it is, there is unfortunately truth in Senator Sherman's remark. It is the fault primarily of the members of Congress, and among these none has been more at fault than Senator Sherman himself. The President and the administration on every excuse.

Many of these attacks—as for example that on President Wilson's stand concerning the German colonies—have been made before full information had reached the Senate and when complete information subsequently invalidated the attacks that were made. There has been a small clique of Senators that have seemed to have no purpose in the Senate but to criticize the President and seek to break down his influence with the people. The people have read these attacks and have found them ill-balanced and contemptible. It is no wonder now, when these attacks have been so long continued, that the American people should have transferred their contempt to the Senators themselves.

Though all American history the confidence of the American people has swayed back and forth between the legislative and executive branches of the government. In the early days the greatest confidence was placed in the President. In the decade before the Civil war the great figures of history were in Congress. Lincoln brought back confidence to the executive department; but for the term of his life only. Since then the confidence in the administrations of Cleveland and Roosevelt. They were the leaders of Congress. Whenever there is a strong man in the White House it is there that the people look for leadership, for the expression of their views, and for the achievement of their purposes. There has been no President in American history who has centered in himself the confidence and hope of the people that President Wilson. Even were he not attacked by Congress he would overshadow it. But when the Senators combine to attack the man in whom the people have such complete belief, it is only natural that the prestige of the Senate should suffer accordingly. No greater contrast could be found than in the speeches directed against the President in the Senate and the speeches being made by President Wilson in France. On the one hand we find pettiness, criticism existing for criticism's sake alone, innuendo, offending vanity, self-seeking. On the other we find the perfect expression of a leadership in the highest ideals the American people has achieved.

In his speech in the Chamber of Deputies Monday night President Wilson said among other things: "The rulers of the world have been thinking of the relations of government and forgetting the relations of peoples. They have been thinking of the maneuvers of international dealings when what they ought to have been thinking was the fortunes of men and women and the safety of home and the care that they should take of the people they represent."

The President, of course, had not the Senate in mind when he spoke, but it is not true that the Senators who are attacking him in the hope of adding prestige to the Republican party or to their own political fortunes are indeed thinking of the relations of governments and forgetting the people, thinking of maneuvers when they should be thinking of the fortunes of men and women and the safety of home and the care that they should take of the people they represent?

Resolutions of Respect.

Grant, Ky., Feb. 7, 1919.
Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty Ruler of the Universe to take from our midst our brother Edward E. Parsons, therefore be it Resolved, That we bow ourselves in humble submission to the decree from above.

Second, That we extend to the family of Bro. Parsons our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the widow, one to the Boone County Recorder and one to be spread upon the minutes of the Lodge.

W. M. SCOTT, Committee.
R. O. RYLE, T. C. SUTTON.

A few weeks ago the Recorder published a complete list of Boone county electors, and requested that certain information be furnished for the next issue and the list would be repeated, which was done, notwithstanding very few friends or relatives of the boys in khaki took interest enough in the matter to furnish the data requested. Since the second publication four or five have sent in the desired data, but it can not be used from the fact that the list of names has been distributed. The Recorder desired to make the second publication of the list a very interesting feature and one that would be appreciated by the boys and their relatives, but it failed in that cooperation was lacking on the part of those it thought were interested.

Mrs. J. E. Galt and sons, Harold and Virgil, were guests of Dr. J. E. Rouse and wife, of Ludlow, last Thursday night.

Keep Well

Do not allow the poisons of undigested food to accumulate in your bowels, where they are absorbed into your system. Indigestion, constipation, headache, bad blood, and numerous other troubles are bound to follow. Keep your system clean, as thousands of others do, by taking an occasional dose of the old, reliable, vegetable, family liver medicine.

Black-Draught

Mrs. W. F. Pickle, of Rising Fawn, Ga., writes: "We have used Theford's Black-Draught as a family medicine. My mother-in-law could not take calomel as it seemed too strong for her, so she used Black-Draught as a mild laxative and liver regulator. We use it in the family and believe it is the best medicine for the liver made." Try it. Insist on the genuine—Theford's. 25c a package. age. E-75

RED CLOVER CROP SHORT

Farmers Urged to Avoid Waste and to Use Alsike as Substitutes.

There is not enough red-clover seed to meet the demands upon that important legume as a restorer of soil fertility to American farms following the strains of war time conditions—not enough, that is, unless farmers practice economy and good judgment in its use. Both the carry over and the current crop of red clover seed appear to be below normal, while the need for seeding a large acreage to red clover in the Middle and Northern States is greater than for several years.

This information comes from the United States Department of Agriculture in Circular "Crops and Livestock Production in 1919," just issued from the Office of the Secretary. To make the best possible use of the available supply of clover seed so far as possible, farmers are urged to follow the best methods practicable in seeding and to avoid the risk of waste of seed by attempting to secure stands of red clover on lands unsuitable either in character or soil for this crop. In some cases, it is pointed out, alsike clover can be substituted successfully, especially on lands too wet or too acid for red clover.

17-year Locusts Due.

The most interesting insect in the world, the periodical cicada, is going to be seen, perhaps in very large numbers, during the coming spring and early summer over large regions of the United States where this brood has not appeared before for 17 years, and over other regions where another brood appeared 13 years ago. This is the insect commonly referred to as the "17-year locust," a name that is incorrect in at least two particulars. It is not a locust at all, that name being properly applied only to members of the grasshopper family, and while it has a 17-year period, it has been so long mislabeled by the locust, however, that there is no hope of divesting it of that incorrect appellation, and in the regions where there is no longer period of recurrence it will continue to be known as the "17-year locust," and in the areas of the shorter period of recurrence the "13-year locust." The scientifically accepted name of periodical cicada, therefore is the only one that exactly fits.

Plenty of Good Seed Corn.

A generally favorable marketing season last year has insured a plentiful supply of germinable seed corn. In some cases, drought reduced the quality of grain stored in the country, but in the majority of cases, the quality of the seed corn was not affected. The Department of Agriculture is looking good seed supply in North Dakota, Montana and Minnesota and making their location known to those wishing to purchase.

The treatment of seed grain to prevent fungous diseases is pointed out as probably the most important work in connection with spring sowing in 1919.

Fruit Spraying Campaign.

County Farm Agent Sutton conducted a very successful fruit spraying campaign last week, filling each and everyone of his appointments on the minute. Considerable good was accomplished by the campaign, and those who attended the spraying exhibitions consider the time they gave the work was well spent. There are many orchards in the county that could be restored to good bearing if the work of spraying was attended to annually at the proper time a number of years. In the past forty years this county has invested a very large amount in fruit trees that have amounted to very little, mainly because the young trees were not given the attention necessary to develop them. As young orchards are now handled there is not much excuse for a failure of trees, and the fruit business in this county should look up rapidly.

Boys Returning Home.

Quite a number of the boys have returned from the several military camps in the country and in several more will get home in time to help raise a crop. From that source there will be a considerable increase in the fruit crop this year, and if the crop increases in proportion to the increase of labor as compared with last year, Boone will produce a bumper crop in 1919. The boys who have returned all seem anxious to get to business and want to produce the largest crop possible this year.

The Burlington flu patients all got through with the disease on good terms. No cases of pneumonia developed.

Sidetracking the Car of Progress.

There is something astounding about the mental attitude of a group of United States Senators, with regard to the efforts of the counselors in Paris to form a league of peace. It is hard to construe them as anything less than a deliberate and willful effort to sidetrack the car of progress and of civilization. Their almost "glorious" glow over the proposal of the conference to permit each nation to make its own individual "reservations" as to the final terms must be a sort of horror and indignation in the minds of millions of people who regard the league as almost, if not entirely, the final hope of humanity.

These Senators are laughing to their sleeves because, as one of them says, a "league of nations, with reservations maintained by all the nations would be ineffectual no league at all. It would be a league on paper and without power to do anything worth while."

"Let us quit palavering and wind up the war with a substantial peace. We have work to do at home," says with a certain air of what we consider a childish naïveté. We wonder what he considers a substantial peace? Without a league of nations to maintain it may really be! In our humble opinion it would be a conflagration without a fire engine; a brick wall without plaster; a planetary system without the attraction of gravitation.

How any sane man can contemplate the thing occurring in life which is foaming around the world today without perceiving the imperious necessity of some means by which to restrain its maddest is a mystery. Right on the heels of a war which has almost thrust us back into the darkness of the middle ages, with its style is surely a warning, resting on their arms, with existing Governments threatened with absolute overthrow; with Bolshevism rearing its gigantic form and threatening the destruction of the existing order, these men talk glibly about bringing our soldiers and our civilians back home and "letting things slide" in the "old" world while we busy ourselves exclusively with affairs of the home front. It is as if a Board of Aldermen advising a community to avert a freshet which was undermining the foundations of the city, by sitting down to an evening banquet or a quiet game of cards.

Men who take this view of the present emergency of the race are in the line of the "quaint" and if so, would seem to be of necessity incompetent interpreters of the phenomena of the age in which we live. They are unworthy to represent a constituency, the rank and file of which see further into the future than they do themselves.

Charitable as we earnestly desire to be we cannot help regarding their obstructionist movements as an attempt to sidetrack the car of progress.

Which the world has ever made to save itself.—Enquirer.

Petersburg Property on Boom.

There has been a very considerable demand for Petersburg real estate in the past few months and many pieces have changed hands, in nearly every instance the purchaser being from the country. It has been known for some time that Petersburg real estate was selling at a more reasonable price than that in any other town in the country, but it was slow to start that way, and now that property has begun to change hands there is an increase in the price which is a natural result. If you want to buy real estate in Petersburg now is the time to be making your purchase as it is cheap. The price now, that it will ever be again.

Hon. Henry Watterson, who for the fifty-nine years last past has been chief editorial writer on the Courier-Journal of Louisville, enters his eightieth year this month and is able to wield his pen as vigorously as at any time in the past. Mr. Watterson is regarded as the strongest newspaper writer of the day in this country, his editorials always being intensely interesting and instructive, while his style is purely Watersonian, placing him in a class by himself. He is honored and respected as the intellectual giant of the newspaper fraternity in this country and he has attained a pinnacle of fame that will long tower above all others.

Robert Brady and Shelby Aera, who had been in Camp Meade, Md., for several months, came home last week from Camp Taylor, where they were discharged from the army. They were sent from the Maryland camp to Camp Taylor for demobilization. Henry Riley was detained at Camp Meade because of being in a hospital ill of the flu, it being his second attack.

W. H. P. Holloway has bought property in the town of Petersburg and will erect a modern garage. Mr. Holloway is an expert electrician and delights to work with automobiles. He said further that he has succeeded in some residence property and can draw upon his own conclusions as to why this purchase.

ANOTHER AUTO ACCIDENT

Four Men Narrowly Escape Death When Auto Hits Telephone Pole.

A party of Bellevue people were returning from Mrs. Laile's sale last Wednesday afternoon, when the automobile in which they were riding left the road shortly after passing Chas. Birkle's out on the Bellevue pike, and struck a telephone pole which was shattered and the machine had been struck by lightning. The machine was turned over, the occupants spilled out, and how they escaped death is a mystery to those who viewed the wreck and the position the car was in. The news of the accident reached Burlington in a few minutes and the police opened and Dr. Duncan and several other citizens hastened to the scene to render first aid. The only person hurt was Albert Birkle, the extent of his injuries not being determined at the time the men left for their homes. The machine belonged to O. N. Scott, and was owned by Mr. Scott. Perry Bruce, Elbert Sullivan and Jas. McCarty. Dudley Blyth took the party on home in his father's machine.

Burlington's Population.

It is quite natural when a stranger comes into our town to ask the number of inhabitants. It is amusing to hear the answers given. "Some will say about 600," others will say, "O, I guess about 500, 600 or 700" others will say, 500, 600 or 700. Five or six years ago I counted 250 inhabitants. At the present time I count 55 residences and 175 inhabitants. There are 18 widows, 1 widower, 12 real old men and 12 old women. The above is within the limits of the town. There are as many more of the same kind in the country. A half mile or so of little city.

J. E. HALL.

Committed Suicide.

Everett Boyers, 35, son of Samuel Boyers, committed suicide at the home of his father in Florence last Friday about noon by shooting himself in the heart with a shotgun. His father discovered the body in a short time after the act was committed. No one about the house or elsewhere having heard the report of the gun. It is said he had been despondent for some time. On several occasions had been heard to make remarks that are now interpreted as alluding to his suicide. Esq. H. Tanner was just held inquest on the body. Burial at Florence.

Test Your Seed Corn.

No one suspects the germinating qualities of the corn grown in 1919 are as defective as those of the corn produced in 1917, but it is just as well to test your seed corn again this year and be on the safe side. If your defective grain you detect is a considerable saving to you as it costs as much to cultivate a barren seed as one that will grow in a space of equal size that is producing. Rest your seed corn.

Will Have Public Sale.

L. M. Rouse and son, Otis, of Union neighborhood, were among the business men who are holding a public sale of real estate on Monday. The first item left over for advertising a considerable sale of personal property, the fourth of next month. While in town Otis Rouse closed a trade with B. E. Aylor for 34 acres of land that joins on the tract he bought of Jas. Kelly. Mr. Rouse now has 130 acres in his tract.

The men who are constructing the fills for approaches to the bridges out on the Petersburg pike say they have dug up several years' locusts, which appeared to be ready to come forth at the proper time. According to the Recorder's tab these locusts are due in this part of the country this year.

Robert Grant, of the Idlewild neighborhood, was in Burlington, one afternoon last week. He had not recovered entirely from an attack of the influenza and was suffering considerably from sciatica. He is now in the hands of Dr. Dillsboro, Ind., for treatment for the sciatica.

Several times this month it has threatened to turn cold and up Jack but the clouds passed away and the wind became tempered fit for the shore lamb. This part of the country has been blessed with climate this winter.

A very large crowd attended the sale of the personal property of the late A. H. Evans last Wednesday. The bidding was brisk and good prices prevailed, the sale amounting to a very considerable sum.

Archibald Aera has his entire work done at home again, now that an agricultural strike has struck the Middle creek hills.

Elmer Kelly and wife spent last Sunday in Covington, guest of H. W. Rouse and family.

This is a week of public sales in this country.

The World's Opinion.

Nations are not unlike individuals. They must of necessity attain and hold the good opinion of their fellows. They must stand well before the world. Right now America's standing is not high.

Let us help keep it so. America went into this world war more than anything else to retain her position before the world. To maintain her honor among the nations of the earth.

Germany had outraged it; had scoffed at it; had put upon Uncle Sam every sort of humiliation. Had dubbed us a nation of cowardly money chasers.

Finally as a last straw she began making war upon innocent women and children. Sinking our vessels without warning; drowning Americans wholesale.

And the world had more or less of a right to think pretty much as Germany did.

All that has been changed; swiftly, effectively, finally. Today the whole world takes of us as we are.

To our aggressiveness, our enterprise, our dash and courage and gallantry, our shrewd fighting strength and ability.

It will be many a day before a foreign nation again attempts to tread upon the tail of our coast. They know.

And having won the world's good opinion they hold it.

Uncle Sam has extensive financial and moral obligations to the world. Obligations that are imperative, vital, crucial.

Obligations that, as it were, are heavy. He must with cold cash, bills that must be paid; loans that must be made in the final rescue and restoration of Europe.

And as you and I and the millions of others, citizens of this republic, are in truth America in the flesh, this is our obligation.

Just as we have a duty to do. Let's meet it in the same spirit we met the Hun.

Let's take all of this Victory Liberty Loan.

School Notes.

Several inquiries have come into my office as to the length of time the school will be in session. In answer to this question there will be only six months common school term this session.

We desire to extend attention to both teachers and trustees to the annual report for the respective school districts; also the record books of the teachers and trustees. We will special attention to these items: "Attendance by days" for each pupil; "Monthly and Term Average" for each pupil; "Pupils Enrolled by day" for each pupil; "Promotion or Failure of each Pupil;" "Summary." If these records are not compiled to the succeeding teacher or confusion and a great loss ensues.

We are not disposed to settle for the last month's teaching unless the teachers and trustees are not disposed to be accompanied by a statement from both of these parties stating the records and results. We will ask the teachers to attend to these reports before the last day of school. Should there be any items you will bring your record book to the Superintendent's office, we will be more than pleased to give any assistance. Can, let's have complete records from every school.

J. C. GORDON, Superintendent.

Dr. and Mrs. O. S. Crisler, of Columbia, Mo., were guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Crisler, several days the past week. While in town the Doctor's uncle, B. E. Crisler and his sister, Mrs. Eugene Long, of McVine, Dr. Crisler has made his home in the city for some time since his graduation, and has charge of the Serum department in a State Agricultural College in Columbia, Burlington is proud of Dr. Crisler.

NATION IS BEGINNING FINANCIAL RECOVERY

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD FINDS READJUSTMENT COMING AFTER ABNORMAL WAR CONDITIONS

Washington.—Definite evidences of the beginning of financial recuperation following abnormal war conditions are set forth by the Federal Reserve Board in a review of the February reserve bulletin. These evidences are: increase of bank balances at financial centers, a tendency toward lower rates for money, lessening of the amount of paper held by Federal Reserve and Member Banks, inflow of gold coin and gold certificates at banks, indicating greater confidence in the financial situation, and lessened demand for money, and decline in the volume of Federal Reserve notes outstanding, demonstrating the elasticity of the Federal Reserve system.

The board explored evidences of the relaxation of wartime economic conditions, saying that the industries of the United States and other countries would soon need quantities of capital, and that it behooved Americans to continue to live thrifty and pile up reserves of credit.

"The return of active production and consumption is being," said the board observed, "by high expansion of production."

MILLWORKER TELLS THE 1919 VERSION OF BREAD UPON WATERS

AST his bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days." Millions of Americans can today testify to the truth of this promise. We have lived a mild winter so far excepting a big snow storm during the holidays. This snowing here today but it is not very cold.

"I saw a notice in a late issue of your paper of the death of Sarah J. Aylor, widow of Jameson Aylor. This item carries me back to the days of long ago when I was young and lived in Old Kentucky. I attended the wedding of these young persons, and if anyone else is living back there who was at that wedding I would be pleased to hear from them."

We have lived a mild winter so far excepting a big snow storm during the holidays. This snowing here today but it is not very cold.

MRS. R. N. UTZ, Valley Falls, Kansas.

The dog license tax has brought in a considerable sum of money in this county, much more than it has ever been before. It is a fact under any of the dog laws of the past, although the number of dogs in the county are about the same as in the past. The past laws the assessors could not secure a correct listing of the dogs in the county, but the tag law has been a success in that many a canine that heretofore was "no man's dog."

W. O. Doctor, of Petersburg, sold at the Aurora Loose Leaf market one day last week 4,355 pounds of tobacco at $33.25 per 100; Cecil Burns, of Hebron, sold 2,655 pounds at $21 per 100.

R. L. Brown, of Florence, having contracted the public sale fever came over last Monday and placed an advertisement for a public sale to begin at 1 o'clock, Saturday, March 1.

John Clout, of Hebron, was in Burlington last Monday and called on the Recorder and left an order for some printing for the Hebron Telephone Company.

Robt. Day, of the Francesville neighborhood, was in town Monday and he reported that out of a flock of 34 ewes he has forty nice lambs.

Marcellus Rouse and family, of Limaburg neighborhood, are visiting his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Rouse, in Covington.

Lee Masters, of Buittsville, sold his crop of 2,740 pounds of tobacco, on the Covington Loose Leaf market last Friday at sixty cents per pound, good for Lee.

Woodie Sullivan and family, of Commissary neighborhood, were Sunday guests at J. H. Huey's in North Bend neighborhood.

Mrs. F. A. Hall spent from Friday until Monday with her daughters, Mrs. H. W. Shearer and Miss Bess Hall, in Newport.

Eljah Stephens bought of Dolph Seiber his four acres of land adjoining the High School property on the east.

Mrs. Fred Morris spent from Saturday until Monday with her relatives at Latonia.

L. H. Kelly, of Petersburg, was transacting business in Burlington last Monday.

The North Kentucky Fair will be held this year on August 28, 29 and 30.

More than one-half of the cotton crop of 1918 grew in Texas, Georgia, and South Carolina.

Mentor Martin and wife have moved in with C. C. Roberts and wife for the present.

Next Saturday being a national holiday there will be no rural mail delivered that day.

Bernard Jones has moved from the Petersburg neighborhood to the Ft. Pleasant neighborhood.

Russell Finn, of Plattsburg, has a severe case of pneumonia, following the second attack of influenza.

A very large crowd attended C. C. Roberts' sale last Tuesday and good prices prevailed. Corn sold for $1.00 a bushel.

Fitzhugh Lee Tanner has moved from Mt. Pleasant neighborhood to the Frogtown neighborhood, on Walton R. D. 2.

Mrs. Love Tanner, of Madisonville, Ohio, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Lavina Kirkpatrick, several days last week.

This certainly is fine weather for young lambs, many of which are putting in their appearance in different neighborhoods in this county.

Mrs. Ada Conner, after a visit of several months with her daughter, Mrs. Cora Rouse, of Paynes Depot, Scott county, returned to her home last Friday.

Man past 30 with horse and buggy to sell Stock Condition Powder in Boone county. Salary $30 per month. Address 221 South Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Mr. Borders, of Pleasant Valley neighborhood, was the guest of C. C. Roberts, Wednesday. He was assisting Mr. Roberts to get straightened out after his sale.

It will require considerable work to complete one of the fills for the second bridge out on the Petersburg pike. Teams and machines have been having considerable trouble at that crossing lately.

Robert Brown, of Florence, called a few days ago and advertised a public sale, it being his intention to devote his time to the building of barns this year, already having contracts to build five.

The Recorder has had an unusually large run of advertising the past few weeks, and as the copy nearly all has to be handled the last two days before press day it interferes with the local news very much. But the rush will soon be over and then the readers will make up for lost time, but the advertising being largely fresh matter every week makes good reading.

PETERSBURG.

Mrs. Louie Brady is visiting at her parents, Mrs. Martin Surface. Hazel McWethy was calling on Teriida Cropper last Tuesday evening.

Special Notice

To My Customers and Friends:

It has come to my notice in the last few weeks that work that had been sent to me to do had never reached me, but was taken some place else, where the parties bringing and delivering the work get pay at both ends, going and coming; and how this was found out, was that work that had been done by other parties, and I had been credited with doing it, was brought to me to do over, and, of course, not having done the work I refused to do it over with out being paid. Can you blame me? Can anyone blame me when I had not done the faulty work? But, of course they were my customers and thought I had done the work until I informed them I had not.

Some of this work was rubber tire work, and those troublesome war times we all had our troubles. My trouble with rubber tires was I could not get wires that would not stretch and the tires would open where joined together, and of course that caused me a great deal of trouble and expense. The tires would also turn in the channel—could not draw wire tight enough as it would stretch. It was no fault of mine. I could not get the proper wire to do the work with, but the war being over, perhaps I will be able to get the proper material this year. Every time I have to change a rubber tire it costs me 65 cents, so you can realize that I am going to do the work right if possible. If it is not I will make it so. I always have and always will. I have been here 20 years and expect to stay, so come and see me; get prices; write or phone me—phone No. 61-x Erlanger. I surely will treat you right.

N. B.—I will use two grades of rubber tire this year—Kelly-Springfield and Cooper Peerless. Got my prices on anything in the carriage line. Rubber tires applied while you wait and look on.

We will sell at public sale to the highest bidder, the JERRY CARPENTER FARM OF

218 ACRES

106 acres being on the West side of the Carpenter road and 112 acres on the East side of same; three-fourths of a mile from Frogtown Pike and three-fourths of a mile from the Hicks Pike; 185 acres in grass and splendidly improved.

Good Tobacco, Corn, Stock and Dairy Farm rolling slightly, mowing machine can be run every acre; perfect title, and full possession March 1st. On the 112 acre tract is a two-story frame dwelling house of nine rooms, in first-class repair and recently painted. Also two large barns, one 44x64 feet and the other 40x50 feet, recently newly shingled and overhauled. One is fitted with the James Dairy equipment with concrete floor, etc., and silo. On the 106 acre tract is good tenant house. Each tract will be offered separately and then the two tracts offered together and the price accepted which is most advantageous.

TERMS OF SALE.

$3,000 cash and the balance in 8 equal annual installments at 6 per cent., secured by lien on the land and the rents, issues and profits, with privilege of paying any or all at any time. For the purpose of aiding to build pikes we will donate from the purchase price to the proper authority one thousand ($1,000) dollars for a pike between the two said pikes, if built in three years; or commenced in good faith, with authority and approval of the Boone Fiscal Court.

The sale will be at the front door of the Equitable Bank & Trust Company in Walton, Ky., promptly at two o'clock p. m. As a part of this farm there will go to the purchaser 1000 tobacco sticks, one manure spreader, ten barrels of corn, 300 fence posts, and a lot of fence wire.

A lot of live stock will be sold privately and preference given to the purchaser. This is one of the best farms and best fenced farms in Boone County and is in one of the best neighborhoods. This farm is two miles West of Richmond, a station of the O. & C. Railroad, five miles from Walton, 14 miles from Covington and 1½ miles from the Dixie Highway. Parties anticipating bidding on the land should make a thorough inspection of the farm and its very desirable location before the day of sale, Saturday, March 1st, 1919, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the Equitable Bank & Trust Company, Walton, Ky.

Farm valued at $100 per acre. Will positively be sold to the highest bidder.

Local Happenings.

This has been a week of sales in this part of the county.

Boss Eddins, one of the local game men, has a light attack of flu.

Henry Clore had a good day for his sale and a big crowd was in attendance.

Mr. Kerr and a force of hands are crushing stone out on the Florence pike.

Next Saturday being Washington's birthday both of the local banks will be closed.

The tobacco market has been strong this week, some record sales having been made.

The colored people have purchased an acre of land of J. M. Eddins for cemetery purposes.

Elijah Stephens sold the four acres of land he bought of Dolph Seebree to Lucien Clore, making a profit of $25 on the acre.

A pretty good sized crowd attended R. B. Carver's sale last Monday afternoon, and satisfactory prices prevailed.

Goebel Stephenson and Miss Anita Tanner, of Florence, were married last Saturday evening at Rev. Royer's near Florence.

Attention—Knights of Pythias. Meeting Saturday night, Feb. 22. Work in Second Degree. All members expected to be present.

Rev. Robt. McNeely is in a hospital in Cincinnati, where he went to have his eyes treated. He has lost the sight of one and it is feared he may lose the other.

Lewis Sullivan has sold his farm on Ashby Fork for $7,000 cash, it being the farm that was owned and occupied by the late Henry P. Crisler. A gentleman named Hicks is said to be the purchaser.

You can look over the list of persons who have taken out dog licenses and see if there are any names missing from the list that should be thereon and count up the canines that appear to be not licensed.

Mrs. Hayes, who lives on George Kreyhills place, raised and sold $150 worth of turkeys last year after retaining eight as a starter for this year. The tobacco growers are not the only persons who make money.

The flu seems to be increasing in the cities and many parts of the country. About the time the pesky disease is supposed to have run its course it breaks out again, the only consolation being it appears to be growing milder.

Hear that J. S. Cason, who was a candidate for assessor at the last primary election, has bought Lewis Bermon's farm on the head waters of Middle Creek in the farm that was owned by the late John Acra at the time of his death.

Mrs. F. A. Hall received a letter Sunday from her nephew, Wm. O. Ryle, saying he had arrived safely in New York from Marsailles, France, and would leave in a few days for San Francisco, California, where he would be mustered out of the service.

A couple of big land deals are reported in Idlewild neighborhood. They involve what is known as the R. C. Gines and the Paschal Rucker farms. The names of the purchasers have not been learned. It is said the Gines farm sold for $36,000, which is more than double what Mr. Gines got when he sold it a few years ago.

A large number of new land owners have hit in this county the past year. Never before did the land owners of Boone county know that their possession were so desirable, the reason being outsiders have but recently become aware of the fertility of Boone county soil and its very favorable location as to markets.

PRINCE ALBERT

TALK about smokes, Prince Albert is geared to a joyhanded standard that just lavishes smokehappiness on every man game enough to make a bee line for a tidy red tin and a jimmy pipe—old or new!

Get it straight that what you've hankered for in pipe or cigarette makin's smokes you'll find aplenty in P. A. That's because P. A. has the quality!

You can't any more make Prince Albert bite your tongue or parch your throat than you can make a horse drink when he's off the water! Bite and parch are cut out by our exclusive patented process!

You just lay back like a regular fellow and puff to beat the cards and wonder why in samhill you didn't nail a section in the P. A. smokepasture longer than you care to remember back!

Buy Prince Albert everywhere tobacco is sold. Tippy red bags, tidy red tins, handsome pound and half pound tins humidors—and that clever, practical—humidor with sponge moisture pot that keeps the tobacco in such perfect condition.

'Chain' Tread

The Economy of Buying Good Tires

It's mighty poor economy to put cheap tires on your car.

If you can't depend on your tires, you can't depend on your car, —and you can't get the high grade of service it ought to give you.

It pays to buy good tires—United States Tires.

They represent the highest value it is possible to build into tires.

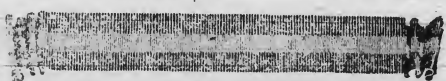

There are five different passenger car treads—the only complete line built by any tire manufacturer.

Each has the built-in strength that means your money back in extra miles.

Among them are exactly the tires you want for your car, and your driving conditions.

Our nearest Sales and Service Depot Dealer will gladly help you.

BOONE CO. RECORDER

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY
W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.Entered at the Post Office in Burlington, Ky., as Second-Class Mail.Some very favorable weather the past week for handling tobacco.Not many from the country came to town last Saturday. Too much winter for them.At present this part of the country is considerably behind in the normal amount of winter rain fall. Look out that the drier time is not made up about planting time the coming spring.Miss Mary Furlong found a book last Friday that belongs to Joseph Surface according to the inscription, and he can have the book by calling on the finder at her home in Burlington.Clifford Hodges, who went to the city several weeks ago to engage in business, after a brief experience with city life, has returned to the soil, and is now busy preparing to tobacco plant beds and building hens' nests.Charles Mantz and son, Otto, from out on Burlington R. D. 3, were visitors to Burlington last Friday afternoon. Mr. Mantz has sold to his brother his interest in the farm they owned jointly and is ready to purchase another when he finds one that fits the bill. Mr. Mantz and brother sold a very large quantity of produce off of their farm the past year.Dr. Hays of Bullittsville, was in last Friday, and left copy for advertising for sale a considerable quantity of personal property belonging to his son, Holman. He also advertised his farm of 150 acres for sale. The farm is a portion of the large tract that belonged to Henry T. James, and is one of the most desirable locations in the northern part of the county, and Dr. Hays will, doubtless, soon find a purchaser.Owen Hulitt, of Williamstown, who died on the 10th inst., spent a considerable portion of his boyhood in Burlington, where he lost everybody his friend. He was born in La-Grange, Oldham county, and after the death of his father he and his mother came to Burlington, where Mrs. Hulitt kept house for her bachelor brother, the late attorney
James W. Culvert. From Burlington young Hulitt went to Williamstown, where, for many years, he has been one of the leading business men. The deceased is survived by his wife and one son and one daughter. The Grant County News says
"It is doubtful if a better man ever lived in Williamstown."

Ladies' Aid Quilting Bee last Wednesday. A lovely dinner was served to twelve delighted workers, and all join in thanking Mrs. Tupman for her generous hospitality.Mr. and Mrs. John Gross entertained quite a number of friends and relatives, last Tuesday. Several of the neighbors brought hogs to be killed, making it quite a big day.All helped and had a jolly time.

We Couldn't Make the Maxwell any Better; So We Made it Better Looking.When the task was done it looked like a different Maxwell.
It was a five year drive to reach this peak of Maxwell efficiency. But the engineers, and the manufacturing men knew that building a chassis without fundamental change in design year after year would ultimately tell in results.
For everyone knows that doing one thing results in doing it well.So in five years 300,000 Maxwells have come forth, all built on the original chassis plan, each new one better than the last.There is no self-starting automobile in the world that has such a manufacturing record.

Think what it means to a man who owns one.

He has not paid for a false overhead.

He has not paid for manufacturing mistakes.

He has not paid for experimental work.

He has not paid for the changes of mind of another man.

Today you get a better Maxwell than any of the 300,000, and a better looking Maxwell. It is a finished work, a completed task, a thing well done.You run no risk. This year the Maxwell sells for $895.00
F. O. B. Detroit, Michigan.When you cast your eyes on this car you are tempted to feel that the price might easily be $200.00 more. A year's free service at EDDINS BROS., to each Maxwell owner, to be given at their garage.

Chalmers.

If you are thinking of buying a six cylinder car be sure to see the CHALMERS first, and hear that wonderful silent motor run. Take a ride in this car and convince yourself that there is nothing on the market that equals its running.
This car is called the HOT SPOT and easily gets more miles to a gallon of gasoline than any car of its class. Be sure to see the CHALMERS before placing your order.
Let me call your attention once more to the OLD RELIA-BLE, that is the INTERNATIONAL truck, this is one that is always ready to go and come. First, it is built right for our country work, second, it is built by manufacturers that stand behind every piece of it, third, from experience I know this to be true.W. L. KIRKPATRICK, Burlington, Ky.

Out of the War Came Economy

Economy

Limited supply and high prices came to stay awhile. They neither lingered nor out-journed—they settled with us for a real visit. There was no adjustment—there could be no adjustment because the war had made them. There was only one form of relief in sight and it was quickly adopted by all. ECONOMY!—that was the watch-word of the home. Buying only the things we needed at the least price obtainable saved the day.

A wonderful lesson for the consumer but one merely emphasizing the policy of the Economy Drug Organization. To patronize our Economy Drug Store means to economize in its fullest sense. Economy Prices means the change in your pocket—not in the cash register. Let the lesson be a permanent one—continue your policy of Economy.

CONSTANCE

Miss Carrie Dewit visited her niece Mrs. Virgie Kottmyer one day last week.

Mrs. Levi Tunning was buried in the cemetery here. She lived the larger part of her life just across the line in Kenton.

Mrs. Kate Dolwick and Mrs. Carrie Miller attended the funeral of their brother, Philip Miller, of Cincinnati, and their nephew last week.

This community was shocked by the announcement of the sudden death of D. C. Reeves, last Tuesday morning. His little six year old granddaughter, Olga, went to call him to his breakfast, and found him dead, death being due to acute indigestion. Mr. Reeves was born, raised lived and died in Burlington. He was born April 16, 1864, and died Feb. 11, 1919, aged 54 years, 9 months and 25 days. He was a Civil war veteran and took a deep interest in the war.

Judge Strother, of Walton, was a business visitor to Burlington last Monday and made this office a pleasant call.

Harry Fawcett spent last Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Campbell, at Latonia.

For Sale—Medium sized pair of young black maros, fluid workers. L. R. McNeely, Burlington.

WRITES FROM GERMANY.

Sergeant Benjamin Pascoe, well known in this county, writes to his niece in Covington, under date of January 26, from Germany, as follows:

Dear Niece:—
Will try and answer your letter and thank you for those papers you sent me. Do I read them? Well I should say—every word of them. It is just like getting a letter from home. If all the Boone boys over here received them they sure got over their homesickness. "Toot Sweet"—that is as far as I ever advanced in the French language. That means "right away," or "very soon," or "p. d. q."

Well, Karma, you said something about skating and sleigh riding. If you were here you would look in vain for snow or ice. We have had one light snow and no ice this winter. It is warm enough to go about without an overcoat most of the time, but you need a rain coat quite often. Fields of grain here are as green as in spring time.

I have my pipe going good and will smoke it and then go to bed. We are stationed in a very nice town on the Rhine river. The people seem to be very nice to the Yankee soldiers. Of course they do not associate with them and don't bother them in anyway. We go our way and they go theirs. I guess they are more glad than anyone that the war is over. The farmers are out every day working on their farms, getting ready for spring planting.

I guess this was a fine country before the war. You remember what Sherman said about war. He said war was hell—exactly—but some things about it are funny. A man sees some funny things when he has some funny experiences as well as close calls and hard times. If he gets scared he gains some more white hairs for his head and has an inclination to head his freight to some far and distant spot where the birds sing sweetly and no shells explode.

Well, Karma, you get a chance to tell Mr. W. L. Kirkpatrick, of the Recorder that I always thought that he published a good paper, but I would swear now that he has the best old paper in the world. Every time I read it I just feel like I was back in old Boone. You can send him this letter if you want, and he can find out what I think of his paper. Every time I feel blue I get one of them and read it, and then I feel better.

I will close with best wishes to one and all. Answer soon as I am always glad to hear from you, and send me some more Recorder whenever you can. Address: Sergeant B. C. Pascoe, Headquarters Co. 9th Inf., A. E. F., Germany.

FROM GROSSBACH, GERMANY

Geo. W. Walton writes his mother from Grossbach, Germany, January 19th as follows:

Dearest Mother,—
I was certainly glad today to get your letter of the 21st. Now that you have my permanent address I hope to get mail regularly. I never have received any of the replacement mail and don't expect to as no one has. All of that mail was mailed up and is probably in the dead-letter office in the States.

10th Co. 3rd, bat. 5th Reg. U. S. M. C. A. E. F. will be my address as long as I'm in the M. C. I will get it O. K. addressed thus.

Today is election day of the German people and I certainly hope that they will be strong enough to deal in matters of the Peace Conference. Every one past the age of 21 is allowed to cast a vote—and we all, if I ever—going home. We may be insured a speedy return, but things are bungled we may be here for a long time. Hope not.

You are not a soldier until you go over the top, eat raw meat, drink watery soup, and learn to be a shovel expert when the shells are bursting near. I certainly had some thrilling experience. The three most necessary articles at the front are first, a shovel; second, a helmet; third, a mask. I didn't have a shovel when I first went in but I soon grabbed a first used in my trench. I got that I used my bayonet and bayonet as trenching and digging with the bayonet and throwing the dirt out with the meat pan. Just before we went over the top November 1, my pals and I dug as a hole as the shells already began to light among us. At first the shelling was light and we were reluctant about digging in very deep. Pretty soon they opened upon us and you should have seen us change our minds and dig in deeper. It is rather queer how large you feel when you are in a hole and how small you can make your self in a shell fire. You can hide behind a stone no larger than your fist. My helmet saved my life several times and I hope to bring it home with me.

These few instances I narrate are only the minor ones. I will explain more when I can talk more directly to you. Tell everyone to write quick and I want to get mail often. Send me some Recorders and write often. Love to all.

GEO. W. WALTON.

Everett Boyer, 40, blacksmith, committed suicide last Thursday by shooting himself through the heart with a shot gun. He leaves a wife, daughter and an aged father to mourn his death.

RABBIT HASH.

Mrs. Josie Platt is having the ferry road repaired.
Born to Mr. and Mrs. Made Hadley, Feb. 15th, a girl.

James West and family, of Rising Sun, were guests at E. R. Scott's, Sunday.

Robert Hankinson is at home from Camp Sheridan, having been honorably discharged.

Philip Cayton, of Aberdeen, Indiana, was visiting his nephew John Louder, Sunday, and Saturday.

There are numerous cases of flu in this neighborhood. Six cases in Wm. Hankinson's family. All are reported doing well.

S. N. Riggs will move his shop and machinery to Rising Sun this week. Fred Birkle has taken his place as blacksmith here.

Wallace Stephens spent several days at home last week. He is running his boat, Estel, in the Kentucky river packet trade.

GRANT R. D.

Mrs. Irene White is the guest of her father, Dony Cook.

William Presser and wife spent Sunday at J. L. Hodge's.

Mrs. Z. T. Kelly is under the care of Dr. Veltion, of Burlington.

Mrs. Lydia Peel is staying with Mrs. M. C. Hodge, who is sick.

Rising Sun, Ind., has a second epidemic of influenza. There is said to be 100 new cases.

Robt. Brady is on the mail route again, after having spent about six months at Camp Meade, Md.

Dr. Carlyle is kept quite busy now. Among the sick are Mrs. Everett Clore, Violet Murray and Solon Ryle, who has laryngitis.

Robert Hankinson, who came home from Camp Meade, Md., last week, went to Walton Saturday to act as pall-bearer for Mr. Norman, one of his friends who died in camp.

Howard Ayler writes his parents from a hospital in southern France that his wound is healing nicely now; that he has contracted mumps but thinks he will soon be well.

Mrs. R. C. McNulty is visiting friends in Newport in order to be near her husband, Rev. McNulty, who is in a Cincinnati hospital. He was expected home last Saturday but was unable to come.

Things Worth Knowing.

Two-thirds of the dressed production of 1915 came from North Dakota and Montana.

One town of 2,000 people in Georgia produced 35,000 pounds of pork from pigs raised in back yards during 1918.

It is estimated that Kansas farmers last year saved about $5,000,000 on wheat and alfalfa as a result of grasshopper poisoning.

Iowa and Illinois produced 25 per cent of the corn in 1918 and these States and Indiana, Missouri, Ohio, and Nebraska produced about one-half.

Exports of oats from the United States were usually only a very few million bushels yearly before the war, but in the fiscal year beginning in 1917 they have averaged about 100,000,000 bushels.

A remarkable feature of the tobacco-growing industry is the fact that the stocks of tobacco held by dealers and manufacturers at any time of the year equal or exceed the quantity for the previous year, no allowance being made for difference of moisture, content. Stocks are lowest about midwinter and highest in the spring.

Although spraying is one of the most expensive of orchard operations, the value of the crop is so greatly increased thereby that it is a comparatively small investment. The expense amounts to only a fraction of the returns directly due to the price of the orchard spraying is, in fact, an exceedingly cheap form of insurance.

SURVIVORS OF FEUDAL TIMES

Prussian Junkers Rooted in Their Belief of Their Complete Superiority to Ordinary Man.

A Junker is a member of a noble Prussian family, who belongs to the landed aristocracy, and, as a rule, adopts the profession of arms and enters the caste circle of the officer corps. Thanks to the survival of feudalism in the organization of German society, the Junkers have acquired a broad and reactionary view, because they desire to preserve intact the exclusive social, military and political privileges belonging traditionally to the "well born."

Since 1862, when, under the leadership of Bismarck, the aristocratic party came into political power, the Junkers have been and still are of great influence, for they have affected Prussian domestic policies by their organized efforts to preserve and protect large landed estates; they have molded German social life by their assumption of complete superiority to the ordinary man, especially to the man who engages in trade or manufactures, while the Prussian officer corps has taken its distinctive tone from their haughty aloofness from the civilian population.

Prussianism and Junkerdom indicate the policies and the customary round of ideas, habits and traditions characteristic of the Junker class.

They have been and still are of great influence, for they have affected Prussian domestic policies by their organized efforts to preserve and protect large landed estates; they have molded German social life by their assumption of complete superiority to the ordinary man, especially to the man who engages in trade or manufactures, while the Prussian officer corps has taken its distinctive tone from their haughty aloofness from the civilian population.

RELIGIOUS CULT MAY SPREAD

Babism Freed From Persecution Through the Downfall of the Turkish Power in Palestine.

With the breaking of the Turkish power in Palestine another religious cult has been liberated from persecution, that of Babism, or Bahism. The leader of this spiritual movement is Abdul Baha, or Abbas Effendi, as he is generally known. This religion was first founded by Baha'ullah, the father of the present leader, and he chose his son to preach its doctrines before the world.

Due to the antagonism of the movement to the Islam religion, Abdul Baha was imprisoned by the sultan of Turkey, who feared his teachings, and was kept a prisoner in the fortress of Akko, near Haifa, for 40 years. Upon his release in 1908, when a mild constitutional form of government was established in Turkey, Baha traveled through France and England preaching his doctrines, also coming to the United States, in 1912.

Abdul Baha strove to be called the "servant of humanity." While in the Orient he won many friends by caring for the sick and oppressed, and among the many titles given him by his neighbors was one especially applied to him, namely "Father of the Poor." While in this country he established colonies of supporters of his teachings in Chicago and Kenosha, Wis. His teachings have a close relation with those of Christianity and Judaism.

Muskat Stops Train.
The marshes around the Boston & Maine railroad yards in Boston are full of muskrats. Charley Brown, a yard brakeman, has been realizing over $300 a week since the war by shooting muskrats on his spare time and selling the fur, which now commands a high price.

Brown has been known to shoot a muskrat from the top of a moving freight car with a rifle.
A short time ago a muskrat tied up the interlocking switch system at signal tower C. The big rat crawled into the switchpoints to eat out the grease used to lubricate the switches. Just as the lever man in the tower tried to close the switch for a fast express passenger train.

The rat had wedged in so close the switch wouldn't close and the plant was tied up. The mechanic found the rat wedged into the points and crushed into a mass of fur and flesh.

American Opportunity.
Although the population area of Siberia is only a belt along the Trans-Siberian railway, that belt is 6,000 miles long and contains nearly 20,000,000 people. Before the war Siberian foreign trade was largely in the hands of German houses, which undoubtedly will make desperate efforts to regain it when the return of normal conditions has brought back the demand for general merchandise, rolling stock and agricultural machinery. But in spite of the geographical proximity of Germany eastern Siberia, when its railway service has been reorganized, will be most easily reached by way of Vladivostok. The commercial opportunity is one that America cannot afford to neglect.—Youth's Companion.

The Confused Hun.
Dr. Thomas C. Ely of Philadelphia tells a story of his son, Lieut. William C. Ely, heard at Fort McPherson, Atlanta, which illustrates the heblism of the negro troops.

A German officer, taken captive complained that nothing could stop the Americans. They were not afraid of the shells, they defied the flame projectors, they advanced through fusillades of the machine guns of 280 to 360 bullets a minute.

"How about the gas?" some one said to the German.

"Gas?" replied the captive Hun. "It was no use to turn on the gas. It merely blackened their faces and frizzled their hair, and they came on just the same!"

IF a poultryman were running an engine—

HE would burn fuel that produced steam—not hot water. Yet poultrymen feed their hens, which are nothing but engines, fuel that sustains them to produce eggs. Ce-re-a-lia Egg Mash is a ration which, plus care and cleanliness, develops many eggs and sturdy hens. It is not the kind of dry mash you get by throwing odds and ends together but an exact ration perfectly balanced by machinery. Never varies a particle in taste or in proportion of nutrient. Costs more than home-made feeds but just watch the nests after feeding it awhile!

CLORE'S BIG SALE

Brisk Bidding and Prices Good.
Crowd Fed on Burgoo At The Noon Hour.

Those who attended Henry Clore's sale below Waterloo last Thursday say it looked like everybody from everywhere was there, all eager to get something as a souvenir of Mr. Clore's past exploits on the farm and were willing to pay a good price for the same. Of course Mr. Clore could not for a moment entertain the thought of having his friends spend the day with him without having arranged to supply the demands of the inner man, and with that in view he employed Col. Timothy Sandford, of Burlington, to take charge of the burgoo plant and superintend the preparation of about 200 gallons of burgoo to tempt the appetite of anyone. Colonel Sandford was given the necessary number of aids and when the noon hour arrived he was ready to issue the burgoo in any quantity the hunger of a person might demand. All the necessary trimmings went with the burgoo and no one was turned away who had not eaten to his fullest capacity, and Col. Sandford was voted a medal of honor for the very satisfactory manner in which he met the demands of the hungry crowd. Following are some of the prices properly brought: Horses from $30 to $100; brood sows to farrow this spring from $10 to $50; hay from $17 to $25; Corn $1.50 cents per bushel; stock hogs, big price sold in small lots; tobacco, big price; and farm implements of all kinds brought good prices. This was the largest sale held in this county in a long time.

HENRY BINDER WRITES

HE IS WORKING HARD

January 26, Henry Binder wrote his sister, Miss Lena Binder, as follows:

Dear Sister:

I will take the pleasure tonight to write you a few lines, so let you know that I received your letter of the 25th of December. I was sure glad to hear that you are still well, I am well and feeling fine so far yet. The weather here has gotten so cold and the ground is frozen good and hard. I think it will snow today yet.

Well, Lena, I do not know of much to write, I do not know when I will get home from over here. I think whenever all the junk that comes from this hospital gets here to this depot we will be ready to come home. When that will be I don't know.

I have worked harder the last two weeks than at any time since I have been in the army, and what is more I don't have to ride in those side-door Pullmans or busses or whatever you would call them.

As long as I have got a good place like I have here it beats riding those boxes and freezing to death. I think if all goes well I will be home some time this summer.

I hardly know what to write anymore only we got paid the other day and then some of the boys made a charge and I think some of them captured and town right from the way they came back.

Everything you buy here costs money. You can buy oranges and they are small. They cost two for a Franc; apples the same. I think some of these Frenchmen are making a fortune out of this, they certainly charge enough.

I was writing this letter at the Y. M. C. A. and when I came to the barracks they were telling of the mail and I got the letter Kate wrote the 3rd of January so I thought I would write a few lines more.

It snowed nearly all night and there are about two inches on the ground this morning. I hear them say this depot will be broken up about the first of March, but I have heard so many rumors I don't pay much attention to them. I think if nothing unexpected turns up I may be at home by the 4th of July. Don't stop writing for I like to hear what is going on on Mudlick creek.

From your loving brother,
Pvt. HENRY BINDER.

Belle Standing Pat.

While real estate has been changing hands at all other parts of this county there have been very few changes in Bellevue precinct. The people down there have long been aware of the value of their holdings and have not been able to see where they could be benefited by a sale for a future investment. The fact is Bellevue precinct has a larger per cent of real high class land than anywhere else in the county and it will be a long time before the parties now owning it will deem it advisable to put it on the market at a price at which a person can afford to buy.

Pine weather last week for strip ping tobacco, but that work in this county as far as the 1919 crop is concerned.

RAYMOND GOODRIDGE

WRITES FROM FRANCE.

Raymond Goodridge writes his mother from France under date of January 23, 1919.

My Dear Mother:

I wonder what you are doing this beautiful afternoon. It is real cool here today. The ground was frozen last night.

Well, I am enjoying the best of health and hope you are too. I had a letter from you this week. You must not worry or me to come home for you know that I will come as soon as I can, and that they can't send everybody home all at once, and as we have not been here as long as some we will have to wait our turn, I guess.

I am working every day and am getting fat. You know that I am getting plenty to eat. I sent you another picture—hope you get it all right. Save them for me. I can tell you all about them when I come, I am at the Red Cross building writing to you.

I sure would like to have been at home and had a crop of tobacco. I will make you a pound, and everything is so high. I see the Post and Times-Star too. A boy from Erlanger is here now by the name of Hamlet. He and I are great friends. He was a school teacher at Erlanger High School. He knows several at Burlington, especially the girls.

Well, I don't know much news to tell you, but will be a good boy while I am away from you. Don't worry for I will be right. We have lots of fun together. I sleep in a big room with about twenty fellows, so I have lots of company and no chance to get lonesome.

Well, I am off work now until after supper, then I will have to work for an hour or so but I don't mind that. Can you realize that I am going to be a doctor and loyal boy to my dear old mother, who has done so much for me. Many times do I think of the pleasant times we have spent together.

Mamma, take good care of yourself and don't expose yourself to that dreadful flu. We have not had any of it over here, so glad to hear of it over here, so glad to hear of it over here, so glad to hear of it over here.

Well I had better close for this time, so good-bye.

May God bless you, mother, and take care of you is the earnest prayer of your loving son,
Pvt. Raymond Goodridge.

PROPHECIES THAT

WENT WIDE

"The next war between France and Germany will mean extinction for one," Bismarck, who uttered the prophecy some 25 years ago, is likely to be as wrong in his forecast as the memorable Rev. A. M. Baxter, who vied with him in making us shiver with imaginary catastrophes.

It was Baxter who prophesied that the last day of his age was at hand. He died on the 10th day, April 1, 1901. A year or two later he said that we were on the eve of a tremendous war between France and Germany. France would conquer, Luxembourg, Belgium and the Prussian Rhine provinces would be annexed to France, which country would become the leader in the great confederacy, while England would be more or less subjugated to her.

How credulous are the men who swallow fables of this sort is illustrated by the interest aroused in 1915 over the so-called secret book, "The Hohenzollern Prophecies," which was a Devonshire servant, who claimed that she had a special religious mission and dictated prophecies in rhyme. When she died 100 years ago she left her followers "The Box of Sealed Writings," which was to be opened in the hour of national calamity in the presence of 20 bishops. Furthermore, she would, by divine conception, give birth to Shiloh, the prince of peace, although she had died before delivering to the world this wonderful infant.

January 12, 1915, was the all-important date, which the box was to be opened. But it never came to light, and we are still waiting for the wonderful birth.—London Tit-Bits.

BANDITS ELECTROCUTED

James Lawler and Patrick Kearney Pay the Penalty For Murdering Two of Covington's Citizens.

James Lawler and Patrick Kearney, of Cincinnati, were electrocuted in the Eddyville penitentiary last Friday at sunrise. They were two of the three bandits who raided the Ninth Ward Penitentiary and killed two men, 12th and Russell Streets, Covington, on the night of the 5th of March, 1918, killing John Klemmer and Andrew Klempner, directors of the association, and carrying away with them $1,100 of the association's money. Zeke Moran, of Cincinnati, the third bandit, was shot and killed by the Klempners, Chief of Covington police, during the holdup. Neither of the men made any statement before taking the chair.

DRAGGING IS OF IMPORTANCE

Road Improvement May Well Be Considered Reconstruction Measure—Increases Farm Values.

Roads should not be neglected at this time in reconstruction. Road improvement might be deemed a reconstruction measure. In many communities they are much better than in others because the farmers are back of the good roads movement. They realize that a good road saves labor, time, horse feed and automobile repairs and in addition increases the selling value of the farm.

Every progressive farmer should be urged to use it. A well dragged road is a well crowned road, and the dragging should follow the proper layer of earth toward the center of the road at each dragging. The travel will roll and solidify it between ruts.

On roads where too much crown has been formed the angle of the drag can be reversed. A well dragged road reduces the high crown to a more level and much safer road for fast automobile traffic.

Surveying at Petersburg

A party of surveyors from Cincinnati, spent a portion of last Thursday at the county clerk's office at Petersburg taking the plat of the Boone County Distilling Co. at one time. The plat was taken recently and the new owners desire to have their lines located and sent a party of surveyors to Petersburg for that purpose.

Dr. McCormick Says

You Must Stay at Home

Dr. McCormick, President of the State Board of Health, says people should stay at home and keep to themselves. He has made several sales at fancy prices and has buyers from far and near, several parties trying to buy some of the cattle which he had entered for the Round-Up. Mr. Conner takes great pride in his stock and the head of which is one of the best bred bulls known to the breed.

Remarkable Life of a Hen

E. W. Simpson, the old bachelor farmer of Gardnersville, is the owner of a most remarkable hen. On a bright spring morning, just twenty years ago, by the name of a weeb chick burst the shell and made its appearance in this world. In time the chick grew to young henhood and became a great grand mother and great-grand mother of 2,000 chickens; she has laid 3,000 eggs, which at 15 cents a dozen would net her over $450.

Granny is now a widow for the fourth time. But she is still in the ring, and bachelor Simpson says she is making over the old barnyard rooster again. Full-mouth Outlook.

THE DARING Q-BOAT

Popular Mechanics.
Many chapters of romance were added to the lore of the British navy during the grave days of the world war, and prominent among them is one that concerns the adventurous exploits of the heretofore unmentioned Q-boats, as strange craft as ever fought an unperilous race.

The Q-boat was deadly bait for the U-boat. It was so because it bore the lamblike outward appearance of a tramp merchantman, but within carried the British lion unleashed. Concealed guns were mounted in the hull, and the ship was stripped for action when the instant to deliver the death thrust was signaled. Think of a ship sailing on the merchant lanes for months, offering itself as a target to hidden foes in order that it might fight, even though crippled first, and then imagine the foaming wake of a torpedo suddenly extended across its path shortly after dawn on a fine spring morn-

Outwardly the tramp held its course and observed nothing. On board the man-of-war, however, directly in the path of the tramp and men crawled to battle positions. Presently a submarine broke the surface several hundred yards ahead of the tramp. The tramp's bow, that was the signal for the curtain to be run up on the strangest of war dramas. The engine room was flooded with steam, and the ship rocked in the trough of the waves. The panic crew became hysterical. The tramp's deck was a scene of confusion. The tramp's crew were ordered to lie to and fight a hit was registered that foundered the U-boat.

The single blast of a whistle blown by the Captain was the signal to cease fire. The tramp's deck was a scene of confusion. The tramp's crew were ordered to lie to and fight a hit was registered that foundered the U-boat.

NO ROOM FOR GERMANS

How big the world looked to the German militarists in 1914! It was so big and lovely that it excited their cupidity. Germany was a great power, and the world was her playground. It was a small spot, of Europe alone it was but a fragment. Why shouldn't Germany extend her borders to the Atlantic and so much of the rest of the earth as she might seize at one grab? It was an alluring prospect, and the German militarists grabbed. Indeed, either there was too much or too little for them.

Too much, many would say. But the German leaders likely would contend to the contrary, now if we would argue with them. The earth is a big place, and as far as the German militarists are concerned, it is a big place. They would argue with them. The earth is a big place, and as far as the German militarists are concerned, it is a big place.

Old Mother Earth has shrunk for the Germans; even Germany has shrunk for the worst of them. What was so big and fair five years ago is now too little to shield a German superman. So much has German avarice and ambition shrunk, that the world is bigger and fairer than before. —Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

What Is To Be Done With

The Roads in This County?

The Grant County News complains of the condition of the Dixie Highway through Grant Co. It is comparatively a new water-bound road, and was a splendid thoroughfare when completed, but it has not stood the traffic. That part of the Dixie Highway which was a big and fair five years ago is now too little to shield a German superman. So much has German avarice and ambition shrunk, that the world is bigger and fairer than before. —Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Fannie Easton Crippled

Fannie Easton and son, Wendell, were cutting posts last Thursday when a tree they were sawing, in its fall struck on a limb that was stout enough to hold it until it swung around and striking Mr. Easton on one of his legs, breaking both bones between the knee and the ankle. This accident was a severe blow to the family, as Fannie is a widow and Wendell is a cripple.

County Raised $1,525,000

County Judge Canon has been notified from Frankfort that the State Board has increased the valuation of farm lands in this county $1,525,000 and has raised $1,525,000. This is some raise.

A. W. Corn and wife, of Burlington, will become a citizen of Erlanger in the next few days. They bought county land and are making over the old barnyard rooster again. Full-mouth Outlook.

JUMPED IN FRONT

OF THE AUTO

D. E. Castleman Held Blameless For a Sad Accident on Dixie Highway Last Saturday Night.

As D. E. Castleman, of Erlanger, returning from Covington last Saturday night in his automobile he struck a woman near the top of the Willow Run Hill, injuring her so badly that she lived but a short time. At the inquest held Sunday Mr. Castleman was held entirely blameless. Mr. Castleman was on his way to this country who were very sorry to hear of the accident and will be glad to learn that it was no fault of his. Following are the facts as brought out at the inquest as given by Monday's Enquirer:

Witnesses testified at the inquest held yesterday by Coroner David S. Stephens, Covington, that Mrs. Willis, 22 years old, 321 Kilgour street, Cincinnati, leaped into the path of the automobile of Attorney D. E. Castleman, Erlanger, Ky., which struck and killed her early yesterday morning when on her way to work on the electric substation along the Highway with Mrs. Willis. They corroborated the testimony of Mr. Castleman that Mrs. Willis had jumped into the middle of the road, but they said they were at a loss to account for her action.

Mrs. Carson's head bore a deep cut. Attorney Castleman said, but Mrs. Carson declared she did not know how she sustained the injury. Mr. Castleman said Mrs. Carson was not injured by the automobile.

"It is my opinion," said Coroner Stephens, "that Mrs. Willis either endeavored to stop the car, seeking assistance in returning to her home, or in a spirit of recklessness leaped in front of the car."

He said he would return a verdict to the effect that her injuries were caused by her own action and would hold Attorney Castleman to be entirely blameless. Mr. Castleman testified that he had been on the highway for some time when he saw a woman jump into the path of the automobile and wave her arms frantically. He said he swerved the machine to the left and was struck by the woman. Willis again jumped in the same direction. He said he tried to turn the machine to the right, but the automobile struck her as it plunged into it.

Mr. Castleman took Mrs. Willis and her relatives to St. Elizabeth Hospital, and continued to police headquarters where he reported the accident.

Honeymooners.

Los Angeles Times.

The first sector of honeymoon division of war brides has arrived in this country. There were only 15 in the party and they were the wives of American officers and men who were overseas with Pershing's crusaders. They found time for love and romance, and were married on the spot. Now the husbands have been sent back to America for demobilization and the wives follow at the earliest opportunity—also not suffered to journey on the same boat with their spouses. The first installment is about equally divided between the wives of officers and Scotch and Canadian girls counting as English. They are welcomed with warmth and affection by the American soldiers, the former sweethearts of some of the soldiers. There will be a good many more of them, and they will keep coming for a year or more. Some of the soldiers are very unhappy, for the American husband can be mighty mean when he starts out that way. It is better that men should marry in their own race and environment, yet there is no serious argument against these international marriages. May they prove no worse than the average American union. That they should turn out better may be hoped for, but hardly expected.

Normal Rate Six Per Cent

The normal rate of income tax under the new act is six percent of the first $4,000 of net income above the exemptions, and 12 percent of the net income in excess of $4,000. Incomes in excess of $5,000 are subject also to a surtax ranging from 1 per cent of the amount of the net income between $5,000 and $6,000 to 65 percent of the net income above $1,000,000.

Will Put in New Switchboard

The Consolidated Telephone Co. will install a double switchboard at the Burlington exchange so two operators can work when there is a rush. The work at the exchange is increasing rapidly the past year and the capacity of the switchboard now in use is too small to meet the requirements.

Moving Season Here

The moving season is now at hand and many persons in this county will change their places of abode in the next few days. The moving is not confined to the city, as many of the land owners sold their farms and have to hunt new shelter this spring.

Will Be Here

The Income Tax Man will be in Walton, Monday, March 3rd and including Saturday, March 9th, and in Burlington, March 10th to 13th, including Thursday, March 13th, 1919, to help you with your Income Tax Return. See him at that time for he will not be back.

Mild Winter Fifty Years Ago.

John C. Hall of Collier Ridge said that Feb. 17 and 18, 1869, were so mild that persons sat in the shade on their porches and were comfortable. A diary kept by the late Col. Collier, father of Mrs. Hall, shows that the weather in the winter of 1869 was milder than it has been thus far the present winter.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Will Have a Sale

Lewis Sullivan, who a few days before sold his farm and moved to Ashby Fork, was in last Thursday and ordered a sale of his personally advertised for next Saturday. Mr. Sullivan expects to move to Petersburg for a while, at least until he finds a farm that suits him as he is one of those who want to be actively engaged all the time.

Albert Brittenhelm who has been confined to his home for several weeks quite ill, is much better and may be able to be about.

John E. Williams of Lexington, was here Friday looking over his farm and tobacco interests. He predicts the tobacco market will decline in price on poor grades.

Mrs. Yetchy Christy of Chicago, Miss Lora Diers of Cleveland, and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. T. Best and children of Paris, Ky., spent the week here the guests of their relatives Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Diers.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mayhugh returned home last week from an extended tour of the Southern States as far as Florida, making the trip in their automobile, the return trip being nearly twelve hundred miles.

Allie P. Kears who sold the farm he owns near Bracht Station for $38,000, is arranging to move back to his old home in Leslie, Nicholas county, where his wife has many relatives and would be better satisfied.

L. G. Guley of Sharpsburg, Bath county, was here this week arranging to move to the farm purchased from G. E. Carroll in Kenton county. He also bought the farm of M. Lucas and Wm. Frazer in Kenton county.

Income Tax Report.—There will be a Deputy Revenue Collector at Walton, March 3rd to 5th, for the purpose of instructing the public how to make out the income tax returns. He will be at Burlington, March 10th to 13th. See him if you have a report to make.

The Walton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse has been having some very good sales, though the tobacco market all over the state is inclined to show a depression in prices. The last two sales averaged thirty cents per pound, and the offering of tobacco at both sales was of a very inferior quality. One of the reasons of the decline in due to the American Tobacco Company and Taylor & Co. withdrawing their buyers from the market because there was such a congestion at the drug houses and they had to stop buying to get their warehouses cleared. The market ought not to depreciate very much and good prices will be resumed, though the present prices are very good considering, ranging from 12 to 60 cents per pound. Do not worry about the market; it will be good until the end of the season for good tobacco. The U. S. Government statistics show the stock of Burley tobacco on hand to be forty million pounds short of what it was a year ago.

In Memory of Shelley Norman.

The dark Angel of Death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Norman, of Kensington, last Tuesday, taking from the family circle one of its young members, Shelley Norman their beloved son.

He had just been honorably discharged from Uncle Sam's service at Camp Taylor. He complained to his father of feeling badly when he went to Louisville to accompany his son home. He returned home Feb. 8th and was stricken with influenza immediately after his arrival. All that medical skill, tender nursing and loving care could do was done but to no avail. Pneumonia set in and took him in its deadly grip.

He passed away Thursday Feb. 13th. Shelley was a bright, moral young man who was liked by all who knew him and he had bright future before him. When his country called for his services he promptly responded; ready to do his part, and although he did not get to go overseas he was ready. The grief of his parents is inconsolable and only time can assuage their sorrow. Shelley was in the bloom of youth, being but 24 years of age. He was born and reared at Kensington.

Besides his parents he leaves one sister and a brother, Miss Hallie, and Claude Norman, to mourn the loss of a kind and loving son and brother. The funeral took place from the late home Saturday afternoon, Feb. 15, the remains being interred in the Walton Baptist cemetery. Rev. W. H. Whitaker, pastor of the Walton M. E. church, made a brief prayer at the grave. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved ones.

GOOD OUT OF EVIL

Stanford Interior Journal

The rottenness or incapacity that is shown in nearly every branch of the Louisville city government, together with the waste and extravagance on every hand, will result in good coming out of it if it will reach the voters of the Falls City the futility and folly of electing Republicans to such administration.

Judge J. M. Lansing, Tax Commissioner Riley and County Attorney Riddell went to Frankfort Monday and appeared before the State Board of Tax Commissioners and induced them to take off $400,000 of the $1,525,000 raise it proposed giving Boone county it took some good talking but the board was finally convinced of its error to the extent above indicated.

Kenton County Commissioners yesterday named a committee consisting of J. B. Linneaman, William Bailey and R. J. Cody to consider the feasibility of improving the Dixie Highway with cement between Erlanger and Florence, Ky., a distance of two miles.

It was estimated the work would cost $26,000, of which the Commissioners were informed the Government would pay one half. The town of Erlanger is to be requested to pave the pike within its limits and it was stated the Government also would share one half of this expense—Tuesday's Enquirer.

President Wilson will fight at home as he has fought abroad for a League of Nations. Returning from France he had been on American soil not more than three hours yesterday before he threw down the gauntlet in his Boston speech to those who distrust the proposed concert of Government based, he said, on the American ideals which had won the war for justice and humanity. An America confining to her own territories her conception and purpose to make men free, he said, would have to keep her honor for those narrow selfish provincial purposes which seem so dear to some minds that have no sweep beyond their nearest horizon—C-J.

Mrs. Sarah Jane Crisler Dead.

Mrs. Sarah Jane Crisler, 78, widow of C. L. Crisler, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Timothy Westbay, in Covington, last Saturday of hardening of the arteries. The remains were interred on the family lot in the cemetery at Burlington last Monday.

Mrs. Crisler spent many years of her life in Burlington, where she was a favorite of everyone. She was of a sunny disposition and looked on the bright side of life under all circumstances. She was excellent company and her society was always enjoyed by those with whom she associated. She was a friend to the distressed and always ready to lend a helping hand at any time or place when assistance was needed. Her kindness was a prominent characteristic and her good deeds will long be remembered. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Timothy Westbay, and one grandson, Wyatt Westbay, by whom this good woman will be greatly missed.

A little more than two weeks of ground hog winter yet.

INCOME TAX DUE.

Washington, D. C.—Work on the collection of $8,000,000,000 has been begun by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. This is the estimated yield of the new revenue bill. The income tax provisions of the act reach the pocket-book of every single person in the United States whose net income for 1918 was $1,000 or more, and of every married person whose net income was $2,000 or more. Persons whose net income equalled or exceeded these amounts according to their marital status, must file a return of income with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which they live on or before March 15.

Here is what will happen to them if they don't: for failure to file a return on time, a fine of not more than $1,000 and an additional assessment of 25 per cent of the amount of tax due. For "willfully refusing" to make a return on time, a fine not exceeding $10,000 or not exceeding one year's imprisonment, or both.

For making a false or fraudulent return, a fine of not more than $10,000, or imprisonment for more than one year, or both, together with an additional assessment of 50 per cent of the amount of tax evaded.

For failure to pay the tax on time, a fine of not more than $1,000 and an additional assessment of 5 per cent of the amount of tax unpaid, plus 1 per cent interest for each full month during which it remains unpaid.

In addition to the $1,000 and $2,000 personal exemptions, taxpayers are allowed an exemption of $200 for each person dependent upon them for chief support if each person is under eighteen years of age and incapable of self-support. Under the 1917 act this redemption was allowed only for each dependent "child." The head of a family—one who supports one or more persons closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption—is entitled to all exemptions allowed a married person.

The normal rate of tax under the new act is 6 per cent of the net income in excess of $5,000. Incomes in excess of $5,000 are taxed at a rate of 12 per cent of the net income in excess of $5,000, and 60 per cent of the net income between $5,000 and $6,000 to 65 per cent of the net income above $6,000,000. Payment of the tax may be made in full at the time of filing return or in four installments, on or before June 15, on or before September 15, and on or before December 15.

Revenue officers will visit every county in the United States to assist taxpayers in making out their returns. The date of their arrival and the location of their offices will be ascertained by inquiring at the offices of collectors of internal revenue, postoffices and banks. Failure to see these officers, however, does not relieve the taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay his tax within the time specified by law. In this case taxpayers must seek the Government, not the Government the taxpayer.

BORN OF THE AGES

Now that the League of Nations is no longer a dream—one cannot but wonder why it was so long in coming. What held it back through all these years.

Why world peace made no effective appeal earlier.

How much monarchy, this king business, the petty ambitions of princelings and pretenders who took no note of the rights of their subject peoples, had to do with it. How much the lust for power and increased dominion saved to oppress.

For when you get right down to brass tacks this League of Nations idea is the outgrowth of democratic opposition to the will of autocracy.

Kaiser Bill's dream of world dominion precipitated it. And Uncle Sam backed it to the finish.

It was born of the ages of oppression, of life wastage and blood toll upon thousands of battlefields of extermination and sacrifice and enslavement even in the days of peace; of monarchy's ruthless, predatory piracy upon the rights and liberties of the people of the world at large.

For democratic ideas, freedom in the abstract, republican government in America has known it has virtually been confined to our shores.

And once the President set forth the ideals of America before a stricken and threatened world it took to them like a duck to water.

But for Uncle Sam's tremendous part in the world war a League of Nations would never have been possible. More likely it would have been the United States Monarchy of the world, enslavement for us all.

So far Uncle Sam has come through with colors flying. He has finished his part in the game with style. His position before the world must be upheld. His ideals supported. His ambitions realized.

Our faith in his future; our gratitude to his army, must be founded.

It seems a few billions more in the Victory Liberty Loan that will enable him to finish right.

We can do it. We will.

To wipe clean the slate of war expenses.

We must bind him those billions.

Must prove our loyalty and confidence.

FARM ACCOUNTS ARE OF BIG IMPORTANCE

Determine Which Branch of Farming Is Most Profitable.

Of Great Assistance in Rearranging Farm on More Profitable Basis—Records Will Prove to Be of Great Benefit.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There is no doubt that the keeping of farm accounts will prove of great value in determining which branches of farming are the most profitable. If they are kept accurately for a long period they may be of great assistance in rearranging the farm on a more profitable basis. In making use of the results of a year's cost accounting for purpose of perfecting the organization of the farm for the greatest profit, any changes should be made with caution.

Mostly conclusions should not be drawn. Sometimes a positive decrease in a year's profits may cause an enterprise to be dropped because, taken alone, it has failed to pay. Cows, for instance, may not be showing a net profit, but if all the cows are sold there may be no other profitable way of using up roughage which would thereby be wasted, resulting in a loss on the crop producing it. Labor devoted night and morning to milking and feeding cows, and charged to them, would be entirely wasted if the cows were sold and nothing else supplied to utilize it. Thus an added labor burden would have to be borne by the other enterprises. It is much better that these things be utilized than that they should be a dead loss, even though the cow account alone just breaks even, or worse. Any changes indicated, if made, should be brought about gradually, so that the loss in their relation to all other farm activities.

There is nothing like a set of records as a means of analyzing a farm business. To use such records, however, the fundamental principles must be understood and complied with; their limitations as well as their usefulness must be grasped. When this is done the records will become a strong staff and support.

PREVENT EROSION OF LANDS

Effective Way to Prevent Trouble Is to Build Terraces—Lay Out With Farm Level.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Throughout many parts of the United States the hilly and rolling lands are subject to erosion from the heavy winter rains. An effective way to prevent this erosion is to build terraces, preferably not less than 15 feet wide, that have been carefully laid out with a good farm level. It is much easier to save lands from washing away by means of terracing than it is to attempt to build up washed and gullied fields.

Land Terraced to Prevent Erosion.

LAUD COUNTY FARM BUREAU

These Organizations Insure Interest in Co-operation of Farmers in Producing Food.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"The county farm bureau is one of the best agencies thus far devised for insuring interest and co-operation of farmers in the great work of food production so necessary to the success of our arms."

This statement was made in telegrams of appreciation sent by Clarence Cusley, acting secretary of agriculture, to farmers in two Montana counties who had organized for war farming.

From Chinook, Mont., came the following telegram to the secretary of agriculture: "Having completed the organization of the Blaine county farm bureau, 550 Blaine county farmers pledge to you, as the farmers' representative on the president's cabinet, their united support as an organization to do their utmost to help win the war."

The following telegram came from Glasgow, Mont.: "Farm bureau organization of Valley county completed with 225 members; enthusiastic to co-operate with department of agriculture in supporting food administration to the utmost. Drought conditions prevail, but farmers' spirit unshaken. With better methods of farming, learned through the farm bureau, agricultural conditions will improve."

POULTRY FACTS

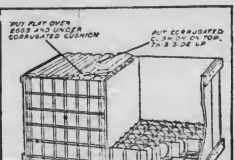

BUILD STANDARD EGG CASES

Railroad Classification Requirements Outlined—Make Compartments of Same Size.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Do you know the railroad classification requirements for a standard egg case? If not, you should; so here they are:

Standard Egg Case—3-10-inch veneers; 7-10-inch ends and centers; 7-16 by 13-inch cleats; 7-16-inch center board must be nailed in middle of case.

Right Way to Arrange Strawboard, Excelsior, Cork Shavings or Cut Straw for Fillers.

The two compartments must be of the same size.

Fillers—Hard excelsior strawboard.

Set to consist of ten trays and 12 flats.

Pack top of case with corrugated cushions, excelsior, cork shavings, or cut straw.

Pack bottom of case with corrugated cushion, 3-inch cushion fillers, excelsior, cork shavings, or cut straw.

Use flat between eggs, both top and bottom.

Excelsior, cork shavings or cut straw cushions must be smooth and of uniform thickness.

Fillers must weigh three pounds for ten trays and 12 flats.

Nails—Third cement-coated, large head.

Fifteen nails for each side—five in each end; five in center.

Fifteen nails for bottom—five in each end; five in center.

Eight nails for top—flush cleat.

Two nails for top—drop cleat.

Two nails through cleat into each piece of end.

Nails through cleats must be attached.

SELECTION OF POULTRY FEED

Reduce Cost by Using Low-Priced Substitute Grains—Oats Are Cheaper Than Corn.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While farmers, as a rule, have fed their poultry the grain that was cheapest on the farm, many poultry specialists and most small poultry keepers have been accustomed to use their favorite poultry feeds without considering either the quality of the supply or the possibilities of using cheaper substitutes.

Under normal conditions, corn in nearly all parts of the United States is the cheapest poultry feed. At the present time, oats are nearly everywhere cheaper than corn. When corn goes down to $1.50 a bushel, oats should be 75 cents and barley $1.20 a bushel to give the same value for the money fed to poultry, as corn.

The common characters and conditions of grain which roughly determine their values as poultry feeds are easily estimated by the eye, or by weight or bulk in measure or containers of known capacity.

Good cracked corn is hard, bright, clean, free from soft and chuffy particles. Corn that is crushed (not cracked), and shows much soft, chuffy and sandy matter, should be rated proportionately below good cracked corn in feeding value. Cracked corn in which any considerable amount of greenish discoloration appears should be rejected as unfit for poultry.

Oats with the hulls on are at once seen to contain more indigestible matter than corn and wheat. Again, the indigestible hulls covering oats make that grain less palatable to poultry and its feeding value must be discounted.

Oats weighing less than the United States standard of 32 pounds to the bushel should be discounted in price according to the shortage in weight, while for weights above the standard the usual discount in price may be reduced.

Public Sale

For the purpose of closing our partnership we will sell at Public Sale to the highest bidder

Saturday, March 8, '19

WALTON, KY., at 2 o'clock p. m.

FARM OF 313 ACRES

Located on the Walton and Stephenson Mill Road, about one mile west of Walton.

A Good Tobacco, Corn and Dairy Farm

Already equipped with house, barn, silo and dairy equipment and dairy now being operated. Slightly rolling, mowing machine can be run over every acre; perfect title, and full possession March 8th, 1919, subject to rights of tenants for the year ending March 1st, 1920, it being one of the terms of this sale that the purchaser must carry out the rental contract of the two tenants, Kirtley Johnson and Russel Ryan. These contracts will be submitted to any prospective bidder at any time before the sale is made, for the purpose of enabling bidders to know their terms. As owners of the land we own one-half interest in dairy stock, feed, etc., now on hand and being used by tenant Kirtley Johnson in the operation of a dairy and we have agreed between ourselves that the value thereof is $1,200.00 and any purchaser must take this one-half interest in personal property at $1,200.00. Prospective purchasers should regulate their bid on the entire farm accordingly, as this is done for the purpose of not interfering with the operation of the dairy.

TERMS OF SALE.

All over $10,000.00 CASH, and the purchaser will be permitted to execute two notes for $8,000.00 each, due one and two years after date, bearing interest at 6 per cent, and secured by lien on the land and its rents, issues and profits.

A Milk Famine!

What would you do without milk? Dairy men are throwing up their business. A milk war—perhaps a milk famine—stares us in the face. City folks howl at the high price they pay and farmers kick at the low price they get.

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

knows both sides, and tells the WHOLE TRUTH in a mighty helpful article called "A Truce in the Milk War," by John E. Pickett, appearing in the issue of March 8.

"In the interest of truth," says Mr. Pickett, "it should be generally understood that dairymen are quitting not because they have made all the money they care for, but because they have not made any." And then he goes on to tell what's what in milk production and why farmers strike. This article—and every other feature in a year's subscription to THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN—is worth money to YOU. For only $1.00 you can get Mr. Pickett's valuable discussion, and 52 big, helpful numbers besides—one every week, with more than 500 articles on every phase of farming and farm living. It's the biggest dollar's worth on the market today. Every issue will give you a good idea. You can't afford to miss it.

EVERYBODY IS NOW FIGURING INCOME TAX

In Order to Be Helpful to Public, Internal Revenue Bureau
Has Every Available
Officer in Field.

SEVERE PENALTIES IF YOU DELAY BEYOND MARCH 15

With the due date for Income Taxes only a few weeks away, the collection of this far-reaching tax on 1918 incomes has started off with a bang. Everybody is figuring income tax.

Payments and sworn statements of income must reach Internal Revenue offices on or before March 15, and there are severe penalties for delinquency.

Residents of Kentucky should make their returns and pay their taxes to the nearest of the following: Josh T. Griffith, Owensboro; J. Rogers Gore, Louisville; Charleston R. Thompson, Covington; Elwood Hamilton, Lexington; John W. Hughes, Danville.

"Pay your Income Tax by March 15," is the slogan of the Internal Revenue Bureau, which has sent every available officer into the field to help the public to understand the requirements and to prepare the returns.

Who Must Make Return.
It is estimated that many thousands of single and married persons in this section of the United States who have never before made annual returns are required to do so this year.

Income tax returns must be made between now and March 15 by persons who come under the following classifications:

Any unmarried person whose 1918 net income was $1,000 or over. Widows and widowers, divorcees and married persons who are living apart from their husbands or wives, are for the purposes of the Income Tax classed as unmarried.

Any married person living with wife or husband whose 1918 net income was $2,000 or over. The income of both husband and wife must be considered together with the earnings of minor children, if any.

Revenue Bureau Offers Aid.
Each person in the United States who is in either of these classifications must get busy at once if penalties are to be avoided. He should secure a blank Form 1040 for reporting net income up to $5,000, or Form 1040 if his net income exceeded that amount. Forms are being distributed by Collectors and their Deputies, also by banks. By following the instructions on the forms a correct return can be prepared at home. If a person needs advice or aid, the Deputy Collectors in the field will furnish this without charge.

The new Revenue law places the Income Tax duty on citizens and residents. The Internal Revenue Bureau is sending its men to work right with the public to see the tax and the returns in. With active co-operation every tax due March 15 will be paid and every return required by law will be in the Revenue offices on time.

Exemptions Are Allowed.
A single person is allowed a personal exemption of $1,000. If he is supporting in his household relatives who are dependent upon him he may claim the status of the head of a family who has the same exemption as if married.

A married person is allowed a personal exemption of $2,000. The head of a family is entitled to claim a similar personal exemption.

An additional exemption of $200 is allowed for each person under eighteen or incapable of self support who was dependent upon and received his chief support from the taxpayer.

A husband and wife living together are entitled to but one personal exemption of $2,000. If they make separate returns the exemption may be claimed by either or divided.

Accuracy Required.
Absolute accuracy is necessary in making up income figures. Any person who is working for wages should find out exactly how much he received during the whole year 1918. Fees, bank interest, bond interest, dividends, rents received and all other items must be reported correctly. Mere guesses are not accepted, for they are unjust alike to the taxpayer and the Government and defeat the proper administration of the law.

* INCOME TAX IS *

GOOD HANDLING SAVES EGGS

Big Loss Can Be Prevented If Producer and Country Merchant Take Precautions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Not long ago four men worked half a day grading "current receipts" of eggs as they were received at a city market. They candled out one hundred dollars worth of rots, spots, and incubated eggs. This loss could so easily have been prevented if only the producer and the country merchant had handled the eggs promptly.

The hen lays a fresh egg; the consumer demands a fresh egg. Eggs are a highly perishable product, and gradually deteriorate with age. Heat is their enemy; cold is their friend. The time and the more direct their route from nest to packing house, the smaller the opportunity for loss.

The proper handling of eggs is not a one-man job. Many people are concerned in it. Their interests are common, and mutual understanding and co-operation between them benefit all alike.

The farmer's part in the general scheme of good marketing is to bring good eggs to market. To accomplish this, he should market his eggs frequently, not let them accumulate.

The dealer's job is to keep the eggs good. His slogan should be "ship promptly and properly." The sooner an egg is put under refrigeration and stored for the market, the better its quality when it reaches its final destination, and the higher its value.

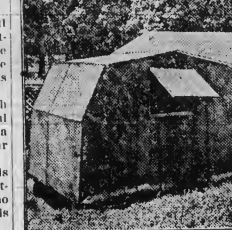

KEEPING CHICKENS IN TOWN

One of Best Ways for Loyal American to Help Win War is to Raise Hens in Back Yard.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Every true American is asking, "How can I best do my part to help win the war?" One of the means to this end is to set the back yard to work. Those who have suitable land are cultivating vegetable gardens to help increase the food supply. There are, however, many back yards not suitable for the making of a garden which may be profitably utilized for back yard poultry keeping. In every household, no matter how economical the housewife, there is a certain amount of table scraps and kitchen waste which has feeding value, but which, if not fed, finds its way into the garbage pail. Poultry is the only class of domestic animals which is suitable for converting this waste material, right where it is produced in the city, into wholesome and nutritious food in the form of eggs and poultry meat. A small number of chickens can be kept in almost any back yard.

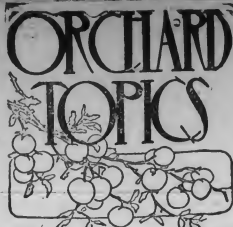

If poultry houses are not available, hens can be housed at small expense in plane boxes or other large packing cases. Their eggs should make a substantial addition to the family food supply. Each hen in her pullet year should produce ten dozen eggs. The average size of the back yard flock should be at least ten hens. This flock would produce in a year 100 dozen eggs, which at the conservative value of 25 cents a dozen would be worth $25. By keeping a back yard poultry flock the family would not only help in reducing the cost of living, but would have eggs of a quality and freshness which are often difficult to obtain.

Poultry keeping, although a comparatively simple undertaking, will be successful in direct proportion to the study and labor which are expended upon it. There is an abundance of good material on the subject, but "Back Yard Poultry Keeping" (Farmers' Bulletin 880), a recent publication of the United States department of agriculture, contains all the general directions needed to make a start. It tells how to overcome the objections to keeping poultry in the city, what kinds of flocks to keep, the size of the flock computed according to the size of the back yard, gives definite instructions as to the best kinds of chicken houses to build, with list of materials for same, directions as to feeding the flocks, including and raising chicks, and many other matters essential to the success of the undertaking. Another helpful bulletin of a general character is "Hints to Poultry Raisers" (Farmers' Bulletin 528). This gives a great deal of useful and authoritative information within a very small compass.

COLOR IS GUIDE TO PICKERS

Of Value in Determining Time for Gathering Apples and Tomatoes—Pick at Right Time.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Color is of value as a guide to the picker in determining the time for gathering apples and tomatoes. The economic result of placing immature apples in storage is loss of color. Loss in color also occurs when immature tomatoes are processed. In both cases the product is made less attractive and brings, therefore, lower prices.

Immature apples picked when some of the leaf green is still present on the shaded side of the fruit develop in storage the baked apple appearance characteristic of scalded fruit. This occurs even when the temperature conditions are ideal for properly ripened specimens of the variety. Scalded fruit is not attractive to the average customer.

In the case of tomatoes intended for canning or catsup, only mature fruit will yield a product of the deep red color so much prized by the market. Ripened tomatoes of the proper varieties will, when properly handled, produce a high-colored canned product or a high-colored catsup. On the other hand, half-ripened red tomatoes will yield a product varying from straw color through the shades of red. The producer, however, should bear in mind that, with many varieties the green color persists to some extent until the fruit is too dead-ripe to be marketed without risk of decay. Soundness, of course, should never be sacrificed to obtain the desired color.

The practical grower will do well to familiarize himself with the color of his mature products and take pains to pick them at the proper time if he desires to place on the market articles with the most prepossessing appearance.

INJURY BY SAN JOSE SCALE

On Some Trees Insect Multiplies Rapidly and Does Much Damage—Others Not Affected.

The San Jose scale is known to infest about 150 kinds of trees and shrubs. On some it multiplies rapidly and causes serious injury; on others it rarely becomes abundant enough to be dangerously injurious; and on still others it cannot permanently maintain itself.

The following are some of the more important kinds of trees and shrubs which are likely to be seriously injured: Apple, peach, pear, plum, and sweet cherry, with their nearly related wild and ornamental species; currant, dogwood, Japan quince, June-herry, lilac, hawthorn, European purple-leaved holly, flowering almond, rose, snow-berry, buckthorn, young poplar, young elm, willow, mountain-ash, linden and orange orange.

NO WASTE LAND IN ORCHARD

Cultivation Should Be Thorough Until Trees Reach Bearing Age—Crops Between Rows.

The fruit trees should be given as thorough cultivation as corn or vegetables, at least until they reach bearing age. Any kind of garden vegetables, or strawberries and other small fruits, may be grown between the tree rows.

GUARD AGAINST SUN-SCALD

Injury Likely to Trees With Insufficient Foliage to Shade Trunk and Limbs.

Look out for sun-scorch on trees that have not sufficient foliage to shade their own trunk and main limbs. A little forethought will enable you to shade the threatened parts in some manner, and thus avoid having damaged limbs on the southwest side.

ATTENTION TO PECAN TREES

All Possible Points of Entrance for Wood-Rotting Fungus Should Be Covered Up.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Wounds made in pruning pecan trees and those arising from other mechanical injuries, such as careless cultivation, hail and wind storms, are all possible points of entrance for wood-rotting fungi and should be protected to prevent losses.

Trees affected by this rot frequently will stand for many years, but it is inevitable that their crop-producing power and life are greatly reduced by the disease. The bulletin urges that limbs that are to be taken off should be cut closely to the main stem, which facilitates rapid healing, and if the wounds are so large that they will not heal completely in one season they should be protected by applications of white-lead paint, grafting wax or a preparation of one-third creosote and two-thirds coal tar.

In removing limbs from pecan trees in no case should stubs be left on the tree, says the bulletin. A sharp saw should be used and the cut made practically flush with the body of the tree. This permits the wounds to heal in the shortest length of time and leaves no surface or pocket for the collection of water, which favors the rapid development of the fungi. In removing a large limb it is necessary to first cut it off several feet from the tree and then remove the stub properly. If the cut is made flush with the body of the tree in the first instance it is usually impossible to prevent the weight of the limb from tearing part of the wood and bark below it. In top-working pecans cuts should be made with sufficient slope to prevent water collecting on the stubs and some waterproof material should be applied. In extreme cases when rot has gained entrance to the heart of the tree the rotted wood can be cleaned out and protection given which will save the tree.

As a rule the wounds made by the removal of small limbs do not need to be protected, as the natural growth of the tree covers them rapidly. The most desirable compound to protect large wounds is one which disinfects the cut surface, furnishes complete protection for the longest period, and causes the least injury to the tissues. The preparation which best fills these requirements, according to the bulletin, is one made with creosote and coal tar. After a wound is made it should be left until it is dry and then thoroughly coated with some protective substance, which should be renewed as often as is necessary for complete protection. Prompt care of all wounds on pecans will amply repay the grower by insuring for him sound, disease-free trees.

DORMANT SPRAY IS FAVORED

Most Important Year to Destroy Bark Scale and Eggs of Injurious Insects.

The dormant spraying which destroys the bark scale and the eggs of injurious insects is the most important spraying of the year, in the judgment of some orchardists. The trees should be sprayed whether there was a crop or not. Spraying in off years is just as important as in years when there is a full crop.

KEEP RABBITS FROM TREES

Solution of Quiklime, Soap and Sulphur Applied Twice Yearly Is Recommended.

To protect trees from rabbits and rodents paint the trunks with the following wash: Quiklime, 20 pounds; soap, three pounds; sulphur, four pounds; water, 25 gallons. This may be applied about once a year—once in the late fall or early in winter and again in February.

FROM CAMP MEADE, MD.

The following letter was received from Miss Elora Eggleston, of the Francisville neighborhood, from her cousin, who is still in camp Meade, Maryland:

Dear Cousin:
I will answer your kind and welcome letter. I was glad to hear from you and Florence. I am still in camp. You said I must like my place. I am not staying because I like it. It is because they have lost my papers, so I have to wait until they find them. I hope they will find them soon, for I sure do want to come home.
I am about the only drafted man in my company. The rest are all soldiers and I do not know any of them, so you know I have the blues.
Ben Riley is up here yet. He is in the hospital now. I don't know what he has. He has been in there for four weeks. I guess we will come home together, if they ever find my papers. I don't know now when I will ever get to come home. Do you think they could hold me if they never find my papers? Nearly all of the other boys have gone home.
I am glad you like your teacher. I used to work for them last summer.
We have not got the fluaphere row. We have the measles, but I have not got them yet.
Has Christy ever gotten home? I never see him any more. I guess he is home by now.
Tell Florence I will write to her later for I have not got time now. I am not writing much for I have to work every day and it is dark there. There are ten of us to take care of 175 mules, so you see we are busy. We cannot get any help at the present.
I have the blues and am also out of tobacco, so you see I am in a pretty bad fix. I wrote home but they have never answered my letter so far.
I will have to close for I want to write to Edith yet tonight.
Good-bye.

Your loving cousin,
CHESTER EGGLESTON.
P. S.—Write soon and tell me all the news. Love and good luck to all.

Newberry-Ford Contest.

The Newberry-Ford contest for a seat in the United States senate is the first of a similar character that has happened in many a day. The contest revolves around the expenditure of money by both candidates. In fact, if there had not been large expenditures of money there would have been no contest. The last time the senate had a money contest on its hands was when William Clark sought a seat after a doubtful election by the legislature of Montana. At that time it was known as the Clark-Daly contest. Daly spent as much money to keep Clark out of the senate, as Clark spent to get in, although Daly did not seek the place.
Persons who have forgotten the Clark-Daly contest are heard to remark that direct primaries and the election of senators by direct vote of the people are largely responsible for the vast expenditures of money in elections these the senate in states where there that only rich men can run for days, adding that it is getting so are hard fights. While it is no doubt true that more money is needed to conduct campaigns under primaries and direct elections, yet it is a fact, if one looks back to other days, that money was spent in large quantities at state legislatures to elect senators; not always, but sometimes.

High Lights of Speech.

Boston, Feb. 24.—High lights in President Wilson's speech at Mechanics Hall this afternoon:
"The proudest thing I have to report to you is this great country of ours is trusted throughout world."
"There is a common spirit and a common realization of the necessity of setting up new standards of right in the world."
"No man dare go home from the peace conference and report anything less noble than was expected of it."
"I have been struck with the moderateness of those who have represented national claims. I can testify that I have nowhere seen the gleam of passion."
"There is no nation in Europe that suspects the greatness of the United States."
"I have had as many grounds for pride on the other side of the water that are not grounds for personal pride, but for national pride. If they were grounds for personal pride I'd be the most stuck-up man in the world."
"Men have testified to me in Europe that our men were possessed by something that they could only call religious fervor. They had a vision. They had a dream and they were fighting in the dream, and fighting in the dream they turned the whole tide of battle, and it never came back."
"Any man who resists the present tides that run in the world will find himself thrown upon a shore so high and barren that it will seem as if he had been separated from his human kind forever."
"I do not mean any disrespect to any other great people when I say America is the hope of the world, and if she does not justify that hope the results are unthinkable."
"The arrangement of the present peace cannot save a generation unless they are guaranteed by the united forces of the civilized world."
"When I speak of the nations of the world I do not speak of the world, I speak of the peoples who constitute the nations of the world. They are in the saddle, and they are going to see to it that if their present Governments do not do their will some other Governments shall. And the secret is out and the present Governments know it."

LEAGUE IS LEGAL

Taft Says, in Denying Constitution Forbids Participation.

San Francisco, Feb. 19.—"The gentlemen in the Senate who are setting out to defeat this League of Nations are those I would not trust overnight," former President William Howard Taft said today at a luncheon given in his honor by civic organizations as a part of the program of the Pacific Coast Congress of the League to Enforce Peace.

"They are citing the constitution as an argument against it," continued Mr. Taft. "I revere and worship that great instrument, and it is a new story to me if the constitution prevents this people from playing their part in bringing peace and order and happiness to ourselves and the other peoples of the world."

"This is not a political question, God forbid. I am glad President Wilson went to Europe because he went bearing a promise of a League of Nations."

"The applications at this time of the doctrine of avoiding entangling alliances is reactionary to the extent of delaying world peace 100 years. The question at this time is whether the whole great plan of the League of Nations is to be defeated because we can't get a two-thirds majority of our Senate for its ratification."

"A peace-loving nation of fighting men," was the way Dr. Henry Van Dyke, formerly Minister to The Netherlands, described the United States. He said objectors to a League of Nations had that to enter such a league involved abdication of national sovereignty, but, on the contrary, it involved an assertion of sovereignty in a willing acceptance of a common law of self-restraint.
A referendum throughout the country would find 90 per cent of the voters heartily approving the league, Henry Morgenthau said.

Allowance Cut in Half

Congressmen will not receive their usual allotment of garden seeds to distribute among their constituents this year, the allowance having been reduced half. That does not mean that Uncle Sam expects you to reduce the size of your truck patch according to the quantity of seeds he allows distributed by Congressmen.

Behind in Rainfall

This part of the country being as far behind in the normal rain fall as is claimed it is it will not take a very long dry spell next summer to get up a disastrous drought unless there is considerable rain this spring.

Grimm's Alfalfa

is said to be superior to other varieties because of its branching root system and hardy habits which prevents it from "pulling" or freezing out and holds the ground better than the straight rooted kinds. We have some Grimm's Seed in transit which we offer at 42c a pound or $25 a bushel. Bags extra at 60c each f. o. b. Covington, Ky.

We also handle Hulled and Scarafied Sweet Clover Seed and consider this the best kind to sow to get quick results and an even stand.

UNDER WHICH SYSTEM DO YOU WISH TO SELL YOUR CREAM?

The station or agency method employs a buyer on commission to buy your cream, paying you that much less for your butter-fat. The results is you receive less money for your cream—the station buyer keeps the difference as his revenue and your cream is delivered to a Creamery as the effort of an agent—all patrons' cream mixed together, delayed and doubled handled. All your painstaking care and attention goes for naught. You, Mr. Producer, are not known to the creamery who uses your product.

Your money is used as the means of perpetuating this system so the more you patronize the agency, the stronger you are bound by the chains of this system.

The Tri-State principle is to deal DIRECT with each patron and pay him every cent possible as greater encouragement for Dairy Growth and as an inducement for BIGGER and BETTER heads.

Every producer of five gallons of cream should become a Tri-State patron.

—used to be a very common expression to hear in our Economy Drug Store. In fact we use it a great deal even now for there seems to be a lot of people yet that aren't familiar with our Economy Prices. They just give us a quarter for a quarter article, or whatever the purchase may be, and start walking out. Naturally, they expect no change, having paid us what they've paid at other drug stores or what they've seen advertised elsewhere to be the price. But market prices are not our price—ours are Economy Prices, so we frequently must call out "One minute please, here's your change. And, right there we make a permanent patron."

The streets in Burlington are in worse condition just now than the oldest inhabitant ever saw them. They are something fierce at the crossings. The sidewalks are in good condition, otherwise pedestrians would have to carry life-preservers.

County Farm Agent Sutton was stricken with the influenza last Thursday, since which time he has been confined to his home. He had several big propositions up and his illness will delay their immediate adjustment very much to his annoyance.

PT. PLEASANT.

Spencer Turner has been very ill the past week with a heavy cold.

Mrs. Sallie Southern entertained her brothers, Geo. Gordon and Supt. J. C. Gordon, last Sunday. Mr. Shuck and sister, Mrs. Stearn, were called to the bedside of their mother who is very ill in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Riggs entertained Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kottmeyer and little son, James Woodford, last Sunday.

Mrs. Arnold entertained her mother and brother from Florence, last Wednesday, and in the evening Mrs. Darby and family called.

Mrs. Mary Gross received a letter from her son, Ed, who is in France, stating that he is in fine health but has no idea when he will be sent home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Arnold and family, who have resided in our community for the past year, will take up their future residence near Burlington. Mrs. Arnold wishes to thank Mrs. Will Gross and Mrs. John Gross for their kind assistance in getting her new home in readiness.

Bro. Simmons preached a very interesting sermon, Sunday, on "Reconstruction." The modern idea is that the Bible needs reconstructing according to present day needs, but Brother Simmons holds that man needs to be reconstructed according to the teachings laid down in The Word of God.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence, who has been in the game over seas, announcing his safe arrival in Virginia, and expects to be transferred to Camp Taylor in a few days, where he will be mustered out of the service.

Lewis Scott met with quite an accident a few days since. While doing some hauling he fell and the wagon run over one of his limbs. No bones were broken but he is bruised pretty badly and is confined to his room.

At the meeting of the Joint Council at Hopeful, last Saturday, nearly all of the members of that body were present and the same good feeling and christian spirit, which characterizes all of the meetings, prevailed. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: B. A. Floyd, chairman; Edgar Graves, Secretary; E. H. Surface, Treasurer. The Ladies Aid Society was present with well filled baskets and a bountiful repast consisting of all the delicacies of the season was served at the noon hour and greatly enjoyed by all present.

CARD OF THANKS.—I desire to thus publicly express my gratitude to my neighbors who were so kind to me and my family during our recent attack of influenza. They not only looked after our personal comfort but took excellent care of my livestock and dairy interests and their kindness will always be remembered and appreciated by me.

ALARMING SITUATION AS TO FARM LABOR.

Large Percentage of Farmers Released from Military Service Seeking Employment.

The conclusion reached by a recent conference of United States Employment Service directors, held at New Orleans, that "90 per cent. of the farmers who are being released from military service are seeking employment in cities," is exceedingly alarming because of the imperative necessity of this country raising the largest crops in its history during 1919. It is true that these directors are workers in the States of Louisiana, Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas, Texas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Florida, and that their conclusion was based upon experience with men who had been mustered out in the South, but they further stated that "the entire South faces a shortage in agricultural labor that can only be met by importing the working and wage classes."

Of course, United States Employment Service directors have nothing to do with setting wages, but it was developed at the conference that in Georgia the average farm wage is $1 per day and board; in the northern part of Louisiana it is $3 a day; in the southern part, $2.50. The directors who attended the conference formed themselves into an association so that effective co-operation may be secured with respect to the employment of labor without the charging of fees, and in every way work for the benefit of the farmer and the farm worker. Regular meetings are to be held.

It should not be surprising that farm laborers have had no experience should have acquired a point of view concerning life and the part for them to play in it. They are not different from that which they had previous to their departure from the old environment. Especially should this be true concerning those who have returned physically and mentally sound. Their horizon is vastly extended, it extends far beyond the nearest village or town that once marked its limits, and then the awakened desire to a broader life coupled with the elements of phenomenal progress, has offered at various industrial plants, not to say aught of possibilities in humbler occupations amid the surroundings, all are enough to upset previous ideas of existence.

Imagine the effect upon the mentality of a farm hand who has been in the Middle West for instance, and he has been suddenly taken from his accustomed little work (in which the peak of enjoyment was reached at the village dances, or the occasional movie show, or perhaps a traveling theatrical company presenting a play in the town hall now and then) to the middle of a continent to a great army camp, but through a brief but vigorous course of soldierly training and then sent to a training camp across the sea—which he had known of previously only by hearsay and doubtfully—to another continent, where he found millions of people speaking a language radically different from his own—how could he be otherwise than successively shocked, stunned and gradually awakened to the fact that this world, which he thought was for him but a small thing, no matter what it might have read and heard of, was really a great, apparently boundless series of countries with vast expanses of water lying between them, spanning the globe, and that the magnitude of the river steambaths at home, having gone through all of this, even if he escaped the horrors of battle, he now could it be expected that he could again settle down immediately to the old, humdrum career, in which the crowd around the stove in the country took the place of the jolly young men in the canteen or post exchange which military life had made familiar and necessary?

Considering all of this, as well as much more, it is forced upon the mind that farm labor will no longer be content with the dull, plebeian grind of existence common to rural communities; it will demand better wages, more attractive surroundings, more roads, more frequent amusements, as well as amusements of a better character than formerly. Of course, it is going to cost more to give farm labor these things, but the customer must pay it. In the end, so that while the agriculturist will not receive capital to conduct his operations successfully, besides being obliged to practice farming with the utmost intelligence and skill, he will be paid for it at higher market prices to be obtained in the great centers where the bulk of our farm products are finally disposed of.

The main thing to note, therefore, is to not let busy let the former farm worker know that he will be paid well for his labor, but he will be paid well for the shop worker; that the social side of his life will be looked after in such a manner that he will no longer have to stand and wait in comparative with an army career has made him accustomed to, on the contrary, with the improvement in the natural chain of country life; it will also be made more comfortable as to the home as well as to the environment. There is no really good reason why the farmers of any region should not consider and do their best to improve the lives of the farm hands in the same general way that cotton-mill companies, as well as corporations in other lines of industry, are endeavoring to see that healthful and attractive home life shall attract labor to them and shall hold it when it has come.

Everything Good for Something

Peace River, Alberta. — "Thar ain't nothin' in the world but is good for somethin'" is one of the favorite sayings of Jim Buckley, of Peace River.

Buckley is a thrifty soul. He farms in summer and traps in the winter, and between wheat and fur he is growing rich. One morning while his wife was cooking breakfast she broke a rotten egg into the skillet and was starting toward the door to throw it away when Buckley stopped her. "Woman, don't throw that egg away," said Buckley. "But it's rotten," protested his wife.

"Makes no difference," declared the philosopher, "thar ain't nothin' in the world but is good for somethin'." "James Buckley," exclaimed his wife, "I've heard that a thousand times."

The man never sniffs at the doors of the prosperous farmers of the Peace river country. But foxes are different animals, and here is something you can't see in a fox. Buckley is not an epicurean tiddler in vulpine menus.

That night Buckley set a trap in a poplar grove near his home and baited it with rotten eggs. He hoped to catch a red fox, or perhaps a coyote. But when he went out to his trap next morning, what do you think he found? The biggest silver fox Buckley ever had clapped eyes on. He sold the pelt in Peace River the other day for $318.

"A right nice lot o' money," he remarked Buckley, as he stuffed the money in his pocket. "I've allers allowed that thar ain't nothin' in the world but is good for somethin'."

Methodist Pastors To Get Raise.

Nashville, Tenn., March 1.—Many Methodist ministers in every Southern and Western state have been trying to exist on infinitesimal incomes during the past year. The salaries raised within the next few months. This very practical and definite step is to be taken by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, following the financial drive of that denomination in April. The drive which has $35,000,000 as its goal, has as one of its objects the putting of the work of the church on a business basis, the raising of the salaries of the ministers paid pastors being considered one of the first matters of importance.

There are 865 salaries now $100 or less which will be raised to $600; 48 salaries now $400 and $500 which will be raised to $600; 58 salaries now $600 and $700 which will be raised to $1,000; and 150 salaries ranging from $600 to $900 which will be raised to $1,000. The supplementing of these salaries will require $2,850,000 during the forthcoming five years. The success of this Centenary drive will make their increase immediately possible.

Practically every city and town throughout the length and breadth of the country will be affected. It is declared at the headquarters of the denomination in Nashville, and every Methodist minister will be helped to make possible better and happier living conditions for the underpaid pastors in their midst.

Civil Service Examination.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for the county of Boone, to be held at Burlington, Ky., on March 22, 1919, to fill the position of rural carrier at Grant and Union and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from other positions in the above mentioned county. The examination will be open to male citizens who are actually domiciled in the county of Boone. The other requirements set forth in Form No. 1977. This form and application blanks may be secured from the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C. Applications should be forwarded to the commission at Washington at the earliest practicable date.

Making Good.

John B. Duncan's poultry yard is making a good start for the season. He has been giving his chickens the best of attention all winter and the results of his efforts are beginning to show. He has everything about his premises in excellent shape and is improving his stock all the time. He has just added three ducks purchased from a noted poultry yard in New York. These ducks cost him $16 a piece and will be the best of the top in the matter of breeding and egg producing.

LOCATING GRAVES

Philip Taliaterra Lived and Worked Under Shell Fire For Six Weeks.

Buzy France, Feb. 2nd, 1919, Mr. W. L. Riddell, Burlington, Ky. Dear Mr. Riddell:—

Just a short letter to let you and the rest of my Boone county friends know that I am well and happy in the little town of Buzy France, which is only a short distance from what was once the German border.

Our Unit arrived in France early in Sept. and we were almost immediately sent into the Battle Area, establishing our headquarters at Verdun, where we were divided up into three Groups each Group being in sole charge of a certain territory to be assigned certain territory to be near the front lines. At this time I received my promotion to the rank of Q. M. Sgt. Senior Grade, the highest non-commissioned rank in the Q. M. C. being two grades higher than the First or Second Grade. I was put in charge of Advance Group No. 3. I was fortunate in securing good dugouts for ourselves. It was also assigned to our Group to act as a larger organization for rations and have always been pretty lucky about running into outfits that were "white." I lived and worked under shell fire then for about six weeks until the armistice was signed and believe me we were of our share of exciting experiences and close calls, but always got by O. K.

Our work is the locating and registering of American graves, selecting the sites, acquiring the land and laying out of regulation A. E. F. cemeteries, etc. But of course we have absolutely nothing to do with the actual burial of the dead. In registering a grave we make a record of all information obtainable from identification tags, etc. We also make any additional information burial place may have left. Erect a permanent cross, put on name tag and record the date, if possible. We then make a sketch of the grave, giving its exact location and then figure out what is known as the "X" on the map. These records are final and official and when they get to General Headquarters, they know exactly where that soldier is buried. So you see, it is not a light job and we have to locate the graves with our own eyes.

We have been over all the famous battle areas in Verdun, as well as in several of the outlying forts protecting that city, and it certainly is a very wonderful sight. One of the most interesting places we visited was the old Fort de Vaux, which was completely destroyed that we walked over its former site and just to see the ruins of the place. It is a very interesting sight. The fighting in Verdun took place and from the looks of things how any man could stand to see the place. It is a very wonderful sight. It is more than I can figure out.

While we have traveled through the entire breadth of France, so far, we have not had an opportunity to see some of the larger cities. First, where we landed, and Verdun being the largest ones, the latter of course being in ruins, but some wonderful sights are to be seen there. However, I hope to visit Paris before my return to the dear old U. S. A.

I must not close without paying tribute to our "DOUGHBOYS." I have seen them at the first aid stations where they were brought in wounded and such a wonderful spirit as they possessed, general. The first thing they wanted was a cigarette, which was always forthcoming. We have followed them right up to the front lines, and how they drove the Germans out of some places is almost amazing. America could not be too proud of her "Doughboys" because they certainly are wonderful. Another thing about them is that they are so many of them, and they are so brave and brave, that they kept the thick-headed Dutchman guessing all the time.

Might add that, so far, I have not registered the graves of any of Boone's fallen heroes, but I should like to. I am sure they should be and I am sure they should be and I am sure they should be.

Must close for this time as it is getting late. Give my very best to all the folks at home, as well as my other friends around town and with best wishes, hoping to have the pleasure of seeing you here many months, I am, Yours Sincerely,

Q. M. Sgt. Senior Grade, PHILIP TALIAFERRO, No. 311 Graves Registration Service, American Expeditionary Force, U. S. A.

Has Been a Source of Revenue

Caddie Maurer's poultry has been a source of revenue for a long time and during the period eggs were bringing the highest price they were especially active in egg producing. The same party bought a pair of ducks from a noted poultry yard in New York. These ducks cost him $16 a piece and will be the best of the top in the matter of breeding and egg producing.

Very Good Advice.

Mr. Wiley, the State Road Commissioner, is quoted as saying in a speech at the convention of the State Road Builders in Lexington:

"In about thirty counties bond issues have been voted, and in some of them, in order that the issue might carry, some of the speakers on the stump being fired with road enthusiasm, have promised that roads would be built everywhere.

"These promises were made in many instances without any investigation whatever.

"In the first place, an arbitrary amount of money was usually decided upon, in a number of instances being the limit that the county could bond itself for on a personal audit of our Constitution.

"I am at this time, and always will be, unalterably opposed to a bond issue in any county or in any State except where the roads are to be improved are designated, accurately surveyed and the cost carefully estimated.

"The people would making where the roads are to be built, of what material they are to be built and their cost, and the amount of the bond issue and interest to be determined by the work to be done."

Very good advice to voters who are taxpayers. For the issue of a bond is a question of improvement which they cannot solve. Voters, urged on by speakers ignorant of insincerity and expect results like those which attended the rubbing of the magic lamp, in the case of Aladdin and better roads must be built in Kentucky as in other States, but best disillusionment. They must understand that amount of money before they get them there should be a clear understanding of what can be done in the way of improvement and in a given amount of money before that amount of money is furnished by taxpayers who must raise the money by a bond issue during an indefinite period which might be described like the period of the happiness of the hero and the success of the typical fairy story, as continuing "ever afterward," Courier-Journal.

Figured on False Basis.

The County Tax Commissioner was instructed by the State Board last year to bring the assessed value of real estate to 85 per cent of its actual value for taxation this year, and in some instances the local commissionaries have figured on the basis of this county was the several sales of real estate during the past year were so high as to show that the value of the property was 85 per cent of its actual value. The transfers received by the State Board as evidence as to the value of land and other property in this county the past year in most cases the sales have involved the highest class and to strike the assessed value upon these sales is doing the county a very great injustice as the average of the land in the county would fall far below the value shown by these transfers. The State Board was convinced of its error to the extent of $400,000 of the raise it proposed giving the county.

Calendar Reform Scught.

The peace conference is to be called upon to reform the calendar.

The request is to be filed by the French Academy of Sciences.

"If the academy plan is accepted, next year will probably be the year of the new world."

Time will be reckoned not from the birth of Christ, but from the signing of the peace treaty creating the new world.

Most of the world now accepts the Gregorian calendar, but much of the fact that Russia and the Balkans use the Julian calendar, in which the year differs from the Gregorian year by about 10 days.

The peace conference will be asked to make one calendar compulsory or official throughout the world.

The French Academy has proposed a year of 13 months, each month having 28 days. The 365th day in ordinary years and 366th in leap years would be included in any month.

Under this plan a given day of the month always would fall on the same day of the week.

The new calendar would be composed of four equal quarters each quarter composed of one month of 31 days and two months of 30 days each.

Building a Bungalow.

Paul Bethel has all the material on the ground for the building of a bungalow on the land he purchased of Bert Hays and his wife. The site of the new building will be near where the "Kendall line" intersects the Burlington and East Bend road.

Kept Everything in Good Shape

County Judge Cassan made a netting a few days ago with Richard Sleet, colored, administrator of Marion Sleet, colored, and says in his last report, made as a settlement with an administrator who had his accounts in a better shape and appreciated more fully the duties of his trust.

7,354,000 LIVES TOLL OF WAR.

Seven million three hundred and fifty-four thousand men died in the war, according to official figures given out.

Germany paid the heaviest price, with 1,700,000 battle deaths, while Germany was second, France third and the United States last among the great powers.

Battle deaths are those occurring in action and from wounds received in action. The totals, aside from Russia ran:

|-----------------------|-----------|
| Germany | 1,600,000 |
| France | 1,385,000 |
| Austria-Hungary | 800,000 |
| Great Britain | 700,000 |
| Italy | 600,000 |
| Turkey | 250,000 |
| Belgium | 100,000 |
| Bulgaria | 100,000 |
| Serbia and Montenegro | 100,000 |
| United States | 50,000 |

American demobilizations to date number 7,452 officers and 1,224,507 men. March announced. Up to February 20 embarkations from France totaled 32,222 men, of whom 281,919 have landed. Up to the signing of the armistice, 2,056,122 Americans had been sent overseas.

All Admire a Noble Fighter.

All decent men, and even women, we believe, admire a noble and courageous fighter, whether on the field of battle, in the business arena, or in the public debate or in the subtle duels of the council chamber.

Whatever opinion any one may have of the character, talents or temperament of Woodrow Wilson, no open-minded observer can deny that he has put up a glorious fight against what have seemed insuperable obstacles and invincible enemies in his efforts to promote a League of Nations, a plan of indomitable courage, of the skillful use of weapons of endurance that has no limitations, the fight which this man of peace has put up must appeal to all sane observers. His brilliant and as fascinating as the contest between David and Goliath, Achilles and Hector, Napoleon and the Duke of Wellington, and even Marshal Foch and General Hindenburg.

In the first place, he had to counter the opposition of his own constituents, who were going to the field of battle, but he staked his political future on his personal judgment and "set his face like a flint" to go to what seemed to him unlikely to be his crucifixion.

Arriving at the "field of honor," he was met with suspicion of his motives. While he met his critics with wild applause, his leaders held their weapons of criticism behind their backs and deceived. His brilliant and as fascinating as the contest between David and Goliath, Achilles and Hector, Napoleon and the Duke of Wellington, and even Marshal Foch and General Hindenburg.

And then began that mighty struggle with the judgments and the wills of the giants of the political world—Lloyd George, Clemenceau and innumerable representatives of the European Powers. Having won their confidence by use of every weapon over used in such a struggle, he tackled the obstacles which divided the nations like mountain barriers. The conflicting interests which had to be harmonized, the jealousies which had to be allayed, the animosities which had to be pacified, were such as never confronted the souls of men in all the world before.

And yet, so far as we can learn, the valiant warrior never lowered his sword nor trailed his banner in the dust, and only lost his temper once. Serene, invincible and imperturbable, he cut and thrust and parried until his enemies laid down their weapons and the obstacles to his endeavors vanished.

It was a great fight and a glorious victory, but a sterner test of the warrior's skill and courage awaits him here at home.—Enquirer.

A Booming Boom.

The boom in Petersburg real estate is still going strong and the wealth of the citizens there has increased considerably in the past month. Quite a number of country purchases have been made, and more who are seeking property there. Nestled between the foot of a large hill and the beautiful Ohio river, the town of Petersburg is a most fertile territory and there is no reason why it should not be a favorite place for those who are ready to build an active life to make their home.

Has Moved to His New Home.

C. D. Rennecker, of Dry Ridge, Grant county, who purchased the property of Ben Stippling, has been accompanied by his father, Mr. Rennecker has moved to his home and is now a fully fledged citizen of the town. He came from what is considered the garden spot of Grant county, but he believes there are garden spots other than Dry Ridge, and that he has a portion of one.

A Week's News

March came in like a Lion. Soon be 'tatter planting time. Everybody should get busy now. Numerous cases of mumps in Bellevue and vicinity.

Wallace Rice is recovering from an attack of inflammatory rheumatism. Thomas Rice commenced turning soil last week for his 1919 crop of corn.

President Wilson is on his return trip to France. Now let the howlers howl again.

Young chickens are beginning to put in an appearance at many country houses.

The local colored church has employed Rev. Campbell as its pastor for the present year.

The Aurora, Indiana, base ball park has been plowed up to be cultivated in tobacco this year.

If March weather is ruled by the weather of the first three days it will be a very fine month.

Mrs. Belle Cropper, of Petersburg, was the guest of Mrs. Fannie Cropper one day last week.

Waterloo neighborhood is badly flu stricken, there not being enough well people there to care for the sick.

R. W. Southgate, of Covington, and H. L. Harrison, of Ludlow, were transacting business in Burlington last Friday.

There are two more weeks of ground hog winter and according to the weather chart at hand the most of it will be good weather.

S. W. Tolin has repaired his house across the street from the house occupied by Joseph Hucy and his family.

Robert Carver and family moved to their new home in Petersburg last Tuesday. Burlington's loss is Petersburg's gain in this instance.

A heavy wind and rain storm prevailed here for several miles last Friday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock, being February's last bluster.

Land that has been plowed this year is reported to be breaking very nicely, notwithstanding there have been no hard freezes the past few months.

B. R. Hume has sold and delivered his Dodge cars up to this date. If you want a Dodge you had better put your order in at once to expedite matters.

Benjamin Northcutt, who resides on the Price pike, shipped 42 fat hogs to market last Monday. Kirkpatrick's and Kelly's trucks hauled them.

The population of Petersburg is composed largely of real estate agents at present. It is said it is hard to visit the town and get away without investing with some one of them.

Drafted men with the regular divisions in Germany are much disturbed because the other draft and National Guard soldiers are sent home and nothing has been said about their release.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Rogers, of Walton neighborhood, are rejoicing over the return of their son, Corporal Clarence Rogers, who belonged to the Marine Corps and was located at Quantico, Va.

The proposition to repeal the "black daylight" law is meeting with strong opposition the country over. It gets you up earlier in the morning but gives you more time for loafing in the afternoon.

The work of preparing plant beds will be in full blast in the next few days. The slump in the prices of tobacco will not cause any reduction at present in preparations for a very large crop against his year.

Johnnie Hogan, of the Mebron neighborhood, came out Monday in a brand new Dodge, which had absorbed his old Ford and some of the surplus he had been accumulating on the tobacco market this winter.

Willis Grant, who lives on Gunpowder creek, near the church, has purchased 1,500 pounds of tobacco on one and a fourth acres of ground and sold it on the Walton Loose Leaf one day's work at $57.73 a hundred pounds.

Dr. Crisler, of North Bend, was called to Ludlow last week to assist in administering to those stricken with influenza. He said that all the other local physicians could not look after all the patients there being so many.

WALTON.

Mrs. Robert Ayler, who has been very ill is slowly recovering.

J. C. Miller spent last Sunday at Ludlow, the guest of his cousin Dr. J. G. Slater.

D. M. Skirvin of Owen county, was here Sunday looking for a horse that strayed from his premises. He found it near Burlington.

Dr. Wm. S. Tomlin, of Indianapolis, spent part of last week here at the bedside of his brother Judge J. G. Tomlin who has been very ill.

Burth Arnold, who was in the United States Navy, returned last week, having been honorably discharged at Cleveland, O., where he was stationed.

Thomas J. Morris and family moved back to Warsaw this week where they have bought property, having sold their farm near Walton to Elsie Hudson.

Mrs. Anna Stapleton of Madisonville, Ohio, spent Monday here closing up the sale of her farm near Walton to J. S. Reiff, of Winchester.

Mrs. Julia West has moved to the Mayhugh property recently purchased by her and Raymond Renaker and Milton Richey and families have moved to the West property.

Harry Mayhugh, who has been in the service in France returned last Saturday, having been honorably discharged at Camp Taylor. He received a number of severe wounds in battle but has about recovered.

Frank W. Johnson who has just returned from service in the army in France spent the week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Johnson, going from here to Newport, to resume his position in a steel plant.

Robert J. Daniels and son J. W. Daniels, and Geo. B. Hamilton and wife of Kenton county, were here last Saturday making transfers of some land sold to each other. Mr. Daniels bought the farm of Mont Baird of 77 acres in Kenton county, for $1,000.

The Walton Baptist church has secured the services of Rev. Willett of Louisville, as pastor, and held services last Sunday. He will not move here for some time and W. B. Johnson has moved to the parsonage for a couple of months.

The sales at Walton loose leaf warehouse are still quite good, notwithstanding the depression of the market. The sales last Saturday averaged 27 cents, and one crop of over 10,000 pounds averaged 41 cents. The offerings are still heavy though the rejection have been large. An improvement in the market is looked for in a couple of weeks.

The Jerry Carpenter farm of 218 acres, situated near Richmond, was sold at public auction at the Equitable Bank last Saturday. W. B. Johnson acting as auctioneer.

E. C. Rector, of Bourbon-co., was the highest bidder, and the farm was sold to him for $17,100. Mr. Rector takes possession at once but will place a tenant on the farm this year, and expects to move to the place next year.

The farm was owned by D. B. Wallace & Co., who sold the place to settle a partnership in the farm, the members of the firm being D. B. Wallace, J. G. Tomlin and Jno. L. Vest.

Judge J. G. Tomlin who recently returned from Battle Creek, Michigan, where he had been for the benefit of his health, was stricken with paralysis at his home last Tuesday night, his entire right side being affected.

Judge Tomlin was feeling unusually well that day but in the evening became ill and summoned his physician Dr. G. C. Rankins.

He shortly after was stricken with paralysis. His condition was considerably improved within the past few days and hopes are entertained of his recovery. He has been a very useful citizen, public spirited and enterprising, and his loss to the community from active business life would be greatly felt.

The residence of Barnett K. Sleet on his farm near Walton was destroyed by fire last Saturday night and Mr. Sleet lost his life in the flames. His wife and three children had gone to spend the night with some neighbors and Mr. Sleet was alone in the house, and the origin of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to have been caused from a lantern that was left lighted in the kitchen.

When the fire was discovered neighbors hurried to the premises and were able to secure the charred body of Mr. Sleet from the kitchen where he had fallen overcome by the fire. Both arms and legs were burned from the body. John C. Adams was the first to arrive at the fire and broke in the kitchen door and discovered the body of Mr. Sleet lying on the floor. The neighbors were brought to Scott Chambers undertaking establishment and the funeral took place Sunday afternoon, the interment taking place in the Baptist cemetery.

Mrs. Sleet carried $4,000 life insurance. He was a son of John H. Sleet of Beaver Lick, and was about 41 years old. He was a good, clever man and his death is deplored by a very large circle of sorrowing friends.

Jumbo Zellars, colored, has moved to Mrs. Furrill's place, known as the old tall gate house on the Florence Pike.

The farmer will be a busy man in the month of March, continuing to furnish a good article of winter.

William Craddock has moved to Geo. Kreytich's farm and will crop there this year.

Thos. Craddock, of Meville, was in town last Tuesday. He had had a very bad cold and was not feeling extra good.

Joe Huey and family are now residents of the town, having moved to the residence S. W. Tolin had rented recently.

PRESS GOSSIP.

Probably Ben Johnson and Gary Herrmann feel a bit ruffled because they put across a big league without their assistance; but Percy Wilson was equal to the job.—Los Angeles Times.

If Woodrow had only inserted a plank providing for an annual river and harbor pork bill, the League of Nations would have gone through like a shot.—Washington Post.

Sometimes we are almost inclined to think there are some things about the Wilson administration that don't entirely suit the Republicans.—Anaconda Standard.

Certainly it is none of our business, but for the good of the order we do hope Mrs. Wilson didn't bring home any of those Paris dresses that look like an umbrella at half-mast.—Dallas News.

Another funny thing is the airy fairy Lillian who goes out in public in an evening gown which leaves about a third of her stick ing up over the top is just so shocked and mortified for words when the milk man or grocery boy accidentally surprises her in the front hall in a kimono without a belt.—Macon Telegraph.

It will not be nearly so interesting to know how many teetotalers will hide out liquor against the day of drought as it will be to know their names and addresses with a diagram setting forth exactly where they hide it.—Lexington Herald.

The drys contend it will be much easier to find them in the middle of the road after while, but will the road be attractive enough to make it worth while?—Baltimore Sun.

Local Happenings.

Mrs. Chas. Fowler has been inconvenienced several days by a sprained ankle.

Miss Sallie Vaughn is at home with her mother, who has been ill for several days.

Mrs. Joseph A. Huey, of Union neighborhood, is very ill with pneumonia following influenza.

W. L. Kirkpatrick sold White Bros., of Petersburg, an International truck, last Saturday, which they required for their business.

Howard Aylor, who is in France, writes his folks at home that he is well once more but has no idea when he will be sent to the United States.

Mrs. Alice Snyder, who was ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. N. W. Carpenter two miles out in the country, was able to return home last Sunday.

Judge Ben Stephens and his son Ben and family will move to what is known as the Jack Barton residence on the pike between Florence and Erlanger.

D. T. Riggs, Aurora, Ind., R. D. 3, writes the Recorder that he raised $2,625.38 worth of tobacco on A. M. H. Rodgers' farm in Mt. Pleasant neighborhood.

Judge Lassing is sojourning at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jos. A. Huey, near White Haven, and assisting to nurse the members of the family who are ill of the influenza.

Russell Finn, of Plattsburg, is recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia. The young man has had two spells of severe illness since he returned home from camp several weeks since.

The Recorder is not carrying so many public sale advertisements this week. Tillers of the soil generally are getting settled for this year and activities in the public sale line will cease for a while, until the next fall.

The Recorder was in error last week when it said Mrs. Mary Moore, who died on R. D. 3, was the widow of James Moore. She was the widow of Wm. Moore, who was a brother of James Moore.

The downward tendency of the price of tobacco last week created some uneasiness on the part of some who had not disposed of their crops. The bottom can drop out of the tobacco market in a very short time and produce ruinous effects.

The wind storm last Friday afternoon did quite a bit of damage in several neighborhoods in the county, unroofing barns, breaking windows and turning over small buildings and hay stacks. No persons nor stock reported injured.

William Arnold, of the Bellevue neighborhood, pulled down the high price at Walton Loo's. Leaf sales last Saturday, his crop averaging $14.23 per 100 pounds. He was the best pleased man on the floor that day. It was an extra quality of tobacco.

James Pettit, camp home Saturday and remained over Sunday with home folks. He is stationed at Camp Taylor at present where he will receive his final discharge next Saturday. He went overseas but did not reach the battlefront, the armistice having been signed when his squad landed.

Lost—Three weeks ago at Erlanger while attending a picture show, a good horse blanket, gray on one side and blue on the other. The party who has the blanket is known, and if he will return it to Elmer Cahill no more will be said about it.
EDGAR FISHER.

Mrs. M. L. Riddell visited W. T. Riddell and wife, of Dayton, Ohio, a few days last week.

Jay Calvert, of the Rabbit Hash precinct, one day last week.

Jas. Mitchell, who resides about four miles south of Burlington has been very much indisposed for several weeks.

W. L. Stephens moved from Frank House's farm to the Parsons place on Middle creek and Geo. Shinkle moved to the property vacated by Mr. Stephens.

Judge Ben Stephens was in Burlington one day the past week, closing the deal by which the farm on which he was born and reared passed to its new owner, Mr. Rennekar.

L. P. Anderson was in Burlington last Saturday closing up the deal whereby Mrs. Cahill, of Cynthia Harrison county, became the owner of the land Mr. Anderson bought of W. A. Gaines, and is known as the Western Reserve and the Paschal Rucker farm.

W. E. Glacken and wife, of the Richmond neighborhood, were business visitors to Burlington last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Glacken is preparing to cultivate a large tract of land, and will not be able to be to the farm in diversified crops.

On account of the prevalence of the influenza in the neighborhood and vicinity Lewis Sullivan's sale last Saturday afternoon was not attended by a very large crowd and prices were not equal to those usually obtained at other sales where health conditions did not interfere with the assembling of buyers.

Owen Blankenbaker and wife, of Union, were in Burlington a short time one afternoon last week. Mr. Blankenbaker has already made his plans to spend considerable time on Gunpowder creek with pole and line this year, and according to his dope fine fish will swarm in that stream because of the open winter. He generally has the correct dope as to fish.

Capt. Henry Kottmyer, of Constantine, was at the Hub, last Monday. He has been at the ferry there for 33 years and this winter and the winter of 1918 are the only two of which there was no running ice in the river. He will build a new boat this year. The court of appeals in a recent decision overruled the effort to require him to pay a tax on his franchise.

The steering apparatus on a Ford became disarranged last Saturday afternoon as the car was proceeding along the pike between Florence and Erlanger, and, as a result the front wheels cut under and the machine was turned upside down in the middle of the road. In the machine were two passengers, one of whom a boy sustained a broken arm. The machine was badly damaged.

Sterling Rouse, who, only a few weeks ago, arrived at home from Camp Meade, soon entered another camp, but this time he was the highest in command and, as a result, produced some very fine tree molasses, information as to its quality being obtained by an actual test of a generous sample. He has a quantity of this excellent syrup for sale. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

A post card from Robt. R. Robbins requests that the address on his Recorder be changed to "Robert R. Robbins, Convalescent Ward No. 3, Base Hospital, Camp Taylor, Ky."

This young man was at the front and was severely injured in one of his lower limbs, and it may be several weeks before he reaches home, but he is as plucky as they get.

O. P. Phillips and family moved to their new home back of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, last Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips have many friends in Kentucky and are sorry to see them leave the State, and hope they will have abundant use of property in the Hoosier State. Phillips' trucks and cars are to cross the river by way of Anderson ferry.

Mrs. Virginia Hewitt Dead.

Virginia Hewitt, born Jan. 30th, 1846, near Florence, Ky., died February 27th, 1919, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Eliza Fogle, at Cleves, Ohio.

She was married to D. M. Hewitt Jan. 1, 1867. She was charter member of Burlington Universalist church of which she has been a member 42 years. She has three sisters — Mrs. Minerva Beemon, Mrs. Fanny Acra, Mrs. Carrie Deck and two brothers — Owen and Charles Beemon.

She was the mother of eleven children, seven of whom survive her—three daughters, Miss Carrie Hewitt, Mrs. Eliza Fogle, Mrs. Jeanette A. Honaker, and four sons—Wm. P. Ben, Geo. R. and Leonard D. Hewitt and six grandchildren and one great-grand child. Mrs. Hewitt was a most excellent lady, a devoted wife and a loving and indulgent mother, and was dearly loved by her children.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors of Boone county, also of Cleves, Ohio, for their kind and generous contributions to the last illness of our mother, Virginia Hewitt, who died Feb. 27th, 1919. We also wish to thank Bro. Carter for his consoling words, also the people who sang, also Mr. Argo the undertaker and Mrs. Woods and Yelton. THE FAMILY.

Sale Chasing.

John Clore, of Hebron, who confesses being the greatest sales-chaser in this county, passed through Burlington last Thursday enroute to a sale in the Waterloo neighborhood. John says when there are two sales the same day it is impossible for him to give each the attention he would like, and for the past several weeks he has had to travel on high speed to keep up with the sales they having been so numerous.

Thirty years ago this country had thousands of beautiful walnut trees as they grew on the face of the earth. They were ruthlessly cut down, split into fence posts and rails and sawed into lumber which was used for all kinds of building purposes. Many of these trees today would sell for $100. The same line of policy is now being pursued with many other kinds of timber. Pine trees are being laid waste by the million. The southern turpentine manufacturer is yearly destroying thousands of beautiful pine trees for the sake of a gallon of turpentine from each, that in a few years would be worth many dollars, and so it is with other kinds of timber. The land now covered with old timber is growing in of little value for anything else. There are many trees that if left alone for the next few years would bring high prices. It would be well to think of these things before ruthlessly chopping them down. The line of the poet would be applicable: "Woodman, spare that tree."

Barnett Sleet, who resided between Walton and Verona in this county lost his life last Saturday night in a fire that consumed his dwelling and its contents. Mr. Sleet was the only member of the family at home that night and it is thought he knuckled over a lamp that resulted in a hasty conflagration. The body was found in the wreck of the building and was in a horrible condition, the limbs being burned from the trunk. The fire was discovered by the neighbors shortly after midnight but had gained such headway it was impossible to save anything of the building. Mr. Sleet was evidently dead before any one reached the house as it was not certain he had not gone from home until the charred remains were discovered. The unfortunate man was a son of John H. Sleet, of Beaver, and is survived by his wife and three small children, the oldest being about thirteen years of age.

Victory Girl Chairman for Boone County.

Esquire Charles Wilson and Colin Kelly, of Rabbit Hash, passed thru Burlington, last Tuesday, morning enroute to Cincinnati, to which place "Silo Wilson was going to have his eyes treated, they having been giving him considerable trouble recently. He is money about his sight which has failed considerably the past month.

Timothy Sanford transacted business in Bellevue, Tuesday. His love for that neighborhood and her people will not let him remain away from them very long without having paid them a visit.

L. L. Stephens, of Waterloo, was transacting business in Burlington, last Tuesday. He was a patient at a local hospital when that disease was so prevalent in his neighborhood.

John Utzinger, of the Francesville neighborhood, is in the Durham county Indiana, last Tuesday. H. D. Phipps and L. H. Sprague will be close neighbors.

The rock crushing outfit was moved Tuesday, from Jerry Tanner's, out on the Florence pike to Samuel Hall's out on the Bellevue pike.

Rev. R. F. Swindler announced last Sunday that he would close his labors as pastor of Union Baptist church the latter part of April.

RED CROSS GIFTS $400,000,000

War Council on Retirement Announces Cash and Supplies Contributed.

WORKERS WILL "CARRY ON."

Five Big Societies in World Wide Plan.
H. P. Davison Heads International American Red Cross Commission.
Dr. Livingston Farrand Permanent Leader of Peace Organization.

Washington, (Special)—Henry P. Davison as chairman issues the following statement on behalf of the War Council of the American Red Cross:

"To the American People:
"The War Council of the American Red Cross appointed by President Wilson on May 13, 1917, to carry on the work of the American Red Cross during the war, at their request and by vote of the Central Committee, ceased at midnight, February 28.

"Immediately the armistice was signed the War Council instituted studies to determine when the strictly war work of the organization would have been sufficiently matured to enable the direction of affairs to be resumed by the permanent staff. Henry P. Davison, being in Paris when the armistice was signed, announced a conference there of the heads of all the Red Cross Commissions in Europe to canvass the situation. After considering all the factors it was concluded to make the transition on March 1. The very fortunate choice of Dr. Livingston Farrand, chairman of the Central Committee, and thereby the permanent chief executive of the Red Cross, makes possible the carrying on of the work under the most favorable conditions.

Accounts Audited by War Department.

"Detailed reports to Congress and a complete audit of its accounts by the War Department will constitute the final record of Red Cross activity during the war. Although it has been the rule to make public all expenditures when authorized and to give detailed information relative to all work undertaken, the War Council in turning over its responsibilities to Dr. Farrand and his associates desire to give a brief resume of Red Cross activities to the American people to whom the Red Cross belongs, and whose generous contributions have made possible all that has been accomplished.

"During the past nearly twenty months the American people have given in cash and supplies to the American Red Cross more than $400,000,000. No value can be placed upon the contributions of service which have been given without stint and of untiring at great sacrifice by millions of our people.

"The effort of the American Red Cross in this war has constituted by far the largest voluntary gift of money, of hand and heart, ever contributed purely for the relief of human suffering. Through the Red Cross the heart and spirit of the whole American people have been mobilized to take care of our own, to relieve the misery incident to the war, and also to reveal to the world the supreme ideals of our national life.

"Everyone who has had any part in this war effort of the Red Cross is entitled to congratulate himself. No thanks from anyone could be equal in value to the self-satisfaction everyone should feel for the part taken. Fully 5,000,000 American women have exerted themselves in Red Cross service. Has Over 17,000,000 Adult Members.

"When we entered the war the American Red Cross had about 500,000 members. Today, as the result of the recent Christmas membership Roll Call, there are upwards of 17,000,000 full and members, making the members of the Junior Red Cross, numbering perhaps 9,000,000 school children additional.

"The chief effort of the Red Cross during the war has been to care for our men in service and to aid our army and navy wherever the Red Cross may be called on to assist. As to this phase of the work Surgeon General Ireland of the U. S. Army recently said: 'The Red Cross has been an enterprise as vast as the war itself. From the beginning it has done those things which the Army Medical Corps wanted done, but could not do itself.'

"The Red Cross endeavor in France has naturally been upon an exceptionally large scale where service has been rendered to the American Army and to the French Army and the French people as well, the latter particularly during the trying period when the Allied World was waiting for the American Army to arise in force and power. Hospital emergency service for our army in France has greatly diminished, but the Red Cross is still being called upon for service upon a large scale in the front line hospitals, where thousands of American sick and wounded are still receiving attention. At these hospitals the Red Cross supplies food and facilities for the amusement and recreation of the men as they become convalescent. Our Army of Occupation in Germany was followed with Medical units prepared to render the same emergency aid and supply service which was the primary business of the Red Cross during hostilities. The Army of Occupation service along the lines of travel has actually increased since the armistice. As for workingmen the French people, now that hostilities have ceased, the French themselves naturally prefer as far as possible to provide for their own. It has accordingly been determined that the guiding principle of Red Cross activity in France hereafter shall be to have participation regard to its every responsibility, but to direct its efforts primarily to assisting French relief societies. The liberated and devastated regions of France have been divided by the government into some districts officially assigned to a designated French relief organization.

"The American Red Cross work in France was initiated by a commission of eighteen men who landed on French shores June 13, 1917. Since then some 10,000 persons have been upon the rolls in France, of whom 7,000 were actively engaged when the armistice was signed. An indication of the present scale of the work will be obtained from the fact that the services of 10,000 persons are still required.

"The American Expeditionary Force having largely extended throughout the activities of the Red Cross Commissions there are naturally upon a diminishing scale. The work of the Red Cross is still in progress in Archangel and Siberia.

"The work in Italy has been almost entirely on behalf of the civilian population of that country. In the critical hours of Italy's struggle the American people, through their Red Cross, sent a practical message of sympathy and relief, for which the government and people of Italy have never ceased to express their gratitude.

Supplies and Personnel to Near East.

"The occasion for such concentration of effort in Italy, England, Belgium and even in France having naturally and normally diminished, it has been possible to divert supplies and personnel in large measure to the aid of those people in the Near East who have hitherto been inaccessible to outside assistance, but whose sufferings have been upon an appalling scale. The needs of these peoples are so vast that government alone can meet them, but the American Red Cross is making an effort to relieve immediately the most acute of these.

"An extensive group of American workers has been detached to carry vitally needed supplies, and to work this winter at the various Balkan countries. In order to coordinate their activities a Balkan commission has been established, with headquarters at Rome, Italy, from which point all the Balkan centers can be reached promptly.

"A commission has just reached Poland with doctors and nurses, medical supplies, and food for sick children and invalids. An American Red Cross hospital has also been appointed to aid in relieving the suffering of Russian prisoners still confined in German prison camps.

"An important commission is still working in Palestine. Through the war special cooperation has been given to the Armenian and Syrian Relief Commission, which was the only agency able to carry relief in the interior of Turkish dominions.

Red Cross Will Continue.

"Red Cross effort is thus far from being confined to be so. But the movement represented by this work has likewise assumed an intimate place in the daily life of our people at home. The army of workers which has been recruited and trained during the war must not be demobilized. All our experience in the war shows clearly that there is an unlimited field for service of the kind which can be performed with peculiar effectiveness by the Red Cross. What its future tasks may be it is not possible to forecast. We know that so long as there are American men in the field the Red Cross will have a special function to perform.

"Nothing could be of greater importance to the American Red Cross than the plans just set in motion by the five great Red Cross societies of the world to develop a program of extended activities in the interest of humanity.

"The conception involves not alone efforts to relieve human suffering, but to prevent it, but not alone a movement by the people of an individual nation, but an attempt to arouse all people to a sense of responsibility for the welfare of their fellow beings throughout the world. It is a program both ideal and practical. Ideal in that its supreme aim is nothing less than veritable 'peace on earth good will to men,' and practical in that it seeks to take means and measures which are actually available and make them effective in meeting without delay the crisis which is daily recurrent in the lives of all peoples.

"For accomplishing its mission in the years of peace which must lie ahead of us the Red Cross will require the ablest possible leadership, and must enjoy the cordial support, sympathy, and participation in its work of the whole American people. It is particularly fortunate that such a man as Dr. Livingston Farrand should have been selected as the permanent head of the organization. The unstinted devotion which our people gave of themselves throughout the war is the best assurance that our Red Cross will continue to receive that co-operation which will make its work a source of pride and inspiration to every American.

"Mr. Davison, as chairman of the International Committee of the American Red Cross, has undertaken to represent the American Red Cross in the preparation of the program for extended Red Cross activities, and will spend the next several months in Europe in consultation with other Red Cross societies for the purpose of securing THE WAR COUNCIL OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS.

SOME WHEAT SUBSTITUTES.

The cooking of cereals a long time is most important. Different kinds need longer or shorter periods of cooking. Cornmeal, one cupful, takes four cupfuls of boiling water cooked over the direct heat five to ten minutes, then slowly either in a double boiler or fireless cooker; three hours in former, over night in a fireless cooker. Oatmeal, one cupful, takes four cupfuls of water the same length of cooking over heat and six hours double boiler cooking, or fireless all night cooking. Rice takes three to five cupfuls of water to a cupful of rice and the same cooking as oats. If the cereal is to be cooked in the fireless where there is no evaporation, one-fourth to a half cupful less of water should be used.

Cream of Oats Soup.—Take one cupful of cooked dried potato, a medium-sized onion, minced, browned in two tablespoonsful of fat. Add one cupful of cooked rolled oats and sufficient boiling water to cover. Simmer until the vegetables are tender; then add two cupfuls of hot milk, three tablespoonsful of salt, pepper, celery, salt and parsley.

Cereal Loaf.—Take two cupfuls of hominy grits, a half cupful of chopped meat, two tablespoonsful of minced onion, two tablespoonsful of minced celery, salt, paprika and soup stock to shape the mixture into small cakes. Brown in a small amount of hot fat. Serve with tomato or horseradish sauce.

Barley and Meat Casserole.—Take a cupful of finely chopped meat, two cupfuls of cooked barley, one and a half cupfuls of minced tomatoes, two tablespoonsful of minced pimento, two tablespoonsful of minced onion and salt and pepper to taste. Combine the ingredients and place them in a well-greased dish. Cover and bake thirty to forty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Hominy grits may be substituted for barley.

Nellie Maxwell
We observe that since November 11 the prices of officers' clothing and fixtures have fallen 25 per cent. And we believe the civilians will be able to buy woolen underwear and blankets a little cheaper next May.

We have now entered upon that happy period long referred to as "After the War."

War has received its honorable—or is it dishonorable?—discharge.

What worries us is the possibility that when Johnnie comes marching home and discards his uniform he may not consider his wrist watch a part of his strictly military equipment.

Nobody cares very much where Old Bill Hohenzollern goes so long as he does not come back.

Another permanent legacy of the war should be comfortable footgear.

In their continued conclusion that patrons owe them tips, waiters and other servants of the public seem largely to have forgotten that service is a condition precedent to the gratuity.

It probably will be a long time before any German writer will produce a book on "The Next War."

What a lot of this war the German historians will have to forget.

The More You Use Your Car The More You Need Good Tires

Your car's usefulness is increasing every day.

It is becoming more and more of a real necessity to you—both in your business and home life.

For that very reason you need good tires, now, more than ever.

The out-and-out dependability that created so tremendous a demand for United States Tires in times of war is just as desirable today.

It reduces tire troubles to the vanishing point—multiplying the usefulness of your car and putting the cost of operation on a real thrift basis.

United States 'Nobby', 'Chain', 'Usco', and 'Plain' are the most popular fabric tires built. They have all the strength and stamina our years of experience have taught us to put into tires.

There is also the United States 'Royal Cord', the finest ever built for passenger car use.

Our nearest Sales and Service Depot dealer has exactly the treads you need for your car and the roads you travel.

He will gladly help you pick them out.

PAY AND FILE INCOME TAX BEFORE MAR. 15

U. S. Internal Revenue Bureau
Gives Warning That Severe
Penalties Will Be Enforced.

WOMEN WITHIN LAW'S SCOPE; HOW THEY REPORT INCOME

The Income Tax drive comes to a close on Saturday night, March 15. All payments and returns due on that date under the provisions of the new Revenue Law must be in the hands of local Internal Revenue collectors before their offices close that night. The Income Tax is being collected to meet the war expenses. Every person who shirked and fooled his own on Armistice Day is now called upon to contribute his share of the cost of winning the war.

The taxpayers and the delayers will face severe fines and jail sentences. The Internal Revenue Bureau announces that the delayers will be all up to see that every person who comes within the scope of the Income Tax law will be caught.

Where to Pay and File.

Residents of Kentucky should make their returns and pay their taxes to the nearest of the following: Josh T. Griffith, Owensboro; J. Rogers Gore, Louisville; Charles B. Thompson, Covington; Edward Hamilton, Lexington; John W. Hines, Danville.

Payments sent by mail should be attached to the return and should be in the form of check, money order or draft. Check payments by mail are sent in the taxpayer's risk of loss, upon to contribute his share of the cost of winning the war.

If there are any doubtful points as to your items of income or allowable deductions you should get in touch at once with a Revenue officer or a banker for advice.

Women Pay Tax.

Women are subject to all the requirements of the Income Tax. Whether single or married, a woman's income from all sources must be considered.

If unmarried and living apart from her husband she must make her return for 1918 if her net income was $1,000 or over. If married and living with her husband her income must be considered with the husband's in determining the liability for a return. Their joint income, less the credits allowed by law, is subject to normal tax. The wife's net income is considered separately in computing any surtax that may be due. Husband and wife file jointly, as a unit. If the husband does not include his wife's income in his return the wife must file a separate return.

Severe Penalties.

The new Revenue Law places severe penalties on a person who fails to make return on time, refuses to make return or renders a fraudulent return. For failure to make return and pay tax on time a fine of not more than $1,000 is imposed and 25 per cent of the tax due is added to the assessment. For refusing wilfully to make return or for making a false or fraudulent return there is a fine of not exceeding $10,000 and imprisonment of not exceeding one year, or both.

Farmers' Income Taxable.

Every farmer and ranchman who had a fair or a good year in 1918 must file the Income Tax this year. He must consider all his income as taxable. He is entitled to deduct from his gross income all amounts expended in carrying on his farm. The cost of farm machinery, farm buildings and improvements cannot be deducted. The cost of live stock, either for resale or for breeding purposes, is also recorded as investment.

Overtime and Bonuses Taxed.

Salary and wage earners must consider as taxable every item received from employers and from other sources. Bonuses and overtime pay are to be reported as well as the regular payments.

Allowances for Losses.

Losses sustained in 1918 and not covered by insurance are deductible from the taxpayer's income. If incurred in the taxpayer's business or trade, in any transaction undertaken for profit or arising from fire, storm, shipwreck or other casualty or from theft.

SQUARE DEAL FOR EVERY INCOME TAX PAYER.

Washington, D. C. — "The rights of all persons now filing Income Tax returns are fully protected by provisions for statements, refunds and appeals," says Commissioner Daniel C. Roper. "Every person can be sure of a square deal. No person is expected to pay more than his share of tax. His share is determined solely by the amount and nature of his net income. If his net income is $1,000, he pays $100. If his net income is $2,000, he pays $200. If his net income is $3,000, he pays $300. If his net income is $4,000, he pays $400. SENATOR LODGE AND
THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Senator Lodge has pursued a course more to be admired than that of most of the Republican Senators in that he has refrained from commenting in public on the constitution of the League of Nations until he had discussed the matter with the President, and had some grounds to believe he knew what he was talking about. For this reason his comments deserve more attention than those of the Senators who talked before they knew what they were talking about, or talked to find out what they were talking about. None the less, the Evening Post does not believe that the points made by Senator Lodge against the constitution of the League of Nations are well taken.

The chief points made by Senator Lodge are that the league is in contravention with the Monroe doctrine and that, in entering it, the United States departs from the national policy laid down by Washington.

Wilson has replied to the criticism that the league supersedes the Monroe doctrine by denying it, explaining that, on the other hand, it extends the Monroe doctrine in the whole world. Senator Lodge says this is nonsense; but we believe that an examination of the facts will prove that President Wilson is precisely right.

The doctrine which bears the name of President Monroe was announced by him in a message to the Senate in 1823. The Napoleonic wars had come to an end and Europe was hoping for a trade revival. A number of the Spanish colonies in South America had revolted and declared their independence. It was the plan of Spain to use armed force against these colonies, bring them back under Spanish control and deprive them of their independence for trade advantages. Spain sought the assistance of other European nations. Canning, at that time Foreign Minister of Great Britain, informed the American Ambassador of the Spanish plans and suggested that England and the U. S. might combine to prevent them. His attitude was due to the fact that he realized that England would get more trade from the South American States if they were independent than if they were under Spanish rule. President Monroe, however, felt that the United States should not get after Great Britain in this matter. He took an independent stand, and declared to Congress the attitude he would take if European powers sought to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere. "With the existing colonies as dependents of the European powers," he said, "we have no interference, and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence, and maintained it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them, or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any European power, in any other form, as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States." This put an end to any plan to interfere with the independence of any European power to take aggressive action toward any state on this continent.

In essence what is the Monroe doctrine? It is that any independent State on the American continent will be supported by the U. S. in its defense against aggression from any other power. It is, then, evident that what the President said concerning the League of Nations as an extension of the Monroe doctrine is basically true. It extends the protection which, in the Monroe doctrine, is offered by the United States to nations in this hemisphere. The protection offered to the independent States of the world by all the other nations of the world. The whole purpose of the League of Nations is to guarantee the integrity of smaller nationalities. This is the same purpose announced by the constitution of the League of Nations. It is simply that the Monroe doctrine confined its application to this hemisphere and made only the United States the guarantor. The League of Nations extends the guarantee to all the States in the league and makes all of the States in the league guarantors. It includes the Monroe doctrine. If any power should seek to disturb the independence of any State in North or South America, the U. S. under the Monroe doctrine would seek to prevent the aggression. Under the constitution of the League of Nations the U. S. would be assisted by all the other nations in the league.

The Evening Post does not believe that the U. S. should be bound in its foreign policy by the League of Nations. The fact of the matter is that there has been about quite a number of

Farmers—Help Us to Help You

BEFORE long you are going to be very busy. To make your crop, you are going to need the service of every machine you have. There is a little lull right now. This time can be put to mighty good use. How are your farm machines? Wouldn't it be a wise precaution to look them over carefully to assure yourself that there are no parts needing replacement now or later on?

By making a list of present or possible future requirements and giving it to us before or during Repair and Inspection Week, March 3-8, we shall be able to furnish you what you want when you want it.

If there is any item on your list we do not happen to carry in stock, we can procure it and hold it in readiness for you. It takes the delay, and consequent loss of time out of farm emergencies. The question of a day or two during the busy season on the farm is a serious one. Make up that list now and let us have it.

years, and exactly what his ideas could be about the present situation are unobtainable. If they could only be secured they would be of great value. What he thought in 1797 related to the situation as it was in 1797. In those particulars which refer to foreign relations the world has changed more between 1797 and 1919 than in the two centuries preceding 1797.

In the days of Washington the United States was almost cut off from the rest of the world. There were no cables. There were no telegraph wires. There were no railroads and no fast steamships. Relations with other people, both among individuals and among the European nations, depended upon communication between them. The more frequent and the more rapid the communication, the closer the relation. America is not cut off from the European nations. A thought expressed at the peace conference in the morning is known to all the people of the United States through the newspapers in the afternoon. Such a thing would have been incredible in the day of Washington. Facilities in transportation and communication have so changed the face of the world, that the United States is closer to England today than Virginia was to Massachusetts in the day of Washington. It was an easy thing in those days to keep out of European alliances and out of European wars. America did not then know of European events until many weeks after they had occurred. The position of America is far different. It could not keep out of the European war. It must not keep out of the European peace. The words of Washington were words of wisdom in 1797, but so greatly have conditions changed—due chiefly to the inventions of the nineteenth century—that there is now no analogy between the conditions determining the policy of that day and the conditions which must determine the policy at the present time.

Senator Lodge contends, and very properly that, the constitution for the Society of Nations, as submitted, was only a first step. That it must be carefully considered and amended so that particular in which amendment would improve it. But the Evening Post does not believe that objections can properly be made against the constitution of the League of Nations on the ground that it is not in agreement with the Monroe doctrine, or that in entering it the United States departs from the policy of Washington. Louisville Evening Post.

Peace Delicately Poised.

Popular conviction is rather strikingly crystallized into concrete expression by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt when he proclaims: "The constitution of the League of Nations is not dependent upon itself for success, but upon the spirit in which it is accepted by the United States."

He might have added, and the spirit in which it is accepted by Europe. He did add this: "The league may not end war, but the nations demand the experiment." He quotes President Wilson as having said to him that "unless this league goes thru in some form or other it will break the heart of the world." As the veil is more and more lifted and the developments at Paris in relation to peace, present and future, come more clearly into view, the situation seems to resolve itself into this climax: "Peace possible, the precarious, thru a League of Nations. War inevitable, imminent without a League of Nations." Something of a Hobson's choice, if one be pessimistically disposed. Unquestionably the fortune of the world's progress, good or bad, is most delicately and dangerously poised in the balance of events just now under adroit manipulation by the world's experts in statecraft.

The atmosphere is surcharged with portentous possibilities. It lies in the power of the civilized people to formulate a federation for security and safety, and the saving of the world from peace impermanence. It is equally within their power or in the power of just a part of them, to forfeit the game and give Germany the goal—to make the world a shambles, liberty obsolete and life a despair.

But this is only a comparison of contingencies. It is a correct comparison but for that very fact a contrast so extreme that its early solved because solved by those seeing understanding. — Commercial Tribune.

Its Principal Business.

It seems that the principal business of the State Board of Tax Commissioners this year is to increase assessments as returned by the County Tax Commissioners, and they are giving some of the counties boasts that are very large and unsatisfactory to the property owners.

UNDER WHICH SYSTEM DO YOU WISH TO SELL YOUR CREAM?

The station or agency method employs a buyer on commission to buy your cream, paying you that much less for your butter-fat.

The results is you receive less money for your cream—the station buyer keeps the difference as his revenue and your cream is delivered to a Creamery as the effort of an agent—all patron's cream mixed together, delayed and doubled handled. All your painstaking care and attention goes for naught. You, Mr. Producer, are not known to the creamery who uses your product.

Your money is used as the means of perpetuating this system so the more you patronize the agent, the stronger you are bound by the chains of this system.

The Tri-State principle is to deal DIRECT with each patron and pay him every cent possible as greater encouragement for Dairy Growth and as an inducement for BIGGER and BETTER heads.

Every producer of five gallons of cream should become a Tri-State patron.

just naturally born in us

Remember, when you were a mere child how you use to go around to the corner store to buy candy with that penny your father gave you because you got more than you could at the store next door? And—do you notice how your boy or girl goes down to the next block to spend his penny, instead across the street, because it gets a bigger bag full? That's Economy isn't it—just naturally born in us all, getting the most for our money or paying the least for what we want. But as we grow up some lose that buying instinct which of course results in extravagance—others retain it and save money. Which class do you belong in?

School Notes.

We had to postpone the High School Spelling contest on account of the rupture in our school session by reason of the influenza epidemic. We have consulted the majority of High School Principals and the suggestion was accepted that the preliminary contests would be held the last Friday in April and the final the first Friday in May. The final, of course, will be held at Union. The Preliminary will be held to suit the schools in the respective districts as to the place for these contests wherever the agreement is decided upon by the principals of these respective districts. Let's arouse great interest in oral spelling.

Sold an Interest in His Paper.

W. T. Gordon has sold a half interest in the Register to Bruce McLeister, foreman in the office for the last thirteen years. The partnership which will begin Saturday, has all the elements essential to success in country newspaper work. The Register is one of the oldest weekly papers in Indiana. It having been established in 1838, Lawrenceburg Press.

Extract from a letter written by Francis J. Sayre, Feb. 2, 1919:

I have noticed in the Recorder each week that several of the boys with whom I went to Camp Taylor have arrived at home with their honorable discharges, and I certainly want to congratulate them on their good fortune. We are now at Conflans, France, where the Germans are delivering a great many locomotives each day. This is "Ground Hog" day and the ground is covered with snow, but the sun is not shining and he may not see his shadow. I have no idea when we will return home but hope it may be reasonably soon. I am enjoying the very best of health and seeing many sights, so that is some consolation. Best wishes to all my Boone county friends.

THIS TELLS HOW TO FIGURE INCOME TAX

Squarely Up to Every Individual to Get Busy by March 15 or Suffer Penalty.

"Don't wait until the final due date, March 15th, for paying your income tax and making your return. Avoid the last minute rush. Any person can figure out his liability today as well as he can next week, and if there is any point on which he needs advice he can now get in touch with a Revenue man. This word of advice is being given out by Internal Revenue men. Returns and payments are being collected in Kentucky by the following Collectors of Internal Revenue:

Josh T. Griffith,
J. Rogers Gore,
Charles H. Thompson,
Edwood Hamilton,
John W. Hughes.

Every aid of their offices and field forces is being given freely to the public.

But the income tax men will not pull your shoulder or your coat-tails, according to the collector's announcement. It is squarely up to every individual to figure out his own case and to get busy if he comes within the scope of the new revenue law.

Did You Earn Tax Much?
Every unmarried person who received income averaging $19.25 a week during 1918 and every married couple who jointly received income averaging $38.50 a week should secure at once from the nearest Deputy Collector or the nearest bank a blank Form 1040 A. That form contains the information he will need to enable him to figure his correct net income and any tax that he owes the Government.

The law requires that every unmarried person who had a net income of $1,000 or over and every married person whose net income was $2,000 or over (including the income of husband or wife and the earnings of minor children, if any) must make a return on or before March 15th. And this requirement does not hinge on whether the person owes a tax.

Taxable Income.
An individual must include under gross income all gains, profits and income derived from salaries, wages or compensation for personal service of whatever kind and in whatever form paid or from professions, vocations, business, sales or dealings in property of all kinds, interest, rent, dividends or profits derived from any source whatever. Very few items of income are exempt.

Deductions include ordinary and necessary business expenses, interest paid or accrued on indebtedness, taxes of all kinds except Federal income and excess profits taxes and assessments for local benefits, losses actually sustained, debts ascertained to be worthless and disallowed on buildings, machinery, fixtures, etc., used in business. A further deduction is allowed for contributions to corporations operated for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals to an amount not exceeding 15 per cent; but the taxpayer's net income as computed without the benefit of the contribution deduction.

The taxpayer is not allowed to deduct any personal, living or family expense, any amount spent for improving property or making good his estate for which an allowance is claimed under depreciation.

Figuring the Tax.
Before figuring the normal tax the dividends are deducted as credits from net income, together with the personal exemption. As in previous years, dividends of domestic corporations are exempt from normal tax when received by the stockholder.

The normal tax rates for citizens and residents are as follows: On the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the credits the rate is 6 per cent; on any further taxable income the rate is 12 per cent.

The surtax rates apply to net income of each individual in excess of $5,000. The personal exemption and the dividends are not deductible before computing surtax. In the case of returns by husband and wife, the net income of each is considered separately in computing any surtax that may be due. Form 1040 should be used for making returns of net income exceeding $5,000, and the instructions on that form will show how to figure the surtax.

Business House Returns.
Employers and others who paid wages, salaries, rents, interest or similar deductible gains in an amount of $1,000 or over during 1918 to any person must file an information return with the Government. Blanks may be secured from the Collector.

Every partnership must file a return showing its income and deductions and the name and address of each partner, with his share of the profits or losses during the past year. Personal service corporations will file similar information for 1918.

 INCOME TAX PAYS FOR PUBLIC BENEFITS.

"Viewed in its largest and truest sense, the payment of taxes is payment for benefits received or expected. Only from a narrow and essentially selfish and shortsighted viewpoint can the individual propose to him- self the evasion of tax liability as a desirable course of action."

—Daniel C. Hooper, Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

POULTRY

IMPORTANT KIND OF POULTRY
Common Economic Classification Is Based Upon Adaptation to Certain Lines of Food.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The first step toward the increase of supplies of poultry products through the use of the type best suited to production is to get a correct understanding of type. In fowls, the most important kind of poultry, the common economic classification is based upon the adaptation of certain types to certain lines of food production. Three such distinct types are recognized—the egg type, the meat type and the dual-purpose type, which is commonly considered an intermediate of the other two, though in reality it is the primary type of which the others are modifications.

Because the smallest standard breeds are distinctly of the egg type, the largest breeds are good layers only.

Chickens Are Usually More Healthy
When Kept on Open Range.

Under expert care, and the best known of the dual-purpose breeds are of medium size and weight, small size and great activity are commonly supposed to be characteristic of the egg type, large size and an indolent temperament are supposed to characterize the meat type, and medium size without either marked energy or great indolence is supposed to be characteristic of a medium dual-purpose type. These misconceptions arise from a too literal acceptance of the designation of a type as the definition of that type.

Not only do breed types tend to change but ideas of breeders as to the most desirable type for a breed change. In fact the breeders are rarely in full agreement as to the precise type which should be preferred, and consequently nearly every breeder of superior ability has his "strain," which while conforming to the general description of the standard presents distinctive peculiarities in points where a standard cannot be rigid. Such elasticity in the application of standards is, in the nature of the case, inevitable. It is not at variance with the purpose of standards in stock production but is in harmony with their function of securing general progress toward approved ideals.

Within the range of each breed there exist, on a much smaller scale but still in marked degree, the same differences which distinguish the three general types—the egg type, meat type and dual-purpose type. Observation of individual differences along these lines gives insight into the properties of type which affect production.

SLACKER FOWLS NOT WANTED

Connecticut Bureau Arranging Demonstrations Showing How Loafers May Be Detected.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sell your slacker hens and buy War Savings stamps is the advice of the county agent in Middlesex county, Conn. The county farm bureau is arranging slacker-hen demonstrations showing how these hens may be detected and disposed of to advantage. Good fowls will bring 35 to 38 cents per pound, live weight, at the present time. In these days when illness means direct loss the farmer cannot afford to support loafers on the job, says the county agent.

PRODUCING EGGS IN WINTER

Comb of Laying Hen Is Bright and Red and Pin Bones Well Spread Apart—Mate Layers.

If winter egg production is desired, only winter layers should be bred. It is easy to select the laying hen. Her comb is bright and red and her pin bones will be well spread apart. Observations should be made during the winter so that the poultry keeper will know which of his hens are good layers. These should be marked so that they may be used for mating next spring.

Special Notice

To My Customers and Friends:—

It has come to my notice in the last few weeks that work that had been sent to me to do had never reached me, but was taken some place else, where the parties bringing and delivering the work got pay at both ends, going and coming; and how this was found out, was that work that had been done by other parties, and I had been credited with doing it, was brought to me to do over, and, of course, not having done the work I refused to do it over with out being paid. Can you blame me? Can anyone blame me when I had not done the faulty work? But, of course they were my customers and thought I had done the work until I informed them I had not.

Some of this work was rubber tire work, and those troublesome war times we all had our troubles. My trouble with rubber tires was I could not get wires that would not stretch and the tires would even where joined together, and, of course that caused me a great deal of trouble and expense. The tire would also turn in the channel—could not draw wire tight enough as it would stretch. It was no fault of mine, I could not get the proper wire to do the work with, but the war being over, perhaps I will be able to get the proper material this year. Every time I have to change a rubber tire it costs me 65 cents, so you can realize that I am going to do the work right if possible. If it is not I will make it so. I always have and always will.

I have been here 28 years and expect to stay, so come and see me; get prices; write or phone me—phone No. 61-x Erlanger. I surely will treat you right.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to get to bed, and suffered usually about three days. I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go. I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach rot in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle. I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. B 7

A Week's News

County Road Engineer Goodridge and his force of road hands were engaged last week repairing the Bellevue pike on the long curve in that road at the Richard White farm. Large quantities of soil from the hillside washed down on the pike at that point and put it in very bad shape during a wet period. Several culverts will be put in along the curve for the purpose of relieving the situation in the future.

Some of the citizens of Elmore, South Elmore, conceived the idea that the town would get along better if a charter was annexed and the town allowed to become a party of the Kenton county government. To this action they brought a suit to annul the charter. To this action the legislature developed and a hot old time is on in that heretofore quiet little city, and the proceedings are being watched with much interest by outsiders.

Some farmers are having splendid luck with their lambs while others are losing quite a good many. The weather has been very favorable for the lambs, and no doubt a big crop for all will be the result in this county. For the past several years the lamb and wool crop has been the source of a very large revenue in this county.

A dispatch from Lebanon, this State says: "The local grand jury after an industrious session, has returned 147 indictments; the largest number for many years. The sheriff of the county, his deputies and the entire city police were among the ones indicted, being charged with failing to impound dogs without license."

Benj. Riley, who had been at Camp Meade, Md., for several months, was discharged on Tuesday of last week and he came home immediately. He has but recently recovered from an attack of the influenza and is not feeling first-class, but expects to restore Boone county air to restore his health in a short time.

It is time that Boone and Grant counties were getting together to decide which county will furnish the first member of the legislature under the new law that makes of the two counties one legislative district. This action should be taken at once.

The subscription list of a county paper is a very correct index to the movements of many of the people in its county every spring, and so far this year there has been an unusual number of changes of residences in that county and changes are still being made daily.

Street corner councils have been meeting regularly for several days. While the base ball has been flying through the air—say nothing of the other omens of the approach of spring. Spring always comes along about this time or a little later.

Mr. Joseph Maurer, of Bellevue, who has been considerably indisposed much of the time of late, has improved considerably the past few weeks, and when the spring sunshine comes in earnest he will be seen on the streets again.

Those pieces of road on which drags have been used at the proper time will give travel very little trouble this spring. It is said that there is considerable art in the use of the drag to get the best results.

Linn Wilson, of Union, bought of L. T. Clore, of Burlington, a few days since a fine draft mare for which he paid Mr. Clore $225. It was the animal that was advertised in the Recorder a couple of times.

Several thousand gallons of whiskey was emptied into the Ohio river by West Virginia authorities one day last week, since which time Ohio river water has been a very popular drink with many persons.

The noise made by several of the members during the recesses of Congress detracted the class of animals to which they belong, without it being necessary to take a look at their ears.

The local school resumed work again last Monday, it having been dismissed several days on account of the reappearance of the flu in Burlington and surrounding neighborhood.

Mrs. Eliza Rouse, who spent the winter in Washington, D. C., with her son, Congressman Arthur B. Rouse and wife, has returned to her home in Belfrage.

A. H. Youell, of Limaburg, has bought a handsome Dodge Sedan of I. B. Hume. It has nice wheels and other late improvements.

James E. Smith is preparing to do some barn building for which purpose he is having logs hauled to the new mill at Limaburg.

Dr. Antlion and family have moved to the property he purchased of R. B. Carver.

How to Get Tobacco of Quality

We grow the improved Broadleaf, one sucker, and our aim is to get the big, yield and the top price.

We start our crop by selecting our seed plants. They should be as new as the perfect specimen of the tobacco you expect to grow as you have in your field. The seed plant should be covered with a muslin cloth to keep other plants from mixing with it. When the seed are ripe and dry they are rubbed out and run thru a cleaner to get out all inferior seed. This done you have good, heavy, full-of-life seed that will make good strong plants.

The plant bed should be rich soil. A. Old ground is called as well as new if it has been well manured the fall before. An old fence-row, or a briar bed, is an ideal place. If it is sheltered from the cold winds by a piece of timbered land, it will help lots.

We know of but two ways of preparing our beds, one by burning with wood or brush, and the other by steaming. The wood bed is the best. It is made on the south side of a barn on ground that had been well manured the previous fall. The manure is pulled out and the ground is dug three or four inches deep and steamed with a traction engine and a boiler. The ground is then dug and grooved and painted and painted and treated to keep in the steam. The bed was fertilized and covered with a layer of straw kept off the cold winds and reflected the heat from the sun on the bed, and the plants were at least two weeks earlier than other beds. The wood bed is made by burning the ground with a layer of straw. The wood is piled on the ground and the plants are sown in the straw. The straw is then burned and the plants are sown in the ash.

Don't imagine you can grow good tobacco on this land. We grew a crop of tobacco this last year that averaged over 1500 lbs. per acre under the most adverse conditions we have ever experienced, including bad season, no season at all, plants too small, and plants too small. Reset the fourth time, watered and set about two acres and then the drought. We put eight loads of good manure on with the spreader to the acre, broke the ground light, three inches deep. The ground was worked to perfection. 100 pounds of phosphate were broadcast to the acre with grain drill. We laid off both ways with a two-horse corn planter, three and four feet each way, and set in the cross. As soon as the tobacco was set we started our little harrows and never let a crust form on our tobacco field, not a weed or grass grow.

We use chickens, turkeys, Paris green and boys to get our tobacco worms, with dad, binding up the plants and what is left.

We cut our tobacco the last week in August and the first two weeks of September. This gets our tobacco a good crop, and it is better to have a good crop of tobacco than to have a good crop of tobacco.

Tobacco is an industrious man's crop and if you are not in this class don't attempt to grow it.

Hebron, Ky.

I have been told, although I did not notice the article myself, that the Recorder stated that only two boys, both from Burlington, passed the entrance school examination. James Beall from Hebron also passed. I am sure if the statement was made it was only an oversight and we appreciate it if you would correct the statement.

Very Respectfully,

Teacher, Intermediate Department Hebron school.

The Recorder did not make the statement attributed to it. The school has not been furnished the names of the pupils who passed the examination.

Mrs. Walter Jones Dead.

Mrs. Walter Jones, 47, of Big Bone Springs neighborhood, died on the 3rd inst. of pneumonia in following illness. Mrs. Jones was the mother of 13 children, who with their father survive. The funeral took place from the home of Mrs. Jones on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Jones and his children have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances in their very sad bereavement.

Mrs. Robert Moore Dead.

Mrs. Robert Moore died last Saturday at her home. The Robert Moore place on lower Campwood creek, she had pneumonia following an attack of the flu. She was 65 years of age, and had eight children, two of them, daughters by her first husband, John Kelly. She was a daughter of the late Josiah Walton, and a sister of Mrs. E. E. Kelly, of Burlington.

COUNTY JUDGE

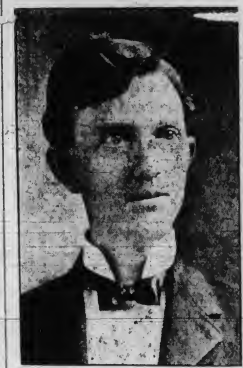

P. E. CASON DEAD

Survives a Surgical Operation But a Few Hours.

Elected to the Office of County Judge in 1901 and Served Continuously Since.

Perry E. Cason, son of Asa Cason, was born February 9th, 1870, and died March 9th, 1919, aged 49 years, one month and 19 days. He is survived by his father, two half sisters Mrs. Leslie Goodridge, of Walton, and Mrs. Elbert Roberts of Florence, and his wife, who was Miss Blanche Parker, daughter of Elijah Parker and to whom he was married November 2, 1892.

Judge Cason received his education in the schools of this county, and prepared himself for the practice of law, his chosen profession by attending the Law School at Louisville, from which he graduated with honors in 1891. Soon thereafter he was admitted to the bar, and a practitioner in the Covington courts as an associate with Hallam & Myers. In this office and under the training of such able jurists as Judge Hallam and Mr. Myers, Judge Cason became definitely acquainted with law from a practical standpoint.

which his rigid theoretic training equipped him as a lawyer of both tact and talent. From the office of Hallam & Myers he returned to his home town to practice, and he commenced serving his constituents most of the time at Tacoma, Washington.

Resigning the office of Inspector of Immigration he returned to Burlington and resumed the practice of law. In 1901 he was nominated by the Democrats for the office of County Judge to which he was elected in November of that year, and so well were the people pleased with his administration that he was reelected every four years thereafter and served his last term the first Monday in January, 1918, an office-holding record unequalled in this county.

He made a fearless, industrious, patient and painstaking official, whose labors were appreciated in the highest degree by the public and he never failed to recognize in the proper way that appreciation. His ability as a lawyer was acknowledged by the members of his profession with whom he came in contact, and his standing as a citizen was above reproach. He was obliging and affable, always meeting a person with a smile and a cordial greeting that gained him many friends.

In the death of Perry Cason the county sustains a double loss—it loses a valuable public servant and a most worthy citizen.

Judge Cason was taken violently ill last Thursday night when both the local doctors were called and were not long in deciding that he was suffering from an attack of appendicitis. He was suffering agonies and it was evident that an operation was necessary. Dr. Bondfield, of Cincinnati, the Judge's favorite surgeon was called by telephone and when told of the Judge's condition he said "no effort should be made to take him to the city and he would reach Burlington by eleven o'clock and it was about twelve when he and an assistant and a nurse arrived at the bedside of the sick man."

As soon as possible after the arrival of the surgeon the operation was commenced and it revealed a healthy condition of both the appendix and the gall bladder, but a further examination disclosed a perforation of the bowel.

Both the local doctors were present at the operation and the doctors agreed that the Judge's chance for recovery was very slim.

The puncture in the stomach was sewed up and other necessary surgical precautions were taken to better the patient's condition, all present fearing the worst.

Judge Cason has been suffering considerably at intervals for several years and it was not evident that the result of his trouble necessitated the operation performed last Thursday.

His last day's work on Thursday when he tried two cases in the quarterly court, but did not get them in time. The burial took place from the residence at 1:30 p. m. last Tuesday, a short service at the grave being conducted by Rev. Mr. Campbell, pastor of Bullittsburg Baptist church. The funeral was in charge of undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, and the pall bearers were L. C. Cropper, L. A. Conner, W. R. Rogers, Charles Maurer, N. E. Kiddell and Sidney Gaines.

Interment in the Odd-Fellows cemetery east of town.

The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful.

Mend the Senate.

Utterly indefensible was the defeat of the railroad rotary fund bill by the United States Senate. In explanation it is explained that its slaughter was not planned, but that members of the objecting group got out of control, being guided by personal and party motives.

The truth is that by adopting obstructive tactics the conservatives suffered themselves to be captured by the irresponsible radicals. Official records show that the filibuster was carried on by only three members, LaFollette, of Wisconsin, Sherman, of Ohio, and France, of Maryland. The first two, on the preceding day, endeavored to defeat the victory of the United States Senate by suspension of business, actually forced the killing of the oil land leasing bill. France is the new member who regards the Senate as a place where the representatives of the people are to be sacrificed to the interests of the few.

There is no promise in the future for betterment. The Rebuilding bill will have no effect. The two votes in the Senate, with half a dozen unscrupulous members acting under the general policy of delay, will have no effect. For constructive legislation is entirely pessimistic. The time has arrived for the United States Senate to justify itself as the representative of the people. The government or prepare to give way to a responsible successor. Business must not be allowed to be decided by the members play at the reprehensible game of partisan politics. — Enquirer.

Have Your Discharge Recorded

County Clerk W. R. Rogers is trying to secure a book in which soldiers' discharges are to be recorded. He hopes to be able to make a record book that is made especially for that purpose and thereby save considerable work in recording. This work he has to do by charge and he has to be able to furnish him. Every discharged soldier should have his discharge recorded in the proper way. The book should be furnished him. By avoiding considerable trouble should the discharge become lost or destroyed in any way. In time to come these records will be of the very greatest importance to the holders and no pains should be spared to have them properly preserved. Have your discharge recorded even though you should have to pay the regular recording fee.

Should Have an Honor Tablet.

Boone county ought to place in the hall at the court house a tablet bearing the name of each of the county's boys who enlisted or was inducted into the army during the war with Germany. The county is certainly desirous of honoring these boys and a matter of such importance should be of the very greatest importance to the holders and no pains should be spared to have them properly preserved. Have your discharge recorded even though you should have to pay the regular recording fee.

Elmer Conley, of Union, was over last Tuesday interviewing the Income Tax man. On his way over he found a glove which he left with the tax collector for the owner when he shows up.

The vacancy in the office of county judge in this county caused by the death of Judge Cason will be filled by appointment by Governor Stanley. The appointee to hold the office until his successor is chosen at the regular election next November.

171,128 KENTUCKY DOGS

May Show 250,000 When Complete Returns Are In.

At least 75,000 more dogs have been licensed than ever have been licensed in Kentucky in the opinion of Mr. Gatewood, in charge of the license department in the Commissioner of Agriculture's office.

The 1918 tax returns show 170,128 dogs assessed. The highest number before that was 117,419 in 1917.

Mr. Gatewood believes more than 250,000 have been licensed. The county returns on licenses are not all in.

The new law the dog license fund will be held in each county to pay claims for domestic animals injured or killed by dogs, the balance if any, to go as heretofore into the common school fund.

The $178,123 collected by Sheriffs on the 1918 tax list will be returned by the Auditor to the counties from which it originated, and will be placed with the license money.

Not only will the increase in the number of dogs licensed swell the fund, but the fee for each female is $2, and this will further augment the fund.

In the past in many counties, sheep claims have exceeded the amount of dog tax collected.

Full Speed Ahead, Business!

Utterances heard about the council table of the assembled Governors and Mayors in the White House indicate that wages are not to be lowered, raw materials reduced in price or freight rates brought to a lower level. These utterances, being given by the organized labor spokesmen, the representatives of manufacture and commerce and the financiers, who say that the outlook for cheap money is not encouraging at this time.

With labor, materials and transportation high it is out of the question to look for the much advertised and deeply longed-for drop in prices. The part of wisdom, therefore, is for the business of the country to recognize the static conditions in these three major departments of production and to go ahead conservatively, being guided by the reasonably safe hypothesis, that there will be no violent fluctuations for comparatively a long time.

It is quite certain that delay will, if continued too long, bring about a stagnation that may lead to temporary paralysis. The money market is made the more will prosperous conditions begin to manifest themselves. That the Federal Director of Railways proposes to give up the government request of the assembled Governors to reduce freight rates on road building material because the railroads cannot afford the loss of revenue, is typical of the conditions that are prevailing generally.

As Vice President Marshall, a philosophical humorist, phrased it recently: "The man who has denied himself and stunted himself during the war and is now finding his hands upon the theory that prices are going to take a tumble may succeed in washing his shirt into shreds before he can get a much cheaper one."—Enquirer.

Auto Collided With Buggy.

Dr. Duncan's auto collided with Sammie Adams' buggy near the telephone exchange last Friday morning damaging the vehicle considerably, but not injuring Mr. Adams, fortunately. Dr. Duncan was coming south on the street that intersects with Burlington and Florence pike at the telephone exchange and when he made the turn east on to the pike the buggy was standing in the street and he did not discover the vehicle standing on the side of the street until he struck it. The impact knocked Mr. Adams' hat off and it was several seconds before he realized what had happened. Dr. Duncan had Mr. Adams take his buggy to the shop for repairs for which he will pay.

Had a Good Sale.

Notwithstanding the very unfavorable weather a fair sized crowd attended Lewis C. Beem's sale last Saturday afternoon and good prices prevailed. Pair of hogs sold for $300; cows from $30 to $70; four gilts, $30 each; road wagon, $100; set harness, $50; corn, $150 a bushel; hay about $20 a ton; and a single shoe 15 cents. Mr. Beem is well pleased with the prices realized. He has moved to a farm near Rabbit Hash and will be back from Rabbit Hash, grade.

Flo Conditions, Better.

The flu conditions have improved very much in those localities in the county where the disease was raging at this time last week. While cases were very numerous it is a pleasure to say that there were very few deaths resulting from the pneumonia following the flu. It is evident that the disease is now in a very much milder form or the doctors have learned to handle it more successfully than when it first appeared.

A Timely Warning.

The people of the country have been somewhat restive as the result of what has seemed to them the merely factious opposition of Senators to the legacy. This is particularly true of Republicans, who have viewed with a measure of alarm the apparently inimical attitude of those who particularly stood for them. They do not object to these men standing against the present form of league or insisting on changes in the league that will protect and guard essential principles of the American nationality, but they are prepared to object strenuously to a league for world peace, and will do so, if necessary, in a way that will not be misunderstood.

This is the time to warn Republican Senators that they must not assume to put their party on record against the great purpose, by a combination of friendly action, to effect a very drastic minimization of war possibilities for the future, nor to pledge themselves against a reasonable internationalism. These are questions upon which their definite temper has yet to be taken and must not be assumed. It is a dangerous measure of internationalism.—Commercial Tribune.

A Good Lady Gone.

Mrs. Sarah Snyder, widow of the late James Snyder, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Maxwell, in Petersburg precinct, last Friday morning. Mrs. Snyder had been in poor health for some time but her death came unexpectedly. She was about 68 years of age and a daughter of Alfred Wingate was for many years a citizen of Ashby Fork neighborhood. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Maxwell, and four sons, James, Floyd, Herbert and Leland, Herbert being in Camp Taylor awaiting his discharge from the army. Her funeral will be held at Petersburg last Saturday afternoon.

Getting Good Results.

The farmers in this county have invested large sums of money in commercial fertilizers in the past few years and they believe their investments were decidedly profitable. They have made a sufficient study of their soil to ascertain the character of the soil and they do not hesitate to invest in it. Tobacco fertilizer has been a big showing for many of the growers whose crops would have been common had it not been for the stimulating effects the fertilizer used had on the land. If good yields are to be secured it is necessary that the land be put in a condition to respond to the cultivation.

Why The Delay?

Persons who use the Petersburg pike considerably are getting impatient because the fill at what is known as the second bridge is not being constructed. A big piece of work that will require considerable time, and as these people have been without the use of the bridge for so long their patience is becoming exhausted, but they must remember that everything can not be done at once.

The Delco Man Here.

Frank A. Averbek, of Covington, was a caller at this office last Saturday. Mr. Averbek is the Delco Light for this territory and had just completed the installation of a plant for Mr. Kiaman, of Kensington. He has installed quite a number of plants in this county along the Dixie Highway, and has an especially good demand for the Delco in Grant county.

Town Council Punctured.

O. P. Phipps moved to Indiana and Dr. Yelton has taken up his residence outside of the town limits, consequently Burlington's town council is minus two members and the local business is viewed with all probability, cease to grind for a while. The two members mentioned above held very important committee assignments and their services will be missed in the shaping of legislation.

Soon Got Tired of Town.

It did not take John Conrad long to get enough of town life and a desire to return to the farm brought him back from Florence to the Limaburg neighborhood, where he bought of Harvey Tanner his farm on the Limaburg and Hebron pike. Mr. Conrad will be back from the Limaburg neighborhood a hickering he can not get out of his system.

Wash House Burned.

A log wash house in the yard of the residence occupied by Mrs. W. W. Watts, of Littleville neighborhood, was destroyed by fire one day this past week. It was extremely good luck that the residence escaped, as the fire threatened the building that was burnt.

WALTON.

John Denady of Erlanger, visited friends here last Saturday.

Miss Grace Powe's has accepted a position in the store of Benj. F. Stansifer as saleslady and buyer.

John C. White has been very ill the last week with pneumonia and his condition is still quite serious.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Loomis of Independence, spent Sunday here the guests of their daughter Mrs. Jno. L. Vest and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Moore and daughter Miss Corinne returned last week from Fla., where they spent most of the winter.

A. C. Norman who recently sold his little farm near Walton to Wm. Hoard and wife, has accepted a position with the L. & N. Railroad Co. in the shops at Latonia.

Dr. William S. Tomlin of Indianapolis, spent Saturday and Sunday here with his brother Judge J. G. Tomlin who is gradually recovering from the paralytic stroke sustained several weeks ago.

Joseph A. Northcutt who has been in the 39th U. S. Inf., arrived here Saturday, having been discharged from the service at Des Moines, Iowa. He will spend the summer with his parents Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Northcutt, near Walton.

Walton Masonic Lodge last Friday night conferred the fellowcraft degree on H. H. Huston, the agent of the L. & N. Railroad at Walton. Mr. Huston came into Walton by demit from the Lexington Lodge where he was initiated as an Entered Apprentice.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ed. Bristow moved this week to Ohio where he will have charge of a fine farm. He sold his residence property at Walton to G. Harry Moore of Sherman, who moved to the property this week. The purchase price was $3,850.

Wm. M. Green who recently returned from France and has been here on a furlough, visiting his brother Robert L. Green and other relatives returned to Washington, and expects to be discharged from service in a short time. His aim that was severely injured by shrapnel in battle in France is much better and he believes he will recover the full use of his hand.

Mrs. Katie B. Rice and nephew Eugene A. Bradley and sister Miss Katherine F. Bradley, and H. C. Ford of Georgetown, spent Saturday here on business in relation to the selling of the Rice-Tomlin farm of 313 acres near Walton.

The Walton Loose Leaf Tobacco market had a good sale of about 60,000 pounds were sold on the floor and sold at an average of thirty cents per pound. The bid was limited to 12,000 pounds. The sale Wednesday was also very good in quantity and price. The major part of the growers who have tobacco unsold are holding for better prices with the belief that the market will come back to fancy figures again.

Lieut. Robt. D. Bedinger and wife arrived last week from Atlanta, Ga., and will make their home on the Bedinger farm near Richwood, where Lieut. Bedinger will be interested in farming with his uncle "Squire" Bedinger, with a view to making Boone county his home. Lieut. Bedinger was a First Lieut. in the Aviation Corps and was in service in France until Nov. when he returned home to Atlanta and married one of that city's finest young ladies.

Jno. L. Vest spent Monday at Warsaw, attending the Gallitua county court probating a will and having the Equitable Bank appointed guardian of some minor heirs. The will was that of a soldier who gave up his life in France in the service of his country and in writing home to his wife whom he married just before going overseas, he stated that he wanted his wife to have everything he owned, there being two clauses in the letter to this effect, and on this the widow is expecting to establish her right to the soldier's property, and this letter has been offered for probate as the will of the soldier Leo T. Furnish.

Then, As Now, They Protested.

The cartoonist in his current presentation of things passing and past reminds us that away back in the good old days of the fathers of the republic, when the constitution of the United States was in initial development, very much the same attitude was maintained by the ultra conservatives of that day toward that now sacred instrument as now is held in relation of the League of Nations Charter. Something after this fashion was the output of language:

"As deep and wicked a conspiracy as ever was invented against the liberties of a free people," by making "the President Commander-in-chief of the army it 'opened the door for a Cromwell.' By giving the Vice President a casting vote it made him 'a dangerous official who could name his own salary.' By paying members of Congress out of the Federal Treasury it 'taught them to ignore their constituents.' Patrick Henry said the constitution would 'annihilate those solemn treaties we have formed with other nations.' State sovereignty was imperiled; likewise personal liberty. Cried the ultra conservatives, 'You have lost the fairest property that we have! I wish to live,

Sergeant A. T. Mulberry, of Scott county, and Mr. G. W. Bassett, of the Devon neighborhood, were callers at this office last Monday. Mr. Bassett is the new owner of the Ed. Stephens farm having but recently purchased and moved to it. Sergeant Mulberry is a Scott county boy and a very handsome specimen of manhood. He was overseas but did not get to the front. He looked like he had never experienced hunger, but he said the "sals" he got while in France were not very satisfactory. He indicated that he has had all the military service he desires.

Not a Slacker.

To Mrs. M. C. McKee, Factory Girl Chairman for Boone County: Mrs. McKee--I saw your advertisement in last week's Recorder saying that the "Victory Girls" went over the top; which we did and are proud of it. You also said that some have paid and some are slackers. We consider it just to be called a slacker, because we pledged to give $5.00 dollars and have not yet paid it. The reason we have not paid is because we are not sure we will be able to pay it to. It looks to me that if you can send solicitors around to get the girls to pledge the money, you certainly ought to be willing to send someone around after it, especially when we girls are willing to give it. The girls pledged over the average sum of $100 which is entirely too much for the girls when they have to make it themselves. If you will send some one around to collect the money I will gladly pay what I have pledged. If I am a "slacker" I shall remain one, "to you."

I am yours truly, and not a slacker or but a true American citizen.

"When You Buy--Think Economy"

Facts vs.

False Impressions

Our Economy Prices are clear, understandable Facts. Our merchandise is sold at exactly the price advertised whether you make one purchase or several. Economy Prices are Not Sensational Prices. Sensational prices are often misleading and leave you under a false impression. Take for instance Wall Paper. You will see advertised this spring by a few retailers wall paper at amazing, Sensational Prices--But if you go to buy your paper from these retailers you'll find they want sell it unless you buy either Border or Ceiling and of course for their Border and ceiling you have to pay enough to make up for the loss on the Wall Paper and to produce a big profit on the whole job. You pay more in the long run than our Economy Prices. Don't do it!

Sensational Prices are Misleading--Economy Prices are Facts.

SPRING HERE?

Not yet--but very soon. And there will be lots of little things you'll have to buy such as Grass Seed or Starting Food for little chicks or Colorite for your straw hat that's just as good as new and in a variety of colors. Our Economy Prices will save you money on McCollough's Grass Seed, Colorite, Conkey's Buttermilk Starting Food for little chicks, Lime and Sulphur for trees, Sprayers, Furniture Polish, Liberty Dry Cleaner, Rit, a soap dye, Chamissoe, Sponges, etc.

Always see us before you buy--It means a saving.

"Your Nose Knows"

All smoking tobaccos use some flavoring. The Encyclopaedia Britannica says about the manufacture of smoking tobacco, "... on the Continent and in America certain 'sauces' are employed ... the use of the 'sauces' is to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves."

Tuxedo uses chocolate--the purest, most wholesome and delicious of all flavorings! Everybody likes chocolate--we all know that chocolate added to anything as a flavoring always makes that thing still more enjoyable. That is why a dash of chocolate, added to the most carefully selected and properly aged burley tobacco, makes Tuxedo more enjoyable--

Tuesdays Tobacco Market.

Carrollton. — A slight advance in prices was noticeable. Sales for the day were 56,615 pounds, and the average $20.25.

Hopkinsville. — With some better grades showing and heavier offerings today's loose tobacco sales were more active and satisfactory.

Lexington. — The Jewell warehouse had a very fair break, selling its floor of 18,895 pounds at an average of $31.61.

Maysville. — Tobacco market continued low, prices falling several dollars per hundred on all grades. Offerings were poor.

Mt. Sterling. — Tobacco market slow, inactive and a shade lower.

Paris. — The tobacco market was stronger today than on the previous day, there being a marked improvement in the quality of the offerings.

Shelbyville. — The tobacco market was stronger on low and medium tobacco today.

Frankfort, March 11.—The State Tax Commission proposes to place the assessment of property in Kentucky this year at $1,750,000,000. This was disclosed today by a member during a hearing on the protest of a delinquent from Louisville, for the increase of $35,000,000 on the property of Louisville and Jefferson county.

So far Mr. Hite has lost but one lamb. The town's Telegram.

The Decay of Congress.

The attitude of the people of this country relative to the national Congress is the same, in broad outline, as we have so often noted in Kentucky relative to our State Legislature.

Biennial sessions of the Kentucky Legislature are admitted to be a necessity, but, until very recently at least, these sessions have been looked upon by the people as a plague little worse than the influenza. We limit the sessions of our Legislatures to 60 days; as soon as the legislators meet we begin to count the days and at times hours before they will be gone; we rejoice when they do nothing; we shiver with dread when it appears they are about to do something; we draw the Constitution on them at every turn, and when they disperse we frequently send them away amid a shower of maledictions quite forgetting that when we denounce a Legislature of our own choosing we are denouncing ourselves.

The Evening Post takes occasion to say here that the last session of the Kentucky Legislature was one of the most creditable that we have had in years, and to express the hope that the next session will be even more satisfactory, although, on one of course, knows that this will be true. In every event, the obstacle in the way of securing proper material for our Legislatures are simply enormous. The salaries are not large enough to do anything more than pay the member's expenses while he is in residence in Frankfort. The man who goes to the Legislature separates himself from his business and his family for nearly three months, works with a body which is so limited in time it can give few matters thoughtful consideration, and frequently finds his work unappreciated by those he had tried to serve. It may be better in the future, but it will not be satisfactory, we fear, unless we have a new State Constitution.

When we turn to the national Congress we find that things should be better, although they are not always so. The salaries of Congressmen have been increased, and now stand at $7,500, and while this is not enormous, it is doubtless sufficient. Moreover, the Congressman, if he does his work half way well, has a hundred times better chance to make a reputation that will help him than has the State legislator. The centralizing tendency that has been so marked in recent years has had the effect of focusing attention upon Congress.

But Congress is terribly unpopular, and what is even worse, it is as much an object of contempt as of hatred. It seems as if almost no one ever has a good word to say about Congress. We abuse Congress when it attempts to do anything; we abuse it still more when it refuses to do anything. We never expect it to do the right thing; we give little credit for what it does that is good.

Many different explanations for this bad state of affairs might be given, and indeed, Congress is itself largely to blame. The Senate rules, which permit a mere handful of men to defy the wishes of the majority and prevent votes being taken upon important matters in both houses, is a great fault. But the fact remains that the country is convinced that Congress is hopelessly incompetent. It is a bad state of affairs—Louisville Evening Post.

To Build New Cheap Car.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 6.—Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, departing yesterday for Detroit, announced he is organizing a new company which will make new model cars that will sell at from $250 to $300. His son, Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, will, it is said, join him in this venture. The new car, which is understood, will virtually mean the abandonment by the Fords of the direct management of the company in Detroit. The new machine was devised by Mr. Ford during his "rest period" here.

IDENTIFICATION AND USE OF BENT GRASS

Bulletin Tells How to Clear Up Confused Ideas of Plant.

Rhode Island Variety Is Common in New England States and Is Valuable for Lawns, Golf Courses and Other Purposes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Information that will enable seedsmen and farmers to clear up confused ideas regarding the identification and uses of the bent grasses commonly grown in the United States is given in Bulletin 602, "The Agricultural Species of Bent Grasses," recently published by the United States department of agriculture.

The bulletin is divided into two parts. The first part contains a discussion of red top, florin, Rhode Island bent, colonial bent, velvet or brown bent, and carpet bent. Rhode Island bent, according to the bulletin, is a common grass in New England and is valuable for lawns and golf courses. For making a fine turf it is excellent only by velvet and carpet bent, which occur in the trade only in mixed seed from Europe. Velvet bent makes the densest, finest turf, carpet bent the next best, Rhode Island bent a slightly coarser, turf, while that produced by red top and florin is much coarser.

Part two of the bulletin gives a discussion of the distinguishing characteristics of the seed of these grasses which occurs in commercial trade. The kinds of seed are illustrated, together with the principal impurities found with them. Misbranding in the trade occurs chiefly in the substitution of red-top seed for seed of the other grasses, but a study of seed characteristics, as given in the bulletin, will enable seedsmen and farmers to distinguish red-top seed from that of the finer grasses, more desirable for growing turf.

SUPPLY OF FEED FOR WINTER

Farmers Should Co-Operate in Purchase of Concentrates to Save Freight and Handling.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Dairy and live-stock farmers should lay in their supply of concentrated feeds, such as cottonseed meal, velvet bean meal, peanut meal, etc., as early as possible. There is no indication that prices will be lower in the future, and freight congestion will doubtless become more serious as winter advances. As far as possible, farmers should co-operate in the purchase of such feeds, so as to be able to ship in car lots. Considerable expense in freight and handling by mid-dlemen may be saved by purchasing in this way.

COTTONSEED MEAL FOR COWS

Richest in Protein of All Common Feeds on Market—Should Be Given in a Mixture.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cottonseed meal is the richest in protein of all the common cow feeds on the market. It is usually the cheapest source of protein available, but it does not have the best physiological effect upon the cow, often causing digestive troubles if fed in large quantities for long periods. At first it is advisable to start with one to two pounds a day, gradually increasing the quantity if no bad results are observed. In some herds in the North as high as five to six pounds a day are fed without bad results. In the South there seems to be no limit in this direction.

Cottonseed meal is a highly concentrated feed and should, if possible, be fed in a mixture with some bulky feed like bran. It can be fed to better advantage when the roughage contains an ample quantity of succulent feed. While its physiological effect in the North at least is not good as compared with most other cow feeds, its cheapness and the fact that in time the cows seem to overcome this tendency to digestive trouble from it are rapidly giving it great prominence as a cheap source of protein for dairy cows.

WAYS OF ENRICHING SOIL

Combination of Cover Crops, Lime and Phosphate Is Best Solution of Maintenance Problem.

The most practical way to produce more per acre and per acre is to have a richer soil. Cover crops, lime and phosphate are the only available means of enriching our soils which have anything like adequate or unlimited possibilities. A combination of the three is the best solution of the soil maintenance problem.

LOSING DELIGHT IN BEAUTY

Writer Bemoans "Degradation of the Arts," Which He Ascribes to Going on Today.

All the arts but one, says Layton Crippin in his book, "Clay and Fire," show degradation today. In many cases degradation so great that they have virtually ceased to exist. We have not only forgotten how to make beautiful things, but we have even acquired an instinctive dislike of beautiful things. They seem to have become offensive to us.

There was recently one curious little instance to which I am tempted to refer, showing as it did, that in our present state of degradation beauty is not only ignored, but has actually become offensive, causing instinctive dislike. The St. Gaudens ten and five-dollar gold pieces were undoubtedly the most coins produced in any country in 200 years. Within a couple of months the American public had howled them out of circulation.

"The explanation was afterward made that the coins were disliked because the relief was inconveniently high, but the original outcry was against the design and only the design of these exquisite examples of die cutting. But America has no monopoly of this instinctive hatred of beauty. It was exemplified in the vandalism that was common all over Europe, the destruction of ancient and glorious buildings, usually without valid excuse."

ONE OF WAR'S GREAT DEEDS

Crossing of St. Quentin Canal by British Troops Conceded to Be Remarkable Exploit.

Probably one of the most remarkable exploits of the war was the crossing of the St. Quentin canal by a brigade of South Stafford and North Stafford (British) troops in the course of the advance on Cambrai. The canal is a landmark in the country for miles around. Its dimensions, and just where the crossing was effected the wayward runs for some distance between very steep and high banks covered in some parts by dense low vegetation. That the crossing was made by such a large number of men and so expeditiously is a remarkable tribute to the determination of the men and to the forethought of their commanders. It is related that their commanding officer had sent down a channel port and had had sent up to the line for the occasion all the floats of one of the well-known cross-channel steamers. It was this measure of precaution which was the means of enabling many men to cross before foot-bridges could be constructed and which was the main contributing factor in the success of the operation.

Tact Saved the Situation.

The newly created English high commissioner in Siberia, Sir Charles Elliot, has served in official capacities in Russia, Turkey, Bulgaria, Serbia, Morocco and the United States. His task in Siberia is a delicate one, but tact is Sir Charles' strong point.

When vice-chancellor of Sheffield University Sir Charles created amusement by a remark he made at a university dinner. "Of the chances of the past year," he said, "the one which strikes me most and pleases me most is that every day as I take my walk in the university corridors I see young ladies walking about in gowns." And there he stopped, but the roar of laughter caused him to continue: "In academic gowns, which look most picturesque."

Memory Course.

J. Leonard Replique, the government's official steel buyer, was an errand boy at fourteen and a millionaire at thirty-five.

"Work is the secret of success," said Mr. Replique in a U. S. A. address. "I don't take much stock in fads and efficiency courses and so on as success helps."

"A clerk said to me the other day: 'I expect to make a success of my life at last. I'm taking one of these memory courses. It's a magnificent thing.'"

"What's the name of the course?" said I.

"Darned if I can remember the name," said the clerk in a vexed voice.

Non-Combatant Tanks.

Not all army tanks are destructive of human life. Those of the sanitary corps are dangerous only to germs. The necessity of eradicating these from the drinking water of the soldiers has been met by the organization of purification units or mobile water trailers. These consist of a number of heavy motor trucks, each of which is a complete filtration plant in itself, including a laboratory for testing. They are equipped to both filter and chemically purify the water, which may be pumped up from a river bed or any convenient source. Attached to each train are a number of simple tank trucks used for storage or transportation of the purified water.

In Memory of French Heroes.

It is believed that with the close of the war the entire line of trenches in France, extending from Alsace to the Belgian border, may be converted into a sort of national forest forest as a permanent tribute to the memory of the French "Boches," who died there in the defense of their native soil. A proposal to this effect has been presented by the general council of the department of the Meuse and will be submitted to a national France, but the entire world.

UNUSED MUNITIONS BROUGHT WAR'S END

GERMAN STAFF KNEW OUR PRO-DUCTION AND GAVE UP, SAYS
FRANKLIN.

Cleveland.—The war supplies that have been delivered and most of the paid for but never used were what actually brought the war to the sudden end and so much earlier than had been expected, according to Lewis B. Franklin, director of the war loan organization for the United States.

LEWIS B. FRANKLIN,
War Loan Director.

"These are the things for which we are going to pay with the Fifth—and last—Liberty Loan," Mr. Franklin explained at a meeting of Liberty Loan county chairmen in this city.

"That is what I mean when I say that this money you are going to raise through the things already bought with the credit of it—is paying for the saving of a half a million American lives."

"The speed and bravery of the American 'dough-boys' affected the German on the front line more than it did the men at German general headquarters; but the fact that America had ten tons of mustard gas ready for shipment in 1919, to every town that Germany had; the fact that we were going to have a tank on the front line for every 75 feet of the line in 1919; the fact that we would have thousands of batteries of guns where we did not have a single one in 1918—those facts had an influence on the German General Staff."

"And, far from that money, those millions and billions of dollars wasted in an unnecessary preparation, I feel that the fact that the money was spent and that that enormous output of munitions was ready, was the controlling factor in the weakening of the German General Staff, and that it caused their message to the Kaiser that they were beaten, and that he must see for peace. And the way I see it is that this money, instead of being wasted, can be written down as having saved the lives of hundreds of thousands of American men who would have been sacrificed had the war continued another year."

"I do not believe that we are going to be troubled with this loan. I look for at least 20,000,000 subscribers to the next loan."

"We must let the people of the United States know why there is a Fifth Loan, what the money went for, what it did—and that is the most important part of it, what it did. We must tell them that it brought back two or three or four or five hundred thousand safe, live American boys, instead of having them buried in France. And I cannot conceive of the American people failing to respond to that kind of an appeal."

A certain Harrison business man is preparing to grow onions as a recreation from his office duties, using fourteen bushels of seeds. He will experience an overwhelming cost ration, no doubt, Harrison News.

Who Benefits By High Prices?

You feel that retail meat prices are too high.

Your retailer says he has to pay higher prices to the packers.

Swift & Company prove that out of every dollar the retailer pays to the packers for meat, 2 cents is for packers' profit, 13 cents is for operating expenses, and 85 cents goes to the stock raiser; and that the prices of live stock and meat move up and down together.

The live-stock raiser points to rising costs of raising live stock.

Labor reminds us that higher wages must go hand in hand with the new cost of living.

No one, apparently, is responsible. No one, apparently, is benefited by higher prices and higher income.

We are all living on a high-priced scale. One trouble is, that the number of dollars has multiplied faster than the quantity of goods, so that each dollar buys less than formerly.

WINTER STORES FOR HONEY BEE

Of Much Importance to Consider Both Quality and Quantity of Food Supply.

SUGAR SIRUP MUCH FAVORED

Most Common Cause of Poor Colonies in Spring is Poverty, Directly Due to Negligence on the Part of the Beekeeper.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The stores given to the bees from the end of one season to the beginning of the next are of the first importance. It is necessary to consider both the quality and the quantity of these stores.

Quality of Stores.

As has been stated, it is fortunate that in both of the zones where cellar wintering is or might be practiced the natural stores usually are good. Honey is such as those from white and alkali clovers, sweet clover, alfalfa, wild raspberry, hickweed, and will-lowers are fine stores for winter, while honeys from basswood, heartsease (swartweed), aster, goldrod, and most of the other fall flowers are less desirable. It is especially important during the period when the bees are in the cellar that the stores shall be of the very finest quality, and it is therefore the practice of many good beekeepers to feed each colony five pounds or more of sirup made of granulated sugar late in the fall, after all brood-rearing has ceased. This insures that the bees will have for their use, during the period of confinement in the cellar, stores which will not bring about the condition known as dysentery. In general it may be stated that honeys from mixed sources and dark honeys, except buckwheat, are to be avoided. Honeydew honeys are highly injurious and in all cases where such stores are present granulated sugar sirup should be fed.

It is Easy to Handle Bees When You Know How.

Quantity of Stores.

From the end of one honey season to the beginning of the next a good colony of bees will need fully 45 pounds of honey. When the bees are wintered in the cellar, it is usual not to have all of this honey in the one hive body in which they are wintered. It is a good practice to have at least 20 pounds within this hive, although 15 pounds will be safe. It is absolutely imperative, however, that the remainder of the 45 pounds shall be available to be given to the bees soon after they are taken from the cellar. The most common cause of poor colonies in the spring is poverty, directly due to neglect on the part of the beekeeper. A good beekeeper sees to it that at no time when brood is being reared do his bees have less than 15 pounds of stores in the hive, and the full amount of 45 pounds often will all be used, and is always needed if the colonies are to come to full strength on time for the gathering of the full crop. This amount is always augmented by honey from spring flowers, for 45 pounds of honey is not enough to bring a colony to full strength in time for the main honey-flow.

PRODUCE AN IMPORTANT FOOD

Boys' Clubs Are Being Instructed in Hog Raising—Become Soldiers of Commissary.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

By means of the boys' big clubs thousands of boys under nineteen years are being instructed in hog raising and by this means are helping to produce a very important food. A good general account of this work may be found in "Big Clubs and the Swine Industry" (Yearbook 1917, Separate 753). Your county agent, club leader, or director of extension work at the State Agricultural college will tell you of the work in your own state and how to join a club. The department wants 200,000 boys to raise pigs—40,000 are already doing it. If you live in the country, the small town, or the suburbs of a city, you can do it, too.

Mixture of Charcoal, Salt, Ashes, Sulphur and Copperas Will Tend to Prevent Worms.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It has been asserted by various experienced feeders of hogs that a mixture of charcoal, ashes, lime, salt, sulphur and copperas kept where the hogs can eat it will tend to prevent worm infestation. There is no scientific experimental evidence, however, in support of the idea that such a mixture will prevent worm infestation, and it is of value therefore as a source of mineral matter in the diet, and perhaps as an appetizer and tonic, rather than as a worm preventive. A balanced ration may furnish all the necessary feed nutrients, yet the system of the hog craves mineral matter. The mineral matter is not under control, and in order to make sure that the hogs have an abundant supply, free access should be given to a mineral mixture. The following is a formula for such a mixture:

Charcoal Mixture.

Charcoal.....1 bushel
Hardwood ashes.....1 bushel
Salt.....3 pounds
Air-slaked lime.....4 pounds
Sulphur.....4 pounds
Putrefied copperas.....2 pounds

Mix the lime, salt, and sulphur thoroughly and then mix with the charcoal and ashes. Dissolve the copperas in one quart of hot water and sprinkle the solution over the whole mass, mixing it thoroughly. Keep some of this mixture in a box before the hogs at all times, or place in a self-feeder.

Federal Quarantine Against Cattle Fever Ticks Lifted in Ten Southern States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

At least 100 counties and probably a number of parts of counties have just been released from federal quarantine against the cattle fever tick, according to officials of the bureau of animal industry, who have received reports from ten Southern states in which the work is being carried forward. Eighty-three counties and 35 parts of counties were released in December, 1917, constituting a record up to that time. The unprecedented amount of territory released this year includes areas in nine states.

INCREASE NUMBER OF TWINS

Save for Breeders Ewes That Come From Sheep That Often Have Had Twins—Same With Ham.

Do you wish to increase the number of twins from your flock of breeding ewes? Save for breeders the ewes that come from sheep that have often had twins and select a ram that came from a ewe that had twins. Such selection will materially increase the chances for twins.

BLOOD SOWS NEED PROTEIN

Feed During Period of Pregnancy of Greatest Importance—Supply Mineral Matter.

The feed of the blood sow during the period of pregnancy is of great importance, as she is not only maintaining her body and, in the case of immature sows, making a growth, but she needs a huge amount of protein and mineral matter from which to develop a large and vigorous litter.

APPLES WILL BE PLENTIFUL

Increase in Barreled Crop More Than Makes Up for Decrease in Boxes—New York Gains.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Commercial apples will be more plentiful this year than in 1917. This is more especially true for the barreled crop than for the entire commercial crop, because the boxed crop of California and the Pacific northwest will be below that of 1917. Based on July conditions, the prospective commercial apple crop has the promise of 25,711,000 barrels (boxes being expressed in terms of barrels), or 15 per cent above 1917. The increase of the crop that is marketed in barrels is estimated at 34 per cent, while for the boxed crop a decrease of 17 per cent is indicated.

Distinctive apple producing regions are known to the trade and are becoming known to the general public. This year, the most prominent region for barreled apples is western New York, where a commercial crop of 5,300,000 barrels is indicated, compared with last year's crop of only 1,118,000 barrels. Next in prominence, this year, is the Shenandoah-Cumberland district, extending from Virginia through Maryland into Pennsylvania. The indicated crop is 1,973,000 barrels, a slight relative gain over 1917. The western Michigan crop, this year, will increase to 750,000 barrels from 350,000 in 1917, according to the July estimate; the crop of the Champlain district of New York and Vermont, to 174,000 barrels from 124,000 in 1917; and of the Rome County district in southern Ohio, to 258,000 barrels from 122,000 in 1917.

Grading With Mechanical Sizer and Packing Under Movable Canvas Packing Shed.

Other barreled apple districts decline in prospect. The New England Baldwin belt declines from 750,000 barrels in 1917 to 651,000 in 1918; the Hudson Valley, from 1,175,000 barrels to 826,000; the Piedmont district of Virginia, from 485,000 barrels to 371,000; southern and western Illinois, from 1,300,000 barrels to 936,000; the Ozarks, from 733,000 barrels to 540,000; and the Missouri river region, from 1,229,000 barrels to 882,000.

The commercial apples that are marketed in barrels will amount to 18,061,000 barrels this year, it is estimated, against 12,536,000 barrels in 1917, and of this production 29 per cent will come from western New York and 39 per cent from that district and the Shenandoah-Cumberland district combined.

GIVE RASPBERRY GOOD CARE

It is Well to Remember That Old Canes Should Be Cut Out at End of Fruiting Season.

In the care and management of raspberry plantations, it is well to remember that the old canes should be cut out as soon as the fruiting season is over for the next year's crop is borne on the new wood and the old canes only tend to spread various fungus diseases. Another thing, where anthracnose is prevalent, it is advisable to start a new plantation about every third year, setting clean, disease-free plants.

PROPER PRUNING OF TREES

To Secure Low, Broad-Spreading System Begin to Trim in April and Air From Above.

Begin at the top in pruning a tree to secure a low, broad-spreading branching system, with open center, to admit sunlight and air from above. Do not remove strong lower limbs if they can be given sufficient light from above. Aim to secure bearing branches throughout the main body of the tree. If the tree is shaded by too much growth at the top, the lower and lower twigs will weaken and die instead of bearing fruit.

SUGARLESS SWEETS.

It is our patriotic duty to save sugar. In many of the dishes needing sweetening some other sweet may just as well be used. Those who have never taken the trouble to care for a hive of bees are finding that one hive, if well cared for, will produce 60 or more pounds of honey, with plenty left for the bees to winter on. Honey takes the place of sugar fairly well, yet the liquid in the dish will need to be reduced one-quarter. Maple sirup is sweeter than sugar, so less is needed, while corn sirup is not as sweet and a larger amount will be necessary to properly sweeten.

Why Honey.—Boil together one cupful of whey and one-third of a cupful of honey until the consistency of strained honey. This sirup will keep indefinitely and is fine for waffles or griddle cakes. Use a little thinner for pudding sauces.

Why Lemonade.—To a quart of whey add six tablespoonfuls of honey, the juice of two lemons and the grated rind or a sliced lemon added for extra flavor. Mix, chill and serve as a beverage. If wanted for punch add any reasonable fruit with fruit juices. Double the amount of honey and fruit juice is about the right proportion for punch.

Bar le Duc Currants.—Remove the seeds from the large cherry currants, using a darning needle. Take equal weights of currants and honey. Bring the honey to the boiling point, then add the currants and cook until the skins are tender, being careful not to destroy the shape by rapid boiling. If the fruit is so juicy that the sirup is thinned remove the currants and reduce the sirup by boiling until of the right consistency. Put into glasses and seal with paraffin.

Honey Charlotte Russe.—Chill one cupful of honey and stir it carefully into a quart of whipped cream. Line a dish with lady fingers and fill with the honey and cream. Set away to chill. Serve very cold.

Honey or maple sirup may be used in place of sugar for boiled frosting. Pour the boiling sirup over the beaten white of the egg and proceed as usual.

Fasten your soul so high, that constantly the smile of your heroic cheer may float above the floods of earthly agonies.—Mrs. Browning.

HIGHLY SEASONED DISHES.

Foods highly seasoned with condiments are called deviled food. Such dishes are popular for an appetizer, for late supper, picnics and lunches.

Deviled Chicken Legs.—Take the second joints and the legs of a roasting or a spring chicken, reserving the breast for salad. Divide the parts, remove the bones and tendons and flatten the pieces by striking them with a cleaver. Make incisions lengthwise in the pieces, and fill these with deviled paste, brush with melted fat and broil or fry in fat until cooked. Prepare the paste as follows: Put into a soup plate two tablespoonfuls of salad dressing, half a teaspoonful of mustard, a scant half teaspoonful of curry powder and a half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Mix and use as above. Steaks, chops or slices of cold roasts may be treated with this paste equally as well.

Deviled Bones.—Rub the deviled paste into the meat left on ribs of beef, brush with butter and broil. Serve not too well done.

Deviled Ham.—Cut a moderately thick slice of cold boiled ham, make incisions on both sides of it, rub these with the deviled paste, then with butter, and broil long enough to heat through thoroughly. Serve on a hot platter with a teaspoonful of the paste spread over the ham just as it goes to the table.

Deviled Tripe.—Take well-cooked tripe that is cold, rub into it a liberal quantity of the deviled paste, brush it with sweet fat and broil to a delicate brown. When done serve with a little paste on each piece of tripe while hot.

Deviled Veal Chops.—Take thick chops and into the several gashes made with a sharp knife press as much of the paste as is needed to season each chop. Dredge with crumbs and broil as usual or fry in a little hot fat.

Deviled crabs, oysters or various fresh fish may be seasoned with the paste and cooked in hot fat, making most tasty dishes.

A Lively Old Town.

At one time last Monday there were fifteen automobiles and three big trucks on the streets in Burlington, and the town had quite a lively appearance. The like is often seen in the old days.

Has Moved to His New Home.

Ray Blotts called in last Monday morning and had his Recorder changed from R. D. 3 to R. D. 2, having moved to his new home in the Locust Grove neighborhood, known as the Brady farm.

Capt. George F. Smith.

Dr. George F. Smith, who volunteered for military service last fall and was at Ft. Riley, Kan., a brief period, has received notice that he has been assigned to the U. S. reserve corps with the rank of captain. He is directed to hold himself in readiness to respond to a call at any time, Lawrenceburg Press.

Appointed Tax Inspector.

R. L. Helms, of Petersburg, has been appointed Income Tax Inspector at a good fat salary. He does not know where he will be located but hopes he will be in a reasonable distance of his old home. Mr. Helms is well qualified for the position and will take pride in the proper discharge of the duties of the office.

Having Good Luck With Lambs

L. P. Rice, of Idlewild neighborhood, was in town last Monday, and being asked how many lambs he had answered: "I have 33 ewes and 51 lambs living and one dead." This is what can be called good luck. He was in a hurry to get back home as he had several other ewes that he expected to drop lambs at any time.

A Strenuous Trip.

Those who moved O. P. Phipps last week had rather a strenuous trip. One of the trucks in the load of the road and stuck in unloading to lighten it the bottom dropped out of a chicken coop and it took considerable time to run the fowls down and recoup them. By the time the truck was back on the road all parties were nearly exhausted.

Tax Board Did Not Meet.

The county board of tax assessors, which had been appointed by Judge Canon failed to meet and organize last Monday as required by law. C. Scott Chambers had to attend to a funeral in Big Bone neighborhood, and Joseph Huey's wife was so ill of pneumonia that he could not leave home. H. H. Grant, the other member of the board was not heard from. Tax Commissioner H. W. Riley was on hand to attend the sittings of the board.

Making Work Brisk.

The numerous real estate deals in his county have made work brisk at the County Clerk's office, and he has quite a number of conveyances that have accumulated in the last few days. Some of the tracts have been sold several times before a deed was made, the deed being made by the party who sold first. In this way the county clerk has been cut out of several recording fees which in normal times he would have received, but the time has come when property changes hands so fast that deeds cannot be prepared fast enough to keep up with the changes.

W. L. Kirkpatrick tells the Recorder that on one of his trips to Kenton county one day last week he met three very prominent citizens of that county all being owners of the Maxwell touring car, one being Atty. Samuel Adams, one Dr. Herndon, and the other an engineer on the L. & N. Railroad. These gentlemen have been using the Maxwell since almost the beginning of its life, and their conversation was very interesting to Kirkpatrick. Mr. Kirkpatrick is not acquainted with Kenton county as he is in Boone, but finds a great many friends in that county and expects to do a great business in Kenton county this season.

MR. LA FOLLETTE AGAIN.

The Evening Post feels that in this grave hour of American history it would be devoted to its duty as a public journal if it failed to point out in as clear a fashion as is within its power the appearance as one of the acknowledged leaders of the Republican party in the U. S. Senate of the sinister figure of Robert M. La Follette.

Mr. La Follette, as we read his history, has never yet been true to any cause except that of himself, that wished to be elected to the Senate. Then the resumption of his power to break up and destroy the administration of President Taft. Then he posed as a Progressive and it would have been easy to recognize the real sincerity, but when Mr. Roosevelt came forward as the candidate of those progressive elements that wished to see the Republican party from reaction, Mr. La Follette fought Mr. Roosevelt and the Progressives with a bitterness surpassing that which he had directed against Mr. Taft.

Mr. Wilson was elected and then the war came. Mr. La Follette immediately took the side of Germany. He declared for an embargo on arms. He wished to do everything possible to embarrass those nations that later became our allies. Then the resumption of ruthless submarine warfare came, and Mr. La Follette appeared in the Senate to fight the battle for Germany and against America. At every stage of the war he was to be found the side as the public enemy. He opposed the draft, he opposed every step taken to maintain the honor and safety of his country. Finally he became so extreme that his Republican colleagues parted with him in disgust. Charges of disloyalty were preferred against him and for a time he gave up attending the Senate.

A few months ago Mr. La Follette reappeared in the Senate. By the votes of Republicans he was purged of the disloyalty charges, and at once he assumed the position of leader on the Republican side and at the close of the session of Congress, without the objection, or certainly without the objection, of his Republican associates he spoke for five and six hours at a time to prevent Congress from passing bills to maintain the strength of our army, to preserve our navy, as a fighting unit, to protect the financial credit of our railroads.

Whenever there is anything to do to injure America Robert M. La Follette is to be found. As we note with sorrow and humiliation that he is permitted to play this role in the upper branch of an American Congress, supposed to represent the American nation, Louisville Evening Post.

Give the Chicks a Fair Chance

Never put young chicks on the cold ground, for they will chill and soon die. Keep them in a house large enough for exercise. In warm weather put them in a coop in a small yard, feed them four or five times a day on cold bread and give them plenty clean water. Sprinkle some coarse sand in the coop, as they need grit. Let them stay in the coop a day or two, and then after the dew dries off let them out in the yard. Keep them there one week and then let them go at large, but never allow them in the dew. After they get two or three weeks old I find that cornmeal and shorts mixed together and sprinkled over water make a fine feed for them. Never put over one hundred chicks in a coop, and have the coops well scattered in the yard. Never feed them until you have given them water. If you feed them together, the larger ones will knock and run over the little ones. Move the coops to a clean place once or twice a week and keep the yard swept clean. To destroy chiggers, put a little sulphur in their feed once or twice.

My surest plan for diarrhea is to keep red oak bark in the drinking water.

The Owen County Way.

STATE NEWS.

Lexington—Kentucky's quota in the $100,000,000 reconstruction and mission campaign has been fixed at $100,000.

Woodford county—Farmers are farther ahead in their work than they have been at this time for a number of years.

Paducah—Probably the largest celebration in the history of West Kentucky Odd-Fellows will be held Saturday, April 20th, when more than 1,000 members will meet here to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Odd Fellowship in America.

Montgomery county—The growers of this county who did not sell their tobacco earlier are decidedly blue, as the market here suffered a dreadful slump in prices last week. Farmers are now vigorously pushing their spring work. A number of tractors have been purchased.

Hickman—A party of Hickman people, by purchasing 8,000 acres of cut-over land from the Menzel Coal Company, have put over one of the largest land deals ever summated in this section for some time. This land is located in Dyer county, Tenn., near Menzelwood, lying in one body. The price paid was $208,000.

Maysville—The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mat Pugh, of Robertson county, was playing with a can of kerosene near a fire which ignited her dress. Her smaller sister ran to her and tried to wrap a quilt around her. She was badly burned. She screamed for help when her mother ran to her assistance. The older child was burned to death and the mother's hands were badly burned.

Georgetown—David Post, who claims Xenia, Ohio, as his home, was held over for two days when arranged in County Court charged with attempting to wreck a train, and his bond was fixed at $500. Post is about 35 years old. He admitted placing a railroad tie across the track of an approaching Queen & Crescent train, about twenty miles north of Georgetown, claiming that he arrested, that he did not want to kill the passengers, but to stop the train to get a ride.

Scott county—Pastures are good and small grain is doing well, though frost has hit it, but it has a good root and fine stand. Fodder is plentiful, but hay is scarce. In all probability there will be a great number of movers this year than usual, as many large farms have been cut up into smaller ones and the new owners are causing the tenants to search for other homes while the old owners are moving to town and buying residences. Those who have been tenants all their lives in a number of instances have been saved during the recent high-saluted time and have bought the smaller farms.

Bourbon county—A number of tenants have been left homeless, as they had to move out to live in the new ones and there are not enough to go around. Many people are coming into this county. A large number of big farms have been sold off in small tracts. Plowing has been given attention and more ground has been tilled than in a number of years. The weather for the last two weeks has been ideal for the wheat crop, which amounts to about 100,000 acres. The constant freezing and thawing has had the tendency to lift the young plants out of the ground and the wheat shows the effect of the absence of snow.

Greenburg—That Green county is to build good roads is not a futile hope, but a coming reality. A large crowd of representatives of the county met at the Green county hotel to listen to a good road speech by Commissioner Rodman Wiley, of Frankfort. Green county is just now in a position to ask for State aid, and in his address Mr. Wiley pointed out that Federal aid is also possible. The Green County Progressive League and the Court of Green county will make an effort to secure Federal and State aid on a branch of the Home Trail, beginning at Springfield, Ky., and passing through Marion, Taylor, and Green counties and intersecting the Jackson Highway at Harrodsburg, in Hart county. Twenty miles of this road lies in Green county and the money necessary to build this part of the road is practically assured.

BEFORE long you are going to be very busy. To make your crop, you are going to need the service of every machine you have. There is a little lull right now. This time can be put to mighty good use. How are your farm machines? Wouldn't it be a wise precaution to look them over carefully to assure yourself that there are no parts needing replacement now or later on?

By making a list of present or possible future requirements and giving it to us before or during Repair and Inspection Week, March 3-8, we shall be able to furnish you what you want when you want it.

If there is any item on your list we do not happen to carry in stock, we can procure it and hold it in readiness for you. It takes the delay, and consequent loss of time out of farm emergencies. The question of a day or two during the busy season on the farm is a serious one. Make up that list now and let us have it.

PRIVATE WM. B. HORTON.

Private Wm. B. Horton writes his uncle and aunt, J. W. Ryle and wife, from France under date of February 8th as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ryle, Dear Uncle and Aunt, I will take the pleasure in answering your most kind and welcome letter that I received today and was more than glad to hear from you all. This letter leaves me well and feeling fine and truly hope that this will find you both the same. I was very sorry to hear that Aunt Viola had been so poorly but I sure hope that she is better by now. Well, I am at my new job now. I have been on duty for a little over a week and I like the military Police fine so far. I am on duty ten hours and off twenty-four. We have plenty to eat and we have got fine barracks to sleep in. We have got everything fixed up fine here. We are right on a river bank. The river gets pretty low during the day but at night when the tide comes in it is bank full.

I don't have very far to go on duty. I walk about two blocks and then I go on the street car. When we are on duty we can ride any where on the street car that we want to and it doesn't cost a cent.

When we are off of duty we can ride anywhere in town for two cents. The city where I am has a population of 300,000. It is not like the cities back in the States. There are very few streets that run straight in it and it is easy to get lost. I went thru the Art of Museum yesterday and it was right interesting. I saw the picture of Bordone, the place where I am now, as it was in 1545, and I saw hundreds of other things. If I told about all of them it would take me a week to write it, but I have seen some wonderful things since I have been in France.

I was glad to hear that you had a good crop of tobacco this year and was glad it is bringing such good prices.

Well Uncle I guess that I had better close for I got eight letters tonight and will have to answer some of the others, so I will say good-bye with love to you both.

Your loving nephew in France, Pvt. WM. B. HORTON.

FROM R. E. BOYER

R. E. Boyer writes from France under date of February 20, as follows:

Dear one at Home—Will try to write a line to say that I am O. K. I have been rather busy for some time and have not written as often as I would have liked.

I can't tell when I will be at home but I most certainly hope it will be soon. Our sailing date has been changed so often it has become a joke. The latest now is that we will sail the first week in March.

The weather here is very mild, just light freezes and plenty of rain. There is regular apple orchard here—apple trees and very little of anything else.

I think we would have been ready to leave but when we were in Belgium we had to occupy the billets that the Huns had just left and all of us got just plenty of whatnot in our quarters and we had to get rid of them before we could sail.

There is one thing I know and that is I will be sent to Camp Taylor to be mustered out.

Is everyone and what are they doing? Give everyone my best wishes, you all lots of love and luck. Corp. R. E. Boyer.

Hq. Co. 116 U. S. Tufat, American E. F. A. P. O. 703.

Chas. R. Baker, writes under date of Feb. 10th, from France, as follows to his mother:

"It has been cold over here for about a week. I don't think I will get to help father any this year. I am working at present. I am unloading ships which is not very hard work." He has met but one boy over here who he knew, Otis Casey.

Young Baker has been overseas five months.

Deaths.

Mrs. Mary E. Glacken, 77, widow of the late O. F. Glacken died on the 10th inst., at her home in Richwood neighborhood.

William H. Wilson, 72, of Union neighborhood, died last Tuesday after an illness of several weeks.

Kirk Sullivan, about 64 years old, son of W. P. Sullivan, died on the 10th inst., at a hospital where he was operated on last Sunday for gall stones. He also had cancer of the liver. Burial at Burlington this Thursday, afternoon.

W. W. Dickerson, Joel C. Clore and Harper Runner, of Cincinnati; Harry Myers, of Covington, and O. M. Rogers, J. E. Williams, D. E. Castleman, Courtney Walton and R. C. Gaines, of Erlanger, and Congressman A. R. Rouse and Judge John M. Lassing attended Judge Cason's funeral.

Timothy Sanford and Stanley Edkins made a business trip to the city Monday.

The farmers report their wheat as looking fine, while the frosts have injured clover considerably.

NOTICE TO FARMERS.

As it is necessary for us to have the date for our closing sale wish to state that we have decided upon Saturday, March 22nd, 1919, as our closing sale day. We wish to thank all for their patronage and trust that they will pay us a visit next season, promising to render any assistance possible, we remain

CHEAP RATIONS FOR HORSES

Animals Performing Hard Work May Be Given Straw and Corn Stover in Limited Quantities.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cheap feeds, such as straw and corn stover, have a place in the horse ration. For growing colts and for horses doing hard work these roughages may be fed in limited quantities, supplementary to a more nutritious ration. A caution is timely in regard to feeding bulky roughages low in nutrients. Horses have comparatively small stomachs and their digestive anatomy is in no way suited to handle a great bulk of feed. Little nourishment is derived from a pound of such roughage, and in maintaining a hard-working animal too great a bulk of feed would necessarily be taken into the body. It is therefore desirable to combine with a limited quantity of stover or straw sufficient legume hay, grain, or other nutritious feed to meet the individual requirements of the horse. A small portion of some laxative feed, such as silage, roots, bran, or alfalfa, may well be included in a ration containing a large proportion of corn stover or straw.

Cottonseed meal has met with considerable disfavor among horse feeders, but it may be fed in limited quantities if due care is exercised. It is a very heavy protein concentrate but is not particularly laxative in character, and is quite likely to produce digestive troubles unless the quantity fed is limited. Its proper use is as a supplement to a carbonaceous ration, one-half pound daily being usually sufficient, although in some parts of the South several pounds daily have been fed with success. The more favorable results have come from feeding it in connection with grains and blackstrap molasses. Cottonseed meal is not palatable to horses. In most cases not more than two pounds daily per animal should ever be given, and before that limit is reached special care should be taken of its effect. Most horse feeders prefer the use of oil meal. The following rations are suggested for horses:

Maintenance Ration for 1,000-Pound Horse.

Ration 1:
Corn stover 5 pounds
Alfalfa hay 3 pounds
Corn on cob 5 pounds

Ration 2:
Oat straw 5 pounds
Alfalfa 8 pounds
Cane molasses 3 pounds

Daily Ration for 1,000-Pound Horse at Light Work.

Corn stover 5 pounds
Alfalfa hay 8 pounds
Cottonseed meal 1/2 pound
Cowpeas 2 pounds
Shelled corn 5 pounds

Daily Ration for 1,000-Pound Horse at Severe Work.

Corn fodder 4 pounds
Alfalfa 12 pounds
Soy beans (ground) 1 pound
Shelled corn 12 pounds

Daily Ration for 1,250-Pound Horse.

Ration 1:
Corn stover 11 pounds
Alfalfa 6 pounds
Ear corn 4 pounds

Ration 2:
Oat straw 10 pounds
Pea hay 4 pounds
Common beets or other roots (or silage) 4 pounds
Oats 4 pounds

Daily Ration for 1,250-Pound Horse at Light Work.

Barley straw 5 pounds
Alfalfa hay 6 pounds
Rolled barley 8 pounds

Daily Ration for 1,500-Pound Horse.

Corn fodder (with ears) 15 pounds
Alfalfa 5 pounds

GROUND SOY BEANS FOR PIGS

Found to Be About 10 Per Cent Superior to Wheat Middlings in Test at Wisconsin.

As a supplement to cornmeal for growing and fattening pigs, the Wisconsin station found that ground soy beans proved about 10 per cent superior to wheat middlings, figuring the cost of the feeds as the same. The Indiana station compared rations of two parts of cornmeal and one part of soy-bean meal with cornmeal and wheat middlings in equal proportions and with five parts of cornmeal and one part of tankage for pork production. The largest daily ration produced the largest daily gains, and this with the smallest quantity of feed consumed in each pound of gain.

POULTRY

USES FOR DIFFERENT FOWLS

Poultry, Other Than Chickens, Have Important Place in Increasing Needed Food Supply.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The hen, first and last, is the main dependence for increasing the supply of white meat and eggs, but she requires the aid of turkeys, guineas, geese, and ducks, just as, on a dairy farm, the cow requires the aid of pigs, sheep, and goats. The setting of the standard at 100 hens per farm is safe, but no such arbitrary standard can be set for the other kinds of poultry. The small farm, with grain fields of neighboring farms in proximity to the barn and dooryard, would, perhaps, be better without turkeys. The farm through which no streams run and which has no large pond would perhaps be better without ducks. But the circumscribed farm on which turkeys would be a disadvantage may be well supplied with streams and ponds so that ducks would be unusually profitable, and the farm that has no streams and ponds may have large range for turkeys. Each farm family will have to determine for itself what poultry can be profitably kept in relation to 100 hens, bearing in mind always that an adequate number should be kept of all the kinds for which free range can be found.

Turkeys, ranging further afield, prey upon insect forms that escape the hens. From the time the young are old enough to begin foraging for themselves, perhaps early in June, until near frost, turkeys take the bulk of their food from field insects, devouring millions of grasshoppers and other injurious forms in meadow and pasture. In regions where wooded areas are still fairly extensive, mast is an important item in the diet of the turkey. When the insect stores begin to fail, the mast harvests are beginning to be filled. Feeding on acorns, chestnuts, beech nuts, and the like, turkeys will go a long way toward fattening themselves for the Thanksgiving or Christmas market and will not require much feeding of corn or other grain to finish them. Generally speaking, turkeys will require a larger feeding of grain than chickens to fit them for market, but, as they utilize forms of waste that hens and their broods would not reach, the keeping of a fair number of turkeys is good economy.

Guinea fowls utilize still other kinds of waste that would escape both hens and turkeys. Taking a wider range than chickens and yet not quite so wide as turkeys, keeping largely to thickets and weed patches, and committing fewer depredations against field and garden than either chickens or turkeys, requiring little feeding at any time, being prolific layers, during their season of eggs that are thought by many to have a richer and finer flavor even than hen eggs, the guinea fowl is an economic necessity on any farm where a serious effort is made to convert all waste into meat and eggs.

Geese hold another sector in the line of the poultry-army that makes war against waste. They touch flanks with the chickens in utilizing waste grain about stables and feeding pens. In a larger measure than chickens or any other kind of poultry, they are grazing stock, taking their living in large part from the ordinary grasses of the pastures.

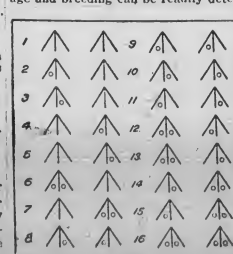

The one kind of poultry of questionable economic status on farms is the pigeon. Almost exclusively a grain eater, the pigeon renders no notable service as a conservator of waste, except it might be shattered grain in the fields, and that in large measure would be taken up by other poultry and by pigs. The pigeon has its economic place in the scheme of urban poultry production, but, except in isolated instances where conditions are peculiarly favorable, its production on general farms may not be desirable.

MARKING CHICKS MADE EASY

Toe Punch Method Enables Poultryman to Distinguish Hens From the Young Pullets.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The punch or mark all the chickens before they are transferred to the brooder or brood coop, so that their age and breeding can be readily determined.

Sixteen Different Methods of Marking Chicks—If This Plan Is Followed Age of Fowls Can Easily Be Told, unless after they are matured. Farmers frequently keep old hens on their farms and kill the younger hens and pullets, because they are unable to distinguish between them after the pullets have matured.

WARS SET UP PRINCIPLES

Momentous Questions Troubling Mankind Have Been Settled by the World's Greatest Conflicts.

Wars are milestones. Victories set up tablets, upon which are inscribed the principles that have been vindicated.

The battle of Marston Moor destroyed feudalism, overthrew the doctrine of the divine right of kings, gave England an elective parliament, Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis said in a sermon reported in the Brooklyn Eagle.

The French revolution destroyed French autocracy, and gave the people the right of self-determination.

The war of 1776 was the last civil war of Great Britain—a war of a good section of the English people against the bad section of Great Britain which had enthroned a crazy German king—George III.

The war of 1861 established on sure foundations the republic, the last best hope of man, and vindicated industrial democracy without regard to color.

The war of 1914 has settled certain things for all time. War shall be no more! Hereafter disputes between nations shall be settled by an international supreme court. Militarism shall be no more—never again shall the people's resources be wasted in piling up munitions, nor the man in the furrow carry a soldier upon his back. International treaties hereafter shall be sacred!

Alas for the next nation that counts its written pledge a scrap of paper! The small races and peoples are free! No big bully nation like Germany can ever again trample upon Belgium, as King Akab trampled on Naboth and seized his purple vineyard. Terrorism and frightfulness henceforth are outlawed. That day God called "the sin," that Germany made unto herself and last long been worshipping, is an idol that has fallen.

Now they have formed a Dog's Wool Association. The big idea is to have everybody save the clippings from their spaniels and Pekinese pets, as well as use the pelts of long-haired canines. A superior grade of wool can thus be had, and it mixes well with other wools for the production of fine fabrics. It doth thereby appear that the hair of the dog is good for something else besides the bite.—Los Angeles Times.

Special Notice

To My Customers and Friends:—

It has come to my notice in the last few weeks that work that had been sent to me to do had never reached me, but was taken some place else. Where the parties bringing and delivering the work get pay at both ends, going and coming; and how this was found out, was that work that had been done by other parties and I had been credited with doing it, was brought to me to do over, and of course, not having done the work I refused to do it over with out being paid. Can anyone blame me? Can anyone blame me when I had not done the faulty work? But, of course they were my customers and thought I had done the work until I informed them I had not.

Some of this work was rubber tire work, and those troublesome war times we all had our troubles. My trouble with rubber tires was I could not get wires that would not stretch and the tires would open where joined together, and of course that caused me a great deal of trouble and expense. The tire would also turn in the channel—could not draw wire tight enough as it would stretch. It was no fault of mine. I could not get the proper wire to do the work with, but the war being over, perhaps I will be able to get the proper material this year. Every time I have changed a rubber tire it cost me 65 cents, so you can realize that I am going to do the work right if possible. If it is not I will make it so. I always have and always will. I have been in the business and expect to stay, so come and see me; get prices; write or phone me—phone No. 51-x Erlanger, I surely will try to be right.

N. B.—I will use two grades of rubber tire this year—Kelly-Springfield and Cooper Peerless. Get my prices on anything in the carriage line. Rubber tires applied while you wait and look on.

A FAMILY MEDICINE

In Her Mother's Home, Says This Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught. Relief From Head-ache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Ringgold, Ga.—Mrs. Chas. Gaston, of this place, writes: "I am a user of Theodor's Black-Draught; in fact, it was one of our family medicines. Also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of us children complained of headache, usually caused by constipation, she gave us a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the Spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, we would take Black-Draught pretty regularly until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. We would not be without it, for it certainly has saved us lots of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not so well saves a lot of days in bed."

Theodor's Black-Draught has been in use for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the popularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit. If your liver is not doing its duty, you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result.

Theodor's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver for its proper functions and clearing the bowels of impurities. Try it. Insist on Theodor's the original and genuine. Dr. T.

WALTON.

John W. Sleet spent Monday at Lexington attending the local tobacco sales.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Watts of Pettingburg, spent Saturday and Sunday here with friends.

Dr. Robert H. Herndon of Fort Mitchell, spent part of last week here with relatives and friends.

P. H. Matthews of near Burlington, and M. S. Morrow of Cincinnati, were here Monday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maddox moved here from Asheville, N. C., last week, and occupy the John Grubbs property.

H. H. Huston, the clever station agent of the L. & N. Railroad at Walton, spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents at Anchorage.

Dr. and Mrs. G. F. Holloway spent last Friday in Cincinnati and bought a fine Hamilton piano for their daughter Miss Gracetta.

Mrs. Anna Stapleton who bought a farm near Mausonsville, O., was here last week closing up the sale of her farm near Walton to J. S. Keft.

John Dennis who resides on the farm of W. L. Gaines near Richmond, was taken to Cincinnati, Monday, for an operation for appendicitis.

Fred Miller who has been home on a visit to his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Miller, left Saturday for Arkansas to resume his work as traveling salesman for the Misawaka Company.

Carroll Dugan of Union, was here the first of the week putting some nice tobacco on the loose leaf market. His wife has been quite ill and he had to take her to a hospital in Cincinnati for treatment this week.

Dr. J. G. Slater of Ludlow, spent part of last week here with his uncle Jno. C. Miller and family. Dr. Slater has been ill from overwork, having been up night and day attending the sick at Ludlow, and came out to recuperate.

French Bros. of Cincinnati, are arranging to open a cream station at Walton. The first of April and Elbert Wilson will probably have charge. The cream will be bought and delivered here for shipment to French Bros. in Cincinnati.

D. B. Wallace sold to W. L. Whitehouse for his Woolper farm four fine Holstein cows for $40, and two registered Poland China pigs for $60. He also sold to T. E. Gentry of Kenton county, two fine Holstein cows for $225. The live stock was raised on his Grant county farm in charge of Chas. H. Young.

Oscar Chandler, Allen Johnson and Grover Hines were at Lexington last week selling their tobacco. Mr. Johnson moving to Fleming county this week. Mr. Chandler stated that he lost $300 on the tobacco he was selling on the Walton market as it was much better than Lexington for the grade of tobacco raised here.

The Walton Loose Leaf market last Saturday sold $5,000 lbs., at an average of $12.25. Sheriff L. A. Conner had a large offering of fine tobacco that averaged $19.25 per 100. There was a large offering on the market Wednesday, and the market will be well patronized as long as it is open. It may be that the market will close at Walton, April 12th, as all of the other markets will close this month.

Alfred F. Stephens and bride arrived here last week and expect to make their home in Walton. Mr. Stephens has been employed at the carpenter trade at Georgetown the past year, and met his wife who was then Miss Mary Kenton, and their courtship resulted in marriage at Newport last week. Their many friends offer them their best wishes for a very happy and prosperous future.

John C. White who had been ill with pneumonia, died at his home here Saturday evening. He took a cold a couple of weeks ago and it developed into pneumonia. Mr. White was born and reared in Boone county, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. White, and was in his 45th year at the time of his death. He was a good citizen, and a man who had many friends. His wife and two children, Misses Melva and Georgia, survive him. The funeral took place Monday, the remains being taken to the Big Bone Baptist church by Undertaker C. Scott Chambers, where services were held by Rev. Robert McNeely, after which the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery there.

Mrs. Hattie Aylor, the beloved wife of Robert R. Aylor, died at her home in Walton, Monday night, after several weeks illness from influenza followed by pneumonia. Mr. and Mrs. Aylor moved here from East Bend, from their farm, several months ago, having the property of Mrs. J. W. Huston, and endeavoring to have the enjoyment of a comfortable home, but alas, all their happy plans have been destroyed by the cold hand of death. The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Stephens of Rabbit Hash, and was in the 33rd year of her age. Her husband and two daughters, Mamie and Louise are bereft of the affectionate companionship of the loving wife and devoted mother. The funeral took place today (Thursday) the remains being taken to Belle Isle by Undertaker Scott Chambers where the funeral took place from the Baptist Church of which the deceased was a most worthy member. Rev. Robert McNeely conducted the services and paid the deceased a high tribute for her worth and merit in an impressive discourse.

J. Stone Walker, of Madison county, one of the State Bank Examiners, was here Friday and Tuesday and examined both the local banks, and pronounced them both in this condition.

GEORGE H. WALTON

Writes to His Mother From Rossbach, Deutschland.

Rosbach, Deutschland, Feb. 7, 1919.

Dear Mother:—I'm sorry to say I can't get home for quite a while yet, as the army of occupation will, in all probability, be the last to be demobilized. I'm in a shock troop unit and I read that they will be the last discharged.

I am in the famous Second Division, commanded by John A. LeJune, a Marine, and my Captain's name is Capt. Robert Youell, and he is a regular fellow.

As we passed through towns in France on our way to the front, we were cheered and given tobacco, and all kinds of gifts, for they recognized us as the Fifth Reg. Marines, and you know what a reputation that has.

We were temporarily camped near Chalons, France, when we were ordered to the Argonne front, about 70 miles distant. The first 40 miles were made in French Camions drawn by dusky Chinese, who, incessantly, smoked their opium and catted to us in their broken brogue.

Leaving Camions and camping over night in the edge of the Argonne, next morning found us on our like thru the forest, and the odor of the dead became appalling. The boom of the artillery rang through the forest, and as night came the flare lit up the eastern sky. The wood became denser and the roads narrowed into mere trails that made us single file. Mud was heavy and burdened us as we were by ammunition and pack. We struggled along. Many gave out, but I wanted to go, and I hung on even after my strength was gone—my nerve kept me up. Trucks blocked the way, and the line was broken time and again.

Getting near the front the scream of the "Big Boys," as they tore thru the air, became audible, and soon we were ducking them. The Bosche were shelling roads, and had good range. Mangled trucks and men were everywhere.

With five miles of the front we went into another patch of wood, and here stayed four days, until we went over the top. We got to this wood about 2 o'clock at night.

I slept anywhere. My bunk and I stumbled on to a dugout, just large enough for two, and were soon fast asleep under the ground, as it was about 5 feet deep, covered with twigs and dirt, and a hole just big enough to crawl in. We slept until about 12 the next day and awoke to the fact that we were hungry; hadn't had chow for three meals and we did justice to it when it finally came up.

I was looking at our observation balloon swinging in the air about 9 miles ahead, when, suddenly, a Bosche plane darted at it, opening up with his front gun. The observer jumped and was saved, but the balloon went up in flame and came burning to the earth. Soon the air was full of American planes, which reminded me of a flock of birds.

That night I was snoring away at 60 per hour when the cry of "gas," went up from our sector and was carried like a whirlwind through the forest, echoing and reaching as it went.

I jumped out, sniffed the air, got a stifling odor in my lungs and jammed my mask home. Just a gas shell from a plane. The whir of their engines were heard and gigantic searchlights played thru the sky. Deadly air bombs were dropping, but only a few of us were killed and injured. The flare of big guns and scream of shells that seemed to move thru the air was confusing. This all happened before we really went in.

Next I'll go over the top for you. Later—Am recovering from a severe case of influenza. Am billeted with a family named Burden, typical square heads. I am learning to speak German well enough to converse with them. I asked them about the ravages of the Dutch soldiers in Belgium and their cruelty to non-combatants. They deny it but I learned when in Belgium that the cruelty of the Bosche was not exaggerated in the least. They certainly played foul with the Belgian people and in many instances there was a repetition of Attila's barbarous deeds, such as burning at the stake, etc.

I wish you could see some of the battle fields of France. In the Champagne sector you can gaze for miles and see nothing but a turmoil of earth mounds and holes, caused by big shells. All that remains of beautiful and valuable forests is a few charred stumps and stumps. They howl for leniency at the Peace Conference. From what I can find out by jabbering with them, the German people are underestimating our number of forces and our ability.

The only place many of them had ever heard of was New York and they imagined that was a jerk water town about the size of Newled, which is about forty thousand.

One German in Newled took me to the station to show me the train as I never saw one. I told him I never saw one like that. DOM thing. It was a little bunchy affair built like a Ford, and you should see their farming implements—the old horse plow and ox that have been handed down from generation to generation. They still use the flail for threshing and the women use it same as the men. If they could the they try to put something over on us and resist us, but we quietly remind them how and then that being their conquerors we let the superior. I hope they get what they deserve at the conference.

For Christmas we had chocolate, but only one piece. We got water, rice, coffee, syrup, coffee syrup and rice for breakfast, with spuds, beef and gravy for dinner. I haven't forgotten your good cooking and will keep you busy when I get home. Hot cakes for breakfast and pie for dinner, a la carte. How does that sound?

I would like to start to school this fall but see no chance of getting home soon.

At home here tonight one negro was telling mother his dream. He said that he died and went to heaven and tried to go by St. Peter, (like shooting by a M. P. without a pass).

Century of Steam.

That the centennial anniversary of steam navigation will be celebrated in Savannah, Ga., today, when the Peace Conference in Paris will be, from present indications, drawing near the end of its deliberations, with the League of Nations as the foundation of the treaty, is not a coincidence merely. There is a clear and direct connection between the two events. A century of steam has done more than anything else, more than all else, to bring the nations of the world into closer, friendlier contact; to make possible an international agreement upon a basis of the assertion, internationally accepted, that peace is a right of peoples, and upon a basis of belief that peace between peoples is a continuing condition is a possibility, and upon a basis of hope that the Twentieth century may realize that possibility.

It may be said that transportation facilities always have served the ends of war rather than interfered with its prosecution; that the Scandinavian vikings, seafarers of the European coast, the Ninth and Tenth centuries, the Spanish conquistadores of a later period, employed ships as means of plundering and murdering; that German strategic railroads and submarines reflect the use of modern transportation facilities for purposes exactly similar to those of the chariots of Cyrus and the galleys of the Roman Caesars. It may be pointed out that the French and Germans were not unacquainted in 1911 and that the Germans were not in the undeveloped social state of the Scotch and English in the period when their forests were regarded as legitimate business enterprises. But the argument would overlook the essential point that transportation facilities, and other modern means of communication between nations, in the hands of the third party, the whole civilized world, constitute an obstacle to selfishness and criminally inaugurated wars which did not exist when the civilized nations had not united together into a neighborhood as they have been since Capt. Mose Rogers started May 22, 1818, upon his trip across the Atlantic in command of the steam ship Savannah.

Two enemies met in the forest, when America was peopled by Indians or upon a higher level, when England was under the sway of feudalism, and fought till one killed the other, none interfering. Two men grappled in the street today in Louisville or in London and a policeman or a bystander not vested with authority to keep the peace, or charged with the duty of intervention, stops the fight. Society is organized to maintain order in the interest of public welfare. Upon the principle that murder may be prevented by anyone who can prevent it, the law sanctions the interference of any citizen who sees a man at the street corner about to stab, or to kill another.

The German Kaiser learned recently that the same principle actuates the modern world; that if a ruler sets out to conquer neighboring countries the world may, and the world will interfere. That is because the world, thanks to systems of communication, which the last century has developed, has become a community and has an interest in and a sentiment for order and the safety of property any the world over. The organization of that community, by the proposed League of Nations, that interference to stop wars still better, to prevent selfishly inaugurated encounters between nations seems to many persons as practical as the organization of a village committee in a new colony, or a police force in a city in the interest of peace and public welfare.

Means of transportation are such nowadays that a nation beyond an ocean from the scene of strife may cross the ocean to stop the war with speed imagined 100 years ago; the means of communication by telegraph, ocean cable, wireless and through the columns of an international press, are such that the modern world has the disposition to interfere that animates the man in the street who witnesses the beginning of a personal difficulty.

The use of steam transportation did not make the German Junker, riding in a horse-drawn stage, road laid down to carry cannon to the border, less a barbarian than the viking, or the Malay pirate, but the development of transportation through the world, during the last 100 years, and the growth of business and social relationships between the nations situated overseas from one another, made occurrences at the German-French frontier a matter of interest to Americans, Australians and others remote from the scene of those occurrences. As a result, an effort upon the part of the Germans which, with the same cooperation would have succeeded in the period of the Roman Empire failed ignominiously. The man in the street—the street of the city we call the world—interfered effectively.

Now it is proposed that an international police system be established to prevent, or stop quickly, such occurrences in the future. A century of steam transportation is responsible for the present attitude of the world toward peace and war. Will it be said, in future centuries, that the Golden Age of fact—the Age of Peace—was purely a figment of fancy in the opinion of some persons at the present time as the mythical Golden Age of the Greeks—was made possible by steam navigation?—C.S.

B. E. Ayler is contemplating having his residence out on the Woolper Hill moved to a new location. A force of house movers from the city will do the work.

Looking Toward 1920.

The New York World has been conducting a symposium among Democratic newspapers in various parts of the country for the purpose of ascertaining the preference of Democratic editors for a party nominee for President in 1920, and the answers as published are quite interesting. It is obvious to begin with that the Democratic party is much further along than is the Republican party, both in the matter of candidate and platform. Only two names seem to find mention among the Democratic newspapers—President Wilson and former Secretary of the Treasury William McAdoo. Were it not for the bogey of a third term it would appear that the present President would be the choice of an overwhelming majority of his party, but it seems clear that, with a very large majority, the third term tradition is considered a fatal obstacle. We will have a hard fight under any circumstances, and cannot afford to carry that additional weight. Such seems to be the verdict reached in the reflection from Maine to California.

After the President Mr. McAdoo runs as the favorite, and, in fact, very striking how seldom another name is mentioned. Nobody seems to be for Champ Clark, the support of Vice President Marshall is so small as to be practically non-existent; Secretary of War Baker has friends, but seems to be the almost unanimous verdict that, if the President is not to be a candidate, those who favor the Wilson policies should unite upon one candidate, and Mr. McAdoo is the man to unite upon.

The net result of the symposium is more impressive than such affairs usually turn out to be, and is strongly indicative of the fact that the Democratic party will unite next year's Presidential campaign very well united, with Mr. McAdoo as the candidate always provided, as the editors believe will be the case, the President indicates at the present time to be considered.

Scarcely less significant than this evident intention of closing the party ranks for a hard fight, is the feeling that the Democratic party will go into the Presidential campaign with at least an even chance for success. The opinion seems to be strongly held that the Republican leaders in Congress have gone flat in the face of public sentiment in the matter of the League of Nations, and are like to err further in that direction in the future. Moreover, the Republican policies of muck-raking the war and of discrediting the achievement of America are not considered popular. All spokesmen for the Democratic party are disposed to look at the situation in a hopeful way.

Nothing new to this symposium has been held on the Republican side, and it is plain that it would show little if it were held. The Republican platform is in a quandary as to what to do next year; certainly in the matter of candidate, and we imagine, in the matter of platform. The death of Mr. Roosevelt has removed the one available leader with a national reputation. Mr. Hughes carries the handicap of the "Amateur" campaign of 1918. The safest guess would be that a new man will be selected, but the Republicans themselves are very far from being in agreement as to whom that man shall be.—Louisville Post.

CARD OF THANKS.

While my heart is filled with grief and sorrow I am not unmindful of the untold and sympathy extended me by relatives, friends and neighbors in the sad bereavement sustained by the death of my beloved husband, Perry E. Cason, and I pause in my affliction to offer my sincere thanks to everyone. Especially do I wish to express my appreciation to Mr. Campbell for the appropriate and comforting services conducted by him, the funeral of the many beautiful flowers, the kind and hearty bearing and undertaker, C. Scott Chambers for the careful and efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral.

THE DEARER WIFE.

A letter received Sunday, Feb. 16, 1919.

Dear Bessie—

How are you by this time? I am well and getting along fine. Am working in the physical education department at the W. C. boys are coming before they go home I am working in the office and my job is to write up all the equipment.

It is nice and warm here and doesn't rain very much any more.

VICTORY LOAN WILL BE SOLD TO PUBLIC JUST AS OTHER ISSUES WERE

RUMORS THAT BANKS WERE TO BE CALLED ON TO TAKE FIFTH LOAN CORRECTED BY SECRETARY GLASS.

UMORS and unauthorized statements which have been spread abroad over the country to the effect that there was to be no Fifth Liberty Loan have been brought to the attention of Secretary of the Treasury, Glass. The secretary reiterates his statements—

That there will be a Fifth Liberty Loan.

That it will be a popular one—sold to the people;

That there is no idea on the part of the government to sell the bonds to the banks;

That the Fifth Liberty Loan will be floated this Spring, undoubtedly beginning in the latter part of April.

The financial heads of the government are perfecting the plan for an issue that will meet the requirements of the time and the Central Liberty Loan committee of the Fourth Federal Reserve district at Cleveland is well along in the task of laying a foundation for a campaign which will outdo in interest any of the four preceding campaigns.

Stories emanating from Washington and discussing the preliminary plans of legislators may have a tendency to befog the reader. It must be remembered that the Treasury Department, merely reflecting the mind-works of the men who will ultimately have to narrow down to some one procedure. Enough has already been definitely settled to permit the secretary of the treasury to make the statements above and to emphasize them.

To further emphasize the fact that there will be a Fifth Victory loan and to correct the impression which has erroneously been circulated that the banks would have to take the loan, Governor E. R. Fancher of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland recently wrote to all of the Liberty Loan workers in the district calling upon them to correct these false impressions.

PRIV. ELBERT L. CRAVEN

Private Elbert L. Craven writes to his cousin, Bessie Craven, from France, Jan. 16th, as follows:

Received your letter Jan. 13th, and was glad to hear from you and to know that you are well again.

There isn't much new to write about but when I come home I will bring Artie and visit you and tell you all the news.

Have been several places in England and France. It is real war here in France but just now it rains most of the time. We wear a large camp here and a good one too. Not doing much work, eat three good meals a day, but am still as thin as ever and have given up hopes of ever being fat.

Had three letters from Artie since Jan. 6th, which was the first mail I've received since November 29th. We moved nearly every week for some time and for that reason our mail was lost but it is catching up with us now.

No doubt you wonder why I haven't written to you before now, but I got so busy that everybody I would excuse me this time. I write to my little wife, Artie, usually three times a week, and to father every two weeks, and that is about the limit.

Did you hear that Artie had influenza? She had it the last of October. The latest reads that she is feeling fine.

I have never seen Will and I have never seen anyone here knew. There are several boys from Columbus and Ohio in my company, so I don't feel lost.

There is a large Auditorium here in camp and they put on a good vaudeville show every afternoon and evening. Our outfit, about 200, all have free tickets good at all times. There are also two Y. M. C. A. huts and a Red Cross hut in camp so we have plenty of amusements.

When you talk to Uncle Bud again you can say hello for me and tell him I'll be out to see him when I come home.

Well, Bessie, don't get married before I come home. What are you bustling for by the way, I wonder if foot Robinson made the trip over here?

Well Bessie I will tell you all about France when I return, which I'm in hopes won't be long. Regards to one and all.

Your Confidant, ELBERT.

WANTS CHAMP TURNED DOWN.

WANTS CHAMP TURNED DOWN.

The sacred obligation rests upon the Democratic members of the House of Representatives to deprive Champ Clark of every vestige of actual or nominal leadership in that body.

Mr. Clark's conduct during the trying months of the war has been un-American, petty and contemptible. His reference to "conscripts" and "convoys" as evidence to his outrageous opposition to the Selective Service Act was the bumptious toss-off of a politician chieftain. His all-time record on war measures is such as to make the judicious and strong men to turn away in disgust. His attitude toward President Wilson since his own failure of the nomination at the Baltimore convention has been one of sputter and spleen. With the world aflame he has stooped to burlesque. With great business to be done he has played the role of a clown. He has done nothing which he isn't his own exhibitions as an accompaniment to his shoddy attitudinizing, would be enough to damn him in the minds and hearts of the thoughtful and the sincere.

The country wants no more Champ Clarks in high office, what ever their party. There is something loftier in national life than standards which Mr. Clark has set or followed. The war has done much to reveal him as he is. The thought of such a man's occupying the position of minority leader is abhorrent to the fine spirit of the out-and-out all-wool, candid and upstanding Americans. Those charged with the task in Washington will be dishonor their country if they should place Champ Clark in position for accomplishing further mischief.

The times are grave for the nation. The period is critical for the Democratic party. The selection of a minority leader requires a man of brains and vision, a man who is a statesman for the job. Spare us the quack and the hollow mockery, who can only betray himself through the clumsy masquerade of solemn Congressional suitings. Give us an American and a big one; one who does not hide behind a rose or cause patriots to hang their heads.—Courier-Journal.

Mrs. Mary Raines Dead.

Mrs. Mary Frances Raines, daughter of the late Thomas and Lucinda Underhill Horton, was born Sept. 1, 1816, and died March 6th, 1919, aged 72 years, 5 months and 6 days.

She was united in marriage to William Butler Raines, Dec. 23, 1838. To this union two daughters were born. One preceded her to the grave twenty-six years ago, and one survives, Mrs. Geo. Brunner. Besides her husband and daughter she leaves one sister, Mrs. Harriet Slayback, one granddaughter, Mrs. Othma Brunner, whom she reared from infancy, and three great grandchildren.

In Oct. 1833, she united with the P. Pleasant Christian church. She was devoted to her Saviour. Only three weeks ago she remarked to her daughter, "How sweet to lie down and wake up in the morning with Jesus," and again saying not to picture her in this old sinful world but in the sweet fields of Eden.

CARD OF THANKS—

We desire to express our heart felt thanks to our neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of our beloved mother, Mrs. Mary Raines, especially do we thank Mrs. Addie Gaines and Mrs. Lena Patrick for their faithful care; also Bro. Runyon for his kind words and Mr. Wilford Bullock for the efficient way he conducted the funeral.

THE FAMILY.

Mrs. Blanche Cason has been with her sister, Mrs. Fitzfield, of Saylor Park, Ohio, ever since the funeral of her husband, Judge Cason.

Rev. and Mrs. D. E. Bedinger, having spent several weeks in Orlando, Fla., have returned to their home in Walton, to the delight of their many friends.

J. J. Clegg, of Frogtown, was in Burlington, last Monday, having come over to assist his daughter, Mrs. Barnett Sleet, with some business in the county court.

GOD CALLED HER

And Heaven is Dearer Than
She Is There.

The death angel has again entered our community and taken from our midst Naomi Frances Jones, who died March 23rd. She was the daughter of Nicholas and Martha Moore, and was married to W. H. Jones when 24 years of age, and to this union were born fifteen children, fourteen of whom are living.

She leaves to mourn her departure a father, mother, three sisters, two brothers, a husband and children, besides a host of relatives and friends.

She was stricken with influenza and pneumonia followed by a fatal attack of pneumonia and loving hands could do but little to save her.

In her home-circle her place can not be filled. She was a devoted wife, and a true, loving mother.

It is not understood why the dear one should have been taken, but to the will of Him who doeth all things for the best, we bow in humble submission.

Sad was the scene at the home when the bereaved family took the farewell look at the one so dear to their hearts.

Mrs. Jones was a good christian woman, and the assurance that she will exist in the bright beyond is a comfort to the bereaved family.

In this great sorrow and loss to those, our friends, the whole country shares. There are today who do not mourn with them, and none who do not extend deepest sympathy.

Funeral services were held at Big Bone Baptist church Wednesday at 11 o'clock, after which the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery there to await the resurrection morn.

A FRIEND.

To the Victory Girls.

In March last Victory Girl pledges were due. Payment will be received by your district chairman, Miss Jane Bristow, Union, Ky., County Secretary, or by Miss Hazel Senour, Union, Ky., Co. Treasurer.

We are anxious to report each 100 per cent girl to Louisville headquarters that she may receive her certificate. We earnestly hope that each girl will pay this pledge that we may have no slackers to report from Boone county.

MRS. M. C. McKEE,
Victory Girl Chairman, Boone Co.

Walton, Ky., March 18, 1919.

To the Colored Victory Girls:

I wish to thank all the Victory Girls who pledged and paid their pledges so promptly, and yet there are some that have not paid and I understand that they are not going to pay, and I suppose they will have to be called delinquents. But I want them to understand that this money is not for my benefit as I do not get a cent of it and I do not want it. The money I received from the "Victory Girls," I deposited in the Union Deposit Bank, at Union, Ky., for the treasurer, Miss Hazel Senour, and there is no excuse for the girls that did not pay their pledges as they have had from the middle of November, 1918, until the 1st of March, 1919, to make this money.

MATTIE HUGHES,
Chairman of Colored Victory Girls.

NEW COUNTY ATTORNEY

Benjamin H. Riley Appointed To The Office Of County Attorney.

The appointment of N. E. Riddell to fill the vacancy in the office of County Judge caused by the death of County Judge Casson, created a vacancy in the office of County Attorney which was filled last Monday by the County Judge appointing Benjamin H. Riley to be County Attorney. Mr. Riley returned from Camp Meade only a few days before his appointment and is the first Boone county lawyer to be elevated to office. Mr. Riley is the youngest incumbent of his office in the history of the county so far as is known at the present day. The present County Judge and County Attorney will hold their offices until their successors are elected and qualified at the next November election, for which positions they will not doubt be candidates for the Democratic nominations at the primary election next August.

Farmers—Help Us to Help You

BEFORE long you are going to be very busy. To make your crop, you are going to need the service of every machine you have. There is a little lull right now. This time can be put to mighty good use. How are your farm machines? Wouldn't it be a wise precaution to look them over carefully to assure yourself that there are no parts needing replacement now or later on?

By making a list of present or possible future requirements and giving it to us before or during Repair and Inspection Week, March 3-8, we shall be able to furnish you what you want when you want it.

If there is any item on your list we do not happen to carry in stock, we can procure it and hold it in readiness for you. It takes the delay, and consequent loss of time out of farm emergencies. The question of a day or two during the busy season on the farm is a serious one. Make up that list now and let us have it.

"When You Buy—Think Economy"

A photographic birds-eye view of a Lead and Zinc mining camp. Note the small acreage required to run a mill. A twenty-acre tract will run two mills of 250 tons capacity for ten to twenty years.

A view of the interior of a lead and zinc mine showing the process of getting out the ore.

Repeating A Pronounced Success

The unqualified success and splendid prospects of the Kentucky Mansfield Lead & Zinc Syndicate, composed almost entirely of Louisville men, has led to the formation of another company, headed largely by the same gentlemen, for the purpose of further development of additional holdings.

The first company was composed of T. M. Crutcher, President; N. C. Cureton, Secretary, and W. E. Newbold, Treasurer, with the following directors: T. M. Crutcher, Nell Wilson Funk, William Phillips, N. C. Cureton, M. N. Cralle, Charles A. Funk, T. T. Beeler, G. W. Scott, with Hon. E. J. McDermott as attorney.

The Capital Stock was placed at $100,000 and is owned almost entirely by Louisville men and those of nearby towns.

This stock paid 2% in January and 3% in February. A list of these stockholders has been printed and can be obtained on application to the company so that this statement may be readily verified either by mail or telephone.

The Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company has just been organized with T. M. Crutcher, President; T. T. Beeler, Vice President; N. C. Cureton, Secretary; W. E. Newbold, Treasurer, and with the following Directors: J. C. Mahon, T. M. Crutcher, N. C. Cureton, T. T. Beeler and W. E. Newbold.

The Capital Stock is $500,000 with shares at $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable; $200,000 of this stock has already been taken up, but the rest will be offered immediately to those desiring a very profitable and safe investment.

The Mansfield District

The mineral wealth of the Missouri district is abundantly shown in the birdseye view at the top of this page. Mines and smelters paying prodigious profits are to be seen on every hand.

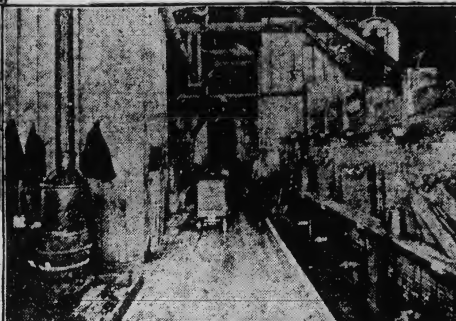

The reason lies in the fact that there is to be found the richest and purest ore deposit in the entire region.

In fact, the State of Missouri is the largest lead and zinc producing State, producing 32% of the output in the entire United States.

It is the theory of geologists that this point, Mansfield, on the highest ridge of the Ozarks, marks the spot of a prehistoric volcano which deposited this vast store of mineral wealth by an eruption.

At any rate, it is there and is being mined and smelted at tremendous profits.

It is an absolute fact that T. T. Beeler refused last Friday an offer of $50,000 cash for forty acres of their holdings immediately adjoining the first mill. This is the forty acres north of the spot where the new company is to be located. Immediately adjoining is the Red Bird lead and zinc mine of W. E. Caldwell (of Louisville). Very rich ore was found in this mine at a depth of only thirty-five feet.

Interior of mill showing how the ore is separated from the rock.

Profits in Lead and Zinc

When you buy stock in a lead and zinc mine you are not taking chances or buying a "pig in a poke," but you see what you are getting. The property is proven by drills, and you absolutely know that the mineral is there in vast quantities before mining is commenced.

A striking example of the success of the mills is the Eagle Pitcher Co. This company made forty millions of dollars in the past five years.

Five years ago this district was an empty prairie—today there are several hundred mills in successful operation and one acre of this land has produced a million dollars in ore.

Treaty May Be Ready Week Hence.

London, March 24.—Reuters' Paris correspondent says the urgency for concluding peace may be read in the decision of the great Powers today to make a big effort to have the peace treaty ready a week hence. The final shaping of peace terms, the correspondent adds, will be the sole subject of discussion between President Wilson and the Premiers within the next few days, and during that period it is not likely the Supreme Council will meet.

He Likes Boone County

(Cynthiana Log Cabin.)

In sending his renewal from Boone county Mr. Redmon Gossett writes:

"I like this county fine. We have several people from Harrison-co. here and they are all doing well and have nice homes. Among them are Mr. J. G. Renaker and Miss Eva Renaker, bankers in Florence, Ky.; W. A. Pigg, Berry Rankin, John W. Criswell, Rev. Robert Criswell and Mr. Struve, also Mr. Riddle.

People here are very sociable, Christian and very neighborly, looking after the sick and caring for them in a good way. We are located ten miles from Covington on good pike and have motor service and express to our place.

Could not do without the valuable paper as it is equal to a long letter from home.

Frank Vogelbach, of Crawford & Vogelbach, Grover Renaker, bookkeeper for Wagers & Conner, and Samuel Gwahl, butcher, all of the Union Stock Yards, Cincinnati, started to Jasper Sullivan's sale last Tuesday, but did not get there because of a bad blow-out between Burlington and Bellevue. They returned to Burlington and ordered a new tire and left from the city which arrived about 5:30 that evening. They seemed to enjoy their trip notwithstanding their bad luck.

EGG ROADS.

The Federal Government has put two-ton trucks to work delivering in Philadelphia parcels post shipments of eggs from distant Pennsylvania counties. The consumer buys eggs directly from the owner of the hens. Names of farmers whose henneries provide a surplus for sale are listed in a book which is available at the postoffices. A run of 188 miles, from McConnellsburg, is made between 8 o'clock in the morning and 10 in the evening. Eggs laid 186 miles from Philadelphia may be eaten for breakfast the morning after they are deposited in the nest, assuming the willingness of the hen to co-operate and lay in time for the truck. Eggs laid 100 miles from Philadelphia are easily within reach for breakfast the morning following the cackle of the hen.

If similar arrangements were in operation in Kentucky Louisvilleans could have new laid eggs delivered from Rockcastle and Laurel counties, from the farmer to the consumer without the intervention of middlemen. The customary course of the egg is from the henneries to the huckster, from the huckster to the commission merchant, from the commission merchant to the grocery, when it does not go first into storage, and from the grocery to the consumer. A charge is laid upon each transfer and time is lost in each. Even when the egg does not go into cold storage, indefinitely, it is fresh by the candle's crude test alone, not new laid, when it gets to the domestic kitchen.

The privileges of cold storage are not in the hands of dealers exclusively. If eggs are to be delivered in motor trucks by parcel post fresh from the farm there is nothing to prevent their purchase by housekeepers when they are cheap, in the spring, for storage for personal use, by this means avoiding payment of middlemen's profits and avoiding the purchase of eggs stored for longer periods.

The progress of the Government's experiments in egg delivery by truck will be observed with interest. A successful demonstration will be, fundamentally, or at least incidentally, a clinching argument for good roads. Only upon really good roads could a truckload of eggs be hauled 186 miles in a day without risk of smashing the truck, to say nothing of the eggs. Not every State and every county has egg roads.—Courier-Journal.

Owner Must Pay Pro Rata Part.

Carlisle, March 24.—The Nicholas County Board of Supervisors are holding a hearing on the county assessment as taken by County Tax Commissioner J. E. King Saturday, after having been in session ten days.

The board had an arduous task to perform in an effort to raise the assessment $1,300,000, as directed by the State Tax Commission.

To accomplish the end almost every taxpayer in the county has been summoned to appear before the board during the coming week to show cause why their property assessment should not be raised.

The increase will bring the total assessment for Nicholas county up to $9,000,000, which is an increase of 200 per cent. over the assessment for 1900.

Both bridges out on the Petersburg pike are now being used by the traveling public much to the delight of the people who reside along that road.

W. L. Kirkpatrick is ready to commence the erection of a large feed room on the portion of a lot he purchased from the Farmers Insurance Co. recently.

Mrs. Eliza Rouse, of Erlanger, Mrs. A. B. Rouse, of Washington, D. C. and Mr. and Mrs. William Keys, of Westwood, Ohio, were calling on Burlington friends last Monday afternoon.

Late Bradford, of Gunpowder neighborhood, passed thru Burlington last Tuesday enroute to Waterloo to attend Jasper Sullivan's sale. Mr. Bradford was the orator of the occasion.

John Chambers, son of the late Victor T. Chambers, a Covington attorney many years ago and a cousin of C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, is a Democratic candidate for Governor of California.

Dr. Yelton went to the city the first of this week and bought a very handsome farm team, which includes he is going to have Leslie Kennedy, colored, to do some work on his farm this year.

Paul Bethel and family and several friends, all of Covington, spent last Sunday on his farm out on the East Bend road, where Mr. Bethel has about completed a neat bungalow which will be occupied by a tenant.

Miss Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hix, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., has left Portland, Ind., where she was employed in a millinery house, and has taken a position in Covington's millinery house in Cincinnati.

Henry Clow, who resides out on the East Bend road, was in Monday. He is one of the several successful farmers in that neighborhood, and had started his plows to breaking land for corn that morning, although he found the ground rather wet for the work.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, addressed the Missouri legislature on the League of Nations, and as a result of his speech the lawmakers held a meeting and asked him to resign his seat as United States Senator, but so far Mr. Reed has refused and failed to comply with the request.

F. L. Wilson, H. P. Wilson and J. M. Wilson, of Union, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Waite Cross, of near Burlington, were transacting business in the county court last Friday, the first named being appointed administrator of the estate of his uncle, the late W. H. Wilson, of Union neighborhood.

Sterling Rouse, of the Limburg neighborhood, was a caller at this office last Tuesday afternoon. He has shed his khaki suit and worn his working garb and has gone to stirring the soil in earnest. He is predicting a large crop of fruit this year, and says the peach trees at his home are about ready to bloom.

Beemon Bros., of the Hopeful neighborhood, took their crop of 3,400 pounds of tobacco to the Covington loose leaf house last Monday, and those in charge of the house said it was the best hand-picked crop that had been delivered there this year. In stripping the crop it was carefully graded and tied and handled in the very best style, every hand being bound exactly alike.

A fire at Independence, Kenton county, last Sunday night, destroyed St. Cecelia's church valued at $6,000 and damaged Thomas Stephenson's dwelling $500. The church was insured for $2,500. The flames started in the church after the evening services, and it is supposed to have had its origin in an incense pot left too close to a wall. The Covington fire department was called and responded promptly, and saved many buildings that would have been destroyed without its assistance.

TAX SUPERVISORS

Working Hard to Apportion The Increase Made by The State Board.

The members of the county board of supervisors of tax have been working diligently for the last ten days carrying out the instructions of the State Board of Tax Commissioners to increase the valuation of lands in this county $1,075,000 and town lots $125,000. They are making numerous increases in the list as they were given in by the owners of property, but in every instance the change they have made has been the result of mature deliberation. They are conscientious in every increase they have made and believe the property owners will concur with them when they understand the basis upon which the raises were made.

Very few lists escape a boost and the sheriff expects to have to notify at least 2,000 property owners of an increase in their list, which will bring quite a number of persons to the county seat in the next ten days or two weeks.

Up to the time of going to pass the supervisors had gone over the following precincts: the figures following each precinct showing the amount of raise they give the property in it:

|---------------|---------|
| Burlington | 182,135 |
| Bullittsville | 165,133 |
| Verona | 39,015 |
| Walton | 101,384 |
| Petersburg | 110,923 |
| Carlton | 17,390 |
| Bellevue | 79,460 |
| Hamilton | 74,930 |

The Board of Supervisors in making the above raises are following the instruction of the State Tax Commissioners. Each person whose property has been raised will be notified by the Sheriff of the raise and the County Board will meet to hear any protests, but from the way the board has made these changes there will be very little cause to complain, as they have given each raise made thought and consideration and unless an error has resulted no reductions can be made.

FAMOUS ANCIENT BLUE LAWS OF CONNECTICUT.

The famous blue laws of Connecticut were not statutory laws, but originated from decisions of local magistrates at a time when there was neither charter nor laws in the colony, says the Providence Journal. Enactments similar in nature and purpose to these judicial mandates were passed in both Connecticut and Massachusetts at that time.

"At the May term of the general court of Massachusetts in 1687 it is ordered that cages should be erected or set up in the market places in Boston, and in such other towns as the county courts judge proper to put violators of the Sabbath in. And in some cases the constables were authorized to the violence of breaking open doors and removing other obstructions."

In punishing offenses the judges professed to be concerned by the judicial laws of Moses, and they actually, as in Connecticut, made the blue laws. The following cases are taken from the public records, where many are to be found of a similar nature.

John Wedgewood for being in the company of drunkards, to set in the stocks.

Daniel Clark found to be an immoderate drinker, was fined 40 shillings--moderate drinking was the custom.

Sergeant Perkins was ordered to carry forty turfs to the fort for being drunk.

Capt. Stone, for abusing Mr. Ludlow and calling him "justass," is fined 100 pounds and prohibited coming within the patent without the Governor's leave, upon pain of death.

Thomas Pettit, for suspicion of slander, idleness and stubbornness, is censured to be severely whipped, and to be kept in hold.

The punishment of graver was prompt and severe. Edward Palmer, who for his extortion parading 2 pounds, 13 shillings and 4 pence, for the goodwork of Boston stocks, is fined five pounds and ordered to be set an hour in the stocks he had made.

"Prophaning the Lord's day," reviling the highest magistrates and some immoral offenses were made punishable with death. Deeds of the Old Testament were punished by banishment or death. A child who struck or cursed a parent was to suffer death.

Walking in the streets or fields on the Sabbath was forbidden. The compendium is introduced by a preamble passed by the general assembly of the State during the Revolutionary War, which is as follows:

The Governor and magistrates conformed in general assembly are the supreme power under God of this independent dominion. From the determination of the assembly no appeal shall be made.

Following is a copy of some of the definitions of crime under the court directions, and the penalties prescribed for violations of the laws:

Whoever says there is a power and jurisdiction above and over this dominion shall suffer death and loss of property.

The judges shall determine controversy without a jury. No one shall be a freeman, or give a vote, unless he be converted, and a member in full communion with one of the churches allowed in this dominion.

No man shall hold any office, who is not sound in the faith, and faithful to this dominion; and who if gives a vote to such person shall pay a fine of 20s for the first offense, and for the second he shall be disfranchised.

Each freeman shall swear by the blessing of God to bear true allegiance to the dominion, and that Jesus is the only king.

No Quaker or dissenter from the worship of the established dominion shall be allowed to give a vote for the election of magistrates or any officer.

No food or lodging shall be afforded to any Quaker, Adamic or other heretic.

If any person turns Quaker he shall be banished and not suffered to return but, upon pain of death.

No one is to cross a ferry but with an authorized ferryman.

No one shall run on the Sabbath, or walk in his garden or elsewhere, except reverently to and from meeting.

No one shall travel, cook victuals, or have a sheep house, cut hair or shave on the Sabbath day.

No woman shall kiss her child on the Sabbath day.

The Sabbath shall begin at sunset on Saturday.

A person accused of trespass in the night shall be judged guilty, unless he clear himself by oath.

When it appears that the accused has confederates and he refuses to discover them, he may be racked.

Whoever publishes a lie to the prejudice of his neighbor shall be set in the stocks or be whipped fifteen stripes.

No minister shall keep school. Whoever wears clothes trimmed with gold, silver or bone, or any other such ornaments, shall be punished by the grand jurors, and the selectmen shall tax the offender at 200 pounds estate.

Special Notice

To My Customers and Friends:

It has come to my notice in the last few weeks that work that had been sent to me to do had never reached me, but was taken some place else, where the parties bringing and delivering the work get pay at both ends, going and coming; and how this was found out, was that work that had been done by other parties, and I had been credited with doing it, was brought to me to do over, and of course, not having done the work I refused to do it over with out being paid. Can you blame me? Can anyone blame me when I had not done the faulty work? But, of course they were my customers and thought I had done the work until I informed them I had not.

Some of this work was rubber tire work, and those troublesome war rubber tires that had our trouble, with rubber tires was I could not get wires that would not stretch and the tires would open where joints together, and of course, it cost me a great deal of trouble and expense. The tire would also turn in the channel--could not draw wire tight enough as it would stretch. It was no fault of mine. I could not get the proper wire to do the work with, but the war being over, perhaps I will be able to get the proper material this year. Every time I have to change a rubber tire it costs me 65 cents, so you can realize that I am going to do the work right if possible. If it is not your business, I always have and always will.

I have been here 20 years and expect to stay, so come and see me; get prices, write your orders, please. No. 61-x Erlanger. I surely will treat you right.

N. R. I will use two grades of rubber tires this year. K. L. Collins, Myself and Cooper. Please. Get my prices on anything in the carriage line. Rubber tires applied while you wait and look over my stock.

Victory Liberty Loan

Over more the nation calls its... to service. Hostilities have ceased but peace is not attained, and until it is achieved we must continue to bear our part. Our country looks to us for our more supreme effort to secure the necessary means to sustain the army of devastated countries of the East and to bring our boys back home. Preparedness won the war and that was what the money was used for. Our country does not ask its people to give one dollar, but it does ask them to purchase Liberty Bonds. For all these bonds are the safest, surest, and best investment the world affords. There is no danger that the interest will fall; it will not fluctuate with the rise and fall of the market; there is no fear of bankruptcy; the richest and most prosperous nation in the world is our debtor; not only is the interest secured, but in the season the principle will be paid in full, and they will not only have received a regular and stable income for years, but in addition their whole life will be comforted by the satisfaction of knowing that when your country needed your cooperation you did not fail.

Women have not failed to respond to a single call, whether for their sons, their toil or their means. The voluntary service of women, who neither expected nor received honor, position, or pecuniary reward, as the crowning evidence of their loyalty and patriotic devotion to their country, and as they have never faltered in the past, so now, when this call comes, they will respond with zeal, and do their utmost to help the nation over the top in this last great Liberty Bond sale. Let us remember our boys stood to the last and so must we.

Crop Items.

In Scott county wheat and rye are looking fine. Not much frost have been seen yet. The timber prospect is good. The mild winter being very helpful to them.

Tioga county farmers are well up with their work. Tobacco is about all sold at high prices. Wheat looks well. Stock in fair condition. Everything looking for a big crop of tobacco this year.

It is said very little hemp will be grown in Fayette county this year and that the acreage will be smaller all through the Bluegrass on account of the increased acreage in tobacco, which from present indications will claim the chief part of the farmers' attention. Wheat and rye and grass have come through the winter in fine shape and are looking well. Pastures are getting an early start.

In Bourbon county the farming season is at least two weeks ahead of the average date for farm work. Fully two-thirds of the ground to be cultivated has been plowed. There will be very little hemp sown in fact, only a small part of what has been grown in the past two years. The wheat has survived the winter practically undamaged and is showing up with a richness of color and vitality that indicates a bumper crop. The county has 30,000 acres, an increase of 10,000 acres over last year. Grass is in splendid condition and is getting an early start.

Previous to its adoption the Constitution of the United States was assailed as bitterly as the League of Nations is being attacked. Some of the leading men of that period denounced it as being a miserable failure. In the matter of accomplishing what for which it was intended, but time has proven how little they knew about it, and it may be that twenty-five years hence the League of Nations will be considered the greatest accomplishment of man because some of those who are considered very able men are opposing it is no sign that it will be as worthless as they predicted. There are as many smart and far-seeing men among its opponents as there are among its supporters.

POULTRY

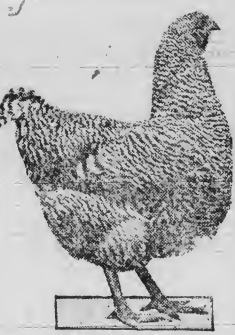

QUALITY IS OF IMPORTANCE

American Standard Breeds Are Good Producers of Meat and Eggs—Farm Hens Are Small.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Inasmuch as most farms have already some supply of poultry, the problem for the farmer is one of increase and not, like that of the city dweller who undertakes to keep hens to supply his own table with eggs, one of securing the foundation stock. While the American standard breeds are, for general purposes, the best, it is not urged that they be made to supplant other breeds where the other breeds are established and where they can be produced with a fair degree of success and of profit. The American standard breeds, broadly speaking, are the larger breeds of general-purpose birds, good producers of both meat and eggs, as distinguished from the small breeds that are specialized egg producers. Farmers and farmers' wives who have built up their own flocks, and know the peculiarities of their breed and how to make the most of them will do best by keeping the hens that they have, even though they be small and inferior as meat producers, instead of trying to replace them with heavier ones.

In growing chicks, the quality—the vigor, vitality and capacity for growth

Barred Plymouth Rock Female, Breeds at United States Government Farm.

—that the chick has when it starts in life count for at least as much as good conditions and good care.

Also, in growing stock for layers, it is especially important at this time when a large increase in meat products is needed, to avoid breeding from undersized specimens. Whatever may be the facts as to the relative value of large and small hens as layers, as that question relates to standard breeds the question is irrelevant in this case, for the reason is that in this poultry production campaign, for farm hens are nearly all small according to standards for improved breeds of fowls.

The ordinary farm flock contains a large proportion of hens quite unfit for breeding—having no quality which it is desirable to produce. The eggs from these should not be used for hatching, but, as far as possible, eggs used for hatching should be from the best hens in the flock. To determine how many of these are needed, an estimate must be made, basing it on the usual hatchability of eggs, and the probable length of the hatching season.

The ordinary average of hatches extending over a period of seven months is about 70 per cent. If all the chicks are hatched early the length of the hatching season is about six weeks, from the setting of the first to the setting of the last hen used. Allowing two weeks for saving eggs before the first hens are set, the eggs used for hatching must be laid within eight weeks. Allowing for rejections of small and defective eggs, provision should be made for about 500 eggs in eight weeks. This means a flock of 15 to 20 hens as breeders. Such a number of the best of the flock should be separated from the rest.

As a matter of convenience it will probably be more satisfactory in most cases to confine the culs and give the portion of the farm flock used for breeders the usual accommodations and range. The culs may be shut in small quarters without yard if necessary, while that is not advisable for breeding stock.

The next thing to consider is the male. In many cases it will be to the advantage of farmers undertaking to increase and improve their flocks by pure standard breeds of several purposes breeds because of the additional size and weight such males will give the chicks, to say nothing of the probable increase in egg production. From one or two males extra weight can be put on the chicks from ordinary farm hens by using males of approximately standard weight of Rhode Island Reds and Wyandottes, Plymouth Rocks and Orpingtons.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE TABLE.

Prunes that have been soaked over night, then simmered until tender, make a most appetizing dish. Remove the pits and fill with nicely seasoned cottage cheese. They may be served as a luncheon or lettuce with a mayonnaise dressing.

Spanish Sauce.—This sauce is good served with boiled tongue, sweetbreads or various meats. Put into a saucepan two tablespoonsful of butter, one of olive oil, a few dashes of salt, one onion, a clove of garlic, half a green pepper, chopped, and brown all together. When well-browned add a pint of tomatoes that have been strained. Season with paprika, salt, a few drops of tabasco and a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Serve hot over the heated tongue.

Wartime Pastry.—Grease a pie tin well, then sprinkle thickly with cornmeal, dusting it well up to the sides. Then fill with any desired mixture, pumpkin, custard lemon or cream filling; bake as usual. The pie will cut and serve as well as if the regular pastry had been used and it tastes good.

Cold baked rice may be used in the same way in place of pastry or cornmeal, making a most appetizing pie.

Barley Sponge Cake.—Take one and a half cupsful of barley flour, four eggs, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, one and a half cupsful of corn syrup, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Separate the yolks and whites of the eggs, beating each well, stir in the syrup and flour sifted with the dry ingredients. Bake in a moderate oven.

Barley flour does not keep as well as wheat flour, so it should be bought in small quantities. Pastry is better used the same day, when prepared with barley flour. Less shortening is needed when using barley, otherwise it is used just as one does wheat flour.

Where Methodist Eyes of the World Will Center Next June and July

Glimpse of Magnificent Exposition Grounds at Columbus, O., being prepared for a display of Methodist activities from all parts of the globe. Insert shows Dr. D. D. Forsyth, Philadelphia, Chairman of the Joint Centenary Committee of the M. E. Church.

COLUMBUS, O., (Special).—Methodist ministers and laymen to the number of several thousands are getting their concrete notions of what the Methodist Centenary Celebration, to be held here June 20 to July 7, will be like. Attending a special regional meeting, at which men like Bishop Wilson, R. A. Ward and Fred B. Fisher of New York; Bishop McDowell, Washington; Bishop Warner, India; S. Earl Taylor, director general of the celebration; D. D. Forsyth, Philadelphia; C. F. Reiser, New York; Edgar Blake, Chicago, and R. S. Cushman, New York, are speakers, they have well enjoyed an opportunity to visit the exposition grounds where for weeks past work has been in progress preparing for the tremendous celebration for which it is expected that more than 100,000 Methodists will journey to Columbus from all parts of the United States.

The spacious buildings already provided by the state of Ohio are being modified and extended to meet the peculiar needs of the Methodist Celebration. This will visualize to pastor and laymen the work of the church at home and the work of the church abroad. Here will be seen, with all the paraphernalia of the church, in which the Methodist church operates as a missionary force. Here, too, will be set forth all the work in this country. Essentially the entire world of Methodism will be brought to Columbus and displayed in its original colors and with all the circumstance surrounding of its various habilitations on the globe.

Two special pageants are being planned and many lesser ones. A climax of the celebration will be a symbolic representation of the drawing together of all the nations of the earth through the gospel of Christ. In order to care for the throngs that are certain to be in attendance an extensive bureau already has been organized. Registrations and reservations already are being made for interested Methodists throughout the United States.

H. B. Dickson, organizing secretary of the Centenary Celebration, is occupying two entire floors of a large office building, with the incidental corps of assistants to take care of the work.

Out in the State.

Frankfort.—Eighteen local draft boards have completed packing of their records which will be shipped to Washington.

Lexington.—A syndicate of wealthy oil and coal men is planning to erect a ten-story $500,000 modern hotel here, just south of Union Station.

Glasgow.—With the drilling in of a few more oil gushers like the one brought in near here yesterday it may become appropriate to change the name of this county from Barren to prolific.

Murray.—A community meeting for the soldiers and sailors will be held at the court house here on March 27 and 28, for which quite an extensive program has been prepared. Many of the ablest men in the state are expected to be present.

Maysville.—Three young men who had received dishonorable discharges from the army were arrested here, the officers thinking they were deserters. After the discharges were found on their person, they said they were discharged for fighting other men in their company. The Land and Fruit Company has been incorporated here with a capital of $18,000. The company owns a large tract of land in Greenup and other counties and will raise fruit of all kinds and some tobacco.

Frankfort.—Commissioner of Agriculture Mat C. Cohen will call a meeting of tobacco warehousemen and growers in Lexington March 28, specifically for the purpose of taking action to head off the contemplated 50 per cent increase in the burley tobacco acreage this year. Under the conditions the commissioner believes it will spell ruin. In some sections of the Bluegrass tobacco land is being rented for $100, and sometimes $25 the acre. An enormous production might break the market to such an extent that not only lessees at such extravagant prices, but others, who lose hope of profit on their crops.

Maysville.—The Mason county tax supervisors have refused to increase taxes, as ordered by the State Tax Commissioners. The County Commissioners were willing to place a horizontal raise on all property to bring the total assessed value of the county up to the State Commissioners' figures, and so informed the State Commissioners. But the State Commissioners refused to accept a horizontal raise. The local board is of the opinion that a horizontal raise was the only satisfactory way of raising the $1,000,000 asked by the State board, and they therefore refused to take any action.

Miss Jeanette Hays, of Big Bone church neighborhood, was the guest of her cousin, Misses Portman, Alberta and Kathryn, who were visiting here Sunday. She is visiting here and Mrs. J. E. Haines out on the Petersburg pike this week.

SOME SUMMER MEATS.

Perishable meats that are not needed for shipping to our army and allies, supply a sufficient variety to keep us from monotony. Among these are tongues, hearts, sweetbreads, kidneys, liver and brains, all good food when well and tastefully cooked.
Beef's Heart With Veal Stuffing.—Soak the heart three hours in cold water then remove the arteries and all bits of hard tissue. Take one pound of uncooked veal, chopped fine, a quarter of a pound of salt pork chopped fine, or the same amount of pork sausage, four tablespoonsful of bread crumbs, a tablespoonful of onion juice, one teaspoonful of salt, a quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper, one egg slightly beaten and a few fresh mushrooms, if they are obtainable. Mix all these ingredients together and stuff the heart. Wrap in a cloth and sew it. Stand in a small saucepan with the point down, cover with boiling water and just simmer very slowly for three hours, then remove the cloth and bake in a quick oven one hour, basting every ten minutes with a little sweet fat. Serve with a brown sauce, hot or cold. Heart is very nice sliced and served cold.
Smoked Beef's Tongue.—Wash and soak the tongue over night. In the morning put on to cook in a kettle of cold water, simmer gently for four hours, or until it is perfectly tender. Add more water if needed. When the tongue is cold remove the skin. To serve as a hot dish, place on a heated platter well garnished with parsley to cover the root end. What is left may be sliced and heated in a well-seasoned sauce, using such flavors and condiments as one's taste requires.

Sheep's Kidneys en Brochette.—Take six sheep's kidneys, cut through the center, remove the white veins and fat. Wash well, cover with boiling water and let stand five minutes, then wipe dry. Cut a fourth of a pound of bacon in slices half the size of the kidneys, place on skewer a piece of kidney then or bacon, two pieces of kidney to each skewer. Have on a broiler, broil with fat and cook over a hot fire five minutes.

Great Record.—Mr. Houston Thomas, of near Sylvia, has seventeen ewes with thirty-five live, fat lambs. This is some record. One two lambs to the ewe. It pays to handle first-class ewes, as well as other animals. Harrington Democrat.

Tobacco Notes.

Up to the first of last week, less than five per cent of the seed necessary to grow plants for the 1919 crop were in the ground in Bourbon county.

Farmers of Scott county made good use of the seed, and this morning, burning buds whenever opportunity offered and considerable plowing of sod lands has been done.

Quite a lot of burning and seeding was done in Woodford county last week.

In Harrison county beds have been burned, canvas prepared and seed sown. The high prices during the past season have caused many unused places to be prepared for the 1919 crop.

Sales on the Carlisle, Ky., market this season have put this market on record as among the best in the state.

Farmers are hardly engaged in raising the work of burning beds, and coming to both counties. Every available plot of ground will be used this year. Many are planning to raise all the tobacco they can.

FROM OTTO E. SOUTHER.

Otto E. Souther writes from Le Mans, France, under date of January 31, to the Recorder and his friends as follows:

The plan of a League of Nations of the world, is the greatest gift that has been offered to humanity since Cain spilled the first blood outside the fields of Eden. They were high words which were written on the banners of America's citizen army that sent the Khaki legion into battle. No boastful talk of planting a flag on foreign soil, no threat of far-flung frontiers, no promise of booty in new provinces or spoil from the strong boxes of defeated kings. The men who jammed the transport holds, that crowded the box cars, that marched up against machine gun and shrapnel, were told that they were making the world—nor America, nor East Orange, nor California, but the world-safe for democracy in a war against war.

Through the dirt and sweat of the battle, the men who shed their blood, there was not much talk of politics. It was a war, and we were here. Then one day in the morning it was over. No more big ones, no more, no more to go over—just waiting, and some of them sat in the billets and began to think. They saw the German ranks, the battalion that could assemble only a handful, the section that left the echelon full and came back half a dozen. And some of them began to wonder if it was all over. "I see every-where men in the American uniform," said Private Wilson that Saturday. "Those men came into this war after we had uttered our purposes. They came as crusaders, not merely to win a war but to win a cause."

And now we know that it is true, that the high words written on our banners have been copied into the book of the world's conscience—international cooperation to ensure the fulfillment of accepted obligations, to end forever the hazy dream of right to the blind fortune of the legion of might. The men who fought and fell and the women who sacrificed, the Founders of the League of Nations—have won. The year of Hope.

Last week came the first anniversary of that mid-January day when, for the first time, the Americans took over the sector of their own in the anxious Allied line. As those young untired regiments jogged along the battered highway northwest of Toul, who would have thought that just one year later the same regiments would be at ease beyond the Rhine? But then, who, this time in 1914, would have thought that before five years had passed, America would have sent to the battlefields of Europe an army of two million men, the most formidable force that ever sailed the seas? And who would have dreamed then, who would have said that the month of January, 1919, would see in solemn session at Paris that Congress of which the visionary Theodore Roosevelt had dreamed, that generation ago the parliament of man, the foundation of the world.

Who, that has seen these things come to pass, dares say now that anything is impossible? What man of little faith dares now to belong to that company of men, who, with a shrug say, "it can't be done," until someone else has done it? In this year of hope we have lived to see the League of Nations proposed before the Parliament of man. Who would have thought it?

Under date of February 17th, Mr. Souther writes:

The German magnifying glass, fixed on what had looked to be a glowering insect, revealed a glowering monster. Such conditions simply forced the other nations of mankind to take up with the opposition to the League of Nations. They had to dedicate everything they possessed to the proposition that in so small a world as ours no people can live to their own advantage solely, but each nation is bound to live and labor and serve and suffer all the rest. It is either that or no world at all. The road of unselfishness is absolutely the only way that humanity can travel in the realm of international relations. Americans by the multiplied hundreds of thousands did all of a sudden reversed completely the self-seeking ideas on which we first established ourselves in industry, business or the professions.

The moment that our country declared war on Germany, our young patriots heard the call for soldiers and sailors and responded by renouncing every aspiration and prospect they had cherished in the various civil vocations. We abandoned employments, positions and incomes without thought of how we would do or what we could do when we returned. We forgot expected promotions and dreamed of the future. We turned our backs on the comforts and loves of home and gave up everything. And this is as true of drafted boys as volunteers. A boy of the draft, though nominally compelled, came really with the volunteer spirit. Our recruitments were just as perfect. So today the great mass of soldiers and sailors are much worse off financially than the volunteers, but enlisting, or being drafted. We are living far less comfortably and safely. We endure hardships and risks which in advance of the war would not have seemed either tolerable or credible. On land and sea our Americans did needlessly more fighting for others than our self.

The most significant thing about the A. E. F. here in France at this moment is that it is a happy army. The American doughboy is the most universally smiling character in civilization today. Even his comely and grumpy are half smiling jokes on himself to conceal the real seriousness of his situation. Genuine hardships meet and accept.

Since crossing the ocean our boys have undergone everything of danger and pain which we should have considered unendurable at home. Worse rather than better, probably, lies before us. Yet, are we down hearted? Not the least little bit. The American boys here in France are happy without any reason for it. That is to say without any outward reason. The reason is inside us and it is a mighty reason. Our boys over here are anxious to come back to our homes. The fact about the matter is that when the war is over, finally and completely, and that will be as soon as the peace treaty is signed and sealed. The United States will have no business keeping armed forces in Europe, neither England nor France need us here. There will be no need for us in Germany. We have never engaged in a war on Russia, so evacuate Russia now. Aye, we will have to be weary to avoid the interest now lies in keeping as many men in khaki as possible for as long a time as possible. The army red tape the relative degree of procrastination, but that must be reduced to the minimum. Let not the shortage of transport tonnage be permitted as a subterfuge. There are several vessels lying idle in our harbors, which can be utilized readily for the transportation of troops; others can be quickly and inexpensively converted into cargo ships for the purpose. Then there is the reconstruction work, the new program of our altruistic stay at home. Any one who urges the detention of American soldiers across the sea to toil in the building of devastated areas you can save the earliest moment before his own fireside to-night, and he doesn't intend to leave it. To compel us soldiers to do the housework of the world, to house or some other national railroads or public buildings at army pay and under army discipline, other living conditions would be outrageously unfair. If American labor is needed to rehabilitate France and Belgium, American labor can be obtained at fair wages on a civilian voluntary basis.

There are critics and critics of the League of Nations covenant as drawn up at Paris and advocated by President Wilson. They may say that there are two sharply defined main classes. Those who fall into one class assail the covenant with an irrefragable, brilliant captiousness, an indiscriminating malice, a hatred that betrays an animus of personal animosity to President Wilson or the League of Nations, to make partizan capital out of a question that is in no sense partizan. The other class is well indicated by the statement published yesterday by the League to Enforce Peace. "Mr. Taft's attitude, which is substantially that of the League," says the statement, "is that he would not make a covenant as it stands and thank God for it; that it does not, however, fully meet his ideals, not being as strict as some respects as the plan we have been advocating; that he would like to see amendments that would strengthen it and make it wise to make changes that will make still more clear the meaning which we understand it to carry."

would lament a denial of the opportunity to test it as the crowning calamity of our civilization. There is still a third class of criticism which, so far as it is yet in evidence, is not so large as either of the other two classes. This is made up of honest skeptics who disbelieve in any such device as a League of Nations. They command respect for their sanity of conviction for their bearing on a conservatism that verges on "Bourbonism," and sympathy for their rooted reliance on strabismatically visualized ideas and phrases of an age as obsolete as the spinning wheel and the stage coach. Many of these will live long enough to acknowledge their mistake in this instance as they outlived their scoffs at the steam engine, the automobile and the aeroplane.

A Faithful Anniversary.

One year ago, March 21, 1918, the last and, in many ways, the greatest of all the German attempts to win the war, at one blow was launched in front of St. Quentin. From that time on until the day that the American troops reached the line at Chateau-Thierry and made plain to Europe the quality of the American reserves, the result hung in the balance, and to our people who now speak lightly of the German effort in 1918, forgot those days of March and April, 1918. There are many things that are still obscure in this fighting of March, 1918. In the first place the Germans advertised the fact that they intended to strike this blow after a fashion never before known in modern warfare. January 3, 1918, the Kaiser said in a public address at Dresden: "We are going west to win the war." Gen. von Ludendorff issued a series of addresses to the German army telling the men that it was their duty to crush the French and English early in the year. The newspaper press in all the allied countries was crowded with speculation in regard to the coming invasion. The guns began to boom at St. Quentin.

The operations of the English in the early part of 1918 were indeed, marked by a very little strategic skill. Their soldiers fought magnificently, but on the day that 300,000 picked German troops were thrown against 140,000 British troops at St. Quentin a total of 300,000 British troops were in Great Britain, of whom at least 50,000 were sufficiently tired for first-line work. Why the English high command decided, at the very hour the German armies were gathering for a decisive battle in France, to keep such an immense body of troops in England we have never been able to understand, and it remains one of the impenetrable mysteries of the war.

It is not necessary to go over the thrilling story of the weeks that followed the first great German attack at St. Quentin. The outstanding features were the bulldog courage with which the English army fought "with its backs to the wall," as General Haig put it, the scientific skill in assembling their resources exactly where most needed, and the tremendous energy shown by the American War Department in rushing troops to the front. In the end, as we all know, the German attack slowed down, only to begin again and to be successful in assembling their resources exactly where most needed, and the tremendous energy shown by the American War Department in rushing troops to the front. In the end, as we all know, the German attack slowed down, only to begin again and to be successful in assembling their resources exactly where most needed, and the tremendous energy shown by the American War Department in rushing troops to the front.

Those were days that tried men's souls. As we look back upon it and think of how much has since happened, it is hard to realize that this last phase of the war began only one year ago today.—Louisville Evening Post.

BYRON A. ADAMS.

Following a brief illness of two weeks, Byron A. Adams, of Sherman, Grant county, died at the College Hill Sanitarium in Cincinnati, Ohio, on Thursday evening, February 27th, 1919, at six o'clock. The news of his death was a complete shock to his family, who until two hours previous had been encouraged by reports from the physician in charge which led them to entertain the highest hopes for his early recovery and restoration.

The remains of the deceased were brought to his home on Friday afternoon, and there rested until Sunday morning, when they were accompanied to the Big Horn Baptist church, in Boone county, Ky., where, after funeral service conducted by Rev. George Smith, of Georgetown College, they were deposited in the church cemetery.

Deceased was a son of Robert and Nancy F. (Clement) Adams, and was born near Hathiaway, Boone county, Ky., May 22, 1863; he accompanied his father's family to this county in the year 1881, where he has since resided, with the exception of a period of five or six years, which he spent in the State of Kansas, Colorado, Arizona and California, where he was identified with some of the best country.—Grant Co. You see, the agency system of buying cream mixes all patrons' cream when shipping and all the patrons' care and attention to his cream goes for naught for one gallon of poor cream will effect many gallons of good cream and that's exactly what happens and the result is an inferior quality of cream when received at the creamery.

STATE NEWS.

GOOD PROSPECT, GIRLS!

Mr. Edward W. Cunningham, a young bachelor who resides in the Bondville section, sold his 1918 crop of tobacco for $2,359.33.

He did all the work himself except about $90 paid for assistance. In addition to this crop he raised several hundred dollars' worth of corn and other farm products, and also attended to all the household and kitchen duties in his home. With such a record as this, Cunningham won't remain a bachelor very long. — Harrodsburg Herald.

THE OLD RAIL FENCE.

A real old-time rail fence that is old indeed stands on the farm of Mr. G. A. Christian, near Horse Branch. It consists of about thirty-five panels, eight rails in height, and was built by Mr. Christian's father, S. M. Christian, before the Civil War. The elder Mr. Christian chopped the trees and split the rails out of which the fence was made in the days before the war. The fence is still sound and serves as well as a new one. — Hartford Herald.

CHAMPION HOG-RAISER.

Mr. R. L. Walker, of Penrod, Ark., has a record for being the champion hog raiser of the country. He states that he has sold in the last twenty days, 23 head of hogs that brought him $970 that averaged $42 each. And we would like to hear from anyone that can beat it. — Central City Argus.

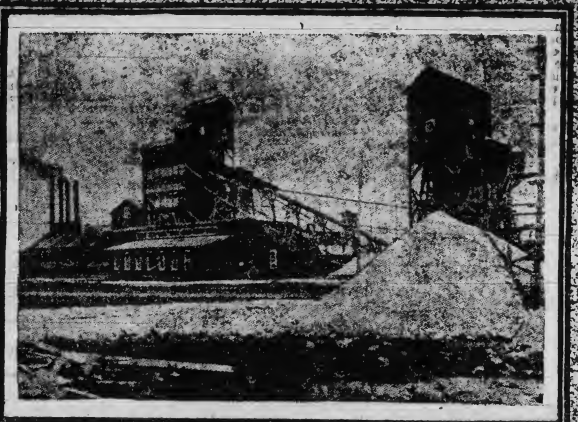

SURE ENOUGH HUNGRY.

Sheep owners do not seem to be the only ones who suffer from the depredations of dogs. On Tuesday night, Mr. W. A. Taylor, the Rowe Hill merchant, was the victim of a raid of dogs who ate up his set of harness which was left on a wagon. This is the second time this year that Mr. Taylor has had such a loss. We are told there is a band of wild dogs in that section and they were probably attracted by the harness. If there is a band of these animals a posse should be organized to exterminate them, for the next thing they will be roaming in other sections and making raids on sheep. — Harrodsburg Herald.

If You were Guaranteed A 2 to 3% Monthly Dividend You'd Buy - Wouldn't You?

Back of the Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company is the history of the Kentucky Mansfield Lead and Zinc Syndicate, whose officers and directors are largely the same gentlemen and that company, already in operation, paid a monthly dividend of 2 per cent in January and 3 per cent in February. The Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company has been organized to do just what the other company is doing but on a larger scale.

Tremendous Profits In Lead and Zinc

There is a vast empire of lead and zinc wealth in the Ozark Mountains—so great that Missouri leads all other states! It has the largest lead and zinc district of the world. The holdings of the Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company are at Mansfield, where the Mother Lode of this greatest of all districts comes nearest the surface.

Four Tracts Of Forty Acres Each

One of these 40-acre tracts is immediately between the mill of the Kentucky Mansfield Lead and Zinc Syndicate and the Red Bird Mill of W. E. Caldwell. Two test holes have already been drilled on this tract with excellent results and another is now being drilled. Work is to start on the sinking of our first shaft at once. The price should advance just as soon as the mineral is reached in this first shaft.

MURDEROUS

Was the Attack Made on Mrs. William Conner by Earl Ryle at Her Home in East Bend.

The Pistol User Now in Jail in Default of $5,000 Bail.

Last Sunday morning, Earl Ryle, shot and seriously wounded Mrs. William Conner, in East Bend. The weapon used was a pistol, the ball from which entered Mrs. Conner's right side and ranged around to her back where it lodged just beneath the skin, and from where it was removed by Drs. Carlyle, of Rabbit Hash, and Elfter, of Rising Sun.

The attack was cold blooded and unprovoked. Ryle had stayed all night at Mrs. Conner's and Sunday morning while he was at the barn feeding and Mrs. Conner was preparing breakfast Ryle entered the kitchen with a pistol in hand and said to Mrs. Conner, "I'll take a shot at you," and fired with the revolver as above stated.

Mrs. Conner, after being shot, ran into the room occupied by her brother-in-law, Wilson Conner, who lives with her and her husband, and told him what had happened. Wilson Conner grabbed a shot gun which was in his room and started in pursuit of Ryle who had left the house and gone some distance. Seeing Wilson Conner was pursuing him Ryle took his position behind a fence and shot at him. Conner returned the shot but it had no effect.

Ryle made his escape and later in the day it was learned that he went up Gunpowder creek, stopping to talk with Otho Hamard, but said nothing to him about the shooting. Sheriff Conner was called by telephone and put in the most of the day searching for Ryle but could not locate him.

The report of the shooting was soon known to the entire neighborhood and a large number of neighbors lost no time in assembling at Mr. Conner's and indignation ran high, and Ryle would have been shown no mercy had he been in custody. It was learned that Ryle had been drinking the day before and was in a crazed condition from the effects of his delirium, and William Conner, who had been wounded, had discharged him on account of his drunkenness.

Instead of going up Gunpowder creek as supposed, Ryle made his way down the river to the mouth of Big Bone creek, where he crossed the river and went to the home of his brother-in-law, Wilson Conner, who lives in Indiana. Officers arrested him last Monday afternoon and delivered him to William Craig, of Rising Sun, who brought him to Burlington Tuesday morning and delivered him into the custody of Jailor Fowler. Owing to the feeling against Ryle, the grand jury investigation by the grand jury which will assemble on the 14th of this month.

At last accounts Mrs. Conner was getting along as well as could be expected. Ryle says he wanted to kill Mrs. Conner because she was trying to poison him. Mrs. Conner was Miss Ida Hodges, a few years since a very popular school teacher in this county. She is a daughter of Oscar Hodges, who lives in Indiana.

STOCKS OF WHEAT

In Commercial Hands Much Larger Than Year Ago

Washington, March 27. — Commercial stocks of wheat were three times as large on March 1 as a year ago, the Department of Agriculture estimated today on the basis of reports received from nearly 12,000 elevators, warehouses, grain, mill and wholesale firms. The total reported stock on hand at 1917-18, which is 308 per cent of the 1918 stock. Wheat held on farms and by many other commercial dealers is not included.

Commercial stocks of rye were four times as large as a year ago, while more oats and barley also were on hand.

The amount of corn held by the reporting firms was only 62 per cent of the amount given in 1913.

Hits High Prices

John Binder, of Landing, was a business visitor to Burlington last Friday. Mr. Binder is one of the very successful farmers in his part of the county and keeps things going as far as the high prices hitting the high places in the markets with regularity. Only a few days ago he had a nice bunch of hogs on the market for which he received $19.75 per 100 pounds.

Spruce Up a Bit

Now that the sun and the rain are doing their best to clean up the yard, it is time to help spruce up the yard a bit. Of course, the wind tried its best to sweep up the leaves and the dead grass; but a rake will make a much better job of the yard. The sun is coaxing the early spring flowers to give their color to make things bright and beautiful; but some extra plants and seed will help to keep the yard a delightful place the summer through. Better still, a few hardy shrubs and some blossoming trees will make the yard a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

Why, of course, it will pay well for all of this extra time and trouble. It will pay in the added pleasure the good house wife will take in her home. Then, too, it will pay in what neighbors and friends will have to say about the improvement in the looks of the old place. Last and by no means least, it will pay in the value of the farm if it is offered for sale. A bright and attractive yard on the road invariably catches the eye of the passerby. The second look at a farm is one which leaves a lasting impression and has a definite advertising value. Spruce up a yard a bit.

ON MISSING LIST

Five Thousand Five Hundred American Soldiers Still On Missing List

Washington, March 27. — General Pershing reported to the War Department today that there are still 5,500 officers and men of the expeditionary forces listed as missing. This total compares with the British official figures of 181,800 missing and the French of 299,000.

All of the 5,500 names have been reported as "missing" in casualty lists already published. The report said that the names of soldiers in isolated graves in the centralized cemeteries is furnishing additional identification in a number of cases, and for this reason the records of the Grave Registration Service are being carefully studied.

Re-examination of grave registration reports and also of hospital records, referred to by General Pershing, was said by officials at the War Department to be the "key" to the "missing" and "wounded in action" casualties still appearing in the daily casualty lists sent out by the department.

British War Office, General Pershing's report said, had adopted the policy of considering twenty days after the date of disappearance as the length of time after the man had been reported as missing before death is assumed. In the French army, he said, no definite period had been fixed.

"No accurate estimate of unreported deaths can be given," said General Pershing's report. "There are, however, approximately 5,500 missing to be accounted for, all of whom are reported to Washington as missing."

"Deaths of American soldiers in French hospitals, which only recently have been reported, are on file, are likewise disclosed by reburyal of these bodies resulting in complete identification. Accidents in German prison camps and to territory formerly within Germany's lines is leading to discovery of many American graves."

Discharge Record

County Clerk Rogers has received a book in which to record the discharge of the selectees. The work of recording will be done free of charge, but those who desire their discharges returned by mail, the books reported to be along with the discharge the sum of 15 cents the cost of registering the document at the postoffice. The discharge record will be safely kept for all time, and in case an original gets lost or destroyed an official copy will be obtainable.

After "Marse" Henry

Marse Henry Watterson has accepted the presidency of the League of American Independence. Marse Henry's idea of independence contemplates the right of every fellow to get drunk and raise hell, the league wants to, without regard to race, color, previous condition or servitude, long-haired men or short-haired women.

Should Marse Henry happen to see the above paragraph he will take editor Allen across his lap.

SURE HE GOT ONE

Knocked a Sniper From His Hiding Place in a Tree— Doesn't Praise the Y.

M. C. A. Nor the Red Cross

Charles J. Akin, who returned from the service a few days ago, having been honorably discharged at Camp Taylor, was a guest at Mrs. Susan Kirkpatrick's a few hours last Saturday evening. It is interesting to hear him narrate his experience. He was at the front and took part in three of the hardest battles during the time he was in France, being in the trenches at the time the armistice was signed. He knows nothing of the German machine gun operator who was picking off the doughboys from his position up in a tree. An officer ordered the volunteers to go with him to get the sniper, when young Akin and five others joined him in the dangerous undertaking. The sniper made a mistake when Akin fell to the ground and the sniper thinking he was down and out on the other hand he kept firing. When Akin, taking deliberate aim, knocked the sniper cold as a wedge.

Of the seven men who went out after the sniper only three returned alive, but they brought the machine gun back with them. Like all the other men who had returned from overseas, young Akin would not say anything for his experience. He would not like to have to repeat it. He has nothing to say about the treatment the soldiers in France received at the hands of the Red Cross and the M. C. A. He is very uncomplimentary of these two organizations.

Corp. Clarence Rogers

Meeting old Friends

Corporal Clarence Rogers, son of Alton, was in Burlington, last Friday meeting many of his associates in his boyhood days. He was in Uncle Sam's service for some time, much of which he spent in the Indian, being at Santo Domingo quite a while, and where he visited the tomb of Christopher Columbus. Corporal Rogers made the best record in the service, he having a certificate which credits him with being excellent in military service. His society declared him an expert rifleman and his record throughout is one of which he is justly proud. As with all the other young men who have been discharged from the service, young Rogers gives evidence of having been a good citizen. He has developed into a fine specimen of manhood. He is planning for a very active campaign on the farm with his father this year.

PROCLAMATION

To the People of Kentucky,

Greetings: "Where the preceding armies of the Central Powers have left in their wake indescribable scenes of suffering and privation, torture, famine and death, our duty is to the oppressed and enslaved people of the Old World is only half finished when the invader is driven from the borders of these suffering lands. It is a pleasant and a Christian duty to minister to the wants of those whom we have made free."

"To the aid of these victims of brutality the Kentucky Division of the American Jewish Relief Committee has determined to carry on a campaign for the raising of funds."

"Therefore, I, A. O. Stanley, Governor of Kentucky, issue this proclamation setting aside April 17th to the 20th as the Jewish War Relief Days in the State of Kentucky."

"IN TESTIMONY whereof, I have caused these letters to be made patent, and the seal of the Commonwealth to be hereunto affixed. Done at Frankfort, the twenty-fourth day of March, 1919, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, and in the one hundred and twenty-seventh year of the Commonwealth."

A. O. STANLEY, Governor of Kentucky.

Cleaned Out the Ditches

The ditches along the main streets in Burlington were opened up by the city and the dirt carted away, which has improved the looks of the town somewhat.

Mrs. Stephen Robbins Dead

Mrs. Stephen Robbins, who was reported very ill last week by the Recorder's Gunpowder correspondent died last Friday morning. The fatal disease was pneumonia following the flu. Mrs. Robbins was a daughter of the late Noah Barlow and a most excellent lady. She is survived by her husband and five children, her son, Robert, but recently returning from overseas where he was severely wounded while in action and is now located at Camp Taylor.

Mrs. Robbins was in her 58th year and had been a member of the Baptist church for many years. After a beautiful and appropriate service held at Hopeful last Sunday at 1 o'clock by Rev. Royer, the remains were interred in the cemetery of a large crowd of friends and relatives.

Cart Badly Wrecked

The horse attached to R. L. McNeely's cart was frightened by a truck while hitched in front of the postoffice one morning. The past week, and broke loose and damaged Mr. McNeely's mail carrier on R. D. 2 and was routing his mail when the horse was frightened.

METHOD TO BE CHANGED

Announcement of Overseas Casualties Practically Is Compulsory

Washington, March 27. — The War Department will discontinue April 1 the method of issuing casualty lists, which hitherto made them available for simultaneous publication in all newspapers throughout the country. This has been decided upon, it was explained today, because practically all casualties incurred in fighting have been announced and few remain, except deaths from injury or disease since the signing of the armistice.

Under the system about to be abandoned, the Government has been telegraphing the lists from Washington to Chicago and San Francisco, five days in advance of publication. Press associations have been distributing the lists from Chicago and San Francisco, allowing five days to reach all points. This arrangement was necessary because no simultaneous publication of the lists, as telegraph facilities are quite inadequate for a daily telegraphic list to every city and town.

The War Department will furnish full mail lists from Washington, but the lists will not be issued publication on any specified date, and may be published whenever newspapers receive them. The last list issued under the present system will be published in the newspapers of April 6. Thereafter it is probable that only the names of men killed in action will be distributed by telegraph.

Pasture Lowers Cost of Production

While a liberal use of pasture undoubtedly lowers the cost of producing pork, it is possible to overdo the matter. Mature hogs will live on good blue-grass or clover pasture without any grain, but, young, growing pigs become thin in flesh if compelled to exist on pasture alone. Their growth is stunted, and when this happens they do not finish satisfactorily for the fall trade. Those which are to be marketed in the spring, however, may do very well on pasture alone during the grazing season and latter well during the winter. From 1 to 3 acres of pasture will support a hog along with the pastures given the most satisfactory results in the majority of cases.

Lower Rates of Postage On July 1

The return of 2-cent letter postage on July 1, as a result of the passage of the new revenue bill, is emphasized in information received by postmasters advising them to warn purchasers of the stamped envelope. The new rate is 1 cent, and when this happens they do not finish satisfactorily for the fall trade. Those which are to be marketed in the spring, however, may do very well on pasture alone during the grazing season and latter well during the winter. From 1 to 3 acres of pasture will support a hog along with the pastures given the most satisfactory results in the majority of cases.

Theodore F. Chambers Dead

Thos. F. Chambers, well known by many of the older people in this part of the county, died at his home in Walton last week. He had been a carpenter by trade for many years. He is survived by his wife and one son, C. Spencer Chambers, a prominent teacher in the Covington schools. Mr. Chambers was a member of the Masonic lodge and took part in the construction of many of the buildings in this part of the county.

TENTATIVE RESULT

Supervisors of Tax Complete First Lap of Work.

And Will Meet April 9th.

The county board of supervisors of tax completed the first lap of its work last week, the increases by precincts being as follows: Burlington $182,435; Bullittsville $165,335; Petersburg $110,925; Bellevue $79,160; Carlton $74,390; Hamilton $74,420; Union $74,410; Walton $34,910; $93,010.

The board adjourned until the 9th inst. when it will meet again to hear from those who wish to have been increased. In the meantime the sheriff will have something like 1,000 persons to notify as to the amount their lists have been increased as well as of the time the board will meet to hear from them.

Some of the farmers have been losing lambs after they had received their lists, and say they cannot account for the trouble. The numerous changes that the county clerk will have to make in the Tax Commissioner's book will require considerable work of the most tedious kind. To change 1,000 lists is no small job.

The Study of Congress

The Newark, N. J., News is much perturbed over the study of Representative Mondell as floor leader of the republican party in the new congress. Our contemporary at Newark digs out of the autobiography of Theodore Roosevelt the latter's description of Mr. Mondell as a Congressman "who consistently fought for local and private interests as against the interests of the people as a whole." And adds certain data of its own relative to Mr. Mondell, all strongly persuasive of the fact that he is a reactionary of the purest ray serene. The fact that Mr. Knutson, the Republican whip, voted against the declaration of war, and that Mr. Mondell, the general conclusion is that the Republican majority in the new House will be in very bad hands.

The two parties will be Democrats, but cannot come to look at the other side of the picture. The Des Moines, Ia., Register comes forward with a ferocious attack on the tariff, a ferocious attack on Mr. Champ Clark and Mr. Claude Kitchen as Democratic leaders in the new House. After denouncing the tariff, the Register goes on to look at the other side of the picture. The Des Moines, Ia., Register comes forward with a ferocious attack on the tariff, a ferocious attack on Mr. Champ Clark and Mr. Claude Kitchen as Democratic leaders in the new House. After denouncing the tariff, the Register goes on to look at the other side of the picture.

"If it fails, as it probably will, the two parties will be Democrats, but cannot come to look at the other side of the picture. The Des Moines, Ia., Register comes forward with a ferocious attack on the tariff, a ferocious attack on Mr. Champ Clark and Mr. Claude Kitchen as Democratic leaders in the new House. After denouncing the tariff, the Register goes on to look at the other side of the picture."

"This is sound, although a hope still remains that the forward looking men in the Democratic minority will rid themselves of the incubus of Clark and Kitchen. We know what the Republicans will do for they have already acted. But it is not unwise, looking at the situation as it is, to face the fact that very little constructive work may be expected from this Congress. However things sometimes go by contraries, and the fact that a Presidential election is coming on may have a restraining effect.—Ex.

Sues for Loss of Services of Wife

Hubert Beeson has sued Mrs. Eliza Walton and son J. for $1,000 damages for the loss of his wife's services at a result of the automobile collision in the road between the homes of the two on the 19th day of last January, when Mrs. Beeson's limb was broken. D. E. Castleman attorney for plaintiff.

Arrived at Home

Charles J. Akin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benj. F. Akin, of Fickertown neighborhood, arrived at home last Friday having been in the service since last June. He was one of the boys who lost no time in reaching France, and the presumption is he lost no time in reaching home after he was discharged at Camp Taylor.

Kenneth Stamper, son of "Bud" Stamper, who had been in the service for several months returned home last Friday, bringing his honorable discharge. He was one of the selectees who was so fortunate as not to go overseas. He came home in fine condition and is ready to do his bit at cropping this year.

Propelling the Lawn Mower

Julius Fowler gave the court house yard a mow last Friday. Mr. Fowler propels a lawn mower with much grace and ease.

Having Splendid Luck

R. Lee Hiney, of Big Bone church neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington last Friday. He reported having splendid luck with his lambs.

Give Business a Chance

(Leslie's.) During the war the Sherman law has been practically inoperative. This law has been enforced in its letter, it is doubtful if the war could have been as effectively fought as the neglect to enforce it permitted. Shall this country in its business relations permit that act to remain on the statute book as it is, and go back to its old enforcement on all its conditions? Is it not time for Congress to reconsider this whole question of anti-trust legislation? The total disregard of individual needs and of joint individual interests should not be continued. That combination should be regulated in the public interest is clear. But the control should not be under mutual arrangement by joint official and individual action. The business man should have the right to confer with the official to see if the two acting jointly can agree on the fair thing. No man should be in a position of being a law breaker and told he is one, as the first information that he is as to an error in his way of conducting his business.

Will it not be just as good for the laborer and consumer as the capitalist, if both are to be through some Government agency, that the Government believes the arrangement made is fair? Is not much better than for the Government to attack business interests as if they were criminal before they are warned of crime? The business of this country must be free to every extent possible. Large business is not objectionable. It is a good consequence of everything done open and with "conformity" to the Golden Rule. With some Government agency controlling conferences of business men and associations, all this can be provided for, and everything run fair and smooth, and with justice to private interests and the general conclusion is that the Republic under association or otherwise, must be more cooperation by conference or understanding publicly made than at present.

There are great possibilities in business in both foreign and domestic trade, and business should be given opportunity to grasp it under association or otherwise, under the law, and the Republic properly guarded in the methods permitted. Take the brakes off the legitimate business of the country.

Same Way Here

The people of Falmouth and Pendleton county are different, in many ways. In all other parts of the world, in making a real estate deal in town or county a majority of them will try their best to keep the price secret from the newspapers, when in fact the very fellow whom they do not want to know the price finds it out in some way or another. In our county the price of the property is kept a secret—one is to keep away from the Assessor and the other one is that if it is offered for sale the prospective buyer will not know what it cost. The prospective buyer is silly. He is at the same time it is a private transaction and is no one's business. It is useless to try to keep the price of a real estate deal from the Assessor, for he can go to the Clerk's office and get the price paid, as a dollar revenue stamp for every sale is required to be attached to the deed.—Falmouth Outlook.

Held His Tobacco Too

C. C. Sleeth of Beaver, came over last Thursday to get credentials to receive a lot of fertilizer County Farm Agent Sutton had purchased for the farmers in this county. Mr. Sleeth was to receive the fertilizer in the absence of Mr. Sutton, who was attending an agricultural meeting in Louisville. Mr. Sleeth was a very large crop raiser. He was raised on Mr. Sleeth's land in Beaver neighborhood last year, a considerable portion of which was sold early in the season at an average of $22 per hundred. He has about 4,000 pounds on hand yet which he will redry, creating it too long, the cost of the high price was having paid.

School Notes.

Imagination, aspiration and inspiration are the terms that are nearest to convey the impression made upon the Superintendent who made the trip last week to the Indiana State Fair. Mr. Sleeth was a very large crop raiser. He was raised on Mr. Sleeth's land in Beaver neighborhood last year, a considerable portion of which was sold early in the season at an average of $22 per hundred. He has about 4,000 pounds on hand yet which he will redry, creating it too long, the cost of the high price was having paid.

Had a Good Sale

A good sized crowd attended the sale of Jasper Sullivan in the Waterloo neighborhood last Tuesday afternoon. Bidding was brisk and good prices prevailed. Hens brought from $1.00 to $1.75; cows from $13.00 to $18.00; even ready to lamb, $19 a head; even about $2 a bushel. Farm implements brought their worth.

WALTON.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Metcalf returned home last week from Florida where they spent the winter.

Mrs. D. P. Wallace, home, Wallace and Miss Hattie Norman spent Monday in Cincinnati, making the trip in his auto.

Judge J. C. Tomlin who has been ill for quite a while, is improving and is now able to be wheeled about in an invalid chair.

H. C. Diers spent part of the week at Troy, Ohio, preparing the nursery stock he sold last season for shipment, being several car loads.

Chas. L. Griffith left last week for Cecil, Alabama, to look after the interests of the 800 acre farm owned there by himself, J. C. Bedinger and R. Q. Hughes, and in charge of Oswald E. Peterson.

Wm. Hoard and wife sold to T. T. Horton and wife of Pendleton county about 13 acres of land near Walton for $2,500 and Mr. and Mrs. Barton will move here shortly. The sale was made by the Powers Realty Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley D. Stevenson of Brooklyn, New York, arrived here this week to spend the summer on the home.

Wm. O. Daniel Bedinger on account of Mrs. Stevenson's impaired health, Mrs. Stevenson was formerly Miss Hattie Bedinger.

Work on the concrete street through Walton was resumed last week by Contractor Claude E. Harris with J. O. Bibb in charge of the hands. A large force of hands will be put on the work and it pushed to an early conclusion.

Wm. C. Readnor of Walton, and Miss Charlotte Anna Pickett were united in the bonds of holy wedlock last Saturday at the home of the bride in Cincinnati in the presence of a few intimate friends. The groom is a son of Joseph Readnor of Walton, and a splendid young man in every respect.

Walton Masonic Lodge will have work in the Masters degree, Friday night, April 12th, when H. E. Huston of the L. and N. Railroad, will be raised to the sublime degree. Bro. John L. Vest will deliver his beautiful stereopticon lecture, and refreshments will be served. Brethren cordially invited to be present.

Thos. E. Chambers, one of our old and highly esteemed citizens, died at his home in Walton last Thursday in his 75th year after a lingering illness from stomach trouble, following an attack of influenza. Mr. Chambers was born and reared in this quarter and had a host of friends who appreciated him for his many excellent qualities of heart and mind. He leaves a wife and two children, Mrs. Carmelite Sturtevant of Cincinnati, and Prof. C. Spencer Chambers of Covington. The funeral took place from his late home Saturday afternoon, Rev. W. H. Whitaker of the M. E. church conducting the services at the grave.

The tobacco sales at the Walton Loose Leaf Warehouse will continue several weeks longer as the price is holding up very good considering the absence of some of the heavy buyers from the market. Last Saturday eight thousand pounds of tobacco sold at an average of over 18 cents. One of the crops sold was that of Jesse Delahanty of near Union containing 9500 pounds, that averaged $32.16 per hundred. There is still a large quantity of tobacco in the country and many of the growers are hanging their tobacco to redry with the expectation of selling after the redrying season. There was talk of having a sale of redried tobacco on the loose leaf floor some time in July, but the general opinion is that it must be sold in the hog-shead, by time at that time it might be gotten on the floor in case in the baskets but it would soon dry out so it could not be handled for pricing or storage.

Miss Brookings Tompkins, of Georgetown, spent the week here the guest of Miss Grace Tompkins.

Ernest Miner, of Sparta, who has been on duty at Sulphur, Ky., for the L. and N. Railroad Co., arrived here last week to take the second position in the Walton office under H. H. Huston, the agent in charge.

Leont Frank S. Guinechio, of Lexington, was here Saturday and Monday in relation to the campaign for the Fifth Liberty Loan. N. E. Riddell, of Burlington, has been appointed chairman for Boone County; Edgar C. Riley, Chairman on the Committee to Welcome Home the returning soldiers; Jno. L. Vest, chairman of the Speakers' Bureau; A. B. Reiser, chairman of the Publicity Bureau, and Mrs. Pearl Johnson, Chairman of the Women's Committee.

Demanded Pay.

When William Craig arrived in Vevay, Ind., last Monday afternoon to take charge of Earl Ryle, whom the sheriff of Switzerland county had apprehended, he was met by a demand on the part of the officer, for $35, saying that would have to be paid before he would be allowed to bring the prisoner to Kentucky. Mr. Craig refused to pay the $35 for anybody amount, saying he had no authority so to do. He got in communication with County Judge Riddell by telephone, who confirmed his position, and who suggested to the Indiana officer, he desired to keep a criminal in his State he could do so. After some parleying it was agreed to deliver the prisoner to Mr. Craig in Rising Sun, which was done, when Mr. Craig paid to the Switzerland county officer $10, and came on to Burlington via Aurora with his prisoner.

Dr. Horvick Cram of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, spent the week here with relatives and friends.

HUMB.

Mike, Katie and Edward hinder have fled.

Chas. Abdon was a guest at John Elwell's Sunday.

Special Notice

To My Customers and Friends:

It has come to my notice in the last few weeks that work that had been sent to me to do had never reached me, but was taken some place else, where the parties bringing and delivering the work get paid at both ends, going and coming; and how this was found out, was that work that had been done by other parties, and I had been credited with doing it, was brought to me to do over, and, of course, not having done the work I refused to do it over with out being paid. Can you blame me? Can anyone blame me when I had not done the faulty work? But, of course they were my customers and thought I had done the work until I informed them I had not.

Some of this work was rubber tire work, and those trouble some times we all had our troubles. My trouble with rubber tires I could not get wires that would not stretch and the tires would open where joining together, and, of course that caused me a great deal of trouble and expense. The tire would also turn in the channel—could not draw wire tight enough as it would stretch. It was no fault of mine. I could not get the proper wire to do the work with, but the war being over, perhaps I will be able to get the proper material this year. Every time I have to change a rubber tire it costs me 65 cents, so you can realize that I am going to do the work right if possible. If it is not I will make it as good as new and always will treat you right.

I always have and always will expect to stay, so come and see me; get prices; write or phone me—phone No. 615, Erlanger. I surely will treat you right.

N. B.—I will use two grades of rubber tire this year—Kelly Springs and Cooper Peersless. Get my prices on anything in the carriage line. Rubber tires applied while you wait and look on.

H. G. COLLINS, The Old Reliable Carriage Man, Erlanger, Ky.

I keep a record of my customers and work done.

A Week's News

There is a worldly knowledge without a spiritual knowledge, but there is not a spiritual knowledge without a worldly knowledge. My view of a League of Nations is a combined formed by kings and seemingly would-be rulers of two or more of the stronger powers which would break down competition and rule over weak nations. Government ownership and life time officeholding are the first steps to king rule and Kaiserism. If we judge a man by the company he keeps it looks like it would be dishonorable and dangerous to our liberties and freedom to place a man in the presidential chair on his third term. J. E. HALL.

A New York newspaper enlisted 13 others, circulating in different sections of the country, in the work of inviting a referendum, by a postal vote, upon the issue of whether or not the United States should enter a League of Nations to maintain peace. The referendum was taken as fairly as it could be under the circumstances, and the vote to date stands at 24,000 against it.

Deputy Clerk Miss Lizzie Rogers has been keeping her record-keeping typewriter running on high gear for some time in a vain effort to record transfers of real estate as fast as they arrive at the office, but at the close of her labors last week she had a half bushel basket full of these documents awaiting her attention, but she likes to have work coming in large volumes.

James Brown, of Ft. Pleasant neighborhood, was a business visitor to Burlington one day the past week. Keep a Stiff Upper Lip

Many of our citizens have purchased farmland during the past six months and have gone in debt for half or even two-thirds of the purchase price. The crowd on the farms are holding up their hands in holy horror, and saying that these thrifty fellows will never pay for the land. We will make the assertion that 99 per cent of these purchasers will make good and many of these fellows will fence will be their tenants in the future. Where there is a will there is a way, and don't forget this is a law of nature. You can't keep a man from success who will work and exercise economy. We say to the man who has gone into debt for a home, keep a stiff upper lip and you will come out on top. The only way for a man with small means to ever own a home is to go in debt; it makes him dig harder, and he comes out on top. The end, Land values in Pendleton county are not high, and the present price is not inflated. Some have sold their farms at what they think is a high price, and expect to buy again in a few years at half the price. These fellows are laboring under a false impression. —Falmouth Outlook.

Poultry Notes

Guineas, like geese and pigeons, pair when the number of males and females is equal.

The turkey does not fully mature until two years old, and is at its best at three years.

Sometimes the old hens of the heavy breeds will not need fattening, as they have a tendency to take on fat with age.

The poultry house should have no draughts; it should be clean and kept clean, and no damp floors should be tolerated.

A fowl consumes about 3 ounces of msh in the morning, 2 ounces of grain at noon, and 4 ounces of grain at the evening feed.

Proper equipment in the poultry house often is the deciding factor in successful poultry keeping and should be given due consideration.

Hens lay best in damp weather, but during winter, it will be noticed that they are more prolific during showery spells than they are when it is dry. The theory is that moisture produces expansion and growth, whereas dry, cold or dry warmth contracts.

Mrs. Jane Conner.

Mrs. Jane Fleming Conner died on the 28th ult., aged more than eighty years. She was the widow of the late John Conner, and one of the pioneer citizens of this county, and the last member of her family. She got a fall several months ago, and never recovered from the resulting injuries altho everything possible was done to restore her, but infirmities of old age combined with her injuries could not be overcome by medical skill. In her day she was a fine business woman and had the care of several of her nieces and nephews whom she looked after and cared for with the tender love of a mother, and they mourn her death.

VOICES CONTEMPT FOR FOE FIGHTERS

REPORTS OF FRATERNIZING BY AMERICAN AND FOE TROOPS DENIED BY RED TRIANGLE WORKER.

Chicago.—Reports of fraternizing of allied and foe troops following the signing of the armistice on the western front are denied in a letter from H. B. Stecher, Racine, Wis., received at the offices of the national war work council, Y. M. C. A., here.

Stecher was a Y. M. C. A. worker attached to the Ninety-first division. He served for more than six months on three fighting fronts—at St. Mihiel, in Flanders and the Argonne. Twelve he was cited for bravery and awarded the D. S. C.

Before going to France to serve as a "Y" worker Stecher was associated with the Hamilton Beach Manufacturing company at Racine. Formerly he was a member of the 45th National Guard when he was living in Los Angeles, Cal. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Stecher live in Chicago.

Referring to reports of fraternizing of the troops Stecher says: "Certainly there was no attempt or desire on the part of the men of our division to fraternize with our much-opsessed opponents, and had there been, the officers would not have permitted it. As a matter of fact the men were going right up to the line and the ambulances went into effect. You say our boys had had a mighty good chance to size up the caliber of the other side, and had the Germans shown any indications of good sportsmanship in the fighting no doubt we would feel some little respect for them. Having been a dough boy myself in the past, and now having gone through all the fighting with my division, I believe my viewpoint is the same as that of the majority of our division, namely, I have the utmost contempt for the German soldier, his methods, and his ideals."

GENERAL PRAISES SERVICE OFFERED BY "Y"

Stecher and two associates of the Third division, A. B. E., and just brought to the attention of the national war work council of the Y. M. C. A., here, a letter issued by Colonel E. J. Dickman, which says: "The 'Y' officials have aided as an excellent answer to the charge that Red Triangle workers had avoided the front zones in France and had wronged the soldiers for the comforts which the association had sent overseas. General Dickman directed that a copy of the letter be sent to every one of the thirty-four men and six women who were in the division through the fighting of Champagne, Thierri and along the Marne, to St. Mihiel and later into action north of Verdun and along the Meuse."

The Y. M. C. A. has made public General Dickman's order along with a commendation from Col. J. C. Rhea of another division which was in the St. Mihiel fighting. Colonel Rhea gave figures showing the large amount of supplies which were distributed in his division by "Y" secretaries without charge.

GREAT EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM PLANNED

Paris.—General Pershing has signed an order establishing an American Army university in France to accommodate 12,000 to 20,000 soldiers students. The school will be opened at Beaune. At the same time the main office of the Y. M. C. A. army observation commission will be moved from Paris to Beaune.

Courses in engineering, liberal and fine arts, science, music and the like will be offered. It is expected that one of the four agricultural exhibits which have been prepared by the department of agriculture in co-operation with the Y. M. C. A. will be a permanent feature at Beaune.

The Y. M. C. A. war work council announced that the cost of the educational program in the A. E. F. had now reached $700,000 a month. Books and supplies costing $1,200,000 have been sent overseas. The army pays for the books and distributes them to the soldier students.

To Improve Idle Time.
Wherever there are as many as 500 reasonably stationary soldiers, sailors and marines at the base camps or the ports of shipment or with the army of occupation, there will be educational courses supervised by the Y. M. C. A. For those who are to be moved in a few weeks there will be short courses, but there will be something to interest every one.

"Y" Operates Hotels.
London.—Half a dozen London hotels, including the Palace, Grosvenor and Grafton, have been taken over by the American Y. M. C. A. and are now in full operation. This addition to the war plan of the "Y" is required by the even more comprehensive period of occupation program which has been set up in the United Kingdom by the Y. M. C. A.

Want American Tables.
An American pool table is a grateful oasis to the American soldiers impatiently awaiting orders to leave for home, for somehow or other they don't take kindly to the model of pool or billiard table which is used in Merrie England. Therefore there is any rest to the billiard tables in the Y. M. C. A. but in the British Isles.

PRESCRIBE EXERCISE FOR THE WOUNDED

"PLAY-THERAPY" IDEA IS BEING TRIED OUT IN CAMPS OF CENTRAL MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Chicago.—I prescribe an hour of active play for your stiff wrist this morning," is being heard now in a dozen of Uncle Sam's camps wherein wounded soldiers are convalescing. Or, it may be that the prescription is something like this: "Boy, your knee joints are pretty stiff and the hinges of your hips don't work right. Suppose you play arch ball for an hour today and tomorrow and then prolong the period of play a bit. This will do more for you than anything else."

Dr. H. F. Kallenberg, chief of Y. M. C. A. physical directors in the central military department, with headquarters in Chicago, is receiving word almost daily that the latest method of treating wounded men in government hospitals in such cases as demand exposure of joints, fingers, wrists, legs or arms, is doing wonders for the soldiers. They not only are throwing off their ailments but are taking on cheerfulness and a new interest in life, he declares. The treatment is "new" in that medical men examine each case and prescribe certain games to fit the needs of that case. No playing at games requiring exercise of muscles in this is done save under the direct supervision of a medical officer, Doctor Kallenberg asserts.

Helping Government.

"Physical directors of the Y. M. C. A. are helping the government in these matters at this time," explained Doctor Kallenberg. "I understand the application of our theory that the playing of certain games would certain ailments is being demonstrated with success at various camps in the plain reconstruction of the physical man. We do not moderate massage, hydrotherapy, electrotherapy or manual therapy, but we are finding that specified exercise in play works wonders in loosening joints and making the muscles more pliable."

At the following camps the new treatment of "play-therapy" is being used successfully upon hundreds of wounded soldiers, sailors and marines: Taylor, Pikes, Grant, Lander, Fort Sheridan, Fort Des Moines, Fort Benning, Harrison, U. S. General Hospital No. 21, Denver, and plans are being made now to establish the treatment at Camp Funston, Sherman, Custer and the big Fort Hospital, Detroit. It is reported that Major Kelley at Camp Grant has set aside two large two-story barracks for a gymnasium and will ask the Y. M. C. A. for two men to assist in directing wounded soldiers in their games.

HONOR FIGHTING PARSON

Dr. John H. Clifford, Baptist minister in time of peace, but real fighter in time of war, has been awarded the cross de guerre for extraordinary heroism in action.

Doctor Clifford, as a Y. M. C. A. worker, braved the red wrath of war. He has been in the firing zone as much as the hardest infantryman and was decorated for the most unusual exploit. He was one of three men who braved incessant enemy shell fire while rescuing Col. Albertus W. Catlin, commanding officer of the Sixth regiment of marines. The trio carried the colonel to safety on a stretcher.

Doctor Clifford went over the top many times and came near being killed on several occasions. He is fifty-one years old.

Praises "Y" Work.
Unqualified praise for Consul General Harris in St. Louis for the service rendered not only to the American expatriate troops, but also to the Czechs and to Russian prisoners by the American Y. M. C. A. secretaries, is contained in an official communication transmitted to the state department at Washington by Paul S. Reinsch, American minister in China.

Great Athletic Program.
Through the Y. M. C. A. the United States plans to introduce a project for the development of American athletics in the allied countries. America's greatest athletic leaders are being directed to direct the movement from the headquarters to be established in Paris.

WHAT ABOUT OATMEAL.

AT MEAL furnishes us with the food elements in better proportion than any other food. It is more easily digested and contains more body-building material than any other cereal. The oat also contains a large amount of mineral matter, the important body regulating material.

Oatmeal to give its best, must be cooked long and well. As a breakfast food, it stands at the head, yet we are learning to use it in various other ways and in different combinations. Added to wheat breads it makes a most wholesome loaf. Scatter one cupful of rolled oats, let stand until cool, add to the usual bread sponge and bake as usual, adding more salt than for other bread.

Oatmeal With Cheese in Casserole.—Arrange three cupfuls of cooked oatmeal in layers with one cupful of grated cheese. Sprinkle the top with buttered crumbs and bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown.

Oatmeal Soup à l'Allemande.—Melt one tablespoonful of fat; add a small chopped onion, and cook until slightly brown with one-half a green pepper, also chopped. Remove from the fire, stir in a tablespoonful of corn flour, a teaspoonful of salt, a cupful of cooked oatmeal, and three cupfuls of milk. Cook in a double boiler until smooth. When serving sprinkle with one-half cupful of grated cheese.

Oatmeal and Fish Croquettes.—Mix together one and one-half cupfuls of cooked oatmeal, three cupfuls of cooked oatmeal, one tablespoonful of chopped onion, one tablespoonful of salt, and a few dashes of pepper. Make into croquettes; dip in egg and crumbs and fry in hot bacon fat. Serve with a white sauce to which a little chopped green pepper has been added.

Oatmeal Wafers.—Take two cupfuls of fat, one cupful of brown sugar, one egg, one cupful of oatmeal, five table-spoons of wheat flour, two table-spoons of water. Mix and drop on a greased pan. Bake until brown on the edges.

HANDS, ARMS,
LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady.

Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Price, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child...I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time."

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. about my taking Cardui. He said, "It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble," so he got me 5 bottles. After the second bottle I felt greatly improved...before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to all my little children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui to your children for your troubles. It contains no harmful or harmful drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done for them. Should help you, too. Try it.

an engine—

HE WOULD burn fuel that produced steam—not hot water. Yet poultrymen feed their hens, which are nothing but engines, fuel that sustains them but does not make eggs. It takes food, rich in the egg elements to produce eggs. Ce-re-a-lia Egg Mash is a ration which, plus care and cleanliness, develops many eggs and sturdy hens. It is not the kind of a dry mash you get by throwing odds and ends together but an exact ration perfectly balanced by machinery. Never varies a particle in taste or in proportion of nutrients. Costs more than home-made feeds but just watch the nests after feeding it awhile!

The Russian Revolution Secret

Entering Petrograd, the first American journalist to pass through its bloody days in six months instantly divined the fundamental cause of the fearful welter in the affairs of Russia. It was the old and wearisome experiment of ruling through specialists developed on but one side. The ill-fated country is in the hands of exiles banished under the old regime, educated men who had lived their lives in cities and who in their places of banishment continued urban residence.

Whatever governmental affairs there are have been entrusted to the city working classes, and these are headed by the intellectuals who measure everything by the urban standards. Their pretorian guards, soldiers and inspectors have been securing food by systematically filching from the loads of the villages, these raids being dignified by the name of requisitions. The well-to-do farmers are almost stripped, and are then turned over to their poorer neighbors, to be exploited still further by having their lands taken from them.

Anger is rising among the agrarians, who are threatening to reduce their planting and raise only enough to meet their own humble wants. The country, therefore, is in the position of a serpent eating its own tail in order to keep going. This process, necessarily, has its limitations. Famine will end the revolution, just as it ended German military operations. About the time the deluded disciples of the theorists will discover that more than knowledge of how to run the affairs of a city is required to conduct those of a mighty nation. Then will the deluge surely come for them—Enquirer.

A local grocer shipped or sold to hucksters 600 dozen eggs last week. There are four other grocers in town who probably received and shipped fully as many, which would mean that 2,000 dozen eggs were received and shipped from the town. As there are about 40 groceries in the county receiving and shipping eggs, basing their receipts and shipments on an equal basis, this county shipped about 16,000 dozen eggs in one week, not counting those sold direct to hucksters. Allowing for a reasonable number consumed for food in the county, the hens in this county must have laid somewhere in the neighborhood of 20,000 dozen eggs in one week, which at current market prices are worth $5,500. The little brown hen—Grant Co. News.

It is said that L. C. Littell, of Owenston former State Senator from this district, will be a candidate for the next legislature from the district composed of Owen and Henry counties. The present Senator from this district is a hold over, and is from Grant county. The district as now composed includes the counties of Gallatin, Boone, Owen, Grant and Pendleton. Warsaw Independent.

Lexington, March 28.—Plans for permanent organization of tobacco warehouses and tobacco growers of Kentucky for the purpose of limiting production of tobacco as a means to stabilize prices, were perfected at a meeting of representative tobacco dealers and growers here today. The plan is, it is said, to have the two organizations cooperate and regulate the tobacco industry in the state, with a view to preventing overproduction.

Local Happenings.

It was at a recent meeting on the East Side of New York that one of the speakers said with emphatic gesture, "Debs, although convicted, will not be permitted to serve his sentence. He will be released, not any pardon or any action of the authorities. But the prison doors will be opened and he will be taken out." The meeting was one of many which are held almost daily in New York, in those parts of the city where men and women who are dissatisfied, and who profess to believe in socialism, even radicalism, dwell.

A detachment of 170 Kentucky overseas veterans which arrived at Camp Zachary Taylor on March 7th to be demobilized has been the victim of unusual circumstances which have prevented the boys from returning to their homes. Several cases of meningitis were discovered in the outfit, which came from camp Dix, N. J., where the disease is prevalent at present, and as a result the entire detachment has been quarantined for the past three weeks by the medical authorities at the campment.

Setting the time pieces up one hour last Saturday night did not seem to have any effect on the working men last Monday morning as it appeared just as convenient for them to go to work an hour earlier than usual but at the quitting hour in the afternoon the change was very apparent to them, and it looked like they had been off of duty half a day when the hour to retire that night arrived.

The United States government has selected Dawson Springs, in the extreme southwestern corner of Hopkins county, as the location for the central and probably the largest of the sanatoriums to be provided for the care of wounded, maimed and diseased soldiers. Furthermore, this sanatorium is to be permanent, and at Dawson Springs thousands of soldiers who have been wounded in battle, or disabled by the frightful experiences exposure and hardships thru which they have gone, will be treated and nursed back to health and strength in the years to come. Not only will they be looked after as to their physical being, but vocational schools will doubtless be part of the institution, and after they have recovered, in a measure, at least, they will be taught useful occupations by which they may earn a livelihood for themselves. The project is one of the most ambitious of Uncle Sam's generous plans for looking after his soldier boys, and those in touch with the situation are of the opinion that the four buildings contemplated at this time will greatly increase, and that the institution when completed will cost $10,000,000.

The bill providing for such a sanatorium, to be under the direction of the War Risk Bureau, was introduced by Congressman D. H. Kincheloe, of the 2nd Kentucky district, and was passed during the last days of the recent Congress. It was a bill that attracted much attention and over which there was a prolonged and stubborn fight, for Dawson Springs was strongly opposed by other places seeking the big institution. As passed, the bill carries with it an initial appropriation of $1,500,000 and leaves the selection of the site to the surgeon general, to be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Cincinnati probably will be visited by a real German submarine within a few weeks. A Washington dispatch said last Monday the government plans to send a captured U-boat up the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers as far as Cincinnati on its own power to boost the Fifth Liberty Loan.

Mrs. Belle Cropper, of Petersburg; Mrs. C. G. Crisler and Mrs. J. E. Snyder, of Cincinnati, were guests of Mrs. Fannie Cropper one day the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodie Sullivan, of Commissary-neighborhood, entertained the young people with a party last Friday night.

Wallace Rice left last Monday morning for Pittsburg, Penn., to begin work as an assistant National Bank Examiner.

Elmer Miles and wife, of Constance, were the guests of Mrs. Miller's sister, Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick, last Sunday.

Mrs. Brenda Garnett, of the Hebron neighborhood, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick this week.

Stanley and Oakley Easton are again prepared to grind feed of all kinds.

At the Peace Table

The London newspapers, are, we are told, almost a unit in scolding the peace conference at Paris for not making more rapid progress in the drawing up of peace terms, holding that this delay is one of the potent causes in the spread of Bolshevism in Europe.

There is, we suppose, little doubt that the delays at Paris have made for unrest in Central Europe, but it is not at all clear that any better progress could have been made. The blunt facts are that the representatives of the allied government assembled at Paris with radically different views of what the peace terms should be. Delay was unfortunate, but anything was better than the peace conference breaking up in a row. The task before the conferees has been a gigantic one. The one man that progress has been made is that England and America have acted together. There is still room for labor, but the outlook is distinctly hopeful, and little more to be desired. The disturbances in Central Europe are forcing men to come to reasonable compromises, to make sacrifices to hurry the work, it is.

Out in the State.

Madisonville.—Oil boring in Hopkins county is to begin in earnest as soon as spring weather is assured.

Milton.—The assessment on real estate in Trimble county has been raised 25 per cent. by the County Board of Equalization.

Ashland.—Tom Grady, about 33 years old, of Huntington, W. Va., was found dead in the Boyd county jail. His death was due to apoplexy.

Lexington.—A thirteen story hotel, including hotel and 12 stories above ground, is to be constructed at the corner of East Main street and the Union Station viaduct.

Frankfort.—Forest fires have been doing considerable damage in Eastern Kentucky and the situation is to dry weather is threatening. In the opinion of J. E. Barton, Commissioner of Forestry and Geology.

Owingsville.—A hundred acres of land belonging to the estate of Mrs. Mary Ellen Lind, deceased, was sold to Walter Sharp, the highest bidder, at $100 an acre. This was the highest priced land ever sold in this county.

Catfish.—Farmers are making preparations for crops with fine weather prevailing. Tobacco growers are completing the work of sowing plant beds and much land is being plowed for the crop. There is every indication of an increased acreage.

Franklin.—A frightened stallion belonging to Chas. Caudil, which was being exhibited with other livestock in the parade at the annual merchants' opening here, ran amuck on Main street and severely injured one man and several women and children.

Mayesville.—The Ohio Gas Company, of Columbus, has purchased 5,000 acres of land at Mayesville and has also leased 5,000 acres in Lewis and Rowan counties. They have one well in operation that is flowing freely. A good flow of gas was struck at a depth of 35 feet at Calum, within four miles of here.

Whitesburg.—It is said here that a local company will be organized for the development of oil in Letcher county, the tests to start within the next few weeks. Oil and gas have been struck in paying quantities in nearly every mountain county. It is believed Whitesburg county is rich in these resources.

Frankfort.—Franklin county dogs found in need when Mrs. Richard Baker, wife of a wealthy distiller, visited the county pound. Moved by the sight of fifty homeless canines, awaiting execution, Mrs. Baker made public offer to pay the license of every impounded dog, providing homes are found for them.

Frankfort.—The body of James H. Sharp, killed in action, October 15th, will be brought to Frankfort for burial. His mother, Mrs. America Sharp, has received a wire from the War Department asking whether she desired the body buried in France. Arlington cemetery or at Frankfort. He went over as a member of Company N, 153d Infantry.

Hopkinsville.—State Senator Frank Rives struck a match to determine if the gasoline tank of his car was full. It was. A fire alarm was turned in and the department reached the scene in a few moments. Chemical extinguishers put out the flames, which had extended to a nearby garage. Senator Rives was not injured. The back of the car was burned.

Frankfort.—Prof. E. B. Weather, principal of the high school at Franklin, will file proceedings in mandamus in the Franklin circuit court to compel the State Textbook Commission to reconvene and make a new adoption, alleging that it exceeded its authority by changing more than 50 per cent of the subjects, and let contractors to publishers, who had failed to comply with the law by filing samples.

Catfish.—Since the closing of the tobacco season a farmer is now turning his attention to preparing work in producing another crop. The indications are at this time that the acreage will be greatly increased over that of last year. While tobacco prices were soaring in January and February much tobacco ground was contracted for, and for this reason the acreage will be greater than last year.

Hopkinsville.—While several boys were playing with an old pistol at the residence of Edward Robinson, north of Hopkinsville, the weapon was accidentally discharged. The bullet broke a large bottle of turpentine and passed through a box of matches on a mantel. The turpentine was ignited and the flaming stream set fire to the clothing of Ira Robinson, who was perhaps fatally burned. The house caught fire and the blaze was extinguished with difficulty by neighbors.

Frankfort.—Among the interesting cases set for the next term of the court of appeals is one from Nelson county, in which the bondsmen for two men called into military service by the draft before the day set for their trial, are seeking to escape liability on the forfeiture of their bonds on the ground that they are exonerated by the demands of the army authorities. The circuit court forfeited the bonds of the defendants, $2,000 each, and held their bondsmen liable. They have appealed.

The Death Angel has visited our community again and taken from our midst Mrs. Emma Robbins, nee Barlow, whose death occurred on Friday, the 28th inst. Mrs. Robbins was born Sept. 24th, 1865, and departed this life at the age of 55 years, six months and four days. She was married to S. J. Robbins, Sept. 10th, 1891. She united with Hopeful church early in life and was a consistent member until called to her reward. In her departure her husband, three sons, two daughters and one brother are left to mourn her loss. She was a kind, affectionate and cheerful companion, an indulgent mother and a good neighbor. The funeral services were conducted in the open air at Hopeful last Sunday. Royer, her pastor, officiating. The remains were buried in the cemetery at that place in the presence of a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ill-suffering people today can be traced back to kidney trouble.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers, of your blood. Kidney disease is usually indicated by weakness, dizziness, nervousness, depression, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gait stumbles, gravel, rheumatism, scalding and leukorrhea.

Alas! The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Do to your kidneys today and insist on GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning and will have the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil.

Chalmers 5-Passenger Touring Car $1565.

For years the Chalmers Five-passenger Touring has been one of America's most popular motor cars. Season after season, beginning with the famous Chalmers "30", this standard Touring Car has increased its circle of friends.

A careful inspection of this model will show the reasons for its popularity. You will find all the qualities which go to make a modern touring car---and when you look under the hood, you will see the first motor to make high power out of low grade gasoline.

ABANDONED WESTERN OIL FIELDS FOR RICHER PROMISE IN ZINC ORE

Organization of the Louisville Mansfield Zinc & Lead Syndicate Reveals Business Romance

Dr. T. T. Beeler, Dentist, Then Oil Magnate, Sold Interest in 157 Wells for Bigger Prospects.

Louisville, Ky.—How a business romance, blossoming in the bosom of Mother Earth, led the way to a dream of affluence that is fast materializing, is brought out in the organization here of the Louisville Lead & Zinc Syndicate Company, a corporation the stock of which rapidly is becoming the property of the romance of the oil fields will be a matter of surprise to those who look largely to the oil well as the fountain of business romance.

Formation of the Louisville Mansfield Lead & Zinc Syndicate follows closely upon organization of the Kentucky Mansfield Lead & Zinc Syndicate, a corporation already on an operating and dividend-paying basis, but the romance goes back eleven years to the oil fields of the west and to a dentist's chair in a small Oklahoma town.

Dr. T. T. Beeler.

In a suite of offices in the Starks Building a small keen-eyed man, trying to make every minute yield its quota of result of an atmosphere of high pressure, knows all about the romance, for he had lived it. He is Dr. T. T. Beeler, vice president of the new LOUISVILLE MANSFIELD LEAD & ZINC SYNDICATE. He is the man who, eleven years ago, while a practicing dentist in an Oklahoma town, became interested in western oil development. With holdings in 157 oil wells after he had become successful in that game, Dr. Beeler had wide opportunities to observe the possibilities and exigencies of that business romance, as it may rightly be called. He saw men carried up into the realm of sudden riches; he saw hopes fulfilled beyond their own limits. But he saw the other side, too, of the oil game—its uncertainty, and the ruin that this uncertainty brought to some.

One day Dr. Beeler heard about the strike made in the famous Joplin zinc ore district. He began studying the possibilities of the new found opportunity. He reflected that in the oil business, when a well was drilled, no mortal could with certainty tell which of four things would be the result: oil, water, gas or a hole in the ground. He reflected that an oil well, drilled from 1,100 to 3,300 feet in the ground, cost from $5,000 to $20,000 before its real promise was known. And then he compared this with data he had gathered about the mining industry, in which nature's store of wealth lies comparatively close to the surface and covers great areas, necessitating, in proportion, a small initial outlay. He applied this comparison particularly to what he had heard about the Joplin Mansfield fields.

Dr. Beeler was not long in making up his mind. It was two years ago in Kansas City that the project, which is now being carried to every state in the Union, had its inception. Dr. Beeler had selected a partner, severed his connections with the oil fields, and had employed an agent, versed in the technique of such an undertaking, to investigate opportunities in the Joplin district.

But it was by chance that the real opportunity was found. One day, when Dr. Beeler's emissary was fruitlessly hickering with people in the field to which prospectors were already swarming, an old man called him aside.

"If you want to see an unworked locality, I want to show you something," said the old man.

As the result of the investigation and assaying which followed, Dr. Beeler, his partner and several notaries, in all of the public automobiles the nearby town afforded, set out in the late afternoon in what is now the Mansfield district. The chauffeurs and the notaries and all others with whom the party came in contact were bound in agreement. There were neither automobiles nor notaries available for other possible prospectors.

It was October 10, 1917. In a day the prospectors had secured some 10,000 acres of land rich in zinc and had laid the foundation of a company which is now becoming nation-wide. They knew that by taking the ore from slight excavations at given points over a given area, that the findings of an expert assayer-geologist would give them the exact extent of wealth which the establishment of mills would produce. Unlike the mere promise of an oil well, the potentialities of a zinc field could be scientifically established. Their reports were secured from A. Arnold, State geologist of Missouri, and Joseph Metcalfe, a London mineralogist and engineer, and showed that tests had proved the expectations of the prospectors.

These geological reports bear out to a large extent a theory which later became current as to the origin of the rich mineral products around Mansfield, Mo. According to this theory, Mansfield, one of the highest points in the district, is the site of a pre-historic volcano. The purest ore is found closest to this center, while the adulterated deposits are found as the distance becomes greater.

Once he had secured rights to the land, Dr. Beeler's plan became known, and soon the district was a hot bed of fortune-hunters. But all of the promising land in the vicinity had been leased by Dr. Beeler and his associates and they were ready to launch their project.

Their scheme of operation calls ultimately for the organization of four companies in each of the forty-five states. Each of these corporations will be granted concessions around the reserved portion of the leases which the parent corporation will hold and which will be enhanced in value with the growing activity surrounding it.

The Kentucky Mansfield Lead & Zinc Syndicate was incorporated June 13, 1918. Its capital stock of $100,000 was quickly sold out. On November 1 it bought its first mill, which soon began operations on the ground, and on February 1 a 2% dividend for January was paid stockholders, following which was paid a 3% dividend for February.

The Kentucky syndicate is made up almost entirely of Kentucky men. Dr. T. M. Crutcher, of Louisville, head of the Louisville Dental Laboratory, is president, and N. C. Cureton is secretary. W. E. Newbold, of Louisville, is treasurer. Edward J. McDermon, of Louisville, is the corporation's attorney. Dr. Beeler is one of the directors, as is also Dr. Charles A. Funk.

The officers of the LOUISVILLE MANSFIELD LEAD & ZINC SYNDICATE, which was formed February 21, 1918, are the same as those of the Kentucky syndicate except that Dr. Beeler is vice president and J. C. Mahon, well known Louisville business man, is a director. Over half of the capital stock of $500,000 already has been sold. Offices of the company are at 409 Starks Bldg., Louisville.

The stock is being put out at $1.00 (par value) per share. The company's property is in the heart of the Ozark Mountains, Wright County, Mo. One forty-acre tract is located between two mills, those of the Kentucky syndicate, known as the "Pioneer Mill" and of W. E. Cureton, of Louisville, known as the "Red-bird Mill." This tract is considered one of the best in the district although three other forty-acre tracts are well located and partly tested.

So, as the new LOUISVILLE MANSFIELD LEAD & ZINC SYNDICATE starts its wheeling, the business romance of the poor dentist is carried further along its way to the pocket-books and bank accounts of shrewd investors the country over.

The orchardists in this locality say the heavy frosts last week did not hurt fruits in the least.

WANTED TO DIE WITH CLEAR CONSCIENCE

Tragedy Barred on Deathbed-- Rivals Fought Over a Girl
Blow Fatal to Kentuckian

Paris, Ky., April 6.—In a letter received today by Chief of Police W. Fred Link, from a trained nurse in a hospital at Juneau, Alaska, giving what she said was a deathbed confession of a murder, 85 years old, a mystery of more than 50 years in Bourbon county, partly was cleared up. The letter follows:

"Juneau, Alaska, March 4, 1912. 'Chief of Police of Paris, Ky.: 'I am enclosing you a statement made to me by John Middleton, 55 years old, but who acknowledges that is not his real name. He was a patient in this institution for a number of weeks under my care, suffering principally from the infirmities of age, and died on March 2, a few days following his steady decline. I have written it according to his dictation, and he requested me to send it to some official in Paris or Bourbon county after his death. The reason he gave for not giving his real name was that he did not desire any relatives who might be living, to suffer shame or notoriety for what he was to tell.

"Mary Henshaw, 'Juneau Hospital, Juneau, Alaska."

The statement follows:

"Having been told by my doctor that I was not many more days to live, and wishing to enter the presence of my Maker with a clear conscience, I wish to make known the true facts of an affair which has been a source of regret and torture to me for over 50 years.

"In 1867 I was living in Bourbon county, Kentucky, in that section of the county called Cane Ridge. One Sunday morning, just outside the church door, I became involved in a quarrel with a young man by the name of Era Edgington over a girl to whom both of us were paying attention. We came to blows, but were separated, and I took my way in Paris, when after some angry talk, we agreed to fight it out with our fists, and the one who lost should agree to have nothing more to do with the girl.

"We went that afternoon to a woods near the edge of town, and taking off our coats, proceeded to fight. I was the victor, and he was no match for me, and I gave him a blow with my fist under the jaw, knocking him unconscious. When he tried to get up, I brought him to the ground, and he lay there for some time, and I was very young and was badly frightened, but went to town and intended to tell the officers about it.

"But the longer I put off telling the more frightened I was, and after dark I took my way and went back to the woods, and digging a grave, I buried him there and covered the grave with a lot of brush and heavy stones.

"Returning to town, I walked to Maysville and took a boat there for Cincinnati. After months of wandering I finally landed in Alaska, where I have since lived among the Indians, in constant dread all the time that I would be found out. I went to Dawson during the winter, but did not go finally, coming back to Juneau, where I have been ever since. Now that I am going to die, I want to relieve my conscience.

Signed "John Middleton," "Witnessed by Mary Henshaw, Lucille Kinsler."

When the above was shown to a number of the older residents of Cane Ridge neighborhood of Bourbon county they recalled a rumor many years ago of the mysterious disappearance of a young man from that neighborhood, but could not recall his name.

As a sequel that the story, when the old race track in what was then known as Griffith's Woods, near the city limits of Paris, was being laid out and timber being cut down to make a clearing, a number of the bones of what physicians at that time declared to be those of a human skeleton were unearthed, and it is thought these were the bones of the missing young man.

A Profitable Sow

Will Connor, with Wagers & Connor, of Union Stock Yards, Cincinnati, sold a fine sow for W. S. Huey, of Bellevue neighborhood, this county, 12 thoroughbred pigs, in months old that weighed 100 pounds, and brought $25.00 per 100 pounds, and netted Mr. Huey $35.20. These pigs were all one litter of pigs, and very remarkable features. If transaction, if any persons who do better with a single litter of pigs this office would like to receive a report from you. Says that kind of pig will sell well $100.

Who'll Get the Five Helms?

The allotment of German helmets in the Fourth District has been worked out approximately on a basis of the number of subscribers in the Fourth. The entire district was given 6,000 for distribution, of which Boone county's share is five.

IN THE SHADOW

America stood just as much in the shadow of Prussianism when we entered the world war as did England, France, Italy, or any one of the lesser allied nations. Had Germany won the war we would have paid just as heavily as they.

In fact America would have borne the lion's share of the cost. For America alone had the money to pay. And Germany knew it.

Forty billions of dollars was the assessment scheduled against us. But even this would not have been the worst of it. Germany had other extortions in mind.

This would have shattered our foreign commerce. She wanted most of all the Germanization of America. This would have meant a permanent loss of our liberties. A modified enslavement.

And she had planned what in effect would have been a United German States of the world. This would have meant German domination and America a vassal nation.

But America's entry into the war knocked the German ambitions into a cocked hat. Saved America from all this arrogant German domination.

It will have cost us, eventually, something more than $30,000,000,000.

And a lot of the hills are yet to be paid. Probably half of them. In these the proceeds of the Victory Liberty loan will be applied.

Of course you are appreciative. Value your liberty, your common country, the nation's prosperity, the national as well as your individual welfare.

You can prove just how much by your subscription.

270,000 FARMS IN KY.

Huge Acreage Sown -- State Leads Indiana, Virginia, Illinois and Tennessee.

Washington, April 2.—Kentucky's importance as an agricultural state is being demonstrated by the fact that it was reported today that the State's aggregate acreage for 1918 was 6,992,000, and that the value of farm land is steadily going up.

Statistics of the Department of Agriculture show that there are 270,000 farms in Kentucky, 55,000 more than there are in Indiana, 15,000 more than in Tennessee, 35,000 more than in Illinois and 75,000 more than in Virginia.

Although Kentucky has more farms within its borders than its neighboring States, Indiana, Tennessee and Illinois, run ahead of the Bluegrass State when it comes to the aggregate crop acreage, which includes those of corn, wheat, barley, oats, rice, buckwheat, potatoes, flax, tobacco, hweat, potatoes, flax tobacco,

U. S. Will Pay Half the Cost

An effort will be made to get the county to concrete the Dixie highway from the Boone-Kenton line to the corporation line of the town of Florence. The distance is about a mile and the U. S. government will pay half the cost of the reconstruction. It will be the cheapest highway in the county can build. Kenton county road authorities claim that the saving on that part of the Dixie Highway made of concrete in that county since the work was completed has been sufficient to reconstruct the road again with concrete. It was blown up with dynamite. They say the year on the road to date has been insignificant.

Well Pleased With His Sale

Benjamin Paddock, of Hebron, was a caller at this office one day the past week. Mr. Paddock was highly pleased with the success of his dairy stock sale had a few days before his fall. PACIFIER DIES IN FLORIDA

Daniel Boone Logan, of Rowan County, Ended Career of Notorious Tolliver Gang.

(Courier-Journal.)

Daniel Boone Logan, said to be the richest man in Bell county, whose life story reflects the picturesque thrills of one of Kentucky's bitterest feuds, died in St. Petersburg, Fla., according to word received by friends here.

In his early years he led the men who rid Rowan county of the notorious Tolliver gang, and "reclaimed that section of the State from its bad reputation."

Mr. Logan owned coal mines and farms in Rowan and Bell county, where he was one of the wealthiest men in the State. He maintained his home in Pineville. He was also a lawyer of considerable reputation.

Clarence E. Walker, who knew Mr. Logan intimately, told the story of Logan's spectacular career in Rowan county.

"Craig Tolliver, a notorious leader of the villainous band of desperadoes which operated around Morehead, had conceived the idea of running for County Judge. It was in the days of viva voice voting and Logan, then a young lawyer, quiet, assuming and practicing considerable property and practice, after having offered Tolliver by voting for Tolliver's opponent as the feud lead or blood beside him, threatened

"I'll give you until Saturday to pack up and move away from here," he told Logan.

"Instead of being afraid and running away Logan went home and strapped on a gun, the first time in his life he had worn one, but on his wife's plea, went away ostensibly to Cincinnati on business."

"Tolliver is said to have sent an insulting message to Logan and the result was that the young lawyer went to Frankfort and is said to have proposed to the Governor that if he could give him assurance that he would not be prosecuted, he would go to Rowan county and wipe out the entire Tolliver gang."

"With his own money he then purchased two cases of Winchester rifles and plenty of ammunition, which he distributed to the law-abiding men were gathered by him. They met in a ravine 100 yards from the Morehead depot, and armed themselves."

"The situation in Rowan county, it should be explained, was then intolerable. The Governor had sent special judges and special constables to determine the situation in Rowan county, but no matter what steps were taken, it was always impossible to convict anyone of a crime in Rowan county. One of the gangsters would kill someone and twenty of his pals would swear to an alibi for him. Everyone knew the alibi was manufactured, but no juror dared vote for conviction when he knew it was like signing his death warrant."

"Craig Tolliver was slain at the depot as he came down personally to look over the arrivals, as was his daily habit. Logan's shot knocked off his hat, but two others hit him in the back. Several more of the gang were killed by the Vigilance Committee one a Tolliver boy of 14.

"Logan came across his committee about to kill little Tige Tolliver, a boy of 7 or 8, and he interfered."

"Every member of the State will be glad to know that we have wiped out a lawless gang, but it must not be done the killing of a child."

"Every thought of the agreement was to kill every Tolliver and Logan's life was in danger from his own followers, he held out for the boys and saved him."

"Tige and a Tolliver woman were sent 200 or 300 miles away from Rowan county. Lawlessness ceased and there was no pretense to punish the Vigilance Committee."

"It must be added that after twelve years, when none of the men who killed Craig Tolliver was riding alone, he was fired at from ambush, and quick as a flash, fired back into the bush, where the bullet came from. Investigating, he found that his bullet had found its mark. It was Tige Tolliver, then he came back to avenge his brothers and father, and he was dead."

Mr. Logan removed to Bell county some years after this and by his efforts laid the foundations of this great fortune.

New Record in Road Building

Washington, April 2.—Adoption of plan to expedite highway construction under the enlarged program recently authorized by Congress are expected to result in more miles of roads being constructed this year than in any previous year in the nation's history. Secretary of Agriculture Houston announced in a statement issued today. If all States take advantage of the opportunity offered and make available for road building sums equal to those apportioned by Federal road officials a total of $34,800,000 may be expended.

Under the Federal laws, Secretary Houston says, the various State highway departments have been strengthened and developed to more satisfactory, and he points out that the existence of an agency in nearly every State actively co-operating with the Department of Agriculture makes it possible to speed up road building more rapidly than any other branch of public works.

In discussing the Federal aid as amended, Secretary Houston points out that it places only three limitations on the types of roads to be constructed. These are:

That the roads shall be substantial in character; that the amount contributed from the Federal treasury in connection with a road shall not exceed $20,000 a mile, and that the road must be a "rural postroad" as defined in the act as amended. Under the original wording of the law, Federal funds could be expended only on roads which the majority of "rural" or "may hereafter be designated."

The definition of "rural postroads" now has been changed in such a way that very few important roads will be debarred from receiving Federal aid if all the requirements of the act are complied with.

KILLED HIS WIFE

Elbert Clore Shot and Killed His Wife in Their Home in Covington.

Says His Wife Had Attempted to Poison Him.

Following an argument in an apartment at 110 Pike street, Covington, last night, Elbert Clore, 34 years old, owner of a farm in Boone county, Kentucky, fired two shots at his wife, Mrs. Elbert Clore, 26 years old, one of the bullets entering her right cheek and taking an upward course. She died at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington.

Clore was arrested a few minutes after the shooting by Detectives Parker and Higgins on Pike street, not far from his home. At police headquarters Clore admitted he fired the shots, police say, and told his examiners that he had reason to believe his wife had been associating with a Cincinnati saloon keeper, whose surname he mentioned. The saloon keeper, he said, when he reproached her,

For several days, Clore said, Mrs. Clore had not been at home. During that time his mother-in-law had taken care of the house. Clore also declared his wife had made attempts to poison him, on one occasion giving him a compound of two poisons under a disguise of a drink.

The Clores were married three years ago.

Covington police said their records showed that Clore had been arrested for a crime since his marriage on warrants signed by Mrs. Clore charging failure to provide.

The above is copied from last Friday morning's Enquirer. Elbert Clore is the son and only child of the late C. C. Clore, and has been living in Covington some time with his second wife, who was Jessie Hampton, of Florence, daughter of the late John Hampton.

REPUBLICANS UNITED; ARE DEMOCRATS SPLIT?

Morrow's Nomination Assured -- Democrats Still Divided.

With the Republican ticket practically made up and the Democratic candidates nearly all announced, politicians are beginning to turn their attention to the party platforms. The Republican platform convention will be held in Lexington May 15th, but it is thought that the Democrats, as they did in 1915, will wait until after the primaries before calling a platform convention.

Hon. Edwin P. Morrow is assumed of the Republican nomination for governor and will, it is thought, dictate the party's platform. After Morrow's speech in Louisville recently on the woman suffrage question, a suffrage plank will not doubt be inserted in a platform mentioning, but not stressing the governor's pardoning power will be included, it is thought.

Colonel Denhardt announces or Major Wilson's candidacy gains strength, politicians believe the race will be between Judge Carroll, Judge Black, and Dr. H. H. Cherry, Gen. Haly will probably not announce for the nomination but will declare his preference soon.

Ed. D. Shinnick, of the Shelby Record, declares that Denhardt, Wilson, and Haly know that they can't win a shadow of a chance for the nomination and that either Black, Cherry, or Carroll will win the nomination. Several politicians have agreed with him. Tom Cromwell, the Enquirer correspondent says that if the Democrats are to "sneak" a shadow in, he remembers that if they united on a strong candidate, the "Stanley faction" is badly split up, their support being divided between Black, Cherry, and Carroll. The prohibition question is apparently dead but the candidates' respective attitudes on the new tax law may cut some figure in the primaries.

Commissioner of Agriculture Mat Cohen announced his candidacy last week for governor of the State. Attorney General Chas. Morris has refused to make the race for a renomination, preferring to remain in the office as an assistant. The nomination for Attorney General will probably be fought out with R. W. Lysanby, of Princeton, Frank E. Daugherty, of Bardonia, and Frank C. Greene, of Carrollton.

Hogan Presser Dead

Hogan Presser, 62, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. R. T. Stephens, in Rabbit Hash, last Monday morning, where he had been mostly bedridden for many years. He was the last member of the family of the late William Presser, who lived for many years on what is now known as the McGuffee farm in Bellevue precinct. Mr. Presser was a Confederate soldier, having served with distinction in the southern army during the war between the States, participating in several of the hardest battles. He was a very popular man with all who knew him, and was well known to turn a friend down, always being ready to render what assistance he could to the needy. He was never known to turn a friend down, always being ready to render what assistance he could to the needy. Aids Farmer.

The end of the war has served to bring about already one condition which the average American farmer regards as being almost in the light of a heavenly blessing, and that is the fact that wheat is no longer binding twine. Farmers will be able to buy their twine this year at a price slightly less than last year, and there will be no indication or fear of a shortage, it is said by dealers. Sufficient sisal fiber already has been imported to meet the demands during the present year, even though a tremendous wheat crop is in sight.

The price agreed upon is at the rate of 25 cents per pound for less than carload lots, f. o. b. factory. This compares with 24 cents per pound last year.

While the price of binder twine will be about three times as much as four years ago, the farmers probably will not do much complaining, when they consider the guarantee prevails. A Department of Agriculture expert estimated that it will cost a farmer about 28 cents an acre for twine to bind his wheat over what it did four years ago, but that his revenue from the $2.25 per bushel wheat will be about $1.75 an acre more than it was, when wheat did not go higher than a bushel.

Buggy Pulled in Two

As Daniel Carpenter was coming home from school last Thursday afternoon his buggy came uncoupled, leaving him sitting in the middle of the road while the horse was attached to the vehicle was running with four wheels, which resulted in him receiving several ugly cuts on his legs—in fact just about running him.

Just a Few Things

Under the head of "Just a Few Things" the editor of the Pendleton Reformer gives his readers the following insight to his labors:

"With this issue we are entering upon the second year as publisher and editor of the Pendleton Reformer, and we find words inadequate to express our profound thanks to the patrons who have loyally helped us during the past year. Our correspondents have rendered us valuable services, and we thank them one and all.

"We are frank to confess that the paper at all times has not (for lack of help) been what it otherwise should have been. But those not familiar with the practical workings of a newspaper office can not thoroughly understand the disadvantage under which we have labored the past year. Let us mention just a few things that came into the daily routine: Build fires, sweep, wash presses and rollers, do job printing, set advertisements, prepare copy, make the news forms, carry to the press and copy and then set the type on it, make proof sheets, read and proof the copy, make the distribution of the type. Callers at the office must be given attention, the telephone must be answered, the press running, must be stopped and the phone answered, which is very often a request to see if there is any mail for the party, and it is not certain when there would be. We cheerfully obey the request, and if we escape being hurried by a jump of coal by the postmaster, his deputy or some of the rural carriers, we return to our office to again take up about the same line of pleasures and meditate upon what a glorious thing it is to be a practical printer and editor."

COUNTY BOARD OF AGRICULTURE MEETS

The Boone County Board of Agriculture met with County Farm Agent Sutton at the Circuit Court room in Burlington last Friday afternoon, and outlined work to be pressed in the county during the year.

The following chairmen of committees reported the men they had selected to serve them in promoting improvement on their farms: Horticultural, the committees are composed as follows:

SOIL—F. H. Rouse, Burlington; J. Caywood, Burlington; L. T. Clore, Burlington; C. C. Mead, Beaver.

DAIRY—Hubert Conner, Burlington, H. H. Clack, Beaver, O. C. Hafer, Hebron, W. G. Kite, Grant, Theo. Carpenter, Walton.

POULTRY—Chas. Hauser, Burlington, H. H. Clack, Beaver, R. H. Carter, Petersburg, Walter Ryle, Grant R. D.

HOGS—Chester Tanner, Florence, H. H. Clack, Beaver, W. M. Baily, Burlington, Hubert Ryle, Grant.

BEEF CATTLE—Joe Walton, Burlington, Robt. McClusson, Burlington, John B. Walton, Burlington, James Huey, Union, Colin Kelly, Grant.

SHEEP—Colin Kelly, Grant, L. T. Clore, Burlington, H. H. Clack, Beaver, J. H. Stevens, Burlington, Warren Lassing, Walton.

BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUBS—W. G. Kite, Grant, J. A. Caywood, Burlington, H. H. Clack, Beaver, R. H. Carter, Petersburg, H. H. Clack, Beaver.

HORTICULTURE—W. H. Clayton, Hebron, Miron Sasser, Burlington, J. S. Robinson, Burlington, Chas. Tanner, Erlanger.

These committees will assist and advise in something like the following plan of county work: Soil Improvements—Limestone demonstration, acid phosphate demonstration and raw rock phosphate demonstration, in each magisterial district.

Crop Improvement—Control of plant disease, control of insects by spraying, demonstration of alfalfa clover, soy bean, corn and soy beans, tobacco.

Livestock Improvement—Organization of all clubs, organization of all associations, self-insurance, hogging down crops, best cattle, dairy, poultry, preventing spread of infectious diseases, promoting the use of new sales.

Fertilization—Spraying, fertilization, manure, cultivation, H. H. Clack, Beaver, M. H. Traders' Association, cooperative marketing of livestock and crops, poultry, annual or semi-annual showing of livestock sales.

Boys' and Girls' Clubs—Poultry, corn, dairy, beef, tobacco, Italy, He. Sheep.

Julius Ueberger one of the prosperous farmers of the north end of the county has been a successful producer of both hogs and tobacco, and says he kept tabs on both for several years and he found that the hogs came out a head as profit producers.

WALTON.

Jno. L. Vest spent the first of the week at Springfield, Ohio, in regard to some of his law practice.

Wm. Don sold his residence in the Clarke subdivision of Walton to Harry E. Powers for $1,150, possession given at once.

For Sale—Seed corn, two varieties, strawberry and yellow dent. Price $100 per bushel. J. D. Powers, Verona, Ky.

Judge J. G. Tomlin who is able to use an invalid chair is much improved and his recovery to his usefulness in business and general affairs is looked forward to at an early date.

John E. Williams and family expect to move back to their farm near town from Lexington as soon as the school season closes and their many friends welcome their return.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Readnour of Cincinnati, spent the first of the week here on their return from Florida where they spent a part of their honeymoon and they were warmly welcomed by their many friends.

Judge Chas. Strother spent Monday in Covington and Newport in relation to some law cases he has in the courts there. His practice is constantly growing to such a degree that he is kept very busy in the various courts.

Dr. Harry W. Hamilton, of Chicago, spent the first of the week with his parents Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Hamilton at Verona, and greeted friends in Walton as he passed through in his auto with his relatives who met him in Cincinnati.

Walton Lodge of Odd-Fellows will have a special meeting Friday night, April 11th, for rehearsal of the Initiatory Degree which is to be conferred on two candidates Saturday night, April 12th. All members in good standing are cordially invited to be present.

Rev. J. D. Waters, who was recently selected as the pastor of Walton Christian church, preached his first sermon, last Sunday to an audience of about thirty and made a most excellent impression on all who had the pleasure of listening to the splendid sermon he delivered.

Mrs. Fannie H. Sleet, administratrix of the estate of Barnett K. Sleet, deceased, received the insurance on Mr. Sleet's life this week, $2,000 from the Commonwealth Life Insurance Co., of Louisville, and $2,000 from the Union Central Life Insurance Co. of Cincinnati.

Walton Masonic Lodge had a fine meeting last Friday night when the degree of a master Mason was conferred on H. H. Huston, followed by the beautiful stereopticon lecture by Bro. Jno. L. Vest. A nice luncheon was served, and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by about thirty of the members.

The Walton Loose Leaf Warehouse is still having large sales of tobacco every Saturday and Wednesday, there being over 50,000 pounds of tobacco on the floor every sale. The sale last Saturday averaged nearly 11 cents and was the lowest in price since the warehouse has been opened. The sales this week will be well patronized and a heavy offering at both sales.

Hon. John J. Howe, of Carrollton, J. Schenck, E. L. Suter and S. W. Beverly of Northville, spent last Thursday evening here with the Knights of Pythias lodge for the purpose of endorsing the lodge to more active work, and succeeded in doing much good, and the weekly meeting will again be resumed. Bro. Howe is to be the Grand Chancellor of Kentucky this year and the lodge here owes it to him to get busy and have not only an active lodge but an increased membership. For there is no finer gentleman in the State than Bro. Howe.

The Equitable Bank and Trust Company at the annual meeting of the stockholders, Saturday elected the following directors and other Directors: Jno. C. Bedinger (new member); John E. Williams, A. M. Edwards, Jno. L. Vest, A. B. Tompkins, D. B. Wallace, John C. Miller, W. T. Loomis, R. B. Brown, Dr. R. E. Fyfe, Chas. L. Griffith, President, D. B. Wallace, V. President, Jno. L. Vest, Cashier, John C. Miller, Assistant Cashier, H. E. Metcalfe. The business of the bank is the best ever enjoyed by the institution, having over $600,000 deposits and a half million dollars in loans.

PETERSBURG.

Lacey Cropper and wife are ill. Lena Shinkle spent last Saturday and Sunday with relatives and friends in Bellevue.

Mrs. Carlton Cramer of Cincinnati, is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. W. P. Cropper.

Ralph White and wife were calling at Bolivar Shinkle's Sunday evening.

E. G. Cox has purchased a Ford, Hubert McMullen and family and Miss Ethel Rector were calling on Lewis Rector Sunday.

Preaching here at the Baptist church Sunday at Bro. Swindler. Try and come everybody.

In the Public Forum

A member of the British House of Commons, now on a visit to America, compliments this country upon "the thoroughness and intelligence with which your newspaper press is discussing the draft of the League of Nations and foreign affairs in general."

We think the compliment is deserved. The average of intelligence shown by the newspaper debate has, indeed, been very much higher than what has come from Congress. There has been a really strong, informative speech made either for or against the League of Nations in either branch of Congress. Nor have our Congressmen acted as if they had any hope that the people would pay attention to what they have to say. Their remarks have been entombed in the Congressional Record, and with the exception of the Lodge-Lowell debate and a speaking tour of Mr. Taft, the whole subject has been handed over to the newspapers for consideration.

Something of this kind, unless we are mistaken, is taking place in England. The House of Commons is doing and saying very little, either about foreign or domestic problems. The English press is doing its part fairly well, but nothing like so well as the American press.

Years ago Mr. Gladstone said that, if a choice had to be made between the influence exerted by the House of Commons, and the public press of England, he would say that nine times out of ten the press would exert the more influence, and that the arguments in the press would be better prepared and better presented than the arguments in Parliament. Congress is at a low ebb in this country, and it would not be high praise to say that the American press is doing much better work than Congress. Louisville Post.

KIDNEYS WEAKENING?

LOOK OUT!

Kidney troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow slowly but steadily, undermining health with deadly certainty, until you feel a victim to incurable disease. Stop your troubles while there is time. Don't wait until little pains become big aches. Don't trifle with disease. To avoid future suffering begin treatment with GOLD MEDAL Haakon Oil Capsules now. Take three or four every day until you are entirely free from pain.

The housewife of Holland would almost as soon be without food as without her "Real Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL Haakon Oil Capsules. They restore strength and are responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders. Do not delay. Go to your drugstore and insist on his supplying you with GOLD MEDAL Haakon Oil Capsules. Take them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund you money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box and accept no other. In sealed boxes, three sizes.

This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1896 the government of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its preparation and sale.

A Week's News

Several persons have planted their potatoes.

Don't forget to attend the Senior Class play April 19th.

"STANDING BY," a new play at Library Hall, Burlington, April 19th.

R. L. McNeely and wife have moved to Mrs. Blanche Casor's house.

Mrs. M. A. Yelton and children are visiting relatives in Bracken county.

Miss Alma Allen, of Lexington, was the guest of Miss Nell Martin Sunday and Monday.

A great deal of corn land in the northern part of the county has been broken in the past two weeks.

Monter Martin has a position with the Ford automobile shops in Cincinnati. He went to work last Monday morning.

The trees put forth their buds and leaves with a rush with Monday night. Many fruit trees are now in full bloom.

Don't fail to see and hear Henry of the "EXPULSION POST" at Library Hall, April 19. He has an interesting story.

W. A. Gains returned the latter part of last week from a pleasant sojourn of several weeks in St. Petersburg, Florida.

H. W. Shearer, of Newport, spent last Sunday in Burlington where his wife is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall.

The High School students who have the matter in charge are hustling for their annual which will be especially interesting this year.

Mrs. Mat Graves, of Louisville, was visiting friends and relatives in this county last week. She may soon become a citizen of Erlanger.

Farmers are reporting good luck with their pigs this spring, and it stands them in hand to take good care of them at the prices hogs demand.

Two of the county's oldest citizens, both residents of Rabbit Hash precinct, have died within the past week. Thomas Riggs, 91, and Hogan Pressor, 86.

A thief entered the stable of Stanley Graves, of Hebron, last Monday night and stole a good horse. It is thought the theft was committed about midnight.

Miss Nora Mae Ryle, professional nurse and a daughter of the late Perry A. Ryle, is going to Siberia to engage in her profession among the soldiers in that section.

In the county court last Monday the following wills were admitted to probate:

P. E. Cason's which was written in 1906 and gives all his property to his wife.

Mrs. Mary L. Coyle, G. E. Carroll qualified as executor.

The court day crowd last Monday was somewhat larger than for several court days past, and the people seemed to enjoy the pleasant sunshine which was putting growth into everything. The automobile salesmen appeared to be the most active persons on the street.

Congressman A. B. Rouse was in town last Monday shaking hands with his Boone county constituents. Mr. Rouse is an anti Champ Clark man in the Democratic organization of the next house of Congress, saying the old man has taken issue with the President on every question where there was any issue.

Card of Thanks.—We extend our heartfelt and sincere thanks to the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted during the illness and at the time of the death of our mother, Mrs. Mary L. Coyle; we also wish to thank Rev. T. C. Crume for his comforting words and Mr. Scott Chambers for the manner in which he conducted the funeral.

The Children.

C. W. Myers, of Florence, has sold his general store in that town. Mr. Myers had the largest and most complete store in the county, and has been doing a very large business for several years, employing at all times several clerks. The purchasers are two young men who live in Ohio and will take possession of the store the first of May. The sale did not carry with it the store house and dwelling. Mr. Myers has been in business 32 years.

Robert Robbins was a caller at this office one day the past week. He looks well although he is carrying the scars of two very ugly wounds on his left hand. One of which will necessitate another operation. He is at Camp Taylor, where he will remain until after complete recovery from the operation to which he will shortly submit. He took part in the battle of the Argentine Forest and it is decidedly interesting to hear him relate his experience at the front.

NINETY-FIRST BIRTHDAY

Celebrated by Miss Mary Ann Thompson—Resident of Burlington 36 Years.

Miss Mary Ann Thompson celebrated her ninety-first birthday, last Sunday. Miss Mary was born in Albany, New York, in 1828, and came to Burlington with her parents in 1833, when she was five years old, and has been a citizen of the town ever since. She began teaching school in 1842, teaching her last school at Burlington in 1892, having followed the profession for half a century, and among her pupils are to be found some of the distinguished men of this part of the country, and many persons in this county as well as other States who cherish the recollection of the days when they were receiving instruction from this noble lady. Never a robust person, she is now experiencing remarkably good health for one of her great age, and enjoyed a bountiful birthday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hall with whom she has been boarding for the past thirty-five years. She received several handsome remembrances and among those who called to congratulate her were B. W. Campbell and wife, J. G. Schmidt and H. R. Riddell and wife, all of Cincinnati. Motion, Campbell and Riddell having been pupils of hers in their boyhood.

Let Us Know the Worst.

During the continuance of hostilities the reading public was entertained by seemingly learned articles in journals and periodicals, said to be written by experts of known work and reliability, assailing the regulation of the price of pork products by the Federal Government. Throughout these contributions ran a note of protest on the ground that this interference with the natural law of supply and demand, trade and barter, was causing an artificially high level to be maintained against the consumer.

It would be exceedingly interesting if these sapient writers would now take up the burden of fresh explanation. The Government has withdrawn its restraint and the prices of hogs have rushed upward in truly terrifying fashion. It is already $2.50 a hundred more than the Government maximum and within touching distance of the ultimate mark reached during the war. There are the usual excuses contorting the dismasted consumers. The trading exchanges never lack for protests for their manipulations. The supply seems inexhaustible and the variety is infinite.

These experts who, prior to the removal of the restrictions, seemed to have all the available knowledge upon the subject might profitably devote some of their world know whether or not the Chicago official explanation is worthy of belief. This is that the heavy demand, coupled with the fact that the winter runoff of hogs was shipped out of the country, is responsible for the increase which will be maintained, it is said, until the new run comes to the markets in May and June. They might also advise the plucked consumers of pork whether May and June will not bring forward their own reasons for a further maintenance, if not additional increase.

"America" an Ancient Tune

In the controversy over the origin of the tune for "America," which he calls "our noblest of national anthems," Poultny Bigelow, in a letter to the New York Times, says:
"The Prussian king, Frederick II, took it from England in 1792 in order to glorify himself at the dedication of a triumphal arch in Berlin called the Brandenburg Thor. This gate of victory was erected in honor of his troops who had been chased out of Prussia by the ragged republican armies at Valmy. The Prussian regiments returned across the Rhine in 1792 proclaiming themselves victorious, and welcomed with every demonstration of patriotic joy."
"The Danish royal house had the same national anthem previous to Prussia, and George III adopted it more early still—without, however, claiming priority as an English composition."
"How old it is we know not, but the legends of Constantine behind the Christian labarum, it may have been a favorite of Wycliffe or John Wycliffe."

FISCAL COURT.

The fiscal court was in session Tuesday, Judge Riddell presiding and all of the Justices of the peace present.

The court heard quite a number of requests for work to be done on the dirt roads in the county, and several requests were referred to Engineer Goodridge to investigate and report on at a next term of the court.

Having fully considered the matter the court arrived at the conclusion that the proper thing to do is to build a concrete road from the Boone-Kenton line to the Florence corporation line, and that piece of road is reconstructed.

Messrs. J. B. Jones, J. A. Sanders and P. P. Hunter appeared in court and asked that the contract for the reconstruction of the Lexington pike be so amended as to require an oil-bound instead of a water-bound road be built. The water binding will not stand as heavy traffic as the oil-bound, and the only expense at which the county is to be the furnishing of three-fourths of the stone necessary. Mr. Coner to do the grading, furnish and put in the culverts and furnish one-fourth of the necessary stone. Mr. Conner's proposition was accepted.

Hubert Conner, of the Hebron neighborhood, asked the court to build half a mile of road from Jacob Lodge's to the Limburg and Hebron roads, and the only expense at which the county is to be the furnishing of three-fourths of the stone necessary. Mr. Conner to do the grading, furnish and put in the culverts and furnish one-fourth of the necessary stone. Mr. Conner's proposition was accepted.

Messrs. Haffner, Stephens and Cason, who reside down on Middle creek, were before the court with a proposition to pike a mile and a quarter of road commencing at the point where the Middle creek road intersects the Burlington and Bellevue pike near the residence of Miss Julia Dinmore and extending up that creek. They had subscribed $600 for the work and proposed to give all the rock necessary for the work, and further give the county for road purposes all the rock it could get off of their premises in the future.

The watch which Dr. Duncan lost several weeks ago was found by Edward Farrell on the Burlington and Florence pike near the residence of Dr. W. Quigley. It had been run over by a wheel vehicle and badly damaged.

HOW CAN YOU TELL YOUR FAVORITE TOBACCO?

As Plain as the Nose on Your Face—Just Smell It

Smokers do not have to put tobacco in their pipes to find out if they like it. They can just rub the tobacco between the palms of their hands and smell it. The nose is an infallible guide to smoking enjoyment.

All smoking tobaccos employ some flavoring "to improve the flavor and burning qualities of the leaves", to quote the Encyclopedia Britannica. Naturally, there is considerable difference in the kind of flavoring used, and the nose quickly detects this difference. TUXEDO Tobacco uses the purest, most wholesome, and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate. And the almost universal liking for chocolate in a great measure explains the widespread popularity of TUXEDO Tobacco.

Carefully aged, old Virginia tobacco, plus a dash of pure chocolate, gives TUXEDO Tobacco a pure fragrance your nose can quickly distinguish from any other tobacco. Try it and see.

A TIME FOR ACTION

The Sixty-Sixth Congress Faces a Stupendous Task.

That the 66th Congress, which is expected to be called into session within a few weeks, faces great responsibilities is fully realized by those who have made an intelligent survey of the situation. There is talk of investigation, and probes into official acts of the administration, of turning the light of publicity upon matters which are now shrouded in mystery, of a general overhauling of the governmental machinery. There may be reason and adequate excuse for much of this, but that will not be enough. The new Congress has constructive duties ahead of it which are of far greater importance to the country than anything else.

Representative Frank W. Mondell, who has been elected floor leader of the House Republicans, appears to have a proper appreciation of his party's responsibilities in the case, accordingly, in an interview in which he is quoted as saying:

While we may have been pardoned for mistakes made under the stress of war, we cannot expect any such charitable treatment of our acts as the 66th Congress proceeds to the formulation of policies for the period of peace.

If that statement may be assumed to represent the spirit which animates the men who will compose the new Congress, it augurs well for the nation. The first thing to be done is to impress upon Congress that with the return to peace conditions have changed which demand a change in policies and customs by the National Legislature. During the war billions were voted with scarcely any debate, merely upon the request of the executive branch of the Government which was charged with the responsibility of conducting the war. That was patriotic co-operation on the part of Congress. But under peace conditions the spending of the public money in the same spirit becomes profligacy. Congress should scrutinize every appropriation carefully and place the ban upon those which are unnecessary. An era of intelligent and conservative economy in public expenditures should be inaugurated, and thus greatly relieve the tax burdens of the people.

Then there are so many great questions, closely related to the industrial and commercial prosperity of the country, to be solved that the wisdom of the nation Congress will be severely tested. The status of the railroads, the telegraph and the telephone must be fixed permanently; the disposition of the merchant marine fleet build by the government remains to be made to the best interest of the public; legislation must be enacted for developing foreign trade and protecting home markets from unreliable foreign competition; and the national debt should be rearranged so as to bear upon the people with as little discomfort as possible. These and other problems, all having a direct bearing upon the prosperity of the nation, are pressing for solution.

The 66th Congress faces a stupendous task. It will be controlled by the Republicans, and they will have ample opportunity to successfully cope with the responsibilities imposed upon them. If they make good, they will materially advance the prospect of their party's success in the 1920 election. But if they fail, they must bear the penalty of public condemnation. Excuses will not answer.—Washington Post.

SUFFERS DOUBLY.

A certain fellow who got too much booze and came in town in his auto the other day, not only had to pay a fine of $25, but the authorities took away his automobile license, which means that he cannot use his car again. The law clearly states that the owner of an auto found drunk while driving his machine will not only be fined, but that he shall be deprived of further possession of his auto license. The experience of the man, whose name we will withhold on the promise that he will do better, should prove of value to those who try to mix booze and gasoline. A certain Stanford gentleman spoke a parable when he said that if the fellow who boozes would pour the whiskey into his machine and the gasoline into his stomach there would be no accidents.—Stanford Interior Journal.

The Board of Supervisors of Tax commenced hearing from those who have been increased, yesterday. Several appeared before the board, showing wherein they

"When You Buy—Think Economy"

Friend of His Race

Robert R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, has returned from a trip to France, where he went to advise the negro soldiers on their duties in the matter of after-war reconstruction. He told those from the South that their future lay in cooperating with the white people of the South. He brought back the message that the colored soldiers are anxious to return to their old homes and that they are imbued with a spirit of loyalty to the South and the firm intention of becoming useful, law-abiding citizens.

Because he dared to speak plain truths and to disabuse the minds of the negroes of any false ideas, Moton has been attacked by such of the negro papers of the North and East as exist by exploiting racial hatred. The negroes of the South must realize that Moton is their real friend, and that the racial and inflammatory publications are their worst enemies. They must see that they will be the losers through any course of antagonism to the white element of this section.

The best white people in the South want to see the negro assured of his economic and industrial rights. They desire to see him prosper and develop as a useful citizen. The loyal negro in the South will be protected in his just rights. If there be any however, who have absorbed any where abroad ideas of social mixture, their place is nowhere in the South.

The negroes will do well to follow the advice of Principal Moton.—Memphis Commercial-Appal.

SYNOPSIS:

Act I.—Scene 1:—Well furnished home of the Careys in Richmond. Early spring, 1919. Aunt Polly receives a letter from her son, who is with the Expulsion fo'ces. Mrs. Oakley places three war orphans. Aunt Polly a Bible student. Mr. Carey is invited to spend some time at his old home place now owned by Bobby Walton. Dr. Brighton gives his consent. Mrs. Carey objects. Her objections are overruled by Dr. Brighton. "Only the soldier paid as they went." Dr. Brighton hears a family secret. "I am not a matrimonial bureau." Max has a fine scheme. Mrs. Carey agrees to help him. Ethelind believes Max a war profiteer. Ethelind is determined to go to the country. She is determined to stand by her soldier boy.

Act II. Scene 1:—Plain room at the home of the Walton's, one month later. Mrs. Carey impatient for her breakfast. Max arrives. He has a great plan. Has been appointed administrator of Mr. Carey's estate. Max has taken care of the will. Max agrees to buy the "Bible Student" Capt. Bobby Walton is seen a cablegram, Max persuades Ethelind to return to the city. She bids Mrs. Walton goodby and returns to the city to search for her father's will.

Act III. Scene—Hospital in France. Henry is a pretty good barber, also a good story teller. Bobby much interested in his story of how he won his medal. Bobby receives a telegram. Is very much discouraged. Rosa tries to cheer him. Bobby decides to remain in France and wants to send for his mother. Mr. Brighton appears on the scene. He persuades Bobby to send a different answer to the cablegram. Bobby decides to return and defend his honor and that of his friend.

Act IV. Scene 1 same as Act I. Two weeks later. Ethelind greets Dr. Brighton. He informs her that her father did leave a will. He reads her a letter. Ethelind is given a surprise. Off for a 20 mile drive, without a hat.

Act IV. Scene 2—Scene at the Walton Home. One hour later. Polly is entertaining her doll. She gives Rosa some lessons. Max and Mrs. Carey arrive. The deal for the farm is almost finished. An interruption. "Give me that letter." "The guilty parties will be found and punished." Max confesses and is forgiven. His scheme has failed. Ethelind greets Bobby. He does not understand. Ethelind explains all. All is well.

What the Preacher said:—While the editor of a certain newspaper was away from home for a while, he left his paper in charge of a minister of the gospel. During the minister's stay in the office the following letter came from a subscriber: "I know very well I paid my subscription to your paper the last time I was in your office. If I get any more letters from you I will be obliged to you to let me know. I will come in and pay it out of you." The minister answered the note like this: "I have been trying to get that out of the editor for the past ten years, and if you will come down and mail it out of him, then, my dear sir, I have twenty years of my church I will let you operate on."

CARLOAD OF BEES.
Virgil Weaver, the well-known local bee man, who bears a national reputation in this line, made a business trip to Michigan and bought a carload of bees, consisting of 300 colonies, which he shipped to this place.

Weaver brought a competent man with him to assist him during the honey season. Mr. Weaver now has 700 colonies of bees in his apiary. The prospect for white and white sweet clover is better than that of any other year in Pendleton county, and Mr. Weaver predicts a great flow of honey this season.—Palmouth Outlook.

What The One Is Doing— The Other Should Do—And More

Officers and Directors Of The Two Companies Largely The Same

Get this straight—there are two companies! The one is the Kentucky Mansfield Lead and Zinc Syndicate, and the other is the Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company. It is the success of the former that has led to the organization of the latter—to do just what the former is already doing but on a larger scale. The officers and directors of the two companies are very largely the same.

It Is The Record Of The One That Makes The Other So Promising

The Kentucky Mansfield Lead and Zinc Syndicate is already in operation and is already paying dividends. It paid a monthly dividend of 2% in January, 3% in February and dividend checks of 3% are now going out for March. The Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company's holdings are in the same territory, are larger, will be operated in the same manner and should pay even larger dividends.

Certificate of Assay

"The entire sample used for assay. Fairly soft native rock and an easy milling ore, breaking clean which should give a high recovery. Sample accompanied by affidavit as to sample."

The above report was made by W. P. Taylor, the chemist, from samples taken by J. R. Sandage in the presence of Mr. C. O. Storm, Mrs. J. S. Long and Mrs. J. H. Havens, who swear to the taking of these samples on the property of the Mansfield Mining and Developing Company, before Joseph R. Pile, a Notary Public, of Joplin, Missouri.

The Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company is capitalized at $500,000.00—at $1.00 a share, fully paid up and non-assessable. A very large part of this has already been subscribed—indeed, the company is fully organized and is already sinking the first shaft for the first mill on one of the four tracts (of 40 acres each) on which it holds the leases.

These holdings of the Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company are at Mansfield, Missouri, where the Mother Lode of the famous Ozark district comes nearest the surface. The 40-acre tract on which the sinking of the first shaft has already begun is immediately adjoining that of the Kentucky Mansfield Lead and Zinc Syndicate.

WALTON.

W. Richard Peddians and daughter Miss Beatrice, of Erlanger, visited friends here Monday.

Edgar Stephenson who has been very ill with pneumonia is much better and on the road to rapid recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford E. Rouse and baby of Stone, Pike county, arrived here last week on a visit to relatives and friends.

John Ingram who is employed in the insurance business in Cincinnati spent Sunday here with his mother Mrs. Virginia Ingram.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. T. Best and children of Paris, Bourbon county, are here on a visit to their parents Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Diers.

W. R. Rogers, the popular Boone County Clerk, accompanied by his two sisters Misses Sallie and Lizzie of Burlington, spent Sunday here with their many friends.

A. K. Patterson of the French-Brook Company, of Cincinnati, was here Monday arranging to open a cream station at Walton with E. L. Goodridge in charge.

Chas. L. Griffith returned Saturday from Cecil Ala., where he has been looking after the interests of his 500 acre farm, and found everything in a satisfactory condition.

B. W. Scott of near Ludlow, was here Saturday and bought two Holstein cows from D. E. Wallace for $250 from the latter's farm near Folsom, Grant county, on which Chas. H. Young resides and manages.

Walton Lodge Knights of Pythias that has been dormant during the influenza period when public gatherings were prohibited is arranging for a revival and several petitions will be presented within the next few weeks. The members are urged to attend the meetings every Thursday night so as to get the work up to a high standard.

Mrs. Sarah J. Grubbs sold her residence property on High St., to Fred Collier of Kenton county, who takes possession May 1. The purchase price was $900. The house was made by the Powers Realty Co. Frank Maddox who occupied the property has bought a house and five acres of land near Florence through the Powers Realty Co., and will move there May 1st.

McClure Chapter Royal Arch Masons, will hold their regular meeting Friday night, April 19th, when work will be had in the Mark Master's degree. Companion Oris S. Wars, of Covington, Chapter has been named as the inspector of chapters in this district and will shortly inspect McClure Chapter. The companions are urged to attend the meeting Friday night.

Walton Lodge of Odd-Fellows had a splendid meeting last Saturday night when Otis E. Elliott was initiated into the mysteries of the order. There was a good attendance and the work was enjoyed by everybody. Another petition for initiation is before the lodge and there will be work in the David and Jonathan degree Saturday night to which all members are urged to attend.

The Walton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse will in all probability have its closing sale on Saturday, April 19th, and those who want to get on the market should arrange to have their tobacco on the floor by that time. Should there be enough tobacco left over the farmers desire to place more tobacco on this market another sale will be held Saturday, April 26th. J. R. Blanks who has been buying for the Liggett & Myers Co. expects to complete his purchases here next Saturday. Nearly three million pounds of tobacco has been sold on the Walton market this season.

GRANT R. D.

Mrs. Ida Conner is convalescent. Mrs. Martha Conner, of Georgetown, is visiting her sons in East Bend.

Chas. Shinkle and family visited his daughter, Mrs. Ralph White, last Sunday.

Gerald Stephens, of Aurora, visited his aunt Miss Katie Craig one day recently.

Mrs. Laura Clow spent several days last week with her son, Lucien Clow, of Burlington.

J. H. Walton took 10 hogs to market last week for which he received $20.50 per hundred. Bert Scott also sold some at that price.

Miss Cora Aylor, who was nursing Desbie Ryle, was called to Walton to nurse her sister, Mrs. Jim Allen, who has pneumonia.

Rev. Thomas of Ludlow, preached at the East Bend Methodist church last Sunday. He was accompanied by his wife and child.

W. G. Kite and Solon Ryle moved to Lexington, Georgetown and other blue grass towns last week, looking for thoroughbred Jerseys.

Shelby and Edgar Aera, of Middle creek, hauled cow peas from Robt. Aylor's farm in East Bend last week. They were caught in the rain and spent a couple of nights with their uncle, Harry Aera.

Blinded by the bright lights of an automobile he was meeting on the Dixie Highway last Sunday night near the top of the Walnut Run hill, Henry McGlasson, of Hebron, ran his machine into a telephone pole, almost destroying the machine and having his cousin, Robert McGlasson, who was with him, considerably about the head. The two young men, who were with the young man, escaped with slight injuries. James Aylor and Albert Gether happened along a few minutes after the accident and rendered the first assistance.

Jasper Boothe.

It is with deep regret that the many friends of Jasper Boothe, known to his many friends and relatives as Uncle Jasper, learn of his death which occurred at the home of his nephew, Eli Carpenter, Wednesday of last week about 12 o'clock. He was in his 55th year, and the greater part of his life had been spent on the farm where he was buried. The funeral was conducted by Bro. Hill, and the burial was in the Boothe family cemetery, last Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock from Eli Carpenters home. He had been ill for more than a year, suffering from asthma and heart trouble. During his long illness he was attended by the loving hands of his sister, nieces and nephews, and most carefully watched over and cared for by Mrs. Eli Carpenter, who filled a daughter's place to him in her untiring nursing and thoughtfulness of his comfort. Uncle Jasper was highly esteemed and regarded with much affection by all who knew him, and especially does this writer hold his memory dear because of his generosity and deep feeling in regard to all war relief work. While he had no immediate relatives in active service he felt as everyone should, that they were all "our boys" and no one ever called on him or let him know that help was needed to relieve suffering but that he gave most generously and deemed it a privilege to be able to do so.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank our neighbors, and friends for their kindness, assistance and help during the last sickness of our father, Hogan Presser. We had many of 's assistance that were not needed, and to all who made these offers we are very grateful. We desire especially to thank the D. of A. lodge at Rising Sun for their flowers. Mr. Steel, the undertaker, for the efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral. Rev. Baker for his prayer, and Hubert Ryle for furnishing his car to convey the family to the funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Stephens.

IDLEWILD.

John Hill spent the week-end in Idlewild with friends.

J. W. Duncan is boarding with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Jarrell.

One of Bernard Berkshire's work horses died the past week.

Dr. J. O. Foster, of Cincinnati, was the guest of W. T. Berkshire, Sunday.

The prospects are very flattering for a bumper crop of all kinds of fruit.

Mrs. M. Pittman and Dan C. Pittman are enjoying a pleasant visit in Union with Mrs. N. S. Bristow.

The Farmers telephone line has been rebuilt, thereby adding much to the comfort and convenience of its patrons.

Owing to the warm weather A. D. Hunter, our local milk hauler, is making daily trips to Cincinnati.

The heavy rains the past week was very beneficial to all forms of vegetation but put a quietus on farm work.

C. C. Scothorn made three trips the past week in his new truck to the Beaver neighborhood, twice to move tenants and once for a load of hogs.

Mrs. Bernard Gaines and Miss Helen Ruth Gaines, left Thursday for Paris Island, where they will be guests of Dr. B. W. Gaines and Mrs. Gaines.

The auto belonging to C. C. Scothorn, of Beaver went back on him one evening not long since, and he had to leave it by the roadside until next morning, when he returned the two rear tires had been stolen. They were practically new and contained a very expensive puncture preventive.

PRINCE

the national joy smoke

Copyright 1919 by R. J. REYNOLDS Co.

Tasty red bags, tidy red tins, handsome pound and half-pound tin tins—these and that classy, practical pound crystal glass humidifier with sponge-moistener top that keeps the tobacco in such perfect condition.

PUT a pipe in your face that's filled cheerily brimful of Prince Albert, if you're on the trail of smoke peace! For, P. A. will sing you a song of tobacco joy that will make you wish your life job was to see how much of the national joy smoke you could set away with every twenty-four hours!

You can "carry on" with Prince Albert through thick and thin. You'll be after laying down a smoke barrage that'll make the boys think of the old front line in France!

Let it slip into your think-tank that P. A. is made by our exclusive patented process that cuts out bite and parch—assurance that you can hit smoke-recalled high-spots seven days out of every week without any comeback but real smoke joy!

A Week's News

"Standing By," next Saturday night.

Eugene Long, formerly a citizen of McVine, this county, has moved to Erlanger.

Mrs. Kathryn Tanner spent several days the past week with relatives in Cincinnati.

Mentor Martin, who is employed at the Ford plant in Cincinnati, spent Sunday at home.

Moses Scott and son Frank, of Rabbit Hash, were business visitors to Burlington last Saturday.

While thermometers were registering 80 here one day last week railroad trains were standing in Kansas snowdrifts.

Miss Katie Kirkpatrick, of Cincinnati, spent the latter part of last week with her mother, Mrs. Lavinia Kirkpatrick.

What has become of the old fashioned man who wore a single yarn suspender and his pants in his boot tops?

G. C. Graddy, of Petersburg, was in Burlington a few hours last Saturday, in fine spirits and glad to meet his old friends.

N. E. Riddell, chairman of the county Victory Loan Committee, has been busy sending out literature the past several days.

A. B. Renaker, wife and little daughter, Mary Louise, spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives at Dry Ridge, Grant county.

Rev. True will preach at Buftittville Christian church, the fourth Sunday in this month at 11 a. m. Everybody invited.

The rain last week delayed the sowing of oats, which work would have been about completed had the weather remained favorable.

Kelly's truck went to Frankfort yesterday to bring back six Jersey cows for Solon Ryle. The six animals cost Mr. Ryle $500.

L. T. Clore has made his daughter, Miss Virginia, a present of a handsome piano. The instrument at Everett, was received one day last week.

Mrs. F. A. Hall returned home Monday evening from a week's visit with her daughters, Mrs. H. W. Shearer and Miss Bess Hall, in Newport.

E. C. McNeely and wife, of Bellevue, and Perry Prosser, of Bellevue neighborhood, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. McNeely.

The several different varieties of maple trees along the streets in Burlington are easily distinguished at this season of the year by the advance of foliage.

Edward Rice and R. S. Cowen inaugurated the fishing season last Thursday. They had the usual luck and came home late in the afternoon tired and hungry.

"Standing By," a very interesting drama in four acts will be presented at Library Hall next Saturday night by a strong cast of High School students. Be sure to attend.

According to the dope of F. J. Waltz, of the Louisville station of the Weather Bureau, it will be 25 years before this part of the world will experience a winter like the one just past.

J. M. Baker and John L. Jones, of Big Bone neighborhood, were callers at this office one day the past week. They reported everything in their part of the county in fine condition.

Kentucky's quota in the Victory Bond Drive is $25,000,000 as against $37,000,000 for the Fourth Liberty Loan. Boone county's quota is $284,000, about $100,000 less than the Fourth Liberty Bond quota.

William White and family, of Williamstown, and Henry White, of Columbus, Ohio, were guests of their kinsman, James White and family, down on Woolper creek, last Sunday. They are sons of the late H. Clay White.

Tilden Dudgeon, Walton's most excellent postmaster, spent several hours in Burlington, last Saturday, and while in town made the Recorder a brief call. Mr. Dudgeon takes great interest in his office and keeps it in splendid shape.

A good sized crowd attended Gene Long's sale at McVine, on the 9th inst., and high prices obtained. Corn brought $2.25 per bushel, second hand buggy, $100, horses from $21 to $80, cows from $115 to $134. The cow that brought $115 was dry.

Mrs. Cassius Sullivan, of Buftittville neighborhood, was a pleasant caller at this office last Monday afternoon. Mrs. Sullivan is one who realizes that to have good luck with her chickens she should keep in good standing with the Recorder.

Lewis Smith, of Palatka, Fla., who is visiting his sister, Mrs. O. M. Rogers, of Erlanger, was in Burlington, Tuesday, meeting old acquaintances and looking over the scenes of his childhood. He was here about ten years ago since which time many of the familiar faces have disappeared from the scene of action.

Give "Standing By" your presence next Saturday night.

April showers are not neglecting this part of the country.

Remember the entertainment at Library Hall next Saturday night.

Mrs. M. A. Yelton is entertaining her sister, who resides in Jacksonville, Florida.

Quite a good list of those attending court this week have called and renewed their subscriptions to the Recorder.

C. T. Claunch sold a house and in Erlanger for Eugene Long, and a small farm at Devon for Mrs. Maggie Dixon.

G. C. Ransom, of Verona, was transacting business in Burlington, one day last week, and while in town called at this office and renewed his subscription to the Recorder for another year.

H. H. Grant presented the Recorder with a copy of the Pioneer Duckboard, which is printed in France, giving the news of the camp for the benefit of the soldiers. It is a very interesting sheet.

George Tupman, of Gunpowder neighborhood, had a very successful sale last Tuesday. The crowd was large, bidding spirited and prices away up yonder, for instance—one sow and 11 pigs brought $141 and corn $2.06 per bushel.

The Bellevue school entertainment was attended by a large crowd last Saturday night and the play was presented in a manner very pleasing to the audience, each one of those taking part in the play having his or her part thoroughly mastered.

The farmers of the Rabbit Hash precinct and vicinity will hold a meeting tonight, Thursday night, at the hall in Rabbit Hash for the discussion of various subjects in which they are interested. County Farm Agent Sutton will be present and make the meeting interesting.

FLICKERTOWN.

Doris Hoffman visited Miss Beulah Burns, last week. Born to Henry Deck and wife, a boy on the 10th inst. Frank Voshell and family dined at B. F. Akins', Sunday. Richard Kittle and family visited his brother, Ira, Sunday. Miss Lula Mann was visiting her aunt, Mrs. Jas. Burns, last week. Miss Lucetta Hensley visited Miss Hazel Akin Saturday and Sunday.

SHERIFF'S SETTLEMENT

Settlement With Sheriff on Account of Taxes Collected In 1918

List of Claims Paid Out County Revenue.

Settlement with L. A. Comer, Sheriff of Boone County, for the year 1918, on account of school fund and county funds for said year. I find that said sheriff is charged with the following sums, to-wit:

Amount received from out-going sheriff.....$60,219.57

Amount received from sale of 184 county bonds.....92,000.00

Accrued interest on same at date of sale.....667.38

Cash from J. E. Sutton, for a strip of land sold out of county farm.....40.00

Refund from R. Nixon.....2.00

Total monies received on which he receives no commission.....$152,928.95

The tax duplicate calls for $9,153.55, upon which the sheriff was required to collect the county revenue for general expense fund, road funds and sinking fund, in all of which the hundred dollars and he is therefore charged with this amount, to-wit: $9,153.55

The listed polls on which the county are $748; the Fiscal Court released the sheriff from GIS polls, leaving 2,133 upon which the sheriff is charged $1.50 each, making a total poll tax of.....$3,199.50

The sheriff is also charged with the following sums collected from the various corporations of the state, doing business in the county and reporting through the auditor's department at Frankfort, to-wit:

Kentucky Distillers Warehouse Co., on whiskey withdrawn from bond.....15.89

Adams Express Co.....7.73

Citizens' Telephone Co.....9.50

American T. & T. Co.....217.25

Consolidated Tel. Co.....83.77

Western Union Tel. Co.....25.52

Pullman Palace Car Co.....12.71

L. & N. Railroad.....3,206.19

C. N. & T. P. R. Co.....5,542.01

Penalties collected from tax payers for county.....119.00

Total collections for county purposes other than school.....$7,839.54

The tax duplicate for school purposes and on which the tax is 20 cents on the hundred dollars, calls for $5,692.702.

On this sum the sheriff is charged with a tax of.....$11,399.52

He is also charged with a poll for school purposes of $1.00 per poll on 1939 persons living outside of school districts, making.....1,365.00

He is also charged with a tax on corporations reporting through the Auditor's department, as follows:

Adams Express Co.....2.21

Citizens' Telephone Co.....2.74

American T. & T. Co.....62.07

Consolidated Tel. Co.....23.94

Western Union Tel. Co.....21.58

Pullman Palace Car Co.....4.20

L. & N. R. Co.....56.56

C. N. & T. P. R. Co.....1,192.49

Total school tax collected.....$14,130.31

The amount of taxable property with which the sheriff is charged is arrived at in the following way, to-wit:

The tax list as returned by the assessor calls for $10,413,752. To this we add the omitted property assessed by the sheriff, amounting to $3,000.

We deduct from this sum the value of property not subject to local taxation, amounting to $208,348, and also the amount of property released by the Fiscal Court, amounting to $45,940, which leaves the net amount of $9,455,053, upon which the tax of 70 cents on the hundred dollars is charged.

The value of the property in the county subject to school tax is arrived at in the same way; except that we also deduct the value of property in the graded school districts, amounting to $3,720,367, and this gives the net amount of $5,699,702, upon which the sheriff is charged with a tax of 20 cents on the hundred dollars, making the amount assessed $11,399.52.

I find that the $11,399.52 which the sheriff received from his predecessor in office and from the sale of county bonds and the sale of the small strip of land off of the infirmity property and the $2.00 refund from Nixon was appropriated by the Fiscal Court as follows, to-wit:

General Expense Fund.....$2,760.10

Road Fund.....14,970.49

Sinking Fund.....15,122.87

Bond Fund.....100,117.25

Total.....172,928.95

There was transferred by order of court during the year of $4,000.00 from the General Expense Fund to the road fund, thus increasing the road fund to $28,970.49.

The total sheriff's commission on all monies collected for the county for General Expense, Road Fund, Sinking Fund and school purposes amounts to $4,001.20.

Total county taxes collected other than school taxes.....$73,369.54

Less sheriff's commission.....4,001.20

Total.....$69,368.34

New balance.....$74,308.31

This sum is divided and appropriated by order as follows:

$4 to Road Fund making.....$2,764.10

$2 to Sinking Fund making.....$15,124.87

$1 to General Expense Fund $10,234.34

Total.....$74,308.34

I find that the sheriff has paid out of said funds as hereinafter set out and I further find that he has paid no monies except on the order of the court, and he has received bills for every item paid.

For the purpose of the better exhibiting the accounts so as to make them easily understood, I have made separate entries for each of the different funds into which the money was apportioned.

School Fund.

The sheriff had no funds whatever in this account when he entered upon the discharge of his duties and during the year received no funds from any source save the amounts received as the tax of 20 cents on the hundred dollars, north of taxable property in the county subject to tax for school purposes and that received from the corporations named. This sum as herein before shown is $14,130.31.

I find that the sheriff is entitled to credit on this account for monies paid to the Supt. of Schools J. C. Gordon: Voucher 1, J. C. Gordon.....$ 502.84

Voucher 2, J. C. Gordon.....3,000.00

Voucher 3, J. C. Gordon.....4,950.01

Voucher 4, J. C. Gordon.....4,977.76

Total amount paid out.....$14,082.61

Balance School Fund on hand 1,047.70

GENERAL EXPENSE FUND.

Amount appropriated.....$14,970.10

Tax realized out of 10 cent levy.....10,628.54

Total in General Expense Fund.....$25,598.63

I find that the sheriff has paid out to persons and corporations the following items and is entitled to credit against this account for same, to-wit:

I have examined the sheriff's bank account and find that he had on hand January 1, 1919, and now has the full amount above called for on deposit in the nine banks in this county to his credit as "Sheriff of Boone County," and is holding the same subject to the order of this court.

I found the books and accounts in his office orderly, neatly and accurately kept, and he and his efficient deputies afforded me every facility to enable me to ascertain fully and exactly the status of each account.

Respectfully,
M. L. SASSING, Auditor.

Accounts of Sheriff for year ending January 1, 1919.

State of Kentucky, County of Boone: I, W. R. Rogers, Clerk of the County and State of Kentucky, do certify that the foregoing several settlements of L. A. Conner, S. B. C. for the year 1918, was on the 4th day of February, 1919, filed for record and ordered to live over thirty days for exceptions, and none having been taken, same was confirmed on the 3rd day of March, 1919, and ordered to record. Whereupon the said several settlements and this certificate have been duly recorded in Order Book 22, page 98.

Given under my hand this 18th day of March, 1919.

W. R. ROGERS, Clerk.

By M. E. ROGERS, D. C.

Local Happenings.

Sunshine and showers last week.

Born on the 7th inst., to Rev. R. F. DeMoise and wife, of Walton, a fine son.

Major Conner, of Richmond, came over last Saturday, to have an interview with the supervisors of tax.

Benjamin Paddock, of Heteron, was transacting business in Burlington one afternoon the latter part of last week.

Old Dobbin has his shoulder to the collar this week and many a man is holding a position between the handles of a plow.

Born to James Head and wife, of Union neighborhood, on the 11th inst., a fine boy, Dr. E. W. Duncan attending physician.

In this issue of the Recorder is published the settlement with the sheriff on account of county revenue collected in the year 1918.

Hubert White went to the city one day the past week and bought a farm team, and is now prepared to rapidly progress with his farm work.

Gunpowder creek neighborhood just south of Burlington experienced in the furnace last week at which time about a dozen cases were reported down there.

The horse which ran away after Dengel Carpenter's buggy came uncontrolled several days ago was so badly injured that it had to be killed. It was a valuable animal.

It is late enough now for the fruit men to begin to have some ideas as to the crop this year, and they are unanimous in the statement that a big crop is assured.

Kentucky's far-famed strawberry crop will be a big one this year, according to reports from Bowling Green. Ten thousand pickers are to be in the fields of Warren county alone.

During the months of January, February and March half of the deaths in Kentucky were caused by influenza and pneumonia. Four thousand Kentuckians died from these diseases during 1918.

Wallace Cleveland, colored, has returned to Frankfort to attend school. All the time he is in school he will be employed by the party with whom he boards. He is one colored boy who is trying his best to secure an education.

The Kentucky Council of Defense is planning a historical drive during June for the purpose of gathering data which will give our Commonwealth a complete record of the part played by its daughters and sons in the world war.

Mary L. Gaines, seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Gaines, of Cincinnati, was run down by an automobile one day last week, but, fortunately she was not seriously hurt, although at first it was thought to the contrary.

Miss Mary Gordon, of Hamilton College, Lexington, will spend the latter holiday period with her father and other relatives in this county. Miss Gordon is one of the honor students in the college, leading her classes in nearly every department, and her father is justly very proud of her.

Wreden Walton, of Union, was among the "Red Hot" week-end callers. He reported this said run down to Big Bone Springs in excellent condition, and travel over increasing. The travel from the cities to the Springs, Mr. Walton predicts will eventually all be over that route.

IN THE COUNTY COURT.

The will of Mary Carpenter offered for probate was rejected for the want of proof.

Presentation of Diplomas, Music.

Benediction—Rev. W. M. Smith, Music by Conner's Orchestra.

Hunting Ferns

Mayor T. W. Bally and wife, Dr. L. E. Rouse and wife and Leola Ludlow, visited Big Bone Springs last Sunday. Mayor Bally intended to visit a locality in which he had seen some very fine ferns growing during one of his hunting expeditions in that part of the country. A broken axle in one of the machine in which the party was traveling caused them a delay of several hours in the neighborhood of Florence.

NEWS FROM INDIANA.

Lawrenceburg Press.

During the tobacco season which recently closed the Aurora Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Co. sold 2,272,000 pounds at an average price of $26.52 per 100 pounds.

Sheriff Julius G. Schwing arrested Charles E. Aaron on Thursday evening for having a gallon and a half of whisky in his possession. Mayor D. B. Teaney of Aurora, fined Seth $500 and gave him about $60 in all, which the man paid. As this was Seth's first offense he was let off with the minimum fine. The maximum fine in such cases is $250.

Chas. Kelly, of Waterloo neighborhood, who has a fine, large apple orchard has purchased a sprayer which will be operated by a four-horse-power gasoline engine. Mr. Kelly is a very successful fruit grower, and gives his fruit trees the best of attention.

Several days ago Attorney O. M. Rogers, of Erlanger, stru a boy with his automobile as he was in the act of leaving the place at which the machine was parked. The boy ran directly in front of the machine and the accident was unavoidable. One of the little fellow's lower limbs was broken.

Special Notice

To My Customers and Friends:—It has come to my notice in the last few weeks that work that had been sent to me to do had never reached me, but was taken some place else, where the parties bringing and delivering the work get pay at both ends, going and coming; and how this was found out, was that work that had been done by other parties, and I had been credited with it. I was brought to me to do over, and, of course, not having done the work I refused to do it over with out being paid. Can you blame me? Can anyone blame me when I had not done the faulty work? But, of course they were my customers and thought I had done the work until I informed them I had not.

Some of this work was rubber tire work, and those troublesome war times we all had our troubles. My trouble with rubber tires was I could not get wires that would not stretch and the tires would open where joined together, and, of course that caused me a great deal of trouble and expense. The time would also turn in the channel—could not draw wire tight enough as it would stretch. It was a deal of mine. I could not get the proper wire to do the work with, but the war being over, perhaps I will be able to get the proper material this year. Every time I have to change a rubber tire it costs me 65 cents, so you can realize that I am going to do the work right if possible. If it is not I will make it so. I always have and always will.

I have been here 26 years and expect to stay, so come and see me; get prices; write or phone me—phone No. 51-X Erlanger. I surely will treat you right.

N. B.—I will use two grades of rubber tire this year—Kelly-Bridgman and Cooper-Federal. Get my prices on anything in the carriage line. Rubber tires applied while you wait and look on.

The Recorder is authorized to announce ELMER LUSBY, of the Reeder precinct, Grant county, as a candidate for Representative from the Legislative District composed of Boone and Grant counties, subject to the will of the Democratic party, August primary, 1919.

BOONE CIRCUIT COURT.

The April term of the Boone Circuit Court convened Monday morning, Judge Sidney Gaines presiding. The attendance was very small, there being only a dozen persons, except the grand jurors, present. The grand jury is composed of the following gentlemen:

H. B. Grant, Foreman;
C. T. Easton,
G. W. Anderson,
Mart Benson,
Lloyd Aylor,
Charles L. Kelly,
Fillmore Ryle,
W. J. Hodges,
William Wilson,
Walter Johnson,
Owen Ross,
N. W. Carpenter.

The instruction given the grand jury was quite lengthy and forcible, the court dwelling at length on many offenses to which attention was called. Especially did the court refer to the malicious operating of automobiles on the public highways, and impressed upon the jury the necessity of enforcing the law against that offense, taking the ground that now is the time to educate those who own machines that they must operate them with due respect to the safety and rights of other persons.

The Aylor-Clock case will not be tried at this term of the court. The plaintiff's children are ill and in a hospital in the city. One of the children was operated on last week for an abscess on the lung, and the other was taken to the hospital last Sunday to be operated on for trouble with the mastoid process.

The grand jury had not been in its room long before there were several witnesses in waiting to go before it.

Commonwealth's Atty. John J. Howe was on hand early Monday morning to look after the State's interest in matters to come up during the term. He is looking for a first-class case and is in fine fettle, so we be unto the evil doers who are arraigned at this term of court.

The petit jurors for the term are composed of the following gentlemen:

Jury No. 1—
F. Easton,
B. B. Allphin,
Henry Souther,
John C. Aera,
Edward Easton,
Geo. B. Miller,
Bert Sullivan,
Perry Prescoe,
Holt White,
J. H. Newman,
W. B. Cotton,
Theodore Cotton.

Jury No. 2—
C. M. Delph,
C. F. Blankenbaker,
John B. Johnson,
Charles White,
John Conly,
Chas. Henyling,
Forest Brown,
J. E. Hodges,
Joe W. Cloek,
J. D. Cloud,
J. L. Kite,
Lon Aera.

Monday afternoon the grand jury returned three indictments, charging Earl Ryle with malicious shooting and wounding Mrs. William Conner, of East Bend, it will be remembered was shot by Ryle a few weeks ago, and Chas. Feldkucher and Richard Knudson were indicted for breaking into the house of P. O'Malley, of Verona neighborhood.

Chas. Feldkucher was tried Tuesday and given two years for house breaking, while Richard Knudson, who was indicted with him was dismissed.

Earl Ryle, who shot and wounded Mrs. William Craig, of East Bend, got two years in the penitentiary.

William Bryan, indicted for violating the local option law, was fined $10 and given forty days in jail.

Court will not adjourn until some time next week.

In this issue appears the announcement of Elmer Lusby, of Grant county, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination to represent Boone and Grant counties in the next Legislature. Mr. Lusby is interested in and in favor of better roads, better schools and a readjustment of the present tax law, and favors a tax law that will distribute the burden of taxation equally upon all classes of property.

Remember the entertainment at Library Hall next Saturday night.

UNION.

Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Powers visited J. W. Conner Sunday.

Mrs. Pitman of Anneton, Ala., is visiting Mrs. N. S. Bristow.

The prospect is flattering for a bumper wheat crop in this neighborhood.

Mrs. Owen Blankenbaker and Mrs. J. T. Bristow shopped in the city Saturday.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS.

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs clean and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL HAZELTON OIL has been relieving the weakness and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL HAZELTON OIL is inodorous, tasteless capsules containing about 3 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a small swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL HAZELTON OIL CAPSULES will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease. Do not wait until old age or disease have reached down far-south--Go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL HAZELTON OIL CAPSULES. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. But remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. In sealed packages.

Here's warning! The price of stock in the Louisville Mansfield Lead & Zinc Company will advance next Saturday, April 19. This is final notice—take heed!

Remember—(1st), that this company owns the leases on four tracts (of 40 acres each) at Mansfield, Missouri, right where the mother lode in the great Ozark lead and zinc district is nearest the surface, (2d), that this company has proven its holdings by drilling and is already sinking the first shaft for its first mill, and (3d), that the officers and directors of the Louisville Mansfield Lead & Zinc Co. are chiefly the same gentlemen as those of the Kentucky Mansfield Lead & Zinc Syndicate, which company, already in operation, paid a monthly dividend of 2% in January, 3% in February and 3% in March. One thing's sure—there is wealth in lead and zinc. Make the most of this opportunity!

KICK IN SCOTT COUNTY.

Taxpayers Before Equalization Board--Legal Action Must Be Taken, Says Judge.

Georgetown Times.

The Scott county fiscal court, as such, cannot take any legal steps against the enforcing of the increased assessment put on the county by the State tax commission, according to Judge J. R. Lancaster this morning, who attended yesterday in Lexington a meeting of the county officials of Scott, Fayette, Madison, Montgomery and Bourbon counties. Judge Lancaster, County Attorney H. Church Ford, R. B. Thomas and Dr. F. F. Bryant represented Scott at the meeting of protest.

Fayette county is contemplating fighting the State commission through a suit by a taxpayer outside of Kentucky, in the federal district court, and through Fayette resident, this one is being filed in the Court of Appeals. According to Judge Lancaster, the litigation in this county, if there should be action, taken against the commission, must be taken by private parties also.

A hot protest against the increased assessment of Scott county was registered by a meeting of prominent land owners Monday afternoon before the board of supervisors of Scott county. Several speakers stated that the raise was excessive and one, R. B. Thomas, felt aggrieved that no satisfaction could be gotten out of the tax commission as to the disposition of the money, a letter from a Scott county taxpayer to the commission having been ignored.

Charles E. Marvin spoke for the people of the Payne's Depot precinct, where he resides. He stated that he had been suspicious of the tax law since its inception, and had gone before the Governor to protest its passage, but that the executive's mind was made up. He declared that thirty-five counties were carrying the burden of the State, and "now they want to double that burden." Other speakers were Dr. F. F. Bryant and A. L. Rogers. County Judge J. R. Lancaster explained how the Scott county board of equalization had tried to equalize the taxes, and gave the figures of the valuation of every precinct of the county. Judge J. W. Thacker made the statement in advance of the protest, that every member of the board had been doing his best to comply with his oath of office, and that it was the purpose of the board to do justice to every tax payer in the county.

TRACTS RICH IN PETROLEUM.

Deposits of Value Found Along Both the West and East Coasts of South America.

Petroleum deposits are found all along the west coast of South America from Columbia, Peru and Chile down to Terra del Fuego. On the eastern coast fields exist in Bahia and in Rivadavia region of the Argentine. This coast is geologically the oldest part of the South American continent. Recent researches in Peru have brought to light the very interesting fact that the vast and little-worked petroleum deposits of Peru were known of and utilized by the Incas. It is believed that this ancient people were quite well acquainted with the medicinal properties of petroleum but that the principal use which the Incas made of the oil was that of lining their earthenware vessels in which they kept their wines and spirituous liquors. The invading Spaniards also knew of these petroleum deposits, but paid no attention to them, as they were then in the search of gold and other precious metals. The Incas did not sink wells to any great depth, merely opening the ground and building trenches.

Doing a Farm Stunt

Arthur (Podge) Alloway, who resides in Hickerton neighborhood attended court a day or two last week. He is remembered as one of the greatest base ball enthusiasts in this part of the country only a few years ago, and he is now just as enthusiastic in his agricultural pursuit, but spends an occasional hour on Woolper creek with his gun and line where he has landed a large number of handsome specimens of the finny tribe this spring, and he is puzzled to know the correspondent for the Recorder in that locality has never referred to his good luck piscatorially.

A War Tank Coming

A tank which took part in the activities at the front in France will arrive in Lexington next Saturday about five o'clock p. m., and will remain here until Monday morning when it will go to Covington. It is supposed to be a very large number of people from the surrounding country will be in town that day to look at the engine of Hun destruction.

Lot Trees Be Planted.

Centuries ago philosophers said of the man who planted a tree that he conferred a boon upon the race, and that long after his death blessings would arise from those who rested beneath its grateful shade. After the frightful butchering of protective forests man is just now awakening to the tremendous mistake in judgment. This has been abandoned and concerted reforestation is now being encouraged. Distinction is being given by the proposal to set out an Oyster Bay as a memorial to the late Theodore Roosevelt an oak grove instead of a marble shaft or mausoleum.

These plans should receive the approval of the country, and the original design of lining the new state and national highways with oaks and elms should not be dropped. The expense would be comparatively small, as is shown by the cost in reforesting the Adirondacks and Croton watershed areas in New York. There is something appealing, something of the beautiful in creating groves, woodlands and forests to keep alive thoughts of patriotism, benevolence and high duties permeated in the interest of humanity. Now that a gigantic program of road building, under the auspices of the State and Federal Governments, is in prospect, the plan should be pushed to successful completion. — Enquirer.

INFORMATION

Will Be Gladly Furnished By An Oversea Soldier If They Will Call At His Home.

J. B. Miller.—In answer to the letter you wrote in the Recorder in which I suppose you were hitting at me, although you mentioned no name, you want to know why I am in France. I am in the Red Cross in France. I have several reasons for not praising it. Probably they all did as you did, "all they could." I said that the Red Cross in the States was a good thing for the boys, but overseas I could not see that it had much success. One reason I have for not complimenting them is they promised to get me my mail that I knew was in that country some place. They said they would get it for me. They assured me I would get my Christmas box, also, my mother was told by the Red Cross here they would send it to me. I thought I was in France three and one-half months after this, I received no mail, and it has not come back to my home. In this box, my present, which would not have been sent had not my mother been told I was sure to get them, one of which was a silver cigarette case that I valued very highly.

At St. Nazaire I went to the Red Cross for a housewife as I needed some thread to sew on some buttons. I was told by the Red Cross clerk there that they had to keep these things for the boys remaining overseas. As she looked the part of a Captain I thanked her for her information, gave her a snappy salute and walked down to the Knights of Columbus and got the things I needed; but I did not consult the Red Cross for any more sewing material. So the compliments I have to the Red Cross of C. and the Salvation Army, the organizations that stayed with us in the front line trenches. You say you have talked to overseas. I have talked to the R. C. the greatest mother in the world. These boys were probably three or four hundred miles behind the line. I was in France on the battlefield of France you would have seen quite a different picture from the one you looked at in the front pages of our magazine (while you were tossing your shins by your own fire side).

If you have anything else to ask me come out to see me and I will answer your questions, but don't hit at me as if you doubted my word through the columns of the county paper.

An Oversea Soldier.

LONG JOY RIDE

Taken By a Fifteen Year Old Indiana Youth In a Stolen Automobile.

Herbert Slayback, sentenced to the boys' school at Plainfield, Ind., asked permission of Sheriff Julius Schwing to go and bid his grandmother good-bye before he left Saturday, and has not been seen since. It is surmised that the lad had not gone far from Lawrenceburg—Lawrenceburg Press.

It developed that Slayback, who says he is fifteen years old, went from Lawrenceburg to Aurora, where he stole a Saxon automobile belonging to a young man named Bruce who went to Aurora to attend a lodge meeting Wednesday night, and left his machine standing in the street. The theft being discovered telephone messages were sent in every direction to intercept the party who took the machine, and on Thursday morning the car was found. It had gone down the river road to Wards Rising Sun. Bruce and a friend started in pursuit and arrived at the machine in Indiana, where it crossed the river to Kentucky. Crossing the river it was soon learned that the machine was driven by a man who was inquiring the way to Burlington. Sheriff Conner was called and asked to keep a look out for the boy and machine, and some time in the afternoon they arrived and the officer took the lad into custody. About 5 p. m. Mr. Bruce arrived and identified the machine. The license had been removed and when asked what he did with them Slayback declared there were no license on it, but when Mr. Bruce asked him how it was that the number of the license was taken at Patriot his memory was refreshed, and he said "I might as well tell the truth," and said they were under the seat in the machine where they were found. He was then asked what he did with the coat that was in the machine, and he told where he threw it over a fence out on the Florence pike, at which place the coat was found. There were other articles in the machine when taken and which were thrown out by the boy along the road. Mr. Bruce said he had been told that the capture of Slayback, came over and took him back to Lawrenceburg. Slayback is very small for a boy fifteen years old, and is a bright little fellow. He says he stayed in Rising Sun last Wednesday night, sleeping in the machine. It is said that he has been thinking of taking the property that does not belong to him.

ROBERT W. RYLE

Commits Suicide by Shooting Himself Through the Heart With a Revolver.

Robert W. Ryle, 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryle, who reside a mile and a half out on the Florence pike, committed suicide last Friday night by shooting himself through the heart with a pistol. Mr. and Mrs. Ryle and their other children spent the evening with their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. P. Stephens, who live a short distance from their home, and when they returned they found their son dead. He evidently had committed the act some time before. The indications are the young man seemed to be in a bad mood, and his father, and finding it empty he loaded it with a single cartridge, the contents of which he fired into his chest while sitting on the steps in the stairway. The young man was of good habits and industrious and no cause can be assigned for his rash act unless it was the result of the flu an attack of which he had a few months ago since which time he has complained of his eyes and head hurting him at intervals. The young man was a student of the Boone Co. High School, and expected to become a minister the gospel, he having been licensed to preach.

The funeral services were conducted at the grave on the family lot in the Odd Fellows cemetery at 2 p. m. last Sunday. Rev. C. E. Baker, of Blueview, officiating. A very large crowd of relatives and friends were present. The pall-bearers were six of the young man's schoolmates, C. Scott Chambers of Walton had charge of the funeral, the procession being the largest ever seen at the cemetery.

Well Pleased With Navy

Joseph Huey received a letter several days since from his son Walter, who was here at Great Lakes Training Station. In the letter the young man stated that in a few days he and several other boys would be sent to the eastern coast to start on a cruise of several thousand miles. He writes that he is delighted with the service and anticipates a great time on the cruise.

Hogs Riding in Trucks.

Motor trucks are being used extensively than ever before to haul hogs to market, according to reports by representatives of the Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture. During the period beginning with October and ending with February, the proportion of wagon and truck hogs in the total receipts at the Peoria, Ill., stockyards was nearly double that for the corresponding 5 months of two years ago. A total of 56,380 hogs were brought to the yards in wagons and trucks during the five months of the past winter, or about 19 per cent of total receipts, as compared with 16 per cent for the same period a year ago, and 10 per cent two years ago. Increased production and attractive prices no doubt were responsible for some of the increase, the representatives say. The present growth in the industry to send hogs to market in motor trucks instead of by rail where the distances are not great. This tendency is also shown in other markets. At the Cincinnati yards, for example, 133,752 hogs were brought in by truck and wagon during 1918 as compared with 107,000 in similar conveyances in 1917.

Sandford Going Some

The first time out this year Ed. Sandford, who several years ago, was a terror to the batters in a game of league ball, pitched a no-hit, no-run game against a strong amateur team in suburbs of Cincinnati.

PRO-GERMANS AT WORK

When a Person "Knocks" the Victory Loan, Tell the Government Authorities.

The diplomats of half the globe are in Paris fixing the terms of the peace treaty. The country much that those terms are going to be like. There may be a few disgruntled folks here and there, but the great majority of opinion of the whole world is going to be satisfied. Not Germany, Hun Land is not reconciled. The great majority of the well-known dismembered monster there is the bitterness of a dream of World Dominion that has faded. There is heart of the well-known dismembered monster there is the bitterness of a dream of World Dominion that has faded. There is heart of the well-known dismembered monster there is the bitterness of a dream of World Dominion that has faded.

It is a good thing to bear in mind when the pro-German, the man who is living on a farm eight miles from Marion, was beaten to death; Fred Farmer, deputy sheriff, was stabbed several times in the back and arms and was burned to the ground Monday by Thomas Bugg of Marion, in a fit of insanity.

INSANE MAN FIRES NINE BUILDINGS BEFORE CAPTURE.

Marion, Ky., April 15.—Mrs. T. J. Alexander, living on a farm eight miles from Marion, was beaten to death; Fred Farmer, deputy sheriff, was stabbed several times in the back and arms and was burned to the ground Monday by Thomas Bugg of Marion, in a fit of insanity. Bugg, found unconscious, was taken to his home for safe-keeping, escaped from his family Monday, armed with a can of coal oil, matches and a rifle. He first the dwelling and store of Sharmay Crayne at Piney Fork. Then he went to the Alexander home where he killed Mrs. Alexander with the butt of his gun and set fire to the house and barns. Before he was captured he had lighted fires to the homes of several other neighbors. Bugg was captured by Sheriff Wm. Gilson.

Mary L. Coyle.

After a lingering illness of several months with that much dreaded disease, consumption, Mrs. Mary L. Coyle, nee Carroll, died at her home at Devon, March 29, 1918, at the advanced age of 61 years, two months and 27 days. She was married to Thomas J. Coyle, Dec. 21, 1875, Mr. Coyle having preceded her to the grave several years. To this union nine children were born, four girls and five boys. Her youngest son was killed in the colors and was killed in action in France. There are seven still living to mourn her departure. She was an active and faithful member of the Baptist church for about 35 years, and in her departure the children lose a kind and affectionate mother and the community a pleasant and obliging neighbor.

Tweddledum and Tweddledoe

How wise the injunction to count— a hundred—before speaking— a thousand—before acting— is demonstrated by the newly launched movement for the establishment of Federal home loan banks. When the Administration at Washington created the present farm loan banks numerous statesmen, publicists and financiers at once rushed to the front to encourage the agrarianism, Socialism and credit expansion contained in its action. The country was informed that the program was a thing for the support of the farming element. It is quite possible that there was a tincture of truth in the statement. But this is the case in matters of this description.

W. B. Arnold, of Hannibal, Mo., was in Burlington last Friday morning with his old friends. Mr. Arnold is holding his own remarkably well, not having changed much in the last few years, and is the same jovial, companionable gentleman of yore. He reports Richard Stephens, who is with him, as doing well in his western home.

TWENTY INDICTMENTS

Returned to The Grand Jury After a Four-Day's Session.

To Hon. Sidney Gaines, Judge of the Boone Circuit Court: We, the grand jury empaneled on the first day of the April term of the Boone Circuit Court beg leave to report:

We have been in session four days, have examined 31 witnesses and have returned 20 indictments. We have not only examined into all the violations of law coming to our notice, but as directed we have examined all of the public property.

The county infirmary is well kept and the inmates satisfactorily taken care of. We recommend that the roof of the infirmary be painted.

The court house and jail are kept in splendid condition and in need of little repair. We recommend, however, that the window frames be painted on the outside after the putty has been replaced and that the cells in the jail be painted. A more effective drain should be arranged about the entrance in the court house basement.

Following the suggestion of your Honor, we attempted to make a thorough search of various violations of the motor vehicle law and one of our indictments is for such a violation. Although we could get little direct evidence, we are of the opinion that the public generally is careless regarding the observance of the laws of the automobile law, especially as regards the necessity of using dimmers, and we recommend to the August grand jury diligently to follow the investigation inaugurated by us.

Having completed our labor— now ask to be finally discharged.

B. B. GRANT, Foreman.
Attest:—Lloyd E. Aylor, Clerk.

Meeting with Little Success.

Washington, April 18.—Despite the surplus of labor reported in the various sections of the country, efforts of the United States Employment Service to secure labor for work on the farms has met with little success, and a follow-up made public today by the Department of Labor. Concerning the labor situation, the statement says telegraphic reports from the week ending April 12th from fifty-nine cities indicate an improvement in unemployment conditions.

WORK OF A MANIAC.

Insane Man Fires Nine Buildings Before Capture.

Marion, Ky., April 15.—Mrs. T. J. THE COMMUNITY KITCHEN.

It is easy to poke fun at the community kitchen now being tried in some of the northern suburbs. It is easy, and possibly safe, to predict that it will fail. Other experiments of the same sort have come to grief, and this one may do likewise.

But the attempt shows a condition which merits the best efforts of the best domestic economists that the nation possesses. Household work has increased beyond the present or probable supply of woman power to attend to it. All the labor saving machinery, which directly or indirectly lightens household tasks, all the transfer to factories of work formerly done in the home, seem to be more than counterbalanced by the increasing complexity of life. There cannot be grimmer and better household machinery, co-operation which will better results out of our present resources, or an enforced simplicity which the world seems to want as intolerable.

What the outcome will be, the Journal does not pretend to say. It only knows that the field of choice is very sharply limited, and that such devices as the kitchen-equipment are worse than worthless from a sociological point of view. No form of living which does not make provision for children or for an enduring form. The community kitchen, at least, is worth watching.—Chicago Journal.

Hogs Have Influenza

Messrs. John Duncan and Mace Howell, two recognized hog authorities, are of the opinion that many of the hogs in the county are suffering from the influenza. They seem to have many of the symptoms of the disease that has been raging through the country. The disease does not appear to be fatal, but throws them off their feed and reduces weight. — La Rue County Herald.

CIRCUIT COURT.

The suit of Roxy Cleck against G. O. Cleck, etc., was dismissed on motion of plaintiff. This suit was brought by the plaintiff, Roxy Cleck, against the defendants G. O. Cleck and wife for $20,000 damages for the alienation of the affections of her husband, Omer Cleck, son of the defendant. At the first trial of the case the jury failed to agree. Upon the second trial the jury found a verdict in favor of the defendant G. O. Cleck, but failed to agree as to the mother defendant, Mrs. G. O. Cleck.

In the suit of John Helms, etc., against Mary Helms, etc., to recover the property belonging to the estate of Andrew Helms, deceased, of Petersburg, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendants, Tolia and Bournie for plaintiffs and Castleman for defendants.

On Jas. G. Botts' petition the jury returned the following verdict: "We the jury find that James G. Botts has been restored to his proper sense and is now of sound mind." A judgment in accord the above verdict was entered. Mrs. Botts had been adjudged of unsound mind some time since.

The suit of Betty Long against D. E. Castleman, T. B. Castleman and J. G. Renaker, was the most tedious and trying thing. The plaintiff sued the defendants for taking possession of eighteen-one-hundredths of an acre of his land and for $1,000 damages for its wrongful detention. The trial consumed two and one-half days, the jury returning a verdict for the plaintiff awarding him $100 damages. The defendants had bought the land of the plaintiff for $25 but concluded he had no title to conveyance from him. The land in controversy is a narrow strip across the Union pike from the main body of the plaintiffs farm. The case was completed last Tuesday with eleven jurors.

Charles Delph, one of the jurors who had been serving in the trial being too ill to attend court Tuesday, Jno. L. Vest for plaintiff and Castleman and Riddell for the defendants.

Court had not adjourned when the Recorder went to press.

An Interesting Relic

Moving the steps from in front of one of the doors at his residence, a few days ago, Stanley Eddins discovered that the large slab being used as a step was nothing less than the inscription stone that was in front of the Burlington Christian church building which was razed many years ago. It occupied the lot on which now stands the office of the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company, and W. L. Kirkpatrick's business house. According to the inscription on the stone the church building was erected in 1845. For many years it had a very large membership, probably not one of whom is living at this time.

The grand jury adjourned Wednesday, having found 20 indictments, more than usual for several years. The offenses range from giving a boy a cigarette to shooting with intent to kill.

H. H. Ciolek, of Beaver Lick neighborhood, has decided to close out his excellent herd of registered Jersey cattle by private sale. If you want any Jersey cattle you can do better than looking over his herd.

A two and a half year old child of Ray Ratliff and wife of Bullittsville neighborhood, was so badly burned about two o'clock last Saturday afternoon, that it died in about six hours. No one was in the room at the time the child's clothes caught fire, but it is supposed it was playing in the fire with a piece of paper.

A Statewide order has been sent out for the arrest of a negro who is touring Kansas in a Ford car which has a whiskey still built under the rear seat. The machine makes "moonshine" as it runs and the operator of the auto still sells the liquor whenever he has a worth-while supply, and then disappears. So far, efforts to catch him have been futile.

Chas. Delph, of the Gunpowder neighborhood, is ill at the home of his sister, Mrs. Timothy Sanford, in Burlington. Mr. Delph was one of the jurors at this term of the court and was serving on the jury in the case of Long against Castleman, etc., but was too ill to attend court when the case was called Tuesday morning and by agreement of the parties the trial was continued with eleven jurors sitting.

The Monroe Doctrine

We are forced to the conclusion that some people who talk so violently about the danger of "abandoning the Monroe doctrine" through the acceptance of a League of Nations do not understand the Monroe doctrine.

The Monroe doctrine gives us no proprietary rights in and no control over any other nation to make the United States stronger on the American continent; practically its sole purpose was to protect this continent—the part of the continent that could not take care of itself—from European aggression. We at no time planned to extend our "sphere of influence" over South America by the application of the Monroe doctrine; what we did seek to accomplish, and what we have accomplished, was to prevent European nations from conquering weak nations on this side of the water, and seizing their territory.

Now the only question of interest to America upon this matter is, will the League of Nations afford a satisfactory substitute for the Monroe doctrine? In our judgment it will. The Monroe doctrine has never been recognized as a binding international agreement, and foreign power except Great Britain, a League of Nations so drawn as to forbid conquest of weak nations by strong nations would simply have the effect of putting the whole civilized world behind the Monroe doctrine. And we could easily save the point that, should the League of Nations ever be dissolved, we hold ourselves free to restore the Monroe doctrine, with the great American republic as the sole protector of the rights of the weaker nations on the American continent. So far as the visible fruits of the Monroe doctrine stand, we stand to gain much and to lose nothing by putting the League of Nations behind this country in support of the proposition that there be no wars of conquest waged on the American continent.

A word more may be said about the origin of the Monroe doctrine. It is not a fact, as we see sometimes asserted, that Great Britain has never acknowledged the justice of our position that wars of aggression should not be carried to America. In fact, Great Britain had almost as much to do with the framing of the Monroe doctrine as did America. Lord Canning, the British Prime Minister, took the position now nearly a century ago that Great Britain would not tolerate the invasion of South America by the fleets and armies of the Holy Alliance, the object of the latter being to coerce the rebellious colonies of Spain.

What that action the U. S. had very little to do. But, after having stopped this threatened raid upon South America by Europe, Lord Canning proposed to the United States that the two countries take up the task where Great Britain left it, and the proposition was eagerly accepted by John Quincy Adams, the Secretary of State in President Monroe's cabinet.—Louisville Post.

Have Your Lots Cleaned

Persons who own lots in either of the cemeteries at Burlington can have them nicely cared for this year for $2 per lot by Kiley L. Rice. There are several lots in Odd-Fellows cemetery that have been sadly neglected in the past and it is hoped that the owners of these lots will make arrangements with Mr. Rice to look after them and keep the weeds and vines cut. A neglected lot in a cemetery always causes unfavorable comment on the part of those who visit a cemetery.

Out in the State.

Frankfort.—Arbor Day in Kentucky has been set for April 21.

Frankfort.—Overcome by a heart attack at the funeral of Mrs. Julia Stout, at Alton, Geo. Green, of Mercer county, died before the funeral was over.

Lexington.—W. H. Henderson, one of the wealthiest men in the city, was sent to jail for twenty-four hours for contempt of court after it is alleged he threatened officers who served an order of removal on him.

Maysville.—John M. Weddell, 65, Fleming county farmer, drove up in front of a business house here in his automobile and when a clerk went to see what he wanted he was found to be dead. He had an attack of heart disease.

Frankfort.—The temporary organization of loose leaf tobacco warehousemen effected at Lexington recently will be made permanent at a meeting called by Commissioner of Agriculture Mat S. Cohen in Louisville April 12.

Munfordsville.—The election held in Hart county on the proposition to levy a road tax of 20 cents for a period of ten years was defeated by a vote of more than twenty to one. The vote was not large, only about 2,500 votes being cast.

Lexington.—Through additional subscription from Cincinnati and Laurel and Rockcastle counties, the remaining $5,000 needed to complete the six mile link and finish Dixie National Highway through Kentucky was obtained and it will be open to travel by fall.

Lexington.—Plans of the American Museum of Natural History to search the caves of Kentucky for evidence of prehistoric man which were made before the war, probably will be carried out, according to a statement made by Prof. A. C. Miller, geologist, of the University of Kentucky.

Manchester, April 12.—Steve Ferman is in a critical condition because of a bullet wound suffered when he and James Baker, son of John Baker, were fired upon from Ambush near Crabbebow Clay county. Baker was killed. The shooting is interpreted here as signs of a renewal of the Baker-Howard feud which claimed many lives when active twenty years ago.

Monticello.—The Wayne county Board of Education has voted to give each teacher in the county 50 cents per month for each boy or girl whom they take through the Boys' Club course this year. This will add greatly to the teachers' salaries. The money is expected to be a club in each school. County Farm Agent Amburgey is pushing this work and assisting the Board of Education in every way.

Madisonville.—Prisoners of the county jail have organized a court and when prisoners are incarcerated they are tried and fined. So far none has been acquitted. As soon as a new prisoner is placed in jail the court convenes and a penalty of 25 cents or 25 blows with a razor strap is given on the prisoner. The money is put into the prisoners' treasury to purchase towels, soap, stamps and writing material.

Lexington.—It is Fayette county's next move, and this has not been decided on, in an unusual situation which has arisen because the Fayette County Board of Equalization failed to obey the State Tax Commissioner's order to increase the taxable value of lands in this county $750,000. Instead the county board increased the value to $857,661, and passed it up to the State Tax Commission to do with the report what it would.

This last week Leon Jewell, the junior member of the firm of Geo. Jewell & Son, brought two sides of bacon to the market here and sold them to Frank Snodgrass for $37. Now that seems a fabulous price for two mailings, but these weighed 150 pounds. They were from that very large hog which the firm killed the first of last week, weighing 800 pounds on foot and measured seven and a half feet from head to tail and the same around his body. He stood forty-two inches high. When dressed he weighed 735 pounds. The middlelings weighed 93 pounds each.—Smiths Grove Times.

The Sheriff, Arthur Lile, has appointed a number of dog catchers, and every part of the county is being visited in search of unlicensed dogs and dogs whose owners are not observing the law. Each posse has a wagon with an inclosed body and whenever an unlicensed dog is found, he is taken into custody, placed in this wagon and brought to the dog pound. Each wagon load of dogs brought in results in many perches from the community where these dogs are caught coming in and paying the license on dogs not reported.

The State has never been able to collect on over 1,000 dogs in any year before. This year over 3,000 dogs have been licensed, and it is estimated that there are at least as many more unlicensed.

The dog pest has become such a menace to the public that practically wipe out the industry in the county. The officers think the rigid enforcement of the dog law will result in the extermination of at least three-fourths of them, and many farmers are awaiting until this is done to stock their farms with sheep.—Central City Argus.

The school entertainment will take place at Liberty Hall next Saturday night. Attend if you want to enjoy an evening with the High School students, as they will be sure to entertain you.

MAN WHO SAW WAR ON FOUR FRONTS ESCAPES DEATH
MANY TIMES WHILE SERV-ING SOLDIERS.

Chicago.—More than 700 Y. M. C. A. workers saw service with the soldiers of the American expeditionary force in the front lines during the last months of the war.

Frank M. Van Epps, seriously wounded while serving as a Y. M. C. A. worker in the Argonne, told of some of his experiences in a talk at the Y. M. C. A. college here:

On the way to France last April on the Oranzy, Van Epps and 50 other "Y" men narrowly escaped drowning when the ship was torpedoed by a German U-boat.

Van Epps was divisional secretary of the Y. M. C. A. outfit. He worked with the Fifth division until the armistice was signed. He was dressed up in a doughboy's uniform when he arrived here. A limp and a kilted sleeve told his shoulder-shoulder what was left of his equipment complete his country's of more than six months' service overseas.

Van Epps saw the war on four fronts in France and Alsace, serving in the first-line trenches on two of them. When the Oranzy was torpedoed on April 23 60 miles off the coast of Wales U-boats "got" two out of a convoy of seven steamships. The Oranzy went down in 12 minutes after she was struck, and Van Epps and other "Y" men lost all their baggage. They were picked up by a torpedo-boat destroyer and landed at Holyhead, Wales.

In Front Line.

In southern and middle Alsace, Van Epps was in the first-line trenches and at St. Mihiel, when the drive opened, he became a stretcher bearer after his supplies ran out. Getting word to shift to the Argonne, he traveled all night by train, on trucks and on foot, and spent the next three weeks sleeping in shell holes and trenches when he was not at work.

At Moulins farm, on October 18, Van Epps and Thomas F. Hickey of Iowa, another Y. M. C. A. man, set up shop in an old barn. All but three of the twenty-five "Y" workers went back to get supplies. The barn had been under shell fire for several days, but Van Epps and Hickey decided it was good enough to sleep in. They laid a bed of boxes of junk, with a tub of chewing tobacco for a pillow and lay down.

Half a mile back, an American battery was hammering the Germans, and two German airplanes came over looking for the position. They let go two bombs which landed on the side of the barn. Soon came a third which struck the roof, bringing down a mass of rafters and beams and scattering shrapnel. A splinter was driven through the calf of one of Hickey's legs and a piece of shell tore through both of Van Epps' thighs.

After dressing stations and field hospitals had finished with them, they were put in an ambulance and then were put aboard a French hospital train, where they remained another two days. One of these days was Sunday, so Van Epps, at the suggestion of some of the doughboys, "put on" a service, conducting it propped up in his stretcher.

Soldiers to Study.

Paris.—With the arrival of General Rees from Washington on detail from the war department to take charge of the army educational work, progress has been rapid along the lines laid down in the program submitted by the Y. M. C. A. army educational committee. Text books required by the commission; post schools are starting up at the rate of 40 to a division and groups of officers and men are being absorbed by French and British universities to the limit of their capacity.

General Praises Y. M. C. A.

Paris.—There are some folks in the Y. M. C. A. according to Brig. Gen. J. P. O'Neill of the Ninetieth division. "Orr Y. M. C. A. is everything to be desired," said the general. "Among the employees are some folks. One of them was such a fool that he went and got away from the front line, and he got tied up with Boche shells and other projectiles that we were forced to recommend him for a Distinguished Service Cross. That is a sample of the men you have sent to us. Please keep this work up and whenever I am commanding this division or not, the things that you have done will make a lasting impression upon it."

Honor "Y" Worker in Russia.

News that the general commanding the American and allied expedition in northern Russia had recommended Howard B. Merrill of New York, a Y. M. C. A. worker, for suitable recognition of his cool behavior during a surprise attack on the forces he was serving, is conveyed in a delayed cablegram received at the Y. M. C. A. national war work council office.

Plan Educational Courses. English universities are preparing to welcome the American officers and men designated to take collegiate, special or postgraduate courses there in accordance with the scheme of the army educational commission conducted by the United States army and the American Y. M. C. A.

NO DIMMING YANKEE SPIRIT

Soldier in Midst of Stern Duties of War Found Time to Play Little Jokes on Dad.

The Yankee spirit in the midst of the carnage and travails of war is exemplified in a letter written two weeks before the signing of the armistice to Edwin C. Brandenburg, former president of the Washington board of trade, by his son, Sergt. Milton F. Brandenburg, who has been in France a year. Dark forebodings flashed through the mind of the father as he read through the epistle until he came to the last sentence. The letter reads:

"I dislike very much to have to write this letter to you, but the time has come when I must ask your advice on a matter of great importance to me, the complication of which has caused me nights of restlessness and many a day of anxiety.

"You will understand when I tell you that may a happy home has been wrecked, and in fact even human lives upset by similar troubles, and that is why I haven't written you about it before, but now I feel that you should know at once, as it means such a great deal to me.

"Even though I am in France, I dare not communicate the state of my mind to any of my friends here, so go to you. I know I am asking a good deal of you, but your loyalty more than warrants it and I am going to ask you and expect you to tell me from deep down in your big heart if you think that Jeff will ever be as tall as Mutt."

CHINESE IS MADE BISHOP

Ceremony, Unique in Records of the Anglican Church, Performed at Shanghai.

For the first time in the history of the Church of England in China, a Chinese bishop, in the person of the Venerable Archdeacon C. T. Shea, has been consecrated. The ceremony took place in the Church of Our Savior, Dixwell road, Shanghai, before a number of distinguished guests. The rites followed the ordinal of the churches of the Anglican communion.

The new bishop was presented in due form by Doctor Molony, bishop of Choking, and Doctor Norris, bishop of North China, who were assisted by Doctor Graves, the presiding bishop, in the laying of the hands. Bishops Roots and Hittington of the American church, Bishop Hill of the Canadian church. All these bishops are also bishops of the Chung Hui Shung Hui.—Canton (China) Times.

Where Women Rule. A little village exists on the Cape of Shima, in Japan, the name of which in Japanese means "the Settlement of Nymphs." Woman in this village is the predominant partner. The chief industry is pearl fishing, and it is the women who are the fishers. The men stay at home and do the housework. From the age of four girls are taught to dive, and the craft has always been jealously kept in the women's hands.

Recently some of the men became discontented and started to practice diving with the idea of themselves becoming pearl fishers. The women, dreading the intensified competition, ordered the men to discontinue their diving, and as the men refused a boycott was declared against them. The sexes have been at war ever since, and finally the women expelled all the men from their homes and undertook in their clumsy, ineffectual fashion to do the housework for themselves. The men have petitioned parliament for their rights.

Dreadful Malady. "Seasickness," said Lieut. Sydney Harrison, the novelist, "is a dreadful thing. It will ruin even the doughboy." "A doughboy on a transport bound for France was seasick. His corporal, to get him out of the fresh air, rushed him from his seasick state to a morning and said:

"Come on, Jack! Up with you! We've been told that the ship'll sink in ten minutes."

"Ten minutes?" growled the doughboy. Then he added with a great gulp:

"Can't you hurry her on a bit, corp?"

Y. M. C. A. Casualties. To carry on its work with the A. E. F. the Y. M. C. A. has had more than three thousand secretaries in Europe, supplemented by more than one thousand French civilians. These have been operating about fifteen hundred huts and stations in the sectors held by American and French troops. Up to August 1 there had been more than fifty casualties, eleven of whom were killed while on duty, according to the Atlantic Monthly. Of the ministers engaged in the work four have met death while serving at the front and many others have been permanently injured.

Clemenceau's Message. When in October M. Clemenceau received a Romanian declaration he asked, after a few minutes' conversation, by one of the delegates to send a message to the Roumanians who had fought so gallantly and suffered so terribly for the allied cause. The French premier's message was as follows: "In the presence of your age, I take my hat off to the Roumanian people. I put it on again in face of the Roumanian government."

Exchange Clippings. BIG PRICE FOR A HEN. Mrs. Emmett Johnson, of this city, claims the championship in the collection of fine poultry. She markets a hen for $100. This week she weighed ten pounds. It brought her two dollars and eighty cents.—Lewistown Ledger.

VALUABLE OLD RELICS. The relic of Mr. Thomas Paul at Troy there were a number of antique articles of furniture sold, which brought abnormal prices. A grandfather's clock sold for $100, a sideboard for $369, a table for $365 and brass and iron fire dogs for $97.50.—Harrodsburg Herald.

TRYING TO RAISE ROAD MONEY. An effort is being made to conditionally raise by a subscription of money to be used in improving the roads. The conditions upon which the subscriptions are to be asked for are that in the event the Federal Highway is built from Bardwell to Blandville, connecting there with the road to Wickliffe and Cairo, the townships of Bardwell and Blandville shall be paid by the county.—Carrick County News.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT. Master Cecil Hackett, about 10 years old, who lives with Mr. and Mrs. Shellie Poland, in the Liberty neighborhood, had a bad fall Monday by the explosion of a dynamite cap. The little fellow found some of the caps, which he thought he was to use for a trick, and he was not familiar with their use, and boy-like he struck one with a hammer or rock while holding it in his left hand. The bomb was torn off and two fingers on the right hand were badly injured. It is bad indeed.

The little fellow is fortunate in escaping with the loss of only two fingers.—Tribune Democrat.

Local Happenings.

(Copyright, by McClure Syndicate.)

Judge Gaines will hold court in Carrollton next week.

The weather last week retarded the work of preparing for crops.

R. E. Moore, of Beaver, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Monday.

Don't forget to see the big tank that will be in Burlington next Saturday evening and Sunday.

Colin Kelly and B. C. Kirtley, of Rabbit Hash precinct, were transacting business in Burlington, last Monday.

G. L. Alford and wife, of Bondville, Mercer county, were guests at Woodie Sullivan's last Saturday and Sunday.

Don't fail to come to Burlington next Saturday evening and Sunday to see one of the tanks that assisted in cleaning up on the Kaiser.

Notwithstanding there are several, bad mud holes in the East Road and the automobiles continue to come into town over that route.

Louisville's population is 278,126, according to the forty-ninth annual volume of the Louisville city directory, advance copies of which were issued yesterday.

G. A. Stifel and daughter, Miss Catharine, of Cincinnati, came home with Miss Mattie Kreylich last Friday, spending several days with her parents G. C. Kreylich and wife.

Don't forget that "Standing By," an interesting drama will be presented by the High School pupils at Library Hall next Saturday night. If you fail to see it you will miss a treat.

In the county court on the 18th inst., R. T. Stephens was appointed administrator of the estate of Hogan Fraser, deceased. C. G. Riddell, Hugh Stephens and Sid Stephens were appointed appraisers.

Verner White and wife, of Milan, Indiana, were guests of Mrs. Mary Goodridge, last Sunday. Mr. White is a son of George White, and he and his wife were guests at Mrs. Lucy Cloud's several days the past week.

Democratic candidates for State offices are hobnobbing in every direction in this State, while a greater number of those who will compose the Republican ticket of has been designated by the party machine.

If next Sunday is a pretty day Burlington will have the largest crowd of people that ever assembled in the old town. Everybody come and see the tank that helped to whip the Kaiser. You may never have another opportunity to see one.

Boone county's quota of the Victory Bond issue is $261,000; these bonds draw 4% per cent; they will mature in four years, the treasury reserving the right of payment in three years, campaign started on the 21st inst., and will end May 10th.

The rapidity with which tobacco plants seen to be coming on indicates that they will be ready for transplanting at an early date, and the growers will have to hustle to get their corn planted and out of the way before the tobacco crop will be demanding attention.

RAH! RAH! FLOP! FLOP!

Verona, Bellevue and Petersburg Precincts Have Gone Over The Top.

Verona's quota in the Liberty Bond Drive is sixteen thousand dollars, which amount was over-subscribed last Friday. The chairman of that precinct, D. Hoes West, so notifying the county chairman, N. E. Riddell, Verona ought to be presented all the German helmets sent here as prizes in the drive.

Bellevue precinct reported last Saturday that her quota, $16,000, was already over-subscribed. This shows good work on the part of the patriotic people in that part of the county. Edward Rogers is the district committeeman.

Owen S. Watts, cashier of the Farmers Bank at Petersburg, called up N. E. Riddell, County Chairman of the Liberty Loan Drive, last Monday morning and informed him that his district had over-subscribed its quota. Holman Wingate and Robt. Berkshire are the Petersburg precinct committeemen.

BELLEVUE COMMENCEMENT

The Graduates Acquit Themselves in a Most Creditable Manner—Rev. Garrison at His Best.

It was our privilege and pleasure to pass two delightful and profitable evenings last week attending the exercises of the Bellevue High School.

On the evening of the 17th the Annual Alumni Banquet was given, and a pleasant and profitable evening was passed; in fact Bellevue out did herself both as to tact and the unique skill of arrangement and execution of the exercises on the occasions. The class colors were carried out in place cards, ribbons and ties on the festal board. The principal, Miss Lake, was toast mistress, and well was performed. Her well chosen remarks and choice diction did she introduce each of the speakers and well were the responses. The following: To our School Board, Our Faculty, Our Seniors, Our Juniors Our Sophomores, Our Freshmen, and Our Graduates. Pointed and witty were these several toasts, and the bumpers, filled with colored non-intoxicant, were touched as we were asked to drink. After the toasts were drunk the "social chat" was continued until a late hour, all being loathe to leave so joyous a gathering.

On the evening of the 18th, we may say all of Bellevue and vicinity assembled in the beautiful Baptist church for the commencement exercises for both the 8th Grade and the High School. Three young pupils of the Eighth Grade were presented for the Commencement School Diploma issued by the Bellevue School Board, and four students were presented for the High School diploma. The home was beautifully decorated with ferns, palms, vines and blossoms which filled the church with fragrance for the occasion. Chivalry, patriotism, beauty, eloquence and music were present, and each performed the expected part of the program.

The graduates, faculty and speaker entered the church to the sweet strains of harp and violin. Brother Baker, the beloved pastor of his community pronounced the invocation. Music was interspersed throughout the numbers. The first speaker, Mr. Rogers, representing his class, delivered an address, subject, "America," to which his diction and eloquence fired the audience with patriotism. This was truly a boy of a High School who did not get the best of words of another presented to the audience by a boy acting as a phonograph. His effort indicates a bright future.

The next speaker was Rev. C. L. Garrison, of Cincinnati, who held his audience in rapt attention for forty minutes. Subject, "Building a Life." We would fail far short were we to attempt to present here the forceful logic and exact reasoning he resorted to in this address. Rev. Garrison was at his best as was proven by the compliments he received at the conclusion of his exercise. The County Superintendent was called upon to deliver the diploma, and after making a few remarks on optimism for the "Young," presented the diploma in the name of the School Board, after which Rev. William Smith, of Bellevue, pronounced the benediction.

Congratulations were showered upon the graduates, while each of these plausibly received these grips of the hand and at the same time expressed a desire and determination to go on to a completed educational course.

J. C. GORDON, Supt.

In Contempt of Court

Lexington, Ky., April 19.—An advertisement published in a local newspaper Saturday to "protect any or all innocent bidders who may buy or bid on my farm," after Master Commissioner R. J. Colbert had advertised the farm to the Rev. Kenton H. Bird, on the Bryan Station pike, for sale, resulted in Bird being taken into custody with the sheriff and put under $1,000 bond for his appearance in Circuit Court at 9 o'clock Monday morning to be tried for contempt of court.

After seeing the advertisement Colbert made a report to the court saying it was published for the "malicious purpose of interfering with the sale ordered by the court in this action and was intended by said Bird to prevent and deter persons from bidding at said sale." In reference to prospective bidders on the farm the advertisement, with the Rev. Kenton H. Bird's name signed to it, said: "They will please bear in mind that they are buying a lawsuit, as the sale of said land has been set aside by the court upon two different decisions. Furthermore, I will not confirm the sale. This public notice applies to my ad, which is displayed or has been displayed in the columns of this paper or any other paper advertising the sale of 238 acres of land to be sold in front of the court today, April 19, 1919. The farm is owned by Master Commissioner Colbert to N. Biles Carter, of Tennessee, at $299 an acre. The sale was made to satisfy a lien on the property amounting to $70,549.77; the proceeds of the sale amounting to $77,082. Bird is a preacher of Wilmore, Ky.

The work on the concrete street which Walton is constructing is progressing nicely.

America's Greatest Battle.

The official figures are at last forthcoming concerning the great Battle of the Argonne, including both the number of American troops engaged and the losses and the totals show that the engagement was by far the greatest and most costly ever fought by American troops.

Prior to the official announcement it had been estimated that something like 750,000 American soldiers were engaged in first-line work in the Argonne between September 27 and November 9th, and that the losses approximated 100,000. We now learn that exactly 631,000 American soldiers were engaged, and the casualties mounted as high as 115,000, including 20,000 killed. A force of 18,000 French veterans were placed under General Pershing's order by Marshal Foch, but these troops were held in reserve and only a few regiments were engaged, as the spirit of the American soldier continued so high during all the struggle that it was not found necessary to call up the reserves.

The losses shown above prove the severity of the fighting. One hundred and fifteen thousand casualties out of 631,000 engaged means a loss of almost 17 per cent, which is a very heavy loss for a large army, although the losses of the German selected bodies of troops. The percentage of killed among the casualties is also large, more than one man among those injured having died on the field of battle.

The gain accomplished in the great battle, of course, far outweighed the losses. The American flag was advanced in forty days from St. Mihiel to Sedan in the teeth of the picked troops of the German army, commanded during a large part of the engagement by von Ludendorff himself, and over ground that had been deemed impassable by an attacking army. Von Ludendorff's own reports show that that officer warned both his associates of the German staff and the German government in Berlin late in September, that should the American drive through the Argonne be crowned with success, the last hope of the German cause would disappear, and we know from von Ludendorff's reports that as early as October 20 the latter reported that the American drive could not be stopped, and that the German communications were sure to be broken.

It is interesting to compare these losses in the Argonne with some of the Union losses in the great battles of our Civil war. Probably the most intense period of fighting during the whole Civil war was from May 18 to May 18, 1864, in the Wilderness and at Spotsylvania. Gen. Grant lost about 30,000 men, a great and splendidly equipped army, and General Lee gathered the forces of the Confederacy together and swung upon the Union army like a panther while that force was still entangled in the passes of the Wilderness, and the first three days of this engagement, therefore, had some of the features of the Argonne fighting. By the evening of May 7, Gen. Grant had got his army through the Wilderness and although many of his corps had suffered terribly, he rushed his army straight forward and the next day the two armies clashed in the open at Spotsylvania. This battle lasted from May 8th to May 18, and at its end General Lee withdrew in good order toward the Petersburg defenses.

During this terrible fighting from May 5 to May 18 the Union losses have been officially tabulated as 30,000, of whom 4,971 died on the battlefield. The whole battle lasted thirteen days, or just about one-third the length of the Argonne battle, and the losses were about one-third of the Argonne losses.

The Battle of Gettysburg lasted three days and the Union losses were 23,000. To reach the total casualties of the Argonne battle it would be necessary to add to the Union losses at Gettysburg, the Wilderness and Spotsylvania the losses in all the great battles of 1863, including those of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Antietam.

Three hundred thousand American soldiers fought in the second battle of the Marne, but they were under French command, Louisville Evening Post.

Biddy Boosted by Science

Most of us eat eggs because we like them. Science says we should eat them because they have an especial food value. Taken in combination with milk and vegetable, they make for health, strength and dynamic nervous force. For instance, eggs, milk and leafy vegetables, according to H. L. Kempster of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, contain substances known as vitamins which are essential to growth. They are called the protective foods because they correct the faulty composition of seeds on wheat, oats, barley or other seeds fail to grow. The ration is inadequate, even if the feed includes beans, peas and potatoes, and even if moderate amounts of leafy vegetables are also fed.

Egg yolk contains about 33 per cent of fat. Like most of the fats, it contains growth-producing substance. These growth-producing substances are called vitamins. Vitamins are found in leafy vegetables, or oils in best or pork lard. Some protective foods are necessary if the health is to be maintained. Eggs should, therefore, become one of the regular articles of diet. The price should be a minor consideration. Eat an egg a day. They promote growth and increase your ability to withstand disease. As says science—and thus is the healthiest and most economical way of living.

Special Notice

To My Customers and Friends:— It has come to my notice in the last few weeks that work that had been sent to me to do had never reached me, but was taken some place else, where the parties bringing and delivering the work get pay at both ends, going and coming; and how this was found out, was that work that had been done by other parties, and I had been credited with doing it, was brought to me to do over, and of course, not having done the work I refused to do it over with out being paid. Can you blame me? Can anyone blame me when I had not done the faulty work? But, over, they were my customers and thought I had done the work until I informed them I had not.

Some of this work was rubber tire work, and those troublesome war times we all had our troubles. My trouble with rubber tires was I could not get wires that would not stretch and the tires would open where joined together, and, of course that caused me a great deal of trouble and expense. The tire would also turn in the channel and would open where tight enough as it would stretch. It was no fault of mine. I could not get the proper wire to do the work with, but I could realize that, perhaps I will be able to get the proper material this year. Every time I have to change a rubber tire it costs me 65 cents, so you can realize that, I am going to do the work right if possible. If it is not I will make it so. I always have and always will. I have been here 26 years and expect to stay, so come and see me; get prices; write or phone me—phone No. 51-x Erlanger, I surely will treat you right.

N. B.—I will use two grades of rubber tire this year—Kelly-Springfield and Cooper Peerless. Get my prices on anything in the carriage line. Rubber tires applied while you wait and look on.

Mr. Hitchcock's Opinions

We would like to know the exact meaning of the events behind this little paragraph as contained in a dispatch from Paris by the Associated Press, under date of April 14:

"President Wilson sent for Frank Hitchcock today to thank him for his co-operation in the League of Nations idea, especially with reference to the Monroe Doctrine amendment."

We did not know that Mr. Hitchcock had been in Paris, but, after being advised that he is there, it is no cause for surprise that he has been busy. But what does Mr. Hitchcock mean by "co-operating" with President Wilson to secure the League of Nations and to aid America at the peace table? Does he not know that the "co-operate" with the President is held by the leaders of his party in the United States Senate to be something by which they on his reason? And how dare he busy himself about such a common-place matter as the interests of America when some of the leaders of the Republican party insist upon revising the slogan "America First" to read "The Republican party First?"

The whole subject is one that affords material for interesting reflection. Mr. Hitchcock is a Republican, and a Republican politician through and through. This he wants to see that party win in 1920 just as much as do Mr. Lodge and Mr. Penrose, but it may be that he sees the folly from a party standpoint of fighting the peace treaty in the Senate or elsewhere. At any rate we can be pretty sure that Mr. Hitchcock is not acting upon any ruling impulse, but has a reason perfectly satisfactory to himself for what he is.—EX.

Big Sale of Jersey Cattle

Joseph W. Scott, of Florence, North Kentucky's noted breeder of high grade Jersey cattle, sold nine cows last week to the Tompkinsville Livestock Company, of Georgia, at the following handsome prices: Two for $300 each; four for $250 each; two for $200 each; one for $150. This stock was shipped last Thursday. Mr. Scott also sold to Harry Hartke, of Kenton county, a few days since, two fine cows at $600 each. The Tompkinsville people have made several purchases of Mr. Scott in the past, and have in every instance been pleased with their bargain.

L. W. Scott, of Florence, sold his small farm one day last week to Frank Maddox, of Walton, at an acre, possession to be given May 1st.

FRANCE.

The Evening Post is somewhat disturbed by the line of returned soldiers, and from some who have not been abroad, but who are following with attention and intelligence developments at the Paris conference, criticisms, which at times is somewhat severe, of the attitude of the French government and the French people.

Some of the soldiers tell us that the French are weary of their visitors and want their country back; that they charge exorbitant prices for everything, and do not meet in a generous spirit the advances of the soldiers who have come so far to assist them.

These charges we will dismiss with scant attention. It is only natural that the French should want their country back. The prices they ask for commodities are probably smaller than our people are required to pay at home. They try to get for what they have to sell all that they can, and so do the rest of us. No doubt some Americans have had disagreeable experiences with some French people, but on the other hand, some French people have had disagreeable experiences with some Americans.

It is when we come to France's attitude at the peace table, however, that we face distinctly a different proposition, and we will neither understand nor do justice to France unless, at the outset, we try to realize how very different placed France is from this country. What does France neither asks nor expects any material advantages from the peace conference. And we do not need any. Our aggregate of the war the richest people in the world, and our aggregate wealth, allowing for our debt, is much greater than it was when the war began four years ago. We have very earnestly to be able to arrange a League of Nations that will be strong enough to maintain the peace of the world, but if that plan fails we can take care of ourselves in the future.

Now let us all be fair enough to admit that France's position is a difficult one. Who does France want? She wants, first, assurance that she will not again be subjected to the fiery ordeal of the past four years, and many intelligent French people think it necessary that Germany should be put in a straight jacket for this purpose. This may be an error, but who can fail to understand that France's apprehension of future misbehavior by Germany are inevitably different from ours?

But this is all France has made a splendid contribution to the cause of freedom. She comes out of the war with her debt paid, and with over 1,000,000 of her sons in soldiers' graves. France wants something in the way of indemnity. She feels that she has made tremendous sacrifices for civilization and that she should not now be required to foot the whole bill. As we understand her attitude, she is willing to recoup from Germany or to accept payment from her own Allies. But she does not think that she should be required to stand alone.

And the position of France is very different, for instance, from that of Italy. Italy could have stood out but for the war, and she has made tremendous sacrifices for civilization and that she should not now be required to foot the whole bill. As we understand her attitude, she is willing to recoup from Germany or to accept payment from her own Allies. But she does not think that she should be required to stand alone.

But now comes a surge from out the cities to duplicate the banking mechanism of the farm institutions for the benefit of urban dwellers, to the end that they may be helped in securing homes for themselves thru long-time Government loans. These proposed home loan banks will finance the building and loan companies by discounting their mortgage notes, and thus adding them to keep their capital constantly employed.

Now the objecting statesmen, publicists and financiers are faced with the question of how to finance the building and loan companies by discounting their mortgage notes, and thus adding them to keep their capital constantly employed.

Tobacco Notes.

The acreage will be increased in Fayette county this year and several new warehouses will be built.

Pourbon county plant beds show plainly that the farmers of that section are preparing for an increased acreage.

In Fayette county very little sod land is being rented for tobacco, as the owners are retaining this land for their own use in growing this crop.

In Bracken county the plowing for this year's crop is being pushed as rapidly as possible. About the usual amount will be put in the transplanting season is good.

Some fear was expressed that the cold wave would injure the plants in Woodford county, as the ground was frozen hard two nights. But there seems to be very little damage resulting from the freeze, if any.

Farmers of Nicholas county, are busily engaged in preparing the land for the big 1919 crop, and to those who have made any trips in the county, it is to be plainly seen that the farmers of this section are preparing for a much larger acreage than the average. The acreage that is being prepared is much larger than last year's.

The Negro a Terrific Fighter

Everybody knows that the negro has been a terrific fighter in this war, with an honorable record worthy of his race. But there have been moments of fear for him, just as there have been for the white man, for all soldiers say that before they are to go over the top, they're gripped with a fear of their own.

Tobacco Plants Coming

Plants are making their appearance and looking fine.

Farmers of Bath report plants up and looking fine.

Plants in Caldwell county are up and growing nicely and the prospects are for a great crop.

From the number of tobacco beds that are showing all over Fayette county, it seems that the crop this year will equal that of the past year.

Tobacco plants are up in Bourbon county and growing nicely and it looks now like an early setting about May 15th will be possible.

Plants are showing up nicely in Nicholas county and the number of beds thruout the county indicate that farmers intend to grow a larger acreage this year than last.

On account of the unprecedented prices paid for tobacco last year, its culture is curtailing the live stock interest to some extent. Much of the sod ground will be planted in tobacco this season.

Beauty Hides a Multitude of Virtues in the Maxwell

THIS time beauty conceals the virtues—not the "sins." For the new "garments" of the March Maxwell are severely pretty, simple, modern and the kind that make you want to possess one.

But underneath this "robe of beauty" you'll find a sound, rugged, compact, everlastingly-on-the-job chassis that now has a record manufacturing run of 300,000—all alike.

For in five years that number of chassis have come out of eight great Maxwell plants—each built on the same pattern; each one better than the last.

To date more than 1000 refinements, big and little, have been made in the Maxwell. The plan is to improve—but not to change in any radical way the original chassis.

Thus you'll understand why the Maxwell never quits running; never grows sloppy and loose with age; never forces the garage man to send you a staggering bill for mechanical treatment.

Now you'll get a far better Maxwell than ever before. Which would be sufficient for the average buyer. But more than that you are getting a Maxwell that the touch of artistic magic has made into a car of rare beauty.

It doesn't take an art critic to pass judgment on the beauty of a March Maxwell. Anyone with fair eyesight gets it in a jiffy.

TO TALK 2,000 MILES

"Two way" Conversation Possible With New Apparatus On His Ship

Washington. When President Wilson makes his return voyage from France, he will be able to talk directly with officials here by means of wireless telephony. It is expected that not only will the President be able to communicate with the White House or officials in Washington, but that at the same time he will be able to receive direct verbal information from them.

This, it was pointed out, will be the first attempt at a double telephone conversation across the Atlantic Ocean. It will be made possible by the authorities, by a powerful radio telephone set recently installed on the presidential ship, while it was in the harbor at New York.

Secretary Daniels sometime ago talked by radio telephony to President Wilson while the latter was enroute from France to this country. This was a "one-way" conversation, however, whereas the attempt to be made on the President's next trip will be for communication from both ends of the line. When the Secretary of the Navy talked to President Wilson, the Geo. Washington was probably about 300 miles from the coast of the United States, or more than two-thirds of the way across on its journey to this country.

Robert Tanner, who has been bothered with rats about his barn, set a trap a few days ago and his catch amounted to 20 and probably he will have caught more had the trap not been full.

E. O. Rouse had somewhat of a tear up a few days since, after driving through a gale, he let his horse stand while he went back to close the gate, and the horse became frightened, ran away and jumped a fence. The horse was not hurt but the buggy was badly wrecked.

Horace Cleveland spent the Easter holidays at home with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Riggs.

Miss Sarah E. Tanner entertained the members of the Triangle S. C. Class with an egg packing frolic last Sunday. Light refreshments were served at three o'clock.

Bro. Simmons will have another uplifting sermon ready for next Sunday. Everybody is invited to Pt. Pleasant church next Sunday at 11 a. m. Sunday school at 10 a. m.

The ladies aid society accomplished quite a bit of work at the home of Mrs. Keene Souther last Wednesday. Next monthly meeting will be at the hospitable home of Mrs. Geo. Kottmeyer in Constantine.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Souther entertained Sunday with a midday luncheon in honor of Miss Mary Gordon, from Hamilton College. A host of relatives were present and all greatly enjoyed the day.

Miss Carol White returned home after spending four days of last week with her sister, Mrs. William Stephens, near Petersburg. Miss Carol's nephew, Albert Lee, had just returned from France with many interesting things to tell, and aunt Carol was there to help him get home.

Brother Hilton, Superintendent of the Widows and Orphans Home, in Louisville wrote a beautiful letter of thanks to the secretary of the Triangle Class, thanking everybody who donated eggs to the Home. He also promised to visit Pt. Pleasant church this summer and deliver an address.

Mules Become Popular

The every day, commonplace, work mule has become famous since the beginning of the war. The British and French did not like and did not want the mule; but they are in love with the long-eared, level-headed son of a jack now that they understand him and his many good qualities. A French buyer of mules had the following to say concerning the mule in the army.

"The reasons that we favor the mule more and more are that he is strong, for weight and height, stronger than a horse—more than thirteen hands high, can move anything—and requires much less care, hardly any care; lighter shoe; no iron in his hoofs; no transportation; and much less food, which was an important consideration, especially in 1916, when the animals allowed in the French Army was down to two pounds of hay a day and six pounds of oats."

It was a traditional notion, which the British and Belgians also had, that the mule lacked sense and was likely to stampede when kept in numbers. We were wrong. We estimated that we lost an average of 10 per cent of the horses bought in America before we got them to the front, but only two per cent of our mules.

Home-Coming Celebrated

The home-coming from overseas of Lee Craddock, who had been in service in France for six months, was most delightfully celebrated at the home of his father and mother out on the Petersburg pike, last Sunday.

About thirty relatives came with well filled baskets, and a splendid dinner, the worthy of the occasion, was served. Those present were his brothers, Tom, Walter and Russell Craddock and families; his sisters, Hammel and little son; his aunts, Martha Fulmore and daughter, Maggie; and Mrs. Ley Foreman and son, Cecil, Mrs. Hankins and sons, Floyd and Elmer Bolin; Mr. Sam Bolin, son, aged 8 years, father of Mr. Craddock, and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Craddock, daughter and son, Violet and Charley.

The month of April is beautiful and garden plowing has made very little progress while the weather has not been so dry this month it has been a disappointment to the farmers, and they have not advanced their work as they expected, owing to the very low weather during the preceding months.

The fiscal report was in session out afternoon last week, considering road propositions but nothing was done to amount to anything.

Harrison's Tomb to Become Part of a Public Park

The tomb of Rev. Henry Harrison at North Bend will become part of a public park through a $10,000 appropriation approved Wednesday at last week by the house of representatives of the Ohio general assembly. Harrison was the first president from Ohio.

COUNTY ORGANIZATION

Way to Keep Them Alive—Too Many Activities Are Liable to Result in Failure.

One important thing to be borne in mind is that no organization will continue to exist that does not have some definite plan of work and some definite purpose to accomplish. It should be remembered, however, that too many activities may result in a failure. A few well-defined policies or purposes successfully carried to conclusion will mean permanency and success for those organizations. Those responsible for the county organization should lay their plans well into the future, and keep interest in the various local clubs active.

Road improvement, county agricultural fairs, rural telephone systems, improved or consolidated schools, vocational education, standardized cotton and corn for the county, improved breeds of live stock especially adapted to local conditions, co-operative marketing, public entertainments, and social welfare are some of the projects being undertaken by county organizations. It is not believed to be advisable for a county to undertake more than two or three of these at a time, at least not the first season.

Whatever is undertaken should be done well before new projects are launched. Get the movement well under way and it will be carried forward by its own momentum. The hard work will come at the start. After it is started all you will have to do will be to direct it into the proper channels.

One day last week a mule attached to a buggy and driven by Mrs. Thomas Abdon ran away, throwing Mrs. Abdon and her three year old child out of the buggy. Mrs. Abdon was not seriously hurt, but one of the child's shoulders was dislocated and a bone in the shoulder fractured.

Newton York, the old bachelor farmer who lives down on Gunpowder creek went to the city a few days ago and brought a horse with which to cultivate his crop. Having purchased the horse, he had to have a set of harness which he bought, having 23 cents more for the harness than the horse cost him. He either bought a very cheap horse or a very expensive set of harness.

Here's First Victory Note

HERE is the first Victory Loan note. The photograph shows Carter Glass, Secretary of the United States Treasury, removing it from the press in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. These notes must be perfect to a hair line before they are circulated. That is why the head of the Treasury Department is present in person to inspect the first one before the entire number is printed. To the right of Secretary Glass, just behind the lady in the picture, is James L. Wilmet, director of engraving and printing. The perfection of these Victory Loan notes depends directly on him. Everyone in the country cannot have this first note—but there are going to be enough so everyone can have as many as he or she will buy.

BRAMBLEBRIAR TALKS

MR. WOLF AND MR. BEAR TELL A LIE.

As the sun was going down over the hills, and turning the sky into gold, Mr. Bear stepped out of his cave, stretched his arms, yawned several times, and sat down to smoke.

"Hello, Mr. Bear," said a deep voice, and up stepped Mr. Wolf.

"Howdy, Mr. Wolf," said Mr. Bear, getting up from his chair. "Sit down and rest your legs and smoke a pipe with me. 'The been a lonesome day and I hunger for company.'"

"I'll take advantage of your hospitality," said Mr. Wolf, bowing and seating himself beneath a tree, and it's quite a pleasure I take in doing it. But tell me Mr. Bear, where did you get such a coat, a heap of money?"

"Well, Mr. Wolf," said Mr. Bear, puffing out his chest with pride, "I admit, it is quite a handsome place, but as for money, alas, I have none."

"Nor I," exclaimed Mr. Wolf, trying to look downcast and sad, "and the high cost of living is making me a pauper."

Just then, Mr. Fox, who had been hiding behind the bushes nearby, and who had heard the conversation, stepped out. Now it must be explained that Mr. Fox worked the bank and so of course, knew just how much money each and every person had. "Good evening to you," said Mr. Fox, trying to hide a smile. "Can't I sell both of you a VICTORY LIBERTY BOND this evening? As you probably know, this will be your last chance to save money, and be patriotic in the bargain."

Mr. Wolf and Mr. Bear were so taken by surprise that they were speechless for a minute. Furthermore, they knew that Mr. Fox knew they had lied. Finally Mr. Bear said, "Mr. Fox, sooner or later, a liar is always caught, and this has taught me a great lesson. And if it is not too late you may take my subscription to the VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN right now."

"And," said Mr. Wolf, "I guess if Mr. Bear with his thousands of dollars can be patriotic, I can be likewise. And furthermore, I wish to make amends for not buying before."

And then Mr. Fox and Mr. Wolf and Mr. Bear all sat around the fire that night and smoked their pipes, thankful that they had been blessed with the spirit of patriotism.

Many sales had made Anthony bolder. So he braided Mrs. Shrew, the town scold.

Tony took her barbed wire. But repeated: "Subscribe to the Victory Loan!"—and he sold her.

Lest We Forget

"The tumult and the shouting dies—"

The guns are stilled in France. The boys are coming home. The terror has gone from our prayers, and most of us can cheer without cars.

"The war is over."

But over there is that same France that saw the war's dramatic end, and there is waste and devastation. Thousands of soldiers of France can have no homecoming, because their homes are gone.

And seventy thousand American boys are never coming home. They lie under wooden crosses on the fields of France and Italy.

The American people are going to show in their Liberty Loan of victory that Victory is not made things for just these things.

War Veteran Paid Leader Isn't Fuss About His Locale

Lieut. T.W. James

The leader of the famous Great War Veterans' Band of Ottawa, Canada, which is to make a tour of the Fourth Federal Reserve District on behalf of the Victory Loan campaign, does not need a band stand, lights and music racks for all his men in order to give a concert.

He has led his men through machine gun, shrapnel and high explosive fire in France and says that any inconvenience his band may encounter at cross road stops on the tour will be like luxury compared to playing in the field.

The leader is Lieut. T. W. James. Lieut. James took the first Canadian band to France in 1914. Later he organized a band whose first assignment was to play Canadian music to welcome the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry to the Canadian lines near Ploegsteert. The concert was held according to schedule and was a success in spite of the absence of either lights, band stand or sheet music.

Canvas of Business Men Shows Victory Loan Cannot Fail

BY CARTER GLASS.

With a view to determining the terms of the Victory Liberty Loan it has been my duty to inform myself not only concerning the surface conditions, which should be obvious to you businessmen and to every well-informed American, but also concerning the undercurrents affecting our financial and industrial welfare and which bear directly and indirectly upon the Victory Liberty Loan. I have been engaged, with the aid of the best minds at my disposal—and they include the members of the great War Loan Organization both at the Treasury in Washington and throughout the country which has so generously and brilliantly supported the Treasury of the United States through out the period of active warfare in the study of those conditions and I am glad indeed to be able to write you as a result of that study I take a very optimistic view of the prospect for the Victory Liberty Loan and the future of this country.

Bayonets vs. Bare Fists—That's L. Big Marine Show

ACTS of defense are not included in the bayonet instruction of the United States Marines because "Get Your Man" is their motto and does not include giving an enemy a chance to attack first. The Marines always claim the first and last blow which perhaps is why the Germans dubbed them "Teufel Hunden," or Devil-Dogs.

A detachment of these Devil-Dogs, composed of twenty men, an officer and a bugler will travel through the Fourth Federal Reserve District during the Victory Loan campaign and put on a daily sham battle and bayonet drill. This detachment has just been assigned from the overseas depot at Quantico, to the Fourth District. Their commander, Lieutenant Edward B. Irving, says every man is a non-commissioned officer who has qualified as an instructor in bayonet work.

At every stop on their trip through the district, these Marines will stage a sham battle and bayonet drill showing the various thrusts and parries which made them so feared by the Hun at Chateau Thierry. One of their exhibition stunts is to have one Marine disarm, face the bayonet and rifle in the hands of another to illustrate how it is possible to evade the blade of such an opponent and disarm him.

Another exciting feature of the Marine's exhibition is a combat in which one Marine with no weapon but his ready fists, faces and overpowers an opponent armed with a detached bayonet.

This feature is often far from bloodless, as the zealous Marines put up so realistic a struggle that one or the other is sometimes severely cut and bruised.

JUST RATS.

From pest to pelt may be the destiny of the rat. An Englishman has come forward with the announcement that he skins rats, when properly treated, are excellent furs, and could be made particularly useful for linings, says the Salt Lake Tribune.

According to a cablegram in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, an important conference at Newcastle, England, last month took up the problem of the extermination of rats. During the discussion it was stated that the yearly damage due to rats was more than $75,000,000.

At this conference there was present a Mr. Parker, veterinary inspector to the Newcastle corporation. He produced a cured skin of a brown rat and said that fifty or a hundred such skins could be made into a coat lining of warmth and durability. He said that he had approached a furrier on the question of having an industry created to deal with rats' skins. The only real difficulty seemed to be the lack of a regular supply.

Such an industry, he contended, would create a demand for the skins, and that would be an incentive for the destruction of rats. The meat of the rat, said Mr. Parker, when in a fresh state, is very similar to that of a rabbit, and he suggested that the bodies might be used for pig, poultry and dog foods.

Whether Mr. Parker's plan has any merit is doubtful. In the first place, if a demand for rat skins were created, the tendency inevitably would be toward a greater production of rats instead of their extermination. In the second place, the difficulty attending the taking of rats would be very great, and consequently the work would also be very costly, so that granting a value to the pelt, it would be much easier to propagate rats in confinement than to hunt them in their favorite haunts. After giving the matter profound thought, we are convinced that no great number of persons will engage in the rat skin supply business. The Newcastle conference apparently took a similar view, for it left to the County Council the solution of the problem of getting rid of the pests.

"SPLENDID!" SAY ALL

Large Crowd Attended High School Entertainment, and Many Turned Away at the Hall Door.

The presentation of the military drama "Standing By," at Library Hall, by the pupils of Boone High School last Saturday night was a great success, their effort meeting with well-merited approval and appreciation from the large audience which gathered to witness the performance. The plot of the play was one which had a popular appeal suited to the present time as it concerned the war in France and the dear old States to say nothing of the villainous rival for her hand who was by methods dark and evil to overthrow the "doughboy" in which he has an able assistant in the person of the girl's mother. As is the usual culmination of such conditions, though the villain is eventually foiled and everything turns out for the best for the soldier and his lady love.

The story opens with old Mr. Carey in a very sick condition. His daughter, Ethelinde, in love with Bobby Walton, who is wounded and in a hospital in France, is deeply concerned over the illness of her father. In fact more so than "mother who looks with great disfavor upon her daughter's affection for the absent soldier. The part of Mr. Carey was ably taken care of by Benjamin Stephens. In due role of his daughter Ethelinde, Elizabeth Kelly displayed excellent ability, well showing her gratitude to the boys in khaki and expressing determination to show the O.N.B. boy she would, on his return, be "standing by" in accordance with her promise. Ruth Kelly portrayed the designer of another scheme to avert the marriage of her daughter to the soldier and secure for her a husband in the person of Max Martin, a social lion and Congressional candidate. To say that her presentation of this role was good would be inadequate for she was ably assisted by the excellent acting of Denzil Carpenter in his character of the villainous Max Martin, the rival. In Helen Stephenson, we see a warm-hearted lady caller who has taken upon herself the task of placing ten French war orphans in homes. The sympathetic Mr. Carey promptly relieves her of the money remaining in the fund and into the care of Polly, old colored mammy of Ethelinde.
